First, Last and Always!

Quality is the keystone to success. "First, last and always" it is quality that counts. You can deceive yourself into thinking otherwise, but it doesn't pay in the end. There is no time like the holidays to prove this to your satisfaction. People are seeking for the highest quality now as never before—are you going to disappoint them by selling inferior goods?

Moir, Wilson & Co.'s Scotch Fish

Herring and Tomato, Kippered Herring, etc. They stand at the very top notch for quality in England, where they are packed.

Every can or tin is as near perfection as money, skill and experience can make it. Year after year the Moir, Wilson goods maintain their reputation in the front rank. They are A No. 1 "first, last and always."

"Griffin" Brand Dried Fruits

Seeded Raisins, Prunes, Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears. The product of the finest orchards and vineyards on the Pacific Coast. They reach you in the original package, just as they leave the hands of the growers and packers.

They are not shipped in bulk and then put up in fancy packages—they reach you at first hands. Nothing finer can be produced than the "Griffin" Brand. It is the standard for highest quality "first, last and always."

Sold by leading wholesalers everywhere.

The profit in your business rests upon little things—"mites." If you are forced by the scales you are using to give 50 customers daily one cent each in down or over-weight, you are 50c. poorer and they do not know of or feel any benefit. If you use a Toledo Automatic, Springless Computing Scale the 50 customers will give you the one cent each that you would otherwise give them and you gain 50c., a difference in your favor of $1.00 on the day's business and the customer gets his just dues, so loses nothing.

Facts

No. 5.

It is an indisputable fact, that, in order to get perfect productions, the systems and devices employed must not only be of high order, but also of scientific and economic principle. This is particularly so in Tea production. Some tea plantations still exploit the industry with original primitive and unsanitary methods, the various processes being still carried through with native manual labor, with its attendant uncleanliness. In the manufacture of CEYLON TEA THE EQUIPMENT IS PERFECT, only the most modern and improved devices for the perfect preservation of the natural essentials of the leaf being employed, the tea itself being scarcely touched by hand, thus securing perfect cleanliness.

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament.

WHILE nothing is more talked of to-day throughout the British Empire than Chamberlain's preferential scheme, we still find that the British Government is slow to recognize minor chances of developing trade with Canada; trade which, though producing not very much perhaps in the individual cases, would nevertheless aggregate a very considerable amount. Several weeks ago we had an article in this paper as to the unfairness of the British cattle embargo as applied to Canadian cattle, an unfairness which must be patent to the English themselves, but which they seemingly refuse to remove, because they want for their farmers the protection which the embargo indirectly gives them, and at the same time do not wish to admit what they consider the heresy of a protective measure.

Another rather annoying little matter came to light through an article published in The Montreal Gazette, as to shipment of cattle for South Africa. It seems that the British Government is now engaged in restocking the farms there, from which the cattle were commandeered during the war. If this could be done by exporting from the herds at home, or from any other colony, no objection could be made, but we learn that the supply is being drawn from Texas ports. When we remember the extreme unfriendliness of the people of this section of the United States, displayed towards Britain in the late war, and compare it with the sacrifices made by Canada, it does strike one as rather more than strange that a British colony should be overlooked, and the enemy, so to speak, favored commercially. Just how many cattle will be required for the purpose, the article in question does not state; but the number must be very large when we remember the completeness of the clean-up, and the fact that a large part of the industry of the conquered countries was in cattle raising. In one shipload alone 2,500 are to be taken, but this of course will be but a small fraction of the whole. It is stated that great care is being taken in the selection of the cattle; but surely we produce as good in Canada as anywhere else on the continent.

Nor can the matter be attributed to stupid oversight on the part of the British officials entrusted with the purchase. Mr. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, read the article in toto, and asked the Government if attention had been directed to what was going on as therein outlined, and, if so, what steps had been taken to turn the current of this trade to our own shores. Mr. Fisher, the Minister of Agriculture, in replying on behalf of the Government, said that some time since his department had been seized of the facts, and had at once put itself into communication with the Canadian High Commissioner in London, Lord Strathcona. That gentleman had twice communicated with the Imperial authorities, but without result. We repeat, then, that we cannot allow the excuse that the matter has been allowed to proceed through ignorance. It may be, since we know that cattle, like people, partake of physical peculiarities according to the climate in which they have been raised, that the Texas animal is better adapted to the climate of South Africa than a Canadian beast would be, but it seems that we are treated to no explanation, good, bad or indifferent. Can it be that English officialdom agrees with Senator Depew that Canada is the spoiled child of Britain, and are they inclined to give us a little scourging for the good of our souls? We have no objection whatever to the English policy of cultivating the most friendly relations with the United States; we agree with it, but always with a large proviso that in so doing Canada—the eldest son in the family of young nations—should not be given the go-by. It is just such cases as the one quoted that give to the enemies of British connection a text for their arguments, and while we feel sure that the masses in Britain would gladly on all occasions give us the preference, we are just as conscious that the powers that be, too often, forget us for our big neighbor to the south.

Probably the most remarkable character in the House of Commons is Mr. Gourley, the member for Colchester. Mr. Gourley is a man of education, a lawyer by profession, a wide reader, and a very thorough gentleman in the truest sense of the word. When he speaks, however, the members sit back and prepare to enjoy themselves. No reading of newspapers then, no writing of letters, no quiet snooze to make up for the late session of the night before, but expectancy sits enthroned on every face. Nor does the speaker ever fail to live up to these expectations. Mr. Gourley's main characteristic is his faith in the future of Canada, and his extreme contempt for the United States. Extracts from his speeches generally find their way into American newspapers, and are invariably succeeded by showers of letters from irate citizens of the great Republic, who, if they were but present, would enjoy the whole thing with that infinite zest which all those south of the line have for anything of an amusing character.

Mr. Gourley's latest opportunity came when the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill was before the House, and never did he rise to greater heights. Completely carried away by his own enthusiasm and by the encouraging cries of the members who wanted to see just what he could do, the honorable gentleman left his desk and invaded the floor of the House, where his emphatic gesticulations placed in jeopardy the Hansard man, who was endeavoring to crystalize his utterances into history. As the proceedings since our last issue have been rather dull and of a routine character, we feel justified for the edification of our numerous readers in devoting some little space to his utterances.

Mr. Gourley has immense faith in railroad building as a means of developing a country. He looks with disdain upon our modest 18,000 miles of road, and announces, "We are just on the threshold of railway building in Canada. We have no railways in Canada. The country is almost as barren of them as it was on the day when Jacques Cartier arrived, and I hope his spirit is not looking down upon the people of Canada to-day. There never was a greater heritage than was given to the people of Canada, and no people ever dealt with a greater heritage in so mean and miserable a manner as the people of Canada have." For this Mr. Gourley largely blames the people of Ontario, who, parsimonious in the past, are now crying out that the time has come to prohibit further aid in the construction of railways in this country. He has hopes, nevertheless, for he sees new men growing up in our old province who give promise of better things. Again he breaks forth upon our undeveloped state as follows: "We have the Canadian Pacific Railway stretching up through the country, but as far as any development is concerned, the country is in about as undeveloped a state as it was when the Indian chiefs sang their war songs on the banks of the Ottawa." In speaking of the magnificent extent of Canadian territory by land and sea Mr. Gourley says: "Why, you could take the Baltic sea and drop it into James Bay and it would scarcely cause a ripple on the surface." Later on in his speech the member for Colchester gives us a strong hint of a source of early inspiration, inspiration which seems to have convinced him that we can make ourselves great by talking about our greatness. He was present, he tells us, at a fourth of July celebration in a rural part of the State of Illinois, and listened to an orator on that occasion. What did he say? asks Mr. Gourley. "There was a little rise in the land, scarcely perceptible to a Nova Scotian, who is accustomed to beautiful mountains, and that man described that hill as infinitely greater than the Alps, and the little brook that ran through his community rivalled in his mind the fabled Nile, or the glorious Rhine. Sir, that is the teaching that has helped the people of the United States to become great. Their leaders told them that they were the greatest people on earth, and that they have achieved more than any other people, and I will give them that credit, while detesting their very existence." Shortly thereafter Mr. Gourley branched off into a comment on the constitution of the United States. Just what that had to do with the G.T.R. charter it would probably be hard to tell, but the Speaker did not interfere, and the following deliverance was the result: "If you ask me to say what was the worst constitution in the world, I would say that it was either the tyranny of Algiers or the tyranny of the United States. When they want a government what have they got? A senate, a tyrant for six years; a House of Representatives, a tyrant for two years, a President, a tyrant for four years; and a Supreme Court which bosses them all eternally and forever. The result is, that a man who lives in the United States has four tyrants to deal with, whereas in Algiers you have only one, and if you fix him you fix them all." A few lines further on Mr. Gourley states that he is going to devote the next few years of his life to showing that the only government worth living under is that of the old red-cross flag of England. If the British Empire is large now, what will it be when Mr. Gourley's crusade is finished? Surely long before that time his hope, expressed in another part of his speech, a hope to see the flag of England floating over the entire globe, will be realized.

While advocating the building of immense stretches of road, Mr. Gourley leans more particularly towards the Trans-Canada, and this because he favors its northern route as being far away from our dangerous boundary. He calls it an "Imperial railway," and gave the House a glowing picture of the way in which the Yankees would come a cropper in the next war with Canada if this road were only built. This led to the most amusing incident of the speech. Drawing a parallel with Napoleon's Moscow campaign he said, "We could retreat."

But Mr. Gourley had warmed the members into a belligerent mood. "Never," they shouted.

Mr. Gourley: "Yes, the Boers have taught us that retreat is very often the beginning of victory."

"The members: "Never retreat."

Mr. Gourley: "Then when the summer——"

The members: "Never retreat."

Mr. Gourley: "We could retire."

The members: "Oh, Oh, never retire."

Mr. Gourley: "We could retire as a strategical necessity."

Members: "Never."

Mr. Gourley: "Let me put my point. We could retire as a——"

Members: "Never, never."

Mr. Gourley, (finally allowed to proceed,) we could retire, and in the end, the snows of winter coming on, the invaders would be compelled to retreat."

Against the enormity of longer allowing the Grand Trunk to have a terminus at Portland, outside of Canadian territory, Mr. Gourley spoke out from the shoulder. "Every man in this Parliament ought to be horse-whipped for allowing such a state of things. If we had a proper national spirit in this country not one of us would escape chastisement."

Just once was the honorable gentleman called to order by the indulgent chair. He had passed westward in his wild career, and was speaking of our Pacific sea-board having been largely filched by the Americans, and he described the land taken as "a narrow strip whether 30 miles or 60 miles wide, stolen by a lot of greedy Yankees from a lot of improvident Englishmen. You call them statesmen, I would be sorry to think that any school-boy in Canada was so stupid as these statesmen were." Mr. Gourley promptly apologized, and shortly thereafter concluded what is probably the most remarkable speech ever delivered on the floor of Parliament.

One sound point he did make which was somewhat new to the House. He advocated a cash bonus to the railways to be assisted, and that the lands on both sides should be opened as to but half their extent for free homesteads, the alternate sections being reserved for sale, expressing the opinion that in a very short time these reserved lands would bring in the market not only enough, but far more than enough, to pay back the cash voted to the roads.

PEANUT-GROWING IN ONTARIO.

MR. DAUGHARTY has been very successful in growing a considerable quantity of peanuts this year, says The Leamington Post. The nuts grow under the ground like potatoes and one plant when pulled had thirty fully developed pods, many of them much larger than the imported ones. The sweet potatoes grown in the same section, although not so large as in former years, owing to the drought, are of fair size and excellent flavor. Peanuts and sweet potatoes will, like tobacco, be staple products of Essex County. Mr. Daugharty has, after several years' experience, decided that six hills of peanuts can be grown on the ground required for one hill of corn, and there is no more work in taking care of a hill of peanuts than one of potatoes ; that the total cost of producing an acre of nuts, including rent, etc., will not exceed $50, and that 100 bushels to the acre would not be a large crop. Peanuts now cost wholesale in Ontario $1.30 per bushel, to which must be added freight and duty paid coming from the States. A clear profit of $80 can, Mr. Daugharty believes, be made on each acre of peanuts grown in Ontario at the price mentioned. If the customs tariff was slightly increased all the peanuts required in Canada could be successfully grown in Essex County, and the crop would pay better than many others. The plants themselves, after being pulled and cured, are greedily eaten by cattle, and are just as good as clover hay for milch cows.

THE CLIQUE TOURISTS.

A party of 70 grocers and merchants from New York and Brooklyn are at present visiting Canada under the name of the Clique Tourists.

Their route is first to Kingston, then by the steamboat Rideau King, which they have chartered for a week, to Montreal, and then they will visit Ottawa.

The object of this tour is to pick up a few ideas of how Canada conducts her grocery store.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS and Cold Storage News.

Cowansville Dairy Board.

FOR some weeks it has been known that an agreement exists between certain factories and buyers on the Dairymen's Exchange, Cowansville, by which the factories, in consideration of not boarding their products on the exchange, receive the highest market price from the buyers, and sometimes a fraction over the price cheese or butter sells for on the board. The effect of this is twofold. Firstly, it has the effect of keeping the factory's products off the board and prevents its being sold on the open market. Secondly, a buyer, having made such a contract, will be doubly anxious to depress the market in that it means not only a saving on purchases made on the open board but also in the price of the goods contracted for.

The detrimental effect of this on the exchange may easily be conceived. Unless something is done to remedy this evil the usefulness of the board will be altogether destroyed. Such a scheme will undermine the very foundation of the Dairymen's Exchange, and unless it is nipped in the bud, the institution will totter to its fall.

This Dairymen's Exchange has long enjoyed the reputation of being a board whose affairs are always managed with perfect honesty—a board upon which everyone, qualified to do business thereon, is given an equal chance. Unless this device is at once stopped the board will lose its well deserved reputation.

A reconstruction of the by-laws of the exchange is to be made at the next meeting of the members, and it is to be hoped that something may be agreed on which will overcome this growing evil.

Bacon in England.

The British correspondent of The Trade Bulletin, Montreal, reports the following concerning the English bacon market for last week:

"After a slow week, with prices showing a very irregular tendency, and demand running on best weights only, quotations were unexpectedly advanced yesterday, not because consumption has overtaken supply, but because it ought to at this time of the year, and because the raw material keeps so dear both in Ireland and on the continent. Canadian has halted and dragged all the week with the rest, but it nevertheless participates in the advance, and the following quotations represent a range of values at which not much business has been done. No. 1, 50s, 56s, 57s, 60s; No 2. 49s, 53s, 57s; No. 3, 48s, 50s, 53s, 54s per cwt."

Canadian Butter in England.

THE Danish butter-makers, says Trade Bulletin, are concluding their arrangements for putting their spring output into tins, and, as always follows, the English market in that import is firming up, the Copenhagen committee helping matters along by raising the quotation three kroner, which, however, leaves the price some six kroner below the corresponding time last year. French butter has been sent up 4s to 5s per cwt., and in all quarters of the market there seems to be an awakening of interest which should inevitably result in a general improvement in values.

At present that awakening has not done a great deal for Canadian butter, of which there is by no means a large supply on any of the markets. There is not enough to justify an official quotation, but merchants give 90s to 92s, London for the choicest; and 89s to 90s, Liverpool. The demand runs everywhere on finest, but secondary descriptions are neglected and drooping. Importers are acting very cautiously. It may confidently be asserted that the bottom has been seen in prices this side of the cold weather.

Lindsay Cheese Board.

The meeting of the Lindsay, Ont., cheese board was held on June 22. It was of unusual interest on account of the presence of Inspector Publow, who is recognized to be the ablest man in the employ of The Eastern Dairymen's Association. In his address he gave the farmers present some valuable hints regarding the proper care and treatment of their milk which they took to the factories.

There were 1,774 boxes of cheese offered on the board, which were all sold to Flavelle for 10½c. Other buyers present were: Fitzgerald, Gillespie, Cook and Whitton.

The next sale on the board will be on July 6.

Pakenham Packing Company.

R. Osler Wade, provisional liquidator of The Pakenham Pork Packing Co., Ltd., of Stouffville, has prepared a statement of the company's affairs, which shows a deficit of $41,141.11. The liabilities are made up at $115,342.04, and the assets are:—Cash, $5,870.71; trade accounts, $3,352.70; James Pakenham, $915; machinery and plant, $16,691.35; furniture, $385.50; supplies, $2,813.07; merchandise, $700; due by contributors, preferred stock, $24,807.10; common stock, $12,602.50. A number of the shareholders have signified their intention of contesting their liability for the unpaid stock to which they subscribed.

The Leduc Pork Packing Plant.

The officers and directors of the pork packing concern at Leduc, N.W.T., called The D. Wade Co., Ltd., the organization of which was but recently completed with a capital stock of $100,000, are: T. R. Glanville, president; R. T. Telford, vice-president; N. B. Heath, secretary-treasurer; D. Wade, manager; C. W. Gaetz, M. M. Kirkpatrick, Wm. MacLaren, J. B. Holden, directors.

The concern has a splendid plant which is situated in the midst of a splendid hog country, and there is an ample market for its products in British Columbia and in the north country.

Another Abattoir Protest.

Residents in the vicinity of the Davies Abattoir, Toronto, have followed the example set by the residents in the neighborhoods of The Park-Blackwell Co.'s Abattoir and The Harris Abattoir by sending in a petition to the Board of Control asking that the Davies Institution be placed under the same regulations as those two companies. That means a request to have the manufacture of by-products prohibited, which would mean the removal of the fertilizer.

The Frozen Rabbit Trade.

By the account of The Melbourne (Australia) Leader, the frozen rabbit trade between Australia and Great Britain is of considerable magnitude and also of some importance in relation to the meat supply of Great Britain. Last year Victoria alone exported over 6,000,000 frozen rabbits to England, for a return of about $1,000,000; while nearly

Also threaten to Leave Toronto.

The Park-Blackwell Co., Toronto, have, as well as The Harris Abattoir Co., threatened to leave the city if they are required to cease the manufacture of the fertilizer. The company states that the discontinuation would mean a serious loss to them, as they could not, under such a handicap, hope to meet competition.

If the injunction is forced through by the city they say that they will consider the advisability of moving to Toronto Junction.

Provision Notes.

A GRANT of $100,000 is being asked from the Dominion Government by The Ontario Live Stock Association, towards the Ontario live stock exhibit at the St. Louis Exhibition next year. The Government will also be asked to use its influence to have the dates for the various classes of live stock as now arranged by them changed so as to avoid the excessive heat.

Mr. Grisdale, agriculturist at the Central Experimental Farm, has submitted the report of the results of the beef-fattening experiments to the Agriculture Committee, at Ottawa. He said that owing to uncontrollable circumstances, the results were not as favorable as in previous years, the increased cost of cattle, plus the cost of feeding, not giving a fair return, when the beef reached the market.

The Strathroy, Ont., creamery reports a constantly growing business. They are now handling a large increase of business over last season. The prices for high grades of creamery butter are equal to those of last year, which was a record-breaker.

Kansas City would have suffered a meat famine during and after the flood but for the fortunate fact that one department of Armour & Co.'s plant was not put out of service. The great packing house made special effort to supply the local market, when all other resources failed, and no increase in price was asked.

The provision officials of Prussia have been petitioned to have eggs sold in the future by weight instead of by number. The object is to protect German poultry breeders against those of foreign countries, German eggs weighing, on an average, from 38.58 to 51.44 pwts., while those imported weigh from 25.72 to 32.15 pwts.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

The demand is very good in all lines. The demand for cured and smoked meats continues excellent; one dealer says that he is being taxed to the utmost to supply this demand. There is a still further decline in the price of lard. Although on account of the low prices, the demand is good, there is an accumulation of stock. Lard in tubs and pails is quoted ½c per lb. easier. Otherwise prices remain firm at last week's quotations. We quote:

In barrelled goods this is a very quiet season. Prices are rather lower but it is hard to stimulate sales. Pure lard is again quoted lower, quite a large stock is held and sales are light. Refined holds quite firm. In fresh meats western beef is unchanged in price. The season of best quality is about over. Domestic beef is cheaper, with free offerings. Lamb is quickly taking a first place. Prices are easier but still high. Mutton is lower and dull. Veal continues quite firm and some nice stock is offered. Pork is lower and little business done.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

TORONTO.

BUTTER.—There is a much easier feeling on the market this week, although there has been no lowering of prices as yet. Receipts have been very liberal during the past week. There have been such liberal receipts of good dairy butter, both in prints and rolls, that the demand for creamery prints and solids has diminished considerably; and, the make of creamery being large, the natural result is an accumulation of stocks. The trade in creamery solids is especially dull. The weather recently has been very favorable to the production of butter, and this accounts for the large make of fine dairy and also creamery butter. There is now a much healthier condition on the English markets. Both Danish and French butter have been advanced in price. However, as yet this has not affected Canadian butter to any appreciable extent. The demand for the finest Canadian is good, but the market is not very well stocked with it on account of the very low prices. There is no demand for secondary grades. There is considerable Canadian butter now being shipped to England for cold storage until fall. It is to be hoped that the market will be in a better condition at that time. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 19	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 18	0 18½
Dairy rolls, large	0 15	0 16
" prints	0 16	0 17
" in tubs	0 14	0 16

CHEESE.—There is an easier feeling on the cheese market this week, although as yet there has been no reduction in local quotations. On the cheese boards prices have been considerably lower during the past few days. The local demand is fairly good. There is a very good export demand. On the English market the demand is fully equal to the receipts. The cheese make in England has been large, and there is a decrease in values, but not so in the price of Canadian. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 11	0 11¼
" twins, new	0 11½	0 11¾

MONTREAL.

CHEESE.—The cheese market to-day ruled about an ⅛c. lower than yesterday, as a result of the lower prices paid at the different country boards. But it is also worthy of note that offers cabled on the basis of yesterday's country cost elicited favorable replies, an indication that June cheese is still wanted in England when the price suits the buyer. At country points to-day, also, the ruling price was 10½c., which is rather firmer than that of yesterday, and altogether the situation is a decidedly mixed one. What complicates it further is the conflicting offers that have been made over the cable on June goods. Shippers here first started to offer cheese at 54s., and gradually worked down to 52s. 6d., at which it is understood a considerable quantity were sold. At this basis there was money for the shipper, though the margin was not great, but since then they have been offering it 1s. per cwt. under the market each week. As prices have held fairly steady, goods going out on these reduced offers must have lost money, and they have also made legitimate business difficult. Buyers found it so to-day, for while shippers appear to be generous for direct business over the cable, they do not adopt the same attitude on spot. The result was that dealers with orders in hand found it difficult to-day to secure goods at prices which afforded them a margin. They were prepared to pay 10⅝c. for Ontario, 10½c. for Townships, and 10¼c. for Quebec makes, but sellers wanted an ⅛c. more, and trading hung fire because of this. If the current receipts here are a fair criterion, and they ought to be, the make now in progress is an extraordinary one, and it will be surprising if prices hold up much longer in the face of it. Receipts to-day were almost 30,000 boxes, making 85,000 boxes for the week to date. Some time ago it was intimated in this column that, despite the drought, this year's output would be away ahead of last year's. Events would appear to substantiate the correctness of this view.

BUTTER.—The butter market continues quiet, and while a certain quantity of creamery has been bought and put away in cold storage for future use, the exporters assert that the ruling is still too high for any extensive business. It is understood, however, that there are limits in hand which would involve the turnover of a considerable quantity of creamery, providing it could be had around 19¼c. for finest. So far, however, the price has not reached that basis in a general way, as holders want 19½c. for creamery really worth having. There has been little done in dairy goods for export this season. This business has been left so far in the hands of Maritime Province jobbers and local dealers in Ontario, who have gathered in from 5,000 to 8,000 packages, which they have stored for use later on. They have paid on the average 15 to 15½c.; whereas, there is no export outlet over 14 to 14½c., or at 1c. per lb. less.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—There is quite a large stock with but a fair sale. Prices are rather lower. The quality now being received is good. In a wholesale way little creamery is offered.

CHEESE.—There has been much more domestic cheese offered up to date than in previous years. While prices tend easier they are still higher than usual. The demand is for twins. There is a particularly good sale considering the price.

EGGS.—Receipts are not large and the demand but fairly active. Prices tend rather higher; quality is good.

Refrigerator Car Service.

From July 1 to September 12 The Grand Trunk Railway Company will supply refrigerator cars for carload shipments of cheese to Montreal. In some places this may not be practicable, but it will be carried out as far as possible; the minimum weight to govern, 24,000 lb.

The Department of Agriculture formulated the plan, and the Government will pay as much as $5 per car for icing a certain number of cars, about 40 a week. At the present time a ton of ice is considered enough for cooling the cheese, but any cost over the $5 for icing must be paid by the owner of the chesse. If it is for the local Montreal market, any additional charges may be waybilled against the property for collection at its destination, if the shipper so directs; but where the cheese is for a European port, via Montreal, under through bills of lading, the additional charge for icing must be prepaid.

The amount of ice used would of course vary according to the distance the cars must travel, and for long distances a larger quantity of ice would be needed, which must be waybilled on Montreal as an "advance charge" against the property. At stations where it is impossible to ice the cars they will be iced at the nearest convenient point.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

THE WALL PAPER TRADE

CATERING TO CHEAP TRADE.

IT is difficult to give advice on a subject like this, for the average merchant knows he must carry the cheap lines. Where he errs, however, is in the immense range he is willing to carry in lines that retail at 5c. or thereabouts, while in his higher-priced goods he fears to carry much lest it will remain on his hands. If he would sit down and think out which customer means more to him, the 5-cent or the 15-cent, and which deserves the most attention, he would come to the conclusion that he is doing the better class of customers an injustice in not affording them variety, while for the cheap class, where pattern should not be of such great importance, he carries almost innumerable designs.

That is the reason why so much of the better trade comes to the city. If a buyer is willing to put 15c. into a roll of paper he rightly considers that to him is due greater attention than to the cheap man. How can a merchant expect to sell good grades unless he carries a fair stock to select from? He should not pass an opinion on the demand for good wall papers until he has carried variety enough to supply those wishing that class of goods.

He not only loses his good customers, but also good sales to other customers who would buy the more expensive lines if a sufficient assortment were displayed, but who, upon seeing such a vast choice in cheap grades do not think of going above it. When a person buys a 15c. wall paper he is not buying a 5c. grade of paper and colors with a 15c. pattern; he is getting a better paper in more enduring colors and with better designs. A 15c. paper will outwear five 5c. papers and always look well. The fading of cheap paper is the principal cause for getting a new wall covering, but in the better grades this fading does not occur, and the wall paper need be changed only when tired of, or, by some special cause, soiled.

Most of our expensive paper is imported and carried only in the cities or large towns, whereas if a taste and demand for it were encouraged in the smaller towns and villages by the local dealers, our own manufacturers would soon see the necessity of supplying Canadian trade in these expensive lines. We cannot expect our mills to manufacture a class of paper for which there is little demand, for sentiment does not run a business.

Let merchants carry better lines; let them learn and tell the advantages of expensive wall papers; let them push that grade and keep back the cheap lines, and it would not be long before our swellest wall paper stores would display the card "Made in Canada."

WHAT THE STORES ARE SELLING.

NEVER before has the variety of pattern and color in wall paper been seen that is shown this spring. As a rule, the patterns are less conspicuous than ever, and it is only for certain rooms that the loud and prominent bunches of flowers of other seasons are displayed. Stripes are a prominent feature, both in somewhat contrasted colors and in self tones. The stripe pattern is so usual for certain rooms, that it is always popular.

The "art nouveau" designs are the best sellers in the higher priced papers, and the effects in this style are most beautiful. Long stems, with sweeping curves and irregular bends, are crowned by medium sized and small flowers in somewhat conventional designs, and these spots of pattern occur at great distances from each other. In the intervals, inconspicuous designs of self colors break the stretch of clear space, without exhibiting a mass of confused pattern.

Tapestry paper has a prominent position in the list and is selling as never before. One of its conveniences is its adaptability to the coloring of any adjacent room.

In colors, delicate shades abound in blue, green and pink. Deep reds as a background are not so much in favor, but rose color and fairly dark shades are made still darker by a deep red pattern. Self tones are the neatest and daintiest of the season's offerings, and are selling as their merits deserve.

Some special United States papers are in Japanese goods in red with designs of Japs, storks, and such like novelties. A summer paper has bunches of goldenrod in large clusters with intervening small clusters of purple asters. Some landscape papers are printed with games of golf or baseball and groups of tall trees. In nursery papers, landscapes, games and illustrated nursery rhymes appear. These are supposed to be, and no doubt are, educative.

New York and Boston have done comparatively little in the exportation of grain this season. Since the opening of navigation, the port of Montreal has exported fully 7,000,000 bushels, principally Manitoba wheat.

THE SELF-WRINGING MOPS.

It will be noticed in Tarbox Bros.' advertisement this week that they are filling delayed orders for their self-wringing mop to the jobbing trade, ranging from St. John, N.B., to Vancouver, B.C., so that the retail trade should not allow this article to remain out of stock, as it has become an established household necessity. In this connection THE GROCER takes a great deal of pleasure in assuming no little credit for its share in popularizing this meritorous article, inasmuch as this firm's advertising contract, which appeared in our second volume, is admitted by the firm to be one of its strongest helps in establishing a permanent trade in an unknown specialty.

They inform us that when their first contract with this paper was made they could not see where the money was to come from to meet the payments unless the article was a success, and many times on the initial trips to the retail trade the dealer would leave the salesman during his demonstration to look the advertisement up in this paper and then return and place an order. When it is considered that their first advertisement appeared fourteen years ago, one sees what merit along with conscientious effort to keep to a permanent standard of value will accomplish in retaining the confidence of the trade and public, for the Tarbox Mop has steadily and persistently increased in popularity.

On account of the difficulty in getting castings fast enough to fill their increasing orders they have devised a stamped stee wringing handle which has not only given them a better control of the output but improved the appearance, and the hand grip in the use of the mop.

The trade should note this change and insist on having their orders filled with the mop bearing the maker's name plainly stamped in the metal, which is the only guarantee that the cloth with which these mops are fitted is of the standard weight and quality to make them of practical value.

HIRES' ROOT BEER.

W. P. Downey, 26 St. Peter st., Montreal, the Canadian agent for this celebrated root beer, reports telegrams from merchants in Winnipeg, Vancouver, and other large cities ordering 20 gross lots and 10 gross lots, per express, of Hires' root beer. This popular brand is in great demand in Canada and is having a tremendous sale just now. It is a healthful and refreshing drink for the hot weather, good for young and old alike, and merchants would do well to state plainly on their orders "Hires' Improved Root Beer." Then they get the genuine.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITISISM

Edited by W. Arthur Lydiatt, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

You Watch Your Business Only Half Way When You Fail to Watch the Advertising.

VERY gratifying evidence that this department of THE GROCER is appreciated, and that it is proving of real practical help to GROCER readers, has come from several different quarters recently.

Accompanying the following letter were a number of ads. that illustrate the manner in which this reader has benefitted by the suggestions and criticisms that have, so far, been published in this department :

GUELPH, June 1, 1903.

Mr. W. ARTHUR LYDIATT,
Toronto, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—Thank you for your last criticism ; it has helped me a lot.

I am sending another batch of ads., and hope that some may meet with your approval. As before, they are selected at random, and some are better than others; however, criticize any you like.

I am working hard at the advertising, and it certainly seems to pay.

Yours sincerely,
R. MCCREA.

If my readers will call to mind the first ads. Mr. McCrae sent in and compare them with the extracts from the ads. sent me this time, which are reproduced herewith, they will appreciate the improvement very noticeable in the best of those submitted.

It is quite evident that Mr. McCrae is trying real hard to do good advertising, and I have no doubt he is proving every day that it is well worth while "bothering" with the preparation of the ads. by the results he experiences.

The ads. I have before me are, as a whole, good—some of them exceptionally good. They all talk business from the first line to the last, and in some the argument is put in a very interesting way.

The one that impresses me most favorably is headed "Half Ton of Cooking Figs below Cost," and is reproduced herewith. If any argument would sell these figs it would seem to be the one Mr. McCrae makes in this ad. when he tells the most satisfactory way to prepare figs, and suggests several dishes that might be prepared.

This seems to me to be the best way any grocer can advertise—to give recipes when possible and suggest tasty dishes that may be prepared with the goods advertised. Of course, it cannot always be done to good advantage, but when it is possible this sort of an argument ought to sell goods.

The women folk are always interested in hearing of new ways of preparing old dishes, and of new dishes that can be prepared with the old familiar goods. New and desirable recipes are so easily obtained that it seems to me every grocer could use this means of making his advertising interesting.

I was particularly struck with the headings of a number of the ads. Mr. McCrea has sent me. In nearly every case the story of the ad. is outlined in the heading or display lines.

Had I the time and space I might criticize the literary construction of a few of the ads. because some of the arguments might be a little better arranged, but the faults are not glaring ones and they do not detract seriously from the value of the ads.

For instance, in the ad. "Hot Weather Appetizers" I would say, "Your meals will not be flat and tasteless these hot days if you include some of the many fresh delicacies so plentifully shown at the Noted Tea Store," in preference to the way it now stands. I think it better to suggest what will happen if people do purchase certain articles rather than suggest the condition of things if they don't.

In the coffee ad. there is a tendency to talk too much, which I would advise him to guard against in preparing his ads.

It might also be an improvement were he more positive in his statements. "You'll make no mistake by buying at once" is better than "We don't think you'll make Half Ton . . Cooking Figs BELOW COST.

We overstocked in Cooking Figs this year, and now at the close of the season we find ourselves with half a ton of sound, large figs on our hands, which we have decided to clear out at less than cost.

You know, Cooking Figs are delicious when properly prepared. They want to be soaked overnight, to take the sugar off, and then stewed, when you will have a preserve both tasty and healthy. And you can serve them in so many different ways- in pies, in cakes, and puddings. By the way, when you are making the pies, just put a little rhubarb in, and you will have a combination that would tempt even a dyspeptic.

But it's not only how delicious the figs are that we want to tell you about—it's the price we have put them at.

Cooking Figs usually sell at 5 lbs for 25c., but when we found that we would either have to lower the price or carry the figs over, we reduced the price to 10 lbs. best Cooking Figs for 25c.

Two Popular Drinks

McCrea's Favorite Blend of Coffee

If you really care for a fine Coffee, one that has a body, a delicate fragrance, and leaves a slight tinge, try McCrea's Favorite Blend of Coffee.

It is blended according to a secret receipt, which we discovered after years of experimenting.

We use only the finest of Coffees and grind it after your order is received.

40c. a pound is not a high price for good coffee, you have probably paid as much for an inferior one.

Won't you let us convince you with a half pound?

Almera Ceylon Tea

Ceylon Teas are rapidly forging to the front, and we believe Almera Ceylon Tea to be the best of all.

You know that the water in different places differs, and a Tea that suits Toronto water, for instance, will not give out its fragrance so readily in Guelph water. Almera Ceylon Tea is blended for Guelph alone, and it stands to reason that a Tea specially blended for one place must be better for that particular place than a Tea blended to suit the Dominion.

We are sole agents for Almera Ceylon Tea, black or mixed, 25, 40 and 50c. a pound.

a mistake by buying at once." Such a statement as the former tells what you think—it is an expression of opinion.

After writing an ad. just read it over a couple of times and cross out anything you think is not necessary to convey the meaning of the ad.

I don't see the name-plate yet.

Try an ad. some day without that heavy black border and see if you think it looks better. When you use a heavy-face type it sometimes has a better effect if no border is used.

And when you think you have improved still further, send me some of the ads. They ought to make splendid examples of good grocery advertising, and I might be able to use some as suggestions for other GROCER readers.

The grocer shown above is guessing, and the scale he has will keep him guessing, too.

He's an honest fellow, so he sees that his scale goes down on the customer's side every time, and he always gives full weight.

They know they can get more for their money this way. Can't blame them either.

INTRODUCING ARTICLES TO THE TRADE.

SO many articles are invented and made up for sale by the trade that it has become quite a problem to discover the best method of introducing the new goods—of placing them before the trade.

Many inventors or selling agents expect that all they have to do is to produce a good thing at a fair price and the wholesale trade will be eager at once to take it up and bear the expense of placing it before the retailers. Needless to say, many who have gone ahead on this assumption have come to grief, and have found it extremely difficult to persuade the wholesale dealers to stock up a new line to take the place of something which has long given satisfaction to the trade and for which there is still a good demand.

It is a fair argument the wholesale dealers make when they claim that the manufacturer should introduce the new article—that he should create the demand for it.

Then the question arises, how can this be done most speedily, economically and thoroughly? To send a representative over the Dominion, or even to the chief cities, with some new specialty would be needless, unwise and expensive. To give it as a sideline to some traveller covering the trade helps, yet does not cover the trade thoroughly. The same is true of advertising. It is safe to say that more business can be secured from the investment of a moderate sum in advertising a new article than by the same expenditure on it in other ways, yet this can be made an altogether too cumbersome and expensive method of introduction. It would not be wise in every case to advertise such an article to the consumer. Nine cases out of ten the buyer trusts to the judgment of the retailer. Therefore the selling agent may content himself with a good campaign of advertising to convince the retailer that the new line is worthy of attention, of stocking up. Trade papers, as a rule, will be found ready to explain in their reading columns the features of any new goods offered by their advertisers. A good description of a new article and a bright campaign of advertising, even in a moderate-sized space in a trade paper with a wide connection, will cover the trade in a few weeks more thoroughly than can be done in any other way.

PROSPECTS IN EASTERN ONTARIO.

Canners in Eastern Ontario report an exceptionally good pack of strawberries. The rains of last week, however, were injurious to the later berries. The cold wet weather has practically killed the corn and there will be scarcely any crop at all. Tomatoes show very little better prospects. Peas promise a good crop and will be ready in a week or ten days. Raspberries will be but half a crop owing to the frost, but the larger fruits are promising well.

MONOPOLY IN CURRANTS.

A SCHEME is being promoted in London, England, with the object of securing control of the world's supply of currants. A company calling itself "Concessions and Monopolies Limited," of which Newton Dunn, ship-owner; Frederic Dupre, merchant; Robert S. Backhouse, stock broker; Dimitry J. Delyannis, merchant, appear to be the chief personages, has been formed for the purpose of securing "concessions, monopolies and privileges on the mainland and islands of Greece." What these particular concessions, monopolies and privileges are is not definitely set forth, but Dimitry J. Delyannis, who is the author of the scheme, and to whom the founders' shares have been assigned, has been despatched to Greece to use his "best endeavors and influence" with the Government of Greece and others with a view to obtaining the above concessions.

The limited area within which currants are produced makes this fruit peculiarly liable to monopolistic manipulations. The operations of this enterprising Grecian will be watched with interest, but housewives can scarcely be expected to applaud the Athenian astuteness which threatens to raise the cost of this important ingredient of the Christmas pudding.

HAY SHIPMENTS DELAYED.

CANADIAN shippers of hay are finding some difficulty to get their goods transported by the railways. The Canadian Pacific Railway are laboring under an inability to procure a sufficient number of cars to move the general freight, and will allow none of their cars off the line. As the Boston and Maine and the New York Central railroads refuse to allow their cars to come into Canada empty and go back filled with hay, there is in consequence a good deal of discontent among both shippers here and buyers in the United States, particularly in New York and Boston, where, on account of a hay famine, an immense quantity of Canadian hay is required.

American hay dealers here expressed some indignation at the action of the C.P.R. in refusing to allow their cars to go off their own line; but the railroad company are pursuing the policy of "Canada first," and attending to the great volume of freight passing through Canada before forwarding United States business. It is the American railroad companies who should be appealed to, in order that American purchases should be forwarded when such conditions exist, not the Canadian companies.

POLITICIANS AND THE MARKET GARDENERS

THE discussion in Parliament regarding the protection on market gardeners' products, while it amounted to nothing of importance, was read by Canadian fruit and vegetable wholesalers with keen interest, as showing fairly well the opinions of the leading men on the subject, and what might be expected if the Government decided to take up the question. Only one speaker brought up the most serious objection, that which is put forth by the fruit dealers themselves. This was Mr. Bourassa, who, while he favored the principle of protection, pointed out that vegetables and fruit were only imported when they could not be obtained here. The Finance Minister's contention that, in the present prosperous condition of Canadian market gardeners, there was no reason to single this item out specially for an advance in duties, unless extensive tariff changes were under contemplation, was also, of course, endorsed.

Fruit jobbers in Montreal, in the vicinity of which live the market gardeners who are most forward in urging the Government to raise the duties, state confidently that as soon as the Canadian vegetables and fruit appear in Montreal no foreign grown produce of the kind can be sold. This is not only because our market gardeners sell cheaper, but there is a finer flavor to the Canadian grown vegetable than to the American or foreign. They point out that what early vegetables are grown here are of hot-house origin. The quantity of hot-house vegetables grown in Canada would scarcely do more than supply the city of Montreal alone, and the growers of such would be the only ones to reap the advantage of a high tarriff, keeping out the foreign products and allowing them to charge an exorbitant price for vegetables and fruit.

There is no doubt but that the importation of early fruits and vegetables has greatly increased the use of such in Canada, which would never have been accomplished by our market gardeners; and had the production of the hot-house varieties kept pace with the growing demand so that they were at least sufficient to supply the chief portion of what was required, there would be some reason in their demand for increased protection. For the protection is obviously for the hot-house products. Nothing else has to compete with the imported vegetables. But nothing like the required amount of early fruit can be produced here by any method, and to place a high duty on the imported products would keep them to a great extent out of the country, taking the profits of their sales from the grocer and fruit dealer, and forcing consumers to pay a higher price for delicacies which, on many tables, have become almost necessities.

EXCHANGE IDEAS.

ATTENTION is called to the letter of Mr. Steel in this week's issue on the marking of apples. THE GROCER would be glad to receive communications from more of its readers on topics pertaining to the trade. This is the organ of the grocery trade, and through its columns the problems which confront the retailer, wholesaler, and manufacturer should be threshed out.

There is nothing like free discussion for lightening up dark corners and untangling knotty situations. There is too much to know about the modern grocery business for one man to work it all out himself. There is need for co-operation and mutual helpfulness. A hint from a fellow grocer in London may mean dollars to one in Kingston, and vice-versa. THE GROCER is the clearing house through which this exchange of ideas may be effected. Let us have more free interchange of ideas among the trade.

THE TRAVELLERS' HOLIDAYS.

As THE CANADIAN GROCER announced last week, the annual travellers' holidays are to be held this year from August 10 to 22.

The agreement for this uniform holiday has already been signed by wholesale grocery houses in Hamilton and London, and is now being submitted to the houses in the west.

So far the outlook appears to be encouraging, and all that is required to make it a success is the general co-operation among wholesalers and the travellers, and, of course, the smile of the clerk of the weather, which, no doubt, the travellers are already providing for. They know how to put weather clerks as well as customers in good humor.

Last year some of the houses allied to the grocery trade did not co-operate in this annual affair. It is to be hoped that this year they will be parties to the agreement, and will make every effort to secure its success.

PICTURES FROM CANADA.

A TRADE paper called "The Indent, and Colonial Prices Current," published in London, England, has been running a series of articles on "Canadian Development," by "authority of the Canadian Government." The text is all right, but we hope the Canadian Government didn't authorize the illustrations also. "Teaching a Nation to Farm," and "What it costs to start a farm in Western Canada," are the two articles under the heading of "Canadian Development," in the April number, and they are "illustrated" by three drawings, supposed apparently to be typical Canadian scenes. The first shows a steam and sailing ship, of the old style, fleeing from a huge iceberg, though it can hardly get away, as the whole sea surrounding it is thick with ice floes. The second is a spirited picture of a polar bear with his claws in the flesh of a dead whale. He is about to be disturbed by a boat-load of men, but they are not close enough for us to see whether they are wearing the regulation furs and red feathers of the tame Canadian or not. In the distance is a beautiful iceberg. A pair of walrus are shown in the third picture. They have just come out of the water and are reposing on the ice. Behind each, in the background, is an ice hill.

Imagine such pictures as these used in connection with good, sensible text on the wheat farms of the Northwest and Canadian industrial development generally!

CAN 25-CENT TEA BE ABOLISHED?

A NUMBER of tea merchants in Montreal have been interviewed by a representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER as to the possibility of dealers in Canada imitating the action of certain tea merchants in London in discarding the shilling-tea. The following are their views :

Mr. E. D. Marceau says: They have been selling too cheap over there and ought to raise the price. The scheme here would not be practicable, as there are no concerns feeding some 40 or 50 stores throughout the country as in England. If the retail stores could be controlled from one head, and every house have 15 or 20 or 30 stores, it could perhaps he carried out. As it is conditions are entirely different, and packers do not sell direct to the retailer or consumer.

Mr. James A. Mathewson, jr., of J. A. Mathewson & Co., says : It would be a good thing if we could get the people to use a better quality of tea, but it would not be possible to get rid of the 25c. article in that way. Retailers can buy tea at 20c. and sell at 25c., a good profit which they would be unwilling to give up so long as there is the present good demand for that trade. He thinks there is a duty of some 3d. or 4d. on that tea in England, and there is none here. As a consequence their 25c. tea is likely inferior to that sold here at that price. It would not be feasible.

Mr. James Rutherford, of James Rutherford & Co., said : What we need in this country is an association such as has been formed in the United States, which would have something to say about the quality of tea allowed to come into Canada. At present this is the dumping ground for teas that are refused in other countries. What is not good enough for the United States, for instance, should not be good enough for Canada. But the standard here is low, and prices are kept down. It would be impossible to dispose of the 25c. tea here along the lines this English association has laid down. There are no such concerns in Canada as Lipton's or the others. Besides, there is a duty of something like 6d. or 8d. per lb. there. Here there is no duty, and a great deal of cheap tea can come in.

Mr. J. S. Hetherington, tea and commission agent, says : The advance in price is bound to come in these teas. You can understand that when the commonest kind of tea is laid down here at 15c. wholesale, there is not much in retailing it at 25c. after the expenses for packing and shipping are paid. There is a general advance all over in all kinds of teas, and the 25c. article will go up with them. I notice that the Salada advertisements in The Montreal Star, which have been for 25c. teas, have now for the past few days been for 40c. teas. The advance in price will not be brought about, as in England, by one organized movement, but will gradually be advanced, each dealer putting up his own prices.

THE CLERKS' OUTING.

The various committees in charge of the Montreal grocery clerks' picnic at Magog, on July 5, met on Sunday evening, June 28, to make their reports to the association. Everything has been found satisfactory at Magog, where the municipal authorities have done all in their power to make the holiday a pleasant one to the visitors. Beautiful grounds have been secured, and the banquet will be given in Park House, one of the finest hotels in the town. By all indications the clerks will this year have the most successful picnic they have yet held. Some very fine prizes are offered to the winners of the games and sports. A large number of Quebec grocers and clerks are expected to attend.

The train leaves Windsor station at 8.30 a.m. Tickets to go and return are $1.25 for adults.

CHAT

SNELGROVE BROS., grocers and clothing merchants, Fort William, and one of the oldest firms in that town, have dissolved partnership. The reason for the dissolution is that the junior member of the firm, R. J. Snelgrove has been in ill health during the past year, and he has determined to enter some business where the confinement will be less severe. The business will be continued by Alex. Snelgrove.

W. E. Ross, of St. Thomas, grocer, has moved into his new store, the late Balmoral Hotel. The premises have been thoroughly renovated and splendidly fitted up, and Mr. Ross has now not only one of the best equipped stores for his business but it is located in the centre of the city.

The annual excursion of the Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association will not be held until Civic Holiday. The committee may decide upon a trip up the Rideau lakes or a picnic to Carleton Place.

J. C. Barrows, general merchant, of Blytheswood, died on Monday, the 15th ult., at Blytheswood and was buried at Olinda on Wednesday afternoon, the Foresters, of which order he was a member, having charge of the services. Deceased was about 40 years of age, and formerly kept a store at Olinda for years. He leaves a wife and some children.

The town of Wiarton has passed a by-law awarding The Wiarton Beet Sugar Co. a loan of $25,000 to ward off present difficulties.

Marvin Veale, for some years a popular clerk in the grocery department of the Empire Store, Woodstock, has secured a position in the carpet department of The R. Simpson Co., Toronto.

QUEBEC.

For the first time in four years sugar has again been imported to Montreal from Demerara.

The many friends of Louis Mercier, the well-known grocer of St. Paul street, Quebec, and brother of Delphis and Napoleon Mercier, will regret to learn of his death, which took place on the 21st inst at his residence, Laval street, after a prolonged illness. Deceased was well known and esteemed in commercial circles for his integrity of character and genial disposition.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association have made special arrangements whereby freight and express rates have been reduced on fruit shipped through the association.

The Fraser river and Northern British Columbia canneries are organizing an sssociation to handle the 1903 salmon pack and regulate the output and price of fish. A similar organization has been formed for the past two or three seasons, and by its aid the canners have been able to so regulate the market supply as to enable a fair price to be maintained and prevent any unnecessary cutting. The association will regulate the selling in the United Kingdom and Australia, and, while not including all the British Columbia canneries, will represent a large majority of those actively interested in the fishing.

CHAFF.

Two years ago a Polander out on Nubbin Ridge swallowed a grain of wheat. Last week he was attacked by a fit of coughing and coughed up a 50 pound sack of flour and 100 pounds of bran. Truth is mighty and will prevail.—Hartford Day Spring.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, July 2, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THERE is little of additional interest to report since last issue. Trade continues to be of a satisfactory nature, and good business is still maintained in the season's goods. Trade on the streets has been somewhat slow, but there are indications of good trade moving in the near future. Canned goods continue to occupy attention and are moving freely with stocks considerably reduced and prices firming up. Coffee has not increased in attraction since our last, although Rios have been more active. Sugars are moving with decided activity, and some substantial orders have been coming to hand, attributable to the entry of the green fruit season; prices, however, remain at previous quotations. Spices are inactive and there is nothing of interest to report. Rice has been in good demand, and foreign reports generally denote activity with prices ruling firm. Tapioca is featureless and, whilst a better degree of interest has been indicated, there is no great sign of importance. Syrups and molasses, as usual at this season, are decidedly quiet and featureless. The home market in tea is not particularly satisfactory as to bulk of business in progress; there seems still a disposition to hold off the present markets. Indications from outside, however, are of decidedly firm prices, the statistical position clearly warranting greater firmness. Supplies that have come to hand in the various markets clearly point to the supply being considerably short of the steadily increasing demand, and there are indications of second crops being much behind usual dates. Dried fruits are still in great activity. The reports from primal markets all point to great decrease in spot stocks, whilst prospects for new crops are most favorable. The determination in Greece to protect the currant output is again gaining prominent attention and there appears to be a movement to vote a measure for protection of price by the bank communities in addition to the existing retentive protective measure, which has already had the effect of firming the markets as regards currants.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade continues in good form as regards these goods and the demand, which has now been well maintained for so long a time, is making itself felt in the materially reduced stocks. There has been an exceptional run on both canned and dried apples and at present prices are firming up. In corn stocks are much reduced and demand still continues good. Peas are practically out of stock and deliveries cannot be promised. The prices of new pack salmon have come to hand and stand at an advance over last year's opening of some 3c to 5c per doz. Sardines are still in steady demand and prices are well maintained. Canned meats are steady with prices firm. We quote:

Apples, 3's	0 80	0 90
" gallons	1 90	2 00
Asparagus	2 75	3 00
Beets	0 60	0 95
Blackberries, 2's	1 50	1 70

COFFEES.

The home trade in coffee has been somewhat slow. In Rios there has been a little movement, but generally business is featureless with no quotable change. The N.Y. market reports denote increased activity in Brazil grades with prices stiffening. In the milder grades, business dull with prices without change. We quote:

SUGAR.

The markets have developed some weakness since our last and there have been sales of raw sugar at 1-32 decline, or say 1 7/8 c. and f., N.Y., for 96-test centrifugals, equal to 3 9-16 duty paid. The decline for refineds continues and buyers are disposed to accept all offerings on the new basis. Offerings, however, are light and transactions small, with holders showing a desire to store their stocks rather than let them go on current basis. With an improved demand for refined sugars the market for raws should be steady and a healthier tone will result. For the week ending June 24 receipts were again less than meltings—about 35,257 tons, against meltings of 36,000 tons, and total stocks in refiners' and importers' hands of 324,028 tons. The Cuban campaign may be considered virtually closed as 10 more central factories have finished operations and there are now only 4 grinding. European markets are reported again lower with 88 per cent. beet quoted 7s 8½d, thus establishing a decline of 2¼ for the week. Weather reports of late have been favorable to the young plants and crop prospects seem satisfactory. These conditions in conjunction with the lack of improvement in the statistical position have forced speculators to realize. There is no change in the refined situation in either U.S. or Canada and new business is reported light, while deliveries on existing contracts are fair, the demand being sufficient to keep pace with the production. There are no indications for the immediate future and it would seem as if purchases for requirements were safe. The report referred to in our last issue as to the sale of surplus stocks of three refineries to one buyer is still lacking immediate confirmation. It is, however, believed in some quarters that news of the completion of the purchase may be expected at any moment. We quote:

SPICES.

The home trade in spices continues featureless. Demand has been of a very ordinary nature, with prices ruling firm at previous quotations. The N.Y. market reports trade as slow and inactive with prices ruling firm throughout. Both stocks and offerings are reported light. We quote :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There continues to be good interest shown in rice and previous quotations continue to rule firm. Foreign reports denote brisk trade throughout in rice. Dealers' stocks are short and offerings are consequently small and prices well maintained. Tapioca is not occupying a deal of attention, but moderate trade is doing and prices are ruling firm. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Trade has fallen somewhat flat in these lines, very little interest being taken. Previous quotations, however, continue to rule fairly firm. Foreign markets report but small offerings, with good undertone and prices firm. We quote :

TEAS.

The home trade in tea is not of that activity expected at the present time ; there seems little disposition on buyers' part to increase stocks on present market prospects. Statistics, however, continue to confirm the strong position which has been held for some length of time now and there are no immediate indications of any weakening. Prices continue to firm up, and teas for price also continue scarce. In Indian teas the reports denote great shortage of the initial output and prices realized at Calcutta are well in advance of last year's openings. The London market reports are of an upward tendency in all fine and finest grades, all teas showing any degree of quality being readily competed for, while the lower grades had more of a weakening tendency. In Ceylon teas the demand was well maintained. It is of interest to note that the estimate of shipment from Colombo for the month of June will be some two million pounds less than the same time last year. The present average of price on the London market is quite 4c in advance of a year ago. The reports of Japan teas are of considerably shorter crops and it is expected the second crop pickings will not reach the markets until a much later date than usual owing to the first pickings having been more drastic than is usually the case. Prices of Japans showing any character are also well up to quotations. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The demand in these goods continues well sustained and stocks have been consequently well drained with the result that prices remain firm at quotations. Foreign market reports denote great firmness in the currant markets ; the voting of a measure by the Greek Chamber enabling the banking companies to fix a minimum below which no one will be allowed to effect sales has had a strengthening result on the markets. Coming as it does as an addition to the already existing retention law, it is looked to as still further strengthening the statistical problem. Weather reports are still favorable and prospects are still good for heavy crop of Mediterranean goods. We quote :

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.—Since our last issue the egg market has been firm at 15½ to 16c per doz., but at present is again easier. The receipts during the last few days have been very liberal, and the market is only kept from a further weakening by the good demand which is anticipated during the latter part of the week, on account of the Home Comers' Festival. The packers have about finished operations for this season. On account of the unusually high prices which have ruled throughout the packing season, packers have taken more risks than usual in laying by eggs. We quote :

Fresh laid eggs, per doz	0 15

HONEY.—There is no change on this market since last issue. The demand is rather limited. Prices remain firm at last week's quotations. We quote :

DRIED APPLES.—There is very little, if anything, doing on this market at present. Fresh fruit has usurped the demand. Prices remain unchanged. We quote :

Apples, dried, per lb	0 03 0 03½

POULTRY.—This market is slightly easier this week. Spring chickens are in good demand, and receipts have been a little larger this week. We quote :

POTATOES.—The situation on this market is much the same as last week. Prices of new potatoes hold about the same. Old stock is scarce, and is very firm at $1.25 to $1.35 per bag. Receipts of American stock have been fairly liberal and the demand for those potatoes is increasing. New Canadian potatoes will soon be on the market now. We quote :

Old stock, on track, Toronto, per bag	1 25 1 35

GREEN FRUITS.

Activity marks the green fruit market this week. During the early part of the week there was a good demand in nearly all lines, and a very good demand in a few lines such as berries, cherries, etc. Arrivals of strawberries have been very liberal during the week, and they are slightly easier than last week. Pineapples have dropped a little since our last issue, being now quoted 25c to 50c lower. There has been a very good demand for lemons and limes for July 1 trade. Cherries, both Californian and Canadian, have been arriving in large quantities, and there is a drop in quotations of Californian, but not of Canadian fruit. Californians are now 75c to $1 easier, but Canadian holds firm at $1 to $1.25 per basket. There is a good demand in the market for both kinds. Gooseberries are also somewhat easier than last week, being now quoted 10c to 25c lower. The demand for them is increasing. The receipts of Californian apricots, peaches and plums have been more liberal this week, and there has been a consequent drop in prices : apri-

VEGETABLES.

The green vegetable market continues very lively. There is no change in prices since our last issue. There is very little demand, however, for rhubarb. Radishes have a very good sale. Mushrooms are scarce. The cabbage merket is very firm. We quote :

GRAIN, FLOUR AND BREAKFAST FOODS.

FLOUR.—Last week the price of flour was relatively 15c per pound lower than wheat. The dealers had not raised prices because they were uncertain as to whether the firmness of the wheat market would be permanent or only temporary. The wheat market has continued firm, it being indeed considerably firmer than last week, and the dealers have raised prices on flour 10c per barrel all round. Since doing so, however, the market has an easier feeling, and prices may again drop before long. We quote :

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

The hide market is quite active this week. Prices are firm, and things are moving well in sympathy with the Chicago and New York markets. The calf skin market is very dull. As the season advances lamb skins are becoming more valuable ; they are now worth 5c each more than last week. There has been an advance in the price of wool. Unwashed is quoted ½c per pound firmer, and fleece ½c to 1c per pound firmer. The wool market is fairly active. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 2, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THE general grocery trade during the week has been fair and prices as a rule show a steady tendency, so that buyers have nothing to gain by holding off. Sugar has ruled quiet, but a better demand is expected shortly. Molasses continue firm and the same remark applies to tea and spices. Canned goods are featureless, while there has been some business doing in Valencia raisins. Nuts are steady, and there has been a good week's business in green fruit and fresh vegetables.

SUGAR.

There has been little change in the sugar market this week and prices are unchanged. The recent weakness in the European market for beets has been the only unfavorable feature, but the decline in prices has not brought beets to anything near the importing point, for the landed cost at present prices would be a parity with 3.91c. for 96 degrees centrifugals. Further sales of Cuban centrifugals have been made for shipment to the United Kingdom, which has brought up the total to date to about 30,000 tons. There has been some further demand from Montreal refiners for Demerara sugar, and a sale of 2,300 tons has been made for July shipment at equal to 2c. c. and f. to New York for centrifugals 96 degrees test. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There has been no change in the molasses market since last report. The feeling on spot is strong and holders of old crop stock, of which there are few, have advanced their ideas as regards prices, for a bid of 36c. was made recently for 450 packages, which the holder refused, having confidence in the future course of values. According to latest mail advices from Barbados it is definitely estimated that the output this season will hardly exceed 25,000 puncheons, of which the exports up to June 4 were 19,120 puncheons, as against 31,715 up to the same date a year ago. Of the above quantity Newfoundland has taken 11,258 puncheons against 12,893 a year ago, and Montreal 650. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

In regard to new pack salmon for future delivery the opening prices for the season 1903 for Montreal have not been named yet, but in spite of this fact a fair number of orders have been booked by local agents for local and western account, subject to the opening figures. The demand has been principally for such well-known brands as "Rivers Inlet," "Horseshoe," and "Clover Leaf," sales of the latter to date being more than that of the whole of last season. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The market for raisins is very quiet though they are offered at very reasonable prices. Layers, which comprise the bulk of the supplies, are offering at 7c. Currants are firmly held. There has been some demand on spot for new crop figs, and a fair amount of business is reported for future delivery. The market for natural figs has opened up strong, with prices 2s. higher than those of a year ago. Reports to hand state that the general quality of the crop will be superior to that of last year. The present estimates on the 1903 crop of Smyrna figs give a total of about 65,000 camel loads. The crop last year was 59,000 camel loads. According to a London advice, quotations for new dates for first tide arrival are given as 8s. 9d. to 12s. 6d. for Sairs, Khadrawees and Hallowees. Mail advices from Malaga, Spain, referring to the coming crop of almonds, state that prospects favor a normal crop of Jordans, the first since the season of 1899. The estimates give a probable output of 100,000 boxes. We quote :

RAW FURS.

The June fur sales were characterized by unchanged prices as a rule, though in some furs there was a decline. In only three kinds was there an advance. These were : winter muskrat, which was 10 per cent. higher than in January ; fall and small muskrat, which were 20 per cent. higher than in January ; and American oppossum, 20 per cent, higher than in last March. All foxes were the same as in March ; otter and lynx were 10 per cent. lower, and mink 5 per cent. lower. Marten, Russian sable and fisher were unchanged from March prices. Beaver was unchanged from January prices. Black, grizzly, grizzly Russian and white bear were 10 per cent. lower than last March, and brown bear was 20 per cent. lower. Other furs were as follows : Wolf, 15 per cent. lower than in March ; wolverine, 10 per cent. lower ; real and bastard chinchilla, both the same as in March ; raccoon, the same as in March ; black muskrat, the same as in January ; spring muskrat, 5 per cent. lower than in March ; civet cat, 10 per cent. lower ; wildcat and house cat, the same as in March ; badger, ermine, hair seal (dry), Australian oppossum, kangaroo and wallaby, all the same as last March ; wombat, 15 per cent. lower, and Cape Horn salted fur seal, 15 per cent. lower than in March. A number of prices are being paid on the local market for furs, according to the requirements of the buyer, but the prices given below are about the average. The market is dull, there being so many furs out of season now. We quote :

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., June 26.

THE wholesale trade here has not yet received quotations on futures in eastern canned vegetables. Not only that, but they have asked for them, and have been given no information. One wholesale dealer says that he has been forced to place his orders without a price at all. It is a case of having the goods whatever the price, and when the price is fixed later on he will then get the benefit of the going figure. The same dealer says that his Yukon and northern customers have asked him for prices, and he has been compelled to say that the goods would go forward, but the price will have to remain for a later day.

The new crop peas are usually in the market here in the early part of August, but tomatoes and other lines are later, so that it is taking long chances to get the new season goods forward to the north before the close of navigation.

Tea is arriving at this port in very heavy quantities just now. During the past five days there has been received by two of the C.P.R. steamers from the Orient, the Athenian on Friday, and the Empress of China on Tuesday, the enormous quantity of 25,780 packages. This is perhaps as great a quantity of this commodity as ever has been received in the same length of time. Much of it is, of course, at once shipped overland, some being in bond for United States and European destinations.

In addition to 11,332 packages of tea, the Athenian had 3,355 sacks of rice and 3,356 packages of general merchandise, principally goods for the Chinese merchants here. Three cars of silk and silk goods were also included in the cargo. The Empress of China had 14,448 packages of tea, 11,849 sacks of rice, beans, etc., and 5,066 packages of general merchandise.

The question of making radical changes in the present laws regarding the registering of chattel mortgages on stocks of retail merchants has been brought forcibly to the attention of all the trade for still another time. Recently the Otto Grocery Co. opened in a very good stand on Hastings street, and it was reported by the mercantile agencies that the new firm had ample capital for carrying on a grocery and provision business. It was not many weeks, however, until the different houses began to feel that their confidence was misplaced. The first accounts were not paid when due and the firm appeared to be in straitened circumstances. In that case the creditors undertook to force matters. One and another threatened proceedings or actually did issue writs, but nothing definite was done by all acting together, until one was found to have a chattel mortgage. Then the other began to get busy. The record of Mr. Otto was hunted up and he was traced back to Montreal, where he had been in business, he said. The place and number of the street where he said he used to be was looked up, but no one of that name had ever been in business there. Now there is talk of legal proceedings being taken. The rumor now has it that actions for criminal offence will be taken at an early date by some of the creditors.

In general groceries, matters are not moving rapidly. The price of canned goods remains the same. Canned peas are still out of the market. Other lines are not in very plentiful supply. Of course, the market where they originate—California—must be a veritable Klondike for the producers under present conditions. Dried fruits tend to advance, though no actual increase in quotations can be noted.

In dairy produce, the supplies from Manitoba and the Northwest Territories are somewhat more liberal. Prices are quoted for Manitoba creamery 22c. dairy 18c, local creamery, 22c., local dairy, 18 to 20c; eggs, Manitoba, 20c. to 21c., and rather scarce; cheese, Manitoba, 14¾c. to 15c., Eastern, 15½c. Recent advances east have strengthened the market here.

In fruits a sensational advance in lemons to $5.50 and $6 per case is noted, though the California quotation would hardly seem to warrant such a strong lead. Oranges are confined to late Valencias, the St. Michaels not coming forward to this market for some reason, possibly the western middle States are a better field for shipping these. Other fruits are plentiful. Quotations are: Strawberries, all local, $1.20 to $1.50; cherries, $1.50 to $1.65; plums, clymans, $1.50; peaches, $1.50, clingstones of the Alexandria variety, and coming in freely; new apples, $2.25 to $2.50, California red astrakhans. Tomatoes, Mexican and Mississippi, $2.50 per case.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, June 29, 1903.

THE volume of business done in the wholesale grocery line for last week was not large, but fully up to the average expected at this season. The market may be called dull just now, but the prospects are good for better business during the balance of the summer. The general conditions throughout the country denote that a more hopeful business feeling prevails. The early drought of 50 days, then the forest fires, which prevailed generally and did vast damage, and latterly, the cold backward season, had a depressing effect, when taken in connection with monetary conditions already referred to. But this has somewhat abated. It now seems that the hay crops will be light; the fruit crops not more than an average, but with continued fine weather, other crops should be good. The conditions, as they are, have been accepted, and are being prepared for, and the way is thus paved for better business conditions. Monetary conditions, too, have somewhat improved.

There are no special changes in the market prices for staple groceries except that there is a firmer tone, as noted last week, in the higher grades of flour. Feeds are also firm. Sugar and molasses remain unchanged. Canned goods are all firm and hard to get. In the provision markets butter is easier and is quoted 1c. lower all round. Eggs are firm and higher than usual at this season. Hay has advanced, and good quality is selling $1 to $2 higher than a month ago. Oats are firm. Beef and the various meets are in good supply, and the markets also are kept well stocked with fresh fish. Cheese is coming on the market in small quantities and is quoted at 10¾ to 11¼c. P. E. Island cheese is selling in Charlottetown at 10½c.

There is considerable indignation here among the wholesale grocers on account of a combine which, it is alleged, has been made among some 40 of the principal canners in Ontario, under the name of The Canadian Canners' Association. The complaint is not so much that they have gone into a combine, which usually breeds bad results in higher prices, but that they issue the ultimatum that wholesalers must, in order to do business with them, sign a contract to buy canned goods nowhere else. This will prevent the wholesalers here from patronizing Nova Scotia canneries, which put up apples, blueberries and some other products. Nova Scotia has always depended on Ontario for canned corn, peas, tomatoes, and many of the fruits, and the action of the combine may eventually result in Nova Scotia packing these canned goods for our own market. It can be done, but in the meantime the wholesalers will have to give way to the demands of the combine.

The retail grocers have a number of objects in view, one of which will be the mutual exchange of ideas for the benefit of trade. They will meet monthly on the first Tuesday, and oftener if necessary. They also have a grievance against some of the wholesalers, who, they assert, make a general practice of selling direct to consumers, and, although this may be done in quantities, the retailers claim that the price should not be wholesale. To remedy this, they propose, if necessary, to form a buyers' association and to do their business otherwise than at present. No doubt this grievance may be settled amicably.

The barque Ich Dien arrived Saturday morning, June 27, from Barbados, with 445 puncheons, 50 hogsheads and 52 barrels of molasses for James Fraser. The brig Sceptre arrived the same day from Trinidad with 242 puncheons, 62 tierces and 7 barrels of molasses for Geo. P. Mitchell & Sons Co., Limited.

The schooner Letty M. Hardy, from Barbados; the Hattie C. Luce, from Antigua, and the schooner Olindu, from Humacoa, Porto Rico, arrived Sunday, all with molasses, but have not yet reported at the Custom House.

INQUIRIES ABOUT CANADIAN TRADE.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government office in London, Eng.

1. Inquiry is made for the addresses of Canadian shippers of box-shooks by a London firm in a position to place large orders.

2. A North of England correspondent has asked to be placed in communication with Canadian exporters of manufactured horse hair.

3. A London export merchant has requested to be referred to large flour millers in Canada who are interested in the South African market.

4. Application has been received for the names of the leading iron and steel manufacturers in the Dominion.

5. A Liverpool house wishing to obtain supplies of basswood broom handles, 50x1⅛, invites quotations from Canadian manufacturers.

6. A Manchester house desires to be placed in touch with Canadian producers of mica.

7. The proprietors of a chemical specialty for electrical batteries is prepared to appoint some Canadian firm connected with the electrical trade as agents.

8. The manufacturers of a patented wire strainer wish to arrange with some Canadian firm to manufacture and sell the tool in Canada.

9. A firm of Bordeaux wine shippers wishes to appoint an influential Canadian resident agent. First-class references required.

10. A firm manufacturing ventilating appliances of all kinds is prepared to appoint suitable Canadian resident agent.

11. An inquiry has been made for the names of Canadian wholesale firms wishing to import teas direct from India and Ceylon.

Interested parties may obtain the addresses of the above inquirers by communicating with the editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

BRANTFORD NOTES.

Ryerson Bros., of Brantford, have a shipment of water melons coming in from Florida early next week.

Bean & Westlake, biscuit and confectionery manufacturers of Woodstock, are making extensive additions to their factory, which their ever-increasing trade demands.

The D. Richards Soap Co., Limited, of Woodstock, report large orders coming in from the west, easily doubling those of last year.

INADEQUATE STEAMBOAT SERVICE.

FOR some years fruit growers in Nova Scotia have been greatly handicapped and have sustained serious losses in their export trade with Great Britain on account of the inadequate steamboat service between Halifax and London.

Last year the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association sent a delegation to Ottawa, which obtained the insertion of a clause in the contract with the Furness-Withy Company whereby steamships carrying fruit were required to make an average speed of 12 knots per hour, at which speed there would be a nine days' service between Halifax and London.

The Fruit Growers' Association claim that this clause in the contract was not fulfilled by the company, but that instead of being nine days on the way, the average time was over 12 days, and that the dates of sailing were changed and delayed to the great loss and inconvenience of the fruit shippers.

In view of this the association, at a recent meeting, passed a resolution by which the Department of Trade and Commerce is to be petitioned to withhold all subsidies remaining unpaid from previous contracts and refuse to enter into any contract for subsidizing the boats of the Furness-Withy Company until that company have arranged with the shippers for settlement of losses incurred in previous years on account of nonfulfilment of their contracts and their inefficient transportation service.

The association also recommend that the Government enter into no contract with any company unless that company guarantee their contract by sufficient security.

BEET SUGAR IN ALBERTA.

The contractors for The Knight Sugar Co.'s plant at Raymond, Alberta, are making good headway, says The Nor'west Farmer.

They have 150 men at work, and expect to have everything in readiness by the time the beets are matured.

The main buildings are of steel and brick. A great amount of very heavy machinery has been placed in position on a cement foundation. Everything about the factory is up-to-date. The boilers, of which there are six, were patented in November last. The capacity is to be 400 tons of beets per day, and the cost of the plant will be over half a million dollars.

There will be between 2,500 and 3,000 acres of beets grown in the district this season, most of which was sown in good shape by the first of June. It is less than two years since the first sod was turned in the Raymond district, but last year there were 6,000 acres in crop, and there is now a population of 1,000. The town has an up-to-date flour mill and elevator, built and operated by The Knight Milling Co.

A CHANGE IN TOBACCO DUTIES.

The inland revenue authorities have determined to get after the stemmed foreign raw leaf tobacco which is being brought into Canada in yearly increasing quantities by combination factories. They think it is preferable to have the unstemmed leaf imported so that the process of getting it in shape for manufacture may be done in this country, and more work afforded for Canadians. A readjustment of the excise duties has accordingly been effected, under which those factories which use native and foreign leaf will have to pay higher rates if they insist upon having the stemmed article. Under the readjustment the excise duties on foreign raw leaf, in addition to the existing rates, will be as follows: Except when used for the manufacture of cigarettes, 20c. per lb. on unstemmed and on stemmed 28c. per lb. When taken for use in the manufacture of cigarettes, 37½c. per lb. on unstemmed and 53c. per lb. on stemmed. When taken for use in the manutacture of cigars, 16c. per lb. on unstemmed and 23c. per lb. on stemmed.

DRIED FRUIT IN LONDON.

The market for currants is at present showing considerable animation. Merchants, generally, show some disposition to advance prices and to add to their stocks to some extent by advantageous purchases of the lower grades of fruit on this market, in preference to buying in Greece, where the market is dearer than here, and after some considerable purchases the market closes 1s. to 1s. 6d. dearer. Dealers, although being only moderately stocked, are apparently not disposed to enlarge their operations to any extent unless inducements of quality or price are to be met with. This policy would appear to be wise as regards Provincial fruit, stocks of which are plentiful, and bearing in mind the fact that a very slight further advance will necessitate a corresponding increase in the lowest retail price. In slightly better fruit, however, of which the supplies are by no means excessive and values unusually attractive, an advance is neither improbable nor unjustifiable, and some anticipation of future requirements is, perhaps, not inadvisable. Sultanas continue in fair demand, and rates are fully maintained. London stocks are very moderate and well assorted, and prices are at a very reasonable level as compared with the two past years. The prospects of the growing crop would, so far, on the best authorities, indicate a large and satisfactory yield. Valencias are steady. The trade for plums and evaporated fruits is quieter and, in some instances, where dealers have desired to unload stocks on the market, considerable reductions in value have been accepted.—Produce Markets Review, June 6.

E. D. Marceau has to arrive ex ss. Empress of China, now at Vancouver, 20 half chests Condor III Japan tea, which he offers at 37½c., and 25 half chests Condor V at 32½c. These teas are choicest May pickings and the finest for the money.

HALIFAX GROCERS ORGANIZE.

The retail grocers of Halifax have organized an association and elected Ald. W. H. Cawsey as president. The president of the association is the head of one of the largest retail stores in Halifax, and is one of its most pushing and enterprising merchants. Secretaries of the association will confer a favor by sending Mr. Cawsey copies of their constitution and by-laws. The full list of officers as follows: W. H. Cawsey, president; R. N. McDonald, vice-pres.; G. A. Cook, recording secretary; C. E. Choate, financial secretary; J. L. Archibald, treasurer. Executive—W. J. Hopgood, W. E. Crowe, J. J. Skerry, I. Creighton, F. P. Campbell.

ARE OCCUPYING NEW WAREHOUSE.

Ryerson Bros., the wholesale fruit dealers of Brantford, who for over ten years were on Colborne street, have built and gone into a large warehouse on West street, opposite the G. T. R. station. It is a three-storey brick building, 90 x 40 feet, with ripening rooms for bananas in the cellar, with a capacity of carloads, and are fitting in cold storage on the first floor for berries and small fruits.

CREAM OF TARTAR ADVANCING.

"The Canadian Grocer" has been advised that there is a shortage in the supply of cream of tartar, and that prices may be expected to advance considerably.

ENGLAND.

GENTLEMAN, having most valuable connection, and now representing in England a firm of world-wide reputation, is open to accept sole agency for proprietary article or specialities for Canadian house of high standing; exceptional opportunity for first-class Canadian house to make a market in England. Unimpeachable references. Address — "Agency", Care of CANADIAN GROCER, 109 Fleet St., London, Eng. (27-2)

TO START A BALKY HORSE.

A RIVAL for David Harum, at least as regards knowledge of horses, has been discovered by The Horseshoers' Journal. This genius has a guaranteed cure for balky horses, which he claims, will start the horse, no matter how bad he is, let me tell you how to start him 99 times out of 100. Of course, it may fail one time out of a hundred. When a horse balks, no matter how badly he sulks or how ugly he is, do not beat him; don't throw sand in his ears; don't use a rope on his forelegs, or even burn straw under him. Quietly go and pat him on the head a moment; take a hammer or even pick up a stone in the street; tell the driver to sit still; take his lines, hold them quietly, while you lift up either front foot: give each nail a light tap and a good smart tap on the frog; drop the foot quickly, and then chirp to him to go on. In 99 cases out of 100 the horse will go right on about his business, but the driver must keep his lines taut and not pull or jerk him back. If I have tried this once I have tried it 500 times, and every time I have suggested it people have laughed and even bet $5 and bottles of wine that I could not do it. So far I have won every bet. This may make you smile, but a horse has more common sense than most people are willing to give him credit for. The secret of this little trick is simply diversion. I am a firm believer that with kindness and proper treatment a horse can be driven with a string."

If your delivery horse is inclined to balk try this on him.

MARKING OF APPLES.

By J M. Steel, Clarksburg, Ont.

I AM surprised at some of the farmers' institutes wanting to go back to the old way of packing apples when the new way is a decided improvement. We want to improve and move forward instead of standing still, and this is a move in the right direction. The day has gone by when "any style of packing and any kind of an apple" will pass. When the country was young, and fruit not so plentiful, and the export trade had not assumed the large proportions it has at the present time, that way of doing may have been all right, but that day has gone and we are living in the 20th century with 20th century ideas. Competition in the world's markets has grown, and will grow, keener year by year under normal trade conditions, and the country that looks ahead and takes advantage of new ideas will be best off commercially and otherwise. Why is it that California (and even British Columbia I see is forging ahead) has the lion's share of the Manitoba and Northwest markets? Simply by adopting the up-to-date ways of packing fruit that the consuming public appreciate and pay for. This should be one of the large outlets at the present time for our Ontario grown apples; but it is not, for the simple reason that, as mentioned by Mr. Bowron, (see CANADIAN GROCER of June 26) we are trying to educate the market to our ideas instead of trying to meet the ideas of the market. I maintain that there is not in the whole universe a better country for turning out fruit than this country of ours, but we are too slow to adopt modern ideas. No doubt there are many discouragements and frequently losses in changing from one idea to another, but the "keep-at-it" will succeed in the end.

I think the Government in passing the act has conferred a lasting benefit on the country, and the future will bear this out. It has fixed a standard that is fair and just to all, and if the sections that grow the inferior fruit will wake up and try to improve their quality they will soon come up to the standard. It is utterly impossible to vary the standard for different sections, just because their fruit may not be as good as some others.

The act is not made to militate against the farmers, but is for the benefit of all concerned in the trade. Some farmers are no better than they should be, and try to palm off inferior fruit. These are the ones who are the kickers, as it hits them the hardest. The straight-forward man is not afraid to stand by his name any time.

I think the act is plain enough for any common-sense man to understand, and he need have no fear if he makes his barrels in accordance therewith. I have handled apples from the farmers in a small way for over twenty years, but never with better satisfaction than since the act became law, as there is something to go by which is fair to all concerned. The public generally do not object to pay for what they call for, but they expect to get it as represented when they pay for it.

SICILIAN LEMON CROP.

The United States consul at Catania writes: "The summer lemon crop in this consular district promises well. The fruit is of very good quality, although, owing to the dry winter, dirty in appearance. The crop is about the same as last year; the amount for export is estimated at 140,000 boxes (300 in a box); prices, 10 to 12 lire ($1.93 to $2.23), according to quality. Freight rates to New York, per box, are 1s. 3d. (30.4 cents).

THE SITUATION IN CURRANTS.

Spot currants were reported a little firmer on Saturday, with fine Amalias quoted at 5c. inside. It is stated that the sellers offering at 4⅞c. all the week have been either cleaned up or have withdrawn prices. Efforts to buy in several quarters among the smaller holders at 5c. to-day were fruitless. Cables from Greece quoted the market at 13s. per cwt. for prompt shipment, with the market held strongly. On new crop for August shipment up to 14s. per cwt. is quoted. The steamer Alberta is reported as having cleared from Greece with 1,000 tons of old crop and is made due here about the middle of July. It is believed that this cargo will be the last shipment of old crop of importance to this market. Regarding the new crop cable advices report unfavorable weather conditions, but with no damage sustained. The crop prospects at last mail advices favored a yield of about 160,000 tons. The unsold portion of the old crop still remaining in Greece is estimated at under 10,000 tons in some advices.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce, June 22.

The ammonia works of J. G. Harvey, Todmorden, have had a very busy season. The demand for dry household ammonia packed in cartons has exceeded his most sanguine expections.

HOW TO FILL A PIPE.

How to fill a pipe properly is explained in an interesting booklet called "Points on Pipes, by a Connoisseur," which has been brought out by an English pipe house. "Put a small plug of tobacco right down into the bottom of the bowl, then add the remainder gradually, pressing lightly round the inside of the bowl, especially next the stem. This insures the tobacco burning evenly. It is better to undercharge than overcharge. Never refill a pipe until it has quite cooled down; it is a practice of regular smokers to have two pipes in use, so that they never have to recharge a pipe until it has had ample time to become perfectly cool. A new pipe should only be half-filled and the tobacco smoked slowly right out to the bottom. If necessary relight again and again, that the tobacco may be smoked right to the end and the bottom of the bowl charred. If the pipe is smoked thus, carefully, a few times until the whole of the interior of the bowl is well charred, there will be no danger of the pipe burning afterwards."

HOME-COMERS' FESTIVAL.

"The day will seem bright
When the boys come home;
And our hearts will be light
When the boys come home."

THE Home-Comers' Festival, to which Toronto has been looking forward for some time, is now under way. The "Home-Comers" are home, and the city is "en fete." Everywhere the fact of the presence of the home-comers in the city is demonstrated.

Only once in her history, namely at the time of the visit of the Duke and Duchess of York, has Toronto been so plenteously and artistically decorated. The old red, white and blue bunting, with many different descriptions of flags, are everywhere in evidence.

The Board of Trade, who inaugurated and are managing the festival, have been lavish with the decorations on their own building, corner of Yonge and Front streets. This corner, from its prominent position, attracts the attention of all comers on their way from the docks or from Union Station. The top of the building is festooned with bunting, which is supported by columns of bunting to the third storey. Above the windows of this storey is a display in red, white and blue bunting, which is in turn supported by columns of lattice work also in red, white, and blue. The two entrances are festooned in a very artistic style. The whole decorations are set off by numerous small flags.

The grocers and allied trades have done their share in the decorating. The Salada Tea building is artistic with its innumerable flags of all descriptions. At night, every eye is attracted by the company's sign, composed of electric lights in which "Salada" stands forth in letters of fire.

The Blue Ribbon Tea building is neatly and handsomely decked with bunting and flags. The company had its electric sign put in shape for the occasion, and "Blue Ribbon Tea" shines forth with noonday brightness.

George S. Foy's wholesale wine and liquor warehouse, Front street, is ornamented with three red-white-and-blue columns, connected at the top with a cross festoon.

Wholesale grocery firms who have decorated are Davidson & Hay, Perkins, Ince & Co. and Eby, Blain Co.

The retail grocers have also showed their loyalty to the city by making their places of business look as attractive as possible with flags and bunting. The home-comers are in Toronto and they have to be fed. For the retail grocers this will certainly mean an increase of trade. Perhaps in the family orders there will be a very noticeable increase, but the grocers who supply hotels will doutbtless notice the larger orders. One grocer says that his hotel orders have been and will be very much heavier than usual.

There is another way in which the Home Comers' Festival has affected the grocery trade. In view of the festival many families, which usually leave the city for the summer long before July 1st, have remained over. Thus grocers have continued to receive family orders into July, which are usually cut off early in June.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"
St. John, N.B., June 29, 1903.

BUSINESS continues good. Payments are reported satisfactory. There were large losses through forest fires last week, particularly in Nova Scotia. This has been the worst summer in this respect for many years. In the markets cream of tartar is still moving up. Prices are higher than for years. Rice is slowly advancing. The holiday broke into the business of the week causing two days of rush. Our dealers are carrying quite large stocks of pure lard. The outlook is mostly unfavorable though the lower prices are difficult to understand. In cheese the prospect is for a large output. Prices keep quite high.

OIL.—There continues to be quite an active demand for illuminating oil at even prices. In lubricating oils the rather quiet season at the lumber mills is affecting the consumption. Paint oils are unchanged in price. In cod oil stocks are light and prices quite firmly held. It is as yet early for new oil.

SALT.—Quite a large cargo of Liverpool salt arrived this week and another is due. Demand is only fairly active and while cargoes are landing prices are being shaded. There was some factory filled in the cargoes which found a prompt sale. Complaint is still heard over the slow arrival of Canadian salt.

CANNED GOODS.—Active interest is taken in the question of who is to represent the association. This means considerable to several. The matter may be settled before this is read. Dealers are displeased over the lack of information in regard to prices and other arrangements in reference to the methods of the association. Corn while firm is quite plenty. Peas are scarce and very firm at full figures. Tomatoes remain unchanged at the same high prices. New salmon are quoted at prices about as last year. Fruits and meats find steady sale at even prices. New sardines show quite a demand.

GREEN FRUIT.—With the arrival of small California fruits dealers are even more busy than before. This line is not at its height till pears come. New lemons are freely offered at firm prices. Oranges find a fair sale. Limes are rather firmer with larger sales than usual. Bananas are finding a large sale at low prices. Tomatoes are still quite high. Cucumbers remain unchanged. Strawberries show large sellings. Ontarios still have the market. Rhubarb is lower. It is not as plentiful as usual. Melons are offered. The weather is too cold for large sales. California peaches, apricots and plums find a fair demand.

DRIED FRUITS.—This is a quiet line. Demand is largely confined to prunes, seeded raisins and currants. Prices are lower. In other lines of raisins the market is very dull. Orders for new peels are quite freely given. Dates have a steady sale. Evaporated apples are rather firmer. Onions show but a fairly active market.

CURRANTS.

SUGAR.—Sugar finds a good steady sale. While the market keeps firm there has been no further advance. Granulated has the bulk of the business. The low prices have caused yellows to take a very secondary place. There is very little foreign sugar here.

FISH.—Salmon continue to have the chief attention. Prices are firmly held. The catch here is light and the quantity shipped to Boston lighter than usual. More North Shore salmon is being used here than is the rule. Gaspereaux and shad are about done. Halibut is not so freely received. In dry cod some new fish are offered at rather easier price. Pollock are dull. New pickled herring are offered but the sale is light. Smoked are still scarce. A few pickled shad are offered.

NOTES.

Messrs. Baird & Peters, packers of "Vim" tea have undertaken a most popular method of advertising. They have engaged one of the best bands to give evening open air concerts weekly, during the next three months, in different parts of the city.

Messrs. Copeland & Chatterson have opened a branch office here. Mr. Huyck, who has been their Maritime representative, and who is very popular, is in charge. It is one of the handsomest and best arranged offices in the city.

The Maritime Spice & Coffee Co. have found it necessary to increase their premises very largely.

Messrs. T. Collins & Co. received this week a shipment of New Orleans molasses. They offer two grades.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

IT HAS become a recognized fact in almost every merchant's mind, that to a great extent the success of his business depends upon the use he makes of his windows. He realizes that a well-arranged window means increased sales, both through the advertising it gives him and through the attractive way in which a certain article is displayed.

That he may not sell much of the article displayed is by no means any proof that that window was a failure.

He may spend a great deal of time and attention and even money on the arrangement of a window, and may not sell $5 worth of the article displayed during the next week. But it is decidedly rash to jump to the concluston that he has gained nothing from that display, and that it has been a waste of energy and money.

The advertising he may receive by that tastefully decorated window may amount into the hundreds of dollars, if a valuation could be put on it.

His fellow townspeople may have been well supplied at the moment with the article over which he spent so much time, or it may even have been a little unseasonable in its nature, but he can rest assured that when anyone needs that ware he will not forget that Blank carries it in great variety and at good prices.

In addition comes the immediate result, that the window stops people, and the carefulness displayed will not only make or sustain a reputation for the firm, but will attract the passers-by into the store for anything they may need in the lines handled by the store.

It is practically impossible to estimate correctly the benefits derived from a certain window. A customer may see an article in a window to-day and may not buy it until some months from now. And yet it will have been the display of it that kept before his mind just where that article is sold.

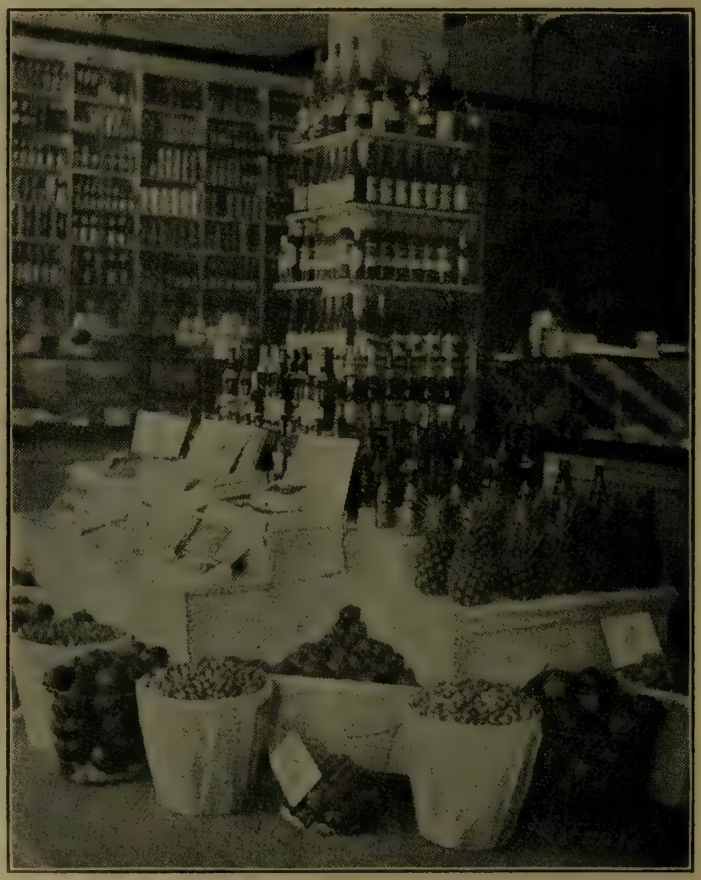
It is very much similar to advertising. An advertiser fills his space attractively, pays his bill and then sits down to watch for results. Simply because people don't immediately rush to his store and clamor for the thing advertised, and exclaim that they saw it in the advertisement, many fairly thoughtful merchants conclude that the results have not paid for the cost of the advertisement.

The results from a window display or advertisement may extend over months, or may do nothing more than present the name of the firm to a few people who have never had their attention called to it. In either case it pays, and pays well.

The merchants who employ in their windows mechanical displays or attractions not in their line of business, are aware of the fact that results from show windows cannot be based entirely on the direct sales. Although it is a debatable question whether such exhibits bring the trade they are often supposed to bring it cannot be denied that much good is done by stopping pedestrians and drawing the name of the firm to their attention.

The writer has for years passed back and forward on a certain street and never noticed or knew of the existence of a certain cigar store, and yet, only two days ago, he suddenly became aware of it by noticing a crowd looking at a well set up collection of coins in the window.

To a new or small store, such attractions are of particular value, and to any store they are worthy of trial.



Interior Arrangement of Fruit.

This Week's Illustration.

The interior display presented is from an exchange, and contains a few very useful ideas for economy of space and the display of certain goods. The arrangement of shelves around the pillar conceals its bareness and provides an excellent display stand for bottles or cans.

The wire baskets used to hold the fruits and nuts are a solution of a difficult problem with the grocer. The effect is neat and the display satisfactory. In the open-work baskets are the larger fruits, while every other one is lined with a colored or white paper and contains small things, such as nuts or the smaller fruits. These baskets cost very little, last for years and always look neat.

CANADIAN EXPORTS GROWING.

Mr. H. Goff, the Canadian Government agent at Bristol, stated in evidence before the House of Commons Committee on the Bristol, London, and Southern Counties Railway Bill, that there were many complaints of insufficient railway accommodation at Bristol to take away such Canadian produce as butter, cheese, bacon, eggs, and fruit. The absence of refrigerating apparatus on the trains was a disadvantage for the trade in the articles mentioned.

THE wholesale as well as the retail grocers of this city are a unit in saying that while the camp was here a visible increase took place in the grocery and provision trades. The commissariat department of a camp of 2,000 men and officers can dispose of quite a few tons of provender in 12 days, and although this special increase in this branch has now dropped out, business under the ordinary conditions remains brisk, and good, all round activity can be reported during last week. Prices of canned goods are very firm, and owing to light stocks there is a possibility of higher figures before very long. Sugars, coffees, teas and nearly all staple lines remain at the prices of a week ago.

The famous Covent Garden market last Saturday was an interesting sight. Market Square was literally jammed with farmers' wagons laden with the choice products of the best of Ontario's farms. Farmers and their wives and daughters were in their element, as they disposed of their tempting and appetizing commodities and raked in the ready cash from well-pleased purchasers. It is here in the early hours of market days that many of the 200 retail grocers of London bring their delivery wagons to draw home their selections of butter, eggs, vegetables, etc.; enough to supply during the great part of the following week.

The Dominion Day holiday this week accounts in some degree for the increased attendance and unusual impetus to the disposal of the heavy offerings. An extra large business was done with the hundreds of housekeepers who come from every quarter of the city on the trolleys, and return with full baskets, as well as with the corner store grocery men, who buy in large quantities.

Against this is a claim of $11,000, made by M. A. Halliday, of Chesley, Ont., who was admitted to the partnership after the retirement of Mr. Vandelinder.

CANADA AND AFRICA.

W. E. EARLE, head of The Earle Publishing Company, St. John, N.B., who has but recently returned from a six months' visit to South Africa, says that trade in that country since the close of the war has begun to pick up wonderfully, and that it is beginning to feel the stimulus of competition.

He thinks that the present would be a good time for Canadian firms to enter the South African market. There is a good open market for food products, canned goods and manufactures, which, he thinks, Canadians might easily capture, provided they pay particular attention to the packing of the goods so that the articles may arrive on the market in the best possible condition.

He found that the merchants there are anxious to get into closer touch with Canadian conditions, and with this in view a number of them will attend the convention of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire to be held in Montreal in August.

NO HALF-HOLIDAY FOR "TWIN CITY."

At the regular monthly meeting of the "Twin City" Retail Merchants' Association, held in Waterloo on June 15. the question of having a weekly half-holiday was discussed. It was decided to circulate a petition among the merchants, and have the matter reported at a special meeting to be held in a week's time. The special meeting was held, and the report submitted, which showed that the majority not in favor of the half-holiday was ten. Therefore the matter was dropped.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The Cereal and Food Question.

ALBERT STRITMATTER says in the last number of The American Miller: The writer has been considerably interested in the various articles that have appeared from time to time in The American Miller on the subject of cereal breakfast and "health" foods. Some wheat flour millers seem to think that the advent of cereal foods has crippled or will eventually cripple the wheat flour business to a large extent. There are other millers who, in the past, have believed or at least have hoped that the "fad" would be a passing one and would soon be over with, but within the last year they have been, as it were, overwhelmed by the amount of advertising and the show of the cereal foods and have begun to be disheartened, believing that sooner or later these foods must make an enormous inroad on the sale of wheat flour.

There have been so many views expressed by millers and others on the matter that the writer has for some time past been trying to ascertain to just what extent the cereals were displacing the wheat miller's product. There is one thing that I believe flour millers do not recognize in this question, and that is, simply because a package of cereal food is advertised as a good thing to eat for breakfast, dinner and supper, and as a blood, flesh and brain food, the consumer of this class of foods does not, as a consequence, eat them alone and all the time. As a matter of fact, several of these cereal food cartons bear specific instructions against overfeeding. They state that when being used at first one is apt to become enthusiastic and eat so much of the food as to become tired of it very soon. They then go on to state that a certain amount is the proper quantity "for the cereal portion of a meal." Millers and others too often overlook this fact, that few people make an entire meal out of a cereal food. If they do, it is likely to be the breakfast, rather than any other meal, but the writer does not know of any one who makes a practice of eating nothing but cereals even for one meal a day right along. People may do so occasionally, but I seriously doubt if any large number do so regularly.

Then, too, from the writer's observation there are few people who eat these foods regularly at every meal in the day, even in small quantities. Many people use them for breakfast, or for supper, and sometimes for two out of the three meals each day, but I doubt if many use them for every meal. I do not mean that these foods are not sometimes used three times a day, or for a few days, but I know of no one who uses them at every meal (or even at two meals a day) every day, week in and week out.

About the only places where the writer has known of their being served at every meal are the restaurants and the hotels. One can always get them at such places for any meal, and there is probably a very large quantity consumed at these places, but I have never seen any one make a meal out of the cereal foods at a hotel, or tell the waiter he did not wish any bread because he had some breakfast food!

Another thing that investigation along this line by the writer, as well as by others, has brought out, is that the cereal foods have affected meat to a greater extent than any other foods. The high price of meat and the amount of work to prepare it have caused the people to turn to something which was cheaper and more easily prepared.

That there are enormous quantities of these cereal foods being sold to-day cannot be denied, and there are many people who do not think it is to be regretted. That the foods are valuable is questioned by some and is enthusiastically proclaimed by others is to be expected. That there may be some of these foods which the ordinary wheat flour miller could put out at a much lower price than they are sold for, is perhaps the case. That the foods are a success is due partially to the advertising policy of the manufacturers, but as advertising is open to wheat millers as well as cereal food manufacturers, everyone has the same chance. What would be the result if some of the flour millers adopted similar methods can only be guessed at, but it is a fact that many a flour miller would do well to compare his advertising with that of some of the cereal food people.

The writer believes, therefore, that the effect of the cereal foods upon the wheat flour miller has been very slight. Bread seems to be as abundant as ever, and as popular as ever. On the other hand, less meat is being used. This is due not only to the higher cost of meat and the extra work of preparing it, but in not a little degree is it due to the difficulty, especially in large cities, of securing perfectly fresh meat.

Wheat is King.

WHEAT is king. His subjects are everywhere. His army is confined to no clime or country. Wherever wheat can be produced there the wheat army labors. Flags and allegiance and patriotism place no limitations on the wheat king. His orders override all earthly laws. His decrees are unassailable. The country that suits him best he occupies without human opposition of any sort. The world must have wheat. It can consume 2,900,000,000 bushels of wheat a year, and the demand increases. So the reign of old King Wheat, which dates back further than human records can trace, and will continue so long as human life lasts, is the longest reign and the most important reign of all time.

Western Canada is the latest discovery and conquest of the wheat king. Within the memory of many now living, it was generally supposed that wheat could not be successfully raised in those northern latitudes. People spoke of frosts and shook their heads wisely. It was a rash and venturesome enterprise to attempt when raising on the western prairie. Even after the success of the experiment had been demonstrated cautious folks whispered about impending disasters. They did not dream that a day was near at hand when all would concede that Canada had the best wheat fields in the world; that in the virgin prairies that had for, perhaps, millions of years awaited the wheat sower there were possibilities and potentialities far exceeding the wildest dreams of man; that the western country would soon give the world the very best wheat known, and that that glorious crop would prove a loadstone for people in the four quarters of the world. Yet that is the sober truth. And not the least remarkable circumstance of this national romance is the fact that the Canadian wheat paradise has proven an irresistible attraction to thousands of workers in

FOR fifty years Tillson's mills were kept busy supplying the best rolled oats in the world to a district within a radius of fifty miles of their mills. This district knew Tillson's Oats and took all the mills could then supply. But greatly increased facilities have for over a year been turning out sufficient quantities to supply the demand from all over the Dominion.

Good advertising induced the public to buy the first package, good Oats is keeping them insisting on Tillson's Oats.

the greatest wheat-growing country in the world, the United States. This is what the founders of Canada predicted, but few others believed.

To the wheat grower Canada has a double advantage over the United States. Not only is the wheat vastly superior by reason of the higher latitude, but land is a good deal cheaper. A farmer to the south of the international boundary has from forty to fifty dollars an acre invested in his wheat fields. He can realize on that and secure a farm in Canada for nothing. Or, if he wishes a choice location, he may by paying four or five dollars an acre operate in Canada with the same capital as he had in the United States ten times the area. This, of course, is a condition of things that cannot last always. In time land will appreciate in value until the financial advantage of a change will be materially lessened, if not altogether wiped out. In the meantime, however, the American farmer who has the instinct of a land speculator can see that Canadian farm lands are a splendid investment at their present values. Hence there is a migration of land speculators as well as of prospective settlers. In either case the movement demonstrates a faith in the future of the country, and will in the end promote its material benefit. We can regard with less confidence the operation of the wealthy land companies which are purchasing large areas in the West, and retailing them to settlers at a considerable advance. The effect of this wholesale speculation may be to advance prices.

With the migration of wheat to Canada another important movement has been set on foot. The western millers who depend on American wheat are wondering what will be their fate when the new wheat empire is established in Canada. They would like to get Canadian wheat to grind into flour for the export trade. The American manufacturers have a similar interest. They can see growing up in the Canadian west a wealthy community which will require agricultural implements, and all the conveniences and luxuries of modern life. They would like to capture the trade of the people and make it tributary to the United States. This desire has given a fresh impetus to the movement for reciprocity. The movement has been stimulated by the prospect of a preferential trade arrangement between Canada and Great Britain.

In the current cartoons Uncle Sam and John Bull are pictured as both anxious to make love to the promising Miss Canada. The Americans are impatient at the slowness and shyness of the advances of Uncle Sam. While he is preparing his toilet blunt old John Bull is engaging the attentions of the young Canadian charmer. All this is very interesting and amusing, but it reveals aspirations on the part of Uncle Sam that are doomed to disappointment. Miss Canada's affections are already fixed. She has already expressed a preference for John Bull, and if he reciprocates, as we are confident he will, the advances of Uncle Sam will be quite unavailing. In any event Miss Canada knows that Uncle Sam would insist upon a large measure of advantage in any bargain he might make, and she would prefer the old informal friendship to any closer and more definite alliance.

Poor Appreciation.

The "Force" Food Co. recently made a very generous offer to the Canadian grocery trade. Attached to each package of their June shipments of "Force" was a coupon entitling the grocer handling the goods to two cents on each package, and allowing two cents also to the clerks who made the sales.

The idea of the "Force" company in offering this inducement was to assist the retailer to make a little additional profit and certainly not to encourage the indiscriminate slashing in price which has been indulged in by some of the trade. The "Force" company do not appreciate this abuse of their liberality and have notified the trade that the coupons in the hands of grocers cutting the price will not be recognized. The "Force" company wish to establish the price of their goods at 15 cents per package, and those in the trade who are meeting their wishes in this regard will get their coupons redeemed by sending them to the head office, Buffalo, when the goods are sold.

It is to be lamented that when some special consideration is made to the trade as an inducement to establish an understood price, some grocers will deliberately sacrifice the few opportunities afforded them of making an extra profit.

NOTES.

The Moose Jaw flour mill is again in running order.

The large flour mill at Gilbert Place, Manitoba, will be erected by October 1.

The Dowling Milling Co., of Edmonton, will soon have an elevator capacity of 150,000 bushels.

The output of The Ogilvie Milling Co. will be enormously increased as a result of arrangements now in progress.

J. W. Larke, Canadian Trade Commissioner, reports a good demand for Manitoba flour in New South Wales.

The capacity of The Lake of the Woods Milling Co. at Portage La Prairie is to be increased from 900 to 1,200 barrels per day.

The new mill built recently by The Renfrew Roller Mills Co. commenced operations last week. It has a capacity of 200 barrels a day.

One million acres of land is said to have been bought by an American syndicate in Manitoba. They propose to raise wheat on an enormous scale.

It is said that The Minneapolis Milling Co., the largest concern of that kind in the world, are laying plans for the erection of an immense flour mill at Fort William.

Representative Bede, of Duluth, Minn., speaking a few days ago in Washington, prophesied that in a few years the great exporting flour mills of Minneapolis and Duluth would be compelled to shut down unless by a measure of reciprocity they were enabled to grind the Canadian crop.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

PUBLIC MEN WHO SMOKE.

THE ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union's anti-cigarette deputation doubtless felt a thrill of satisfaction the other day when the Prime Minister told them that he was a non-smoker. Yet it was only modified rapture that should have been experienced by those earnest and energetic women, for the First Minister eschews the weed because he cannot use it. To him belongs no laurel wreath for abstinence.

It is not a matter of choice, it is a case of stern necessity, for Sir Wilfrid has said in his salad days he tried to do as other men did. He tried to smoke, but the sweet solace was not for him. To put it badly, it made him sick. Two or three times he essayed to school himself to the use of the greatest anodyne for mental worry that the world knows, or ever will know, but Nature stepped in with a veto. Sir Wilfrid's brain is strong, but the internal economy further down is weak. This incapacity caused him some regret, and occasionally does to this day. In the company of friends who have been enjoying their cigars, the First Minister has often said: "I wish I could enjoy a cigar the way you fellows seem to"—for Sir Wilfrid's language, as may be seen, and, as is known to all who have had much contact with him, is pleasingly direct and delightfully simple. He does not, like some other men high in office in Canada, make speeches in private.

Another big man who cannot smoke is Sir Charles Tupper—the Old Man, for "Young Charley" cares for few joys more than for those which his old black briar-root gives. The former Premier says that public dinners are always a possible infliction to him. This is when they are held in small or low-ceilinged rooms, where the smoke cannot ascend. At the dinner of the press gallery of Parliament a year or so ago, Sir Charles mournfully referred to his limitations in the way of enjoying a smoke. He told his hearers how he, too, had challenged and had been vanquished by our Lady Nicotine. When he was a young man in Nova Scotia, he said, everybody chewed tobacco, in addition to using it in a decent and sensible manner. Always progressive, and always striving after some new thing — Sir Charles is a very Athenian in this latter respect—he essayed to smoke. The result was so disastrous that, unlike Sir Wilfrid, he never tried again. Once was enough for him. The War Horse of Cumberland was put to rout by one solitary pipeful of superior smoking mixture. Like an astute war horse he knew when he was licked, and he retired from the fray.

Sir Charles, Junior, had no difficulty in contracting the habit that had conquered his father.

Robert Laird Borden, leader of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition, has two prime passions—a love of Kipling and a love of smoking, not that Mr. Borden carries either to excess. Extravagance in any line of life is totally foreign to him, but he can quote Kipling by the yard, and he allows himself a moderate number of cigars per day, perhaps six or seven. And his cigars are about as good as can be found anywhere. In other things Mr. Borden is almost ascetic. He is an indefatigable worker. No man in the House of Commons more continuously scorns delights to spend laborious days. But the laborious days must be broken by a cigar once in a while.

And then comes Hon. Clifford Sifton. The cigar bill of the Minister of the Interior must tot up to a pretty figure at the end of the year. He, too, will have naught but the best, and, as he gives away twice as many as he smokes, the expenditure must be high.

Once in a while Mr. Sifton induces his colleague, Mr. Paterson, to accept a cigar, but the Minister of Customs insists on preferring the common clay pipe, beloved by childish bubble-blowers, and retailing for one cent. With this filled with strong tobacco, between his teeth, Mr. Paterson is quite happy. Once upon a time, when the Liberals were in Opposition, it was charged by a rather excitable member that Mr. Paterson smoked too much, that he spent too much time in Number Six, the Opposition headquarters, enjoying that clay pipe when he should have been in the House showing up the iniquities of the Conservatives. It was borne in upon this censorious gentleman that it was his duty to remonstrate with Mr. Paterson but, luckily, he mentioned his intention to a friend. That gentleman was aghast at the very idea. "Why," said he in horror, "don't you know that while Paterson is sitting there, speaking to nobody and apparently doing nothing but smoke, he is getting up the framework of some speech? If you don't I tell it to you now. And don't you say a word to him unless you're looking for trouble." It was a true bill. Many of the best speeches that Big Thunder ever delivered were plotted out while he was sitting with his heels high in the air. If any figures were needed, the requirement was remembered, and was filled after smoke was finished. But the groundwork was settled by the grateful comfort and aid of Nicotia.—The Toronto News.

LONDON NEWS.

This has been a busy week with all our manufacturers—the last week previous to July 1st, stock-taking, and the last in the fiscal year, which ends June 30th. Special efforts are made by all to make the last month of the year just ending a hummer as regards output. Not far short of five million cigars will go out of London for June. That means one cigar each for every man, woman and child in Canada for this bridal month.

A notice in the local papers to the effect that a benefit band concert in aid of the striking cigar makers would be held in one of the city parks, Thursday of this week, was the first reminder for a long time that we really are supposed to be in the throes of a strike.

Commercial travellers are appreciated everywhere as bright, hustling intelligent people. To no class are the adjectives used above more applicable than to the Tobacco leaf salesman. Montreal and London are the points most favored with calls from these gentlemen. Here, (the hotel registers show) they average about seven per day the year through.

T. P BLACKWELL DEAD.

Mr. Thomas P. Blackwell, one of the best known cigar travellers in Western Canada, died at his home in London on the 14th inst.

Mr. Blackwell was born at Mount Pleasant and was in the 53rd year of his age. He was for many years a clerk in the employ of Priddis Bros., London, afterwards joining the travelling staff of his brother-in-law, Joseph Smith, cigar manufacturer. Mr. Blackwell took a very active interest in the affairs of the Western Ontario Commercial Travellers' Association, and was its first vice-president at the time of his death.

He was also a very prominent Oddfellow and Freemason, and his funeral was under the auspices of the Masonic order. Many friends and fellow travellers will learn of his death with profound regret.

CIGARS AT $4 EACH.

A consignment of cigars to be retailed at $4 each has just been passed through the New York custom house.

There were about 1,500 cigars in the consignment and the duty was 69c. on each.

The tobacco was grown in the Vuelto Abajo district of Central Cuba and the plant is the result of years of cultivation. Perfect leaves only are used and the cigars are rolled by experts who make only eight a day. The cigars are sixteen inches long and weigh 60 lbs. to the thousand. Each is wrapped in Japanese paper and put in a little scented wooden box, which is air-tight.

A TOBACCO CASE.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone has delivered judgment in the test case arising from the agreement made by Ogdens, Limited, at the time of the tobacco war to distribute to retailers $1,000,000 annually for four years. Ogdens at that time represented The American Tobacco Co. The Lord Chief Jnstice found that Ogdens was not relieved of these contracts by the sale of its business and its incorporation into the Anglo-American combine.

NOTES OF THE TOBACCO TRADE.

"VAN HORNE" and "Col. Steele" the two leading brands of cigars manufactured by Harris, Harkness & Co., Montreal, are meeting with a very heavy sale through Ontario and the Western provinces. THE GROCER had a recent visit from Jack Hamilton, this firm's well known representative in the West, and he seems very sanguine as to the prospects of the cigar trade this season.

Horrocks, of Toronto, says that he is much behind in his orders for the "Ronto" cigar and is surprised at the success this brand has met with, considering the short space of time it has been on the market.

Robert Craig, for many years one of the best known cigar travellers in Canada, died very suddenly in Toronto a few days ago.

THE GROCER has received a catalogue of the presents given in redemption of tags by The Empire Tobacco Company. It is profusely illustrated, handsomely got up and its contents speak well for the liberality of the company.

Among The Retailers

By Rambler

IT is a pity that there is not some more uniform hour for the closing of grocery stores. In the different towns and cities some close early and others late. Of course the early closers are down on the late closers. One grocer thinks that there should be a uniform hour and that hour should be an early one. He closes at eight.

"That's quite late enough for anyone to keep open," he says. "I think we should all get together and decide on some earlier hour than that. Until something like that is done of course there will not be early closing, for no grocer is going to close at six if his next-door neighbor keeps his door open until eight."

That grocer had a family trade. Another grocer, not so very far away, was differently situated, and so had different views on the subject. He had not been in business very long, and as his stand, before he took it over, had been altogether different from a grocery, he had inherited no family trade, and had so far been unable to work up one.

"Mine is a 'catch' trade," he said, "and if I closed up at an early hour I might as well close up entirely. A very large per cent. of my business is done after eight o'clock, and I'd be a fool to close early. Being on a prominent corner like this, I have a good chance to pick up roving trade. It would kill my business to close early."

"Of course, I don't keep any help until such late hours; I work hard myself."

"I know the other grocers don't like my keeping open late, but I can't help that. It pays me to keep open late and I keep open."

"What are your views on the exposing of goods on the sidewalk?"

"My views? Well, I think it pays," said the grocer. "Now, for instance, at the present time the only way of selling fruit and early vegetables is to expose them to the sight of the passers-by."

We were standing at the door. A lady was passing, noticed some cabbages on the stand, stopped, examined, asked the price, and purchased one.

"There's a practical illustration," said the grocer with a smile.

"Well, how about canned goods? Would you expose them at the store-front?"

"I wouldn't at the present time, but, when there is nothing else, we generally make a display of canned goods outside, although it may not be as appropriate as fruit. However, I find that what we expose we sell, and that," he said, laughing, "is the principal thing."

Another grocer spoken to on the subject held the same views.

"But," he said, "whatever a grocer displays on the sidewalk it should be attractively arranged and the goods should be saleable. If they are not saleable, far better is it to dump them out the back door, and get rid of them at once. I have seen store-front displays the general appearance of which would do the very opposite to that which was intended. I would feel like steering clear of those places."

Another grocer was of the opinion that to sell fruit it was necessary to display it on the sidewalk. It was necessary because it was the custom to do it.

"But," he said, "it would be far better for us if we all kept the fruit inside. Strawberries are not out there half an hour before they become the worse for the exposure to the heat and dust."

While what this grocer says about the detriment to the fruit is correct, there is something else to be considered. While, on the condition that all fruit be kept inside, all grocers would be on the same footing, none would fare so well—none would make so large sales—as they would if the fruit were prominently exposed.

The reason for this is of course evident. There is an old proverb: "Out of sight, out of mind." That would be the case with the fruit; not being brought prominently before people, it would not be in such great demand.

"Then you have had experience in the credit system of doing business," I asked a grocer the other day. "Yes, twenty-nine years! It's only the last three or four years that I have stuck strictly to the cash system. Formerly, I had to invent excuses for not paying my creditors up on time; now, I haven't the least trouble in meeting my bills. That is good enough proof to me that the cash system is best."

"How did you manage to change your tactics? Did you do it gradually?"

"Yes, gradually! I stopped giving credit to my customers one by one, until I had done away with it."

"But didn't you lose customers?"

"Yes, certainly. My trade now isn't so large as it used to be, but for all that I am far better off. I know exactly how I stand; I know exactly how much money is coming in and how much I can afford to pay out."

"Do you give credit?"—this to another grocer.

"Very little, and that little to people we can absolutely trust."

"Have you ever given credit?" I asked still another grocer.

"Yes, some years ago we carried on a considerable credit business. However, it was far from a paying scheme, so we cut it out. Why, we used to get done right and left. A fellow would come along and ask to run a weekly account. We would try him. The first two or three weeks he would pay up all right, but after that he would get more and more behind each week until we had to stop him.

"Of course, we wouldn't see him again. The next thing we would hear of him would be that he had done the grocer up the street in the same way. The scheme having become played out in this district he would move to some other part of the city and likely play the same game there.

"We came to the conclusion that this credit business was a too one-sided affair, and we therefore dropped out."

QUINA EXCELSIOR.

Quina Excelsior Tonic Wine is bottled and prepared at St. Etienne, France, by Massardier & Granjon and is a most healthful and refreshing drink at any time, mixed with water, or it may be taken pure before meals. There is no sediment left in the bottom of the bottle after pouring off the contents, the liquor being quite clear to the last drop. B. O. JAMAICA TO EXHIBIT.

G. Eustache Burke, commercial agent for Canada in Jamaica, reporting to the Department of Trade and Commerce, states that the Agricultural Society of the island has voted a credit so that Jamaica may be fittingly represented at the Dominion Exposition in Toronto in August next. Hon. Sidney Oliver, Colonial Secretary, who is now in Boston, promises to visit Toronto before his return to Jamaica.

"The Hand-Writing on the Wall."

"In the near future Government will protect consumers by demanding "that all food products are entirely free from adulteration."

The Pure Gold Manufacturing Company, desiring to keep a step in advance of legislation and the trade generally, have decided that on and after the 1st of July, 1903, they will manufacture and sell only "perfect pure Spices," and every package leaving the factory will have a seal bearing the name of the Company, guaranteeing purity and quality of contents.

This action will bring our Spice department into conformity with our other products, and it is a matter which THE PURE GOLD COMPANY can congratulate itself upon that it will be indifferent as to food adulteration legislation, as the Company's products are far above any possible standards demanded by law. No manufacturing concern in the Empire excels this company for quality, and very few approach it for attractiveness of their output, and the Company will be pleased to forward descriptive catalogue and spice list of July 1st, 1903, to the trade desiring it.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

Speculation and Insurance.

LIFE insurance has of late years undoubtedly inculcated habits of thrift among the Canadian people, and the growing influence of the principle has been very noticeable during the past few years. Since, however, the introduction into Canada of the stock-gambling craze, one of its most regrettable results is the effect it has had upon the life insurance companies and the policy holders of the Dominion.

Many who were, a short time ago, considering the advisability of effecting some provision for the protection of their families in this direction are now unfortunately not in a position to discuss the matter, their ability to pay their premiums being an impossibility. Called upon for margin after margin, the holders of policies, endowment and otherwise, have been compelled to sacrifice them in common with other securities to protect their stocks, and to-day the condition of the insurance business is very seriously affected, as is also the condition of the assurers themselves. This is truly a very lamentable state of affairs, and its seriousness is fully apparent to those on the inside only. Thousands of our people, who a few months ago were in comfortable circumstances, are now in a condition bordering on penury, and have in addition parted with securities which would have been a help in their old age, or in the event of their death, a comfort and support to those whom they left behind.

It is to be hoped that the mania has nigh spent itself and that the sad lesson it has taught will prevent a repetition of such regrettable folly for all time to come.

Why Gold Was Not Shipped.

REFERRING to the fact that no gold shipments, contrary to expectations, had been made from New York during the week ending June 20, Bradstreets says: "A factor in deciding the general result was the condition of the London money market and the action of the directors of the Bank of England. Money at the British capital has tended to work easier, and the confidence which is shown by the financial powers of that city was strikingly displayed by the somewhat unexpected announcement made on last Thursday that the discount rate of the institution had been again reduced from 3½ per cent. to 3 per cent.. Following as this did closely upon the marking down of the minimum discount figures of the Bank of England from 4 per cent. to 3½ per cent., it evinced a degree of confidence on the part of the leaders of the British financial world, which would seem calculated to induce confidence in the other large financial markets. It has been noted that the principal English financial journals have taken the ground that the course of the Bank of England and the tendencies in the London open money market were likely to be uncertain, and would be in a large degree governed by what occurred at New York, and the probabilities as to whether the liquidation which has been going on here would proceed in an orderly fashion or would be attended by positive banking troubles."

Ames & Co.'s Statement.

REFERRING to the statement recently issued by Ames & Co., Aemilius Jarvis & Co. say: "The rapid and satisfactory reduction of the liabilities of Messrs. Ames & Co. has proceeded, contrary to general expectations, without weakening the market to a very material extent. Immediately after the failure we spoke of the likelihood of payment in full by the above-named firm of all their liabilities, and even at this early date a proposition with this end in view is before their creditors. The plan proposed would involve the payment of 100 cents on the dollar within 18 months, interest being paid in the meantime at the rate of 6 per cent. The first payment would be one of 25c. on the dollar on July 15 next. The magnitude of the firm's operations and their very large liability at the time of suspension, only about two weeks ago, makes it a remarkable thing that such a proposition as they are now offering could at this stage be submitted. The liabilities, we understand, have been reduced from over ten millions to somewhere in the neighborhood of four millions. The proposal has been very favorably commented on by bankers and brokers, and we should think no creditors would refuse their offer."

Canadian "Rails" in London.

A fortnight ago we published an article showing why prices of Canadian rails would probably go lower, and arguing that on any material decline Canadian Pacifics were worth the attention of those who were prepared to take the shares off the market and hold for dividends. This view we still entertain, and during the past week an opportunity has been given for acquiring Canadas at what, having regard to the outlook for the company, must be considered very favorable terms. The London Report, June 6.

Life Insurance as an Investment.

THE Canadian public has been taught a severe, and, it is to be hoped, a wholesome, lesson, in the prolonged depreciation of railway and kindred speculative stocks during the past few months. Millions of dollars have been placed practically at the disposal of professional manipulators during that short period and the result to many has been the loss of the savings of a lifetime. Gambling under the guise of stock speculation has been rampant in our midst, and it can truthfully be said that thousands of our heretofore well-to-do citizens are now sadder but wiser men.

Canadians as a class are a saving and thrifty people, but the alluring prospects held out to them were too much of a temptation, and ordinary prudence and caution were thrown to the winds. Now that the mining and stock speculative craze has well nigh spent itself, the community are looking for safer channels of investment, and our financial and insurance institutions will soon experience the benefits of its return to reason. Perhaps no principle of investment appeals more strongly to the economical class than that of life insurance, and the immense amount of money involved in the transactions of life insurance companies shows how their methods recommend themselves to the confidence of the public. Encouraging saving and thrift, they appeal strongly to the thoughtful man, and as an investment promote a feeling of independence equalled by no other security.

Investment in life or endowment insurance means provision for old age or a protection to those we leave, and to carry it out saving and prudent habits are necessary, and with the incentive the necessity should be a pleasure. The large deposits made with the Government and the safe and careful management of the standard companies doing business in Canada are an ample safeguard against possible loss, and the growth of their business is a certain indication of the prosperity and welfare of the country.

The Annual Bank Meetings.

MONTREAL.

THE annual report of the Bank of Montreal was submitted to a meeting of the shareholders on June 1. This bank is to be congratulated on its magnificent showing. The statement gives a net profit for the year of $1,813,483, the largest in the history of the bank. It has increased its capital to $14,000,000; of this $1,379,240 is already paid up and on this the net profits for the year would amount up to 13.55 per cent. This statement also shows that $1,000,000 has been added to the rest, bringing the account up to $9,000,000. The public deposits and the current discounts have largely increased, and the directors have every reason to be satisfied with the bank's prosperous expansion. The annual meeting will henceforth be held on December 1, when the presidential address will be delivered.

HAMILTON.

The annual meeting of the Bank of Hamilton was held at the head office on June 15. Mr. John Stuart, who has been president of the bank for many years, resigned from the directorate, as did also Mr. A. G. Ramsay. The bank recognized the services of Mr. Stuart by granting him a retiring allowance of $5,000 a year for the remainder of his life. This sum was unanimously voted on the motion of the largest shareholder and was a generous testimonial to the ability and faithful services of the retiring president. Senator William Gibson succeeds Mr. Stuart as president, and Mr. J. Turnbull will fill the position of vice-president and general manager for the ensuing year. The shareholders are to be congratulated on the satisfactory showing made in the annual report—the most prosperous yet presented. It represents the most successful year's business in the history of the institution. The feature of the meeting was the interesting and able address of General Manager Turnbull, who gave a resume of the business and progress of the bank since his appointment to the management. The bank has now 50 branches; its deposits have increased to $16,000,000, and its loans to over $21,000,000. Under its careful management the Bank of Hamilton stands high in the confidence of the Canadian people and gives every promise of additional prosperity in the future.

IMPERIAL.

The 28th annual meeting of the Imperial Bank of Canada was held at the head office, Toronto, on June 17. The directors' report, showing the continued prosperity of the institution, was read by the general manager, and, at the subsequent meeting of the directors, Mr. T. R. Merritt was elected president, and Mr. D. R. Wilkie vice-president for the ensuing year.

SOVEREIGN.

The first annual report of the Sovereign Bank was presented to the shareholders at a meeting held on June 9, at the head office, Toronto. Twenty-one branches were opened during the year, and results were of a very satisfactory nature. Mr. H. S. Holt was re-elected president, and Randolph McDonald and James Carruthers, vice-presidents.

ONTARIO.

The annual report of the Ontario Bank shows that it participated in the general prosperity. Five thousand dollars was granted to the officers' pension fund. Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn was again elected president, and Mr. Donald MacKay, vice-president.

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS.

The shareholders of the Eastern Townships Bank have every reason to feel pleased at the annual report submitted at their annual meeting, held in Sherbrooke on June 3. Public deposits have increased three-quarters of a million, and nearly a million more of the bank's funds is available for immediate use than ever before.

STANDARD.

At the annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Standard Bank, held in Toronto, Mr. W. F. Cowan was elected president and Mr. Frederick Wyld, vice-president for the ensuing year. The net profits for the past year amounted to $181,893.48, of which $75,000 was added to rest account.

THE TRADERS.

The president of the bank, Mr. C. D. Warren, presided at the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Traders' Bank, held in Toronto on June 16. Eleven branches were opened during the year. The net profits amounted to $167,340,78; of this $100,000 was added to rest account.

UNION.

The annual meeting of the Union Bank was held in the City of Quebec on June 15. The bank has now 69 branches throughout the Dominion, and the business for the year was of a very satisfactory character.

Financial Notes.

The Royal Bank of Canada is about to open a branch at Chilliwack, B.C.

The Bank of British North America has opened a sub-branch at Longueuel, Que.

The Sovereign Bank are now operating their new branch at the corner of Guy and St. Catherine streets, Montreal, with Mr. E. G. Spinney as manager.

S. A. Codd has been appointed manager of the branch of the Bank of Ottawa, recently opened at Regina.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce are opening a branch at Morrisey Mines, and have closed the branch at Sandon.

The Bank of Montreal have purchased a lot on the south-west corner of St. Catherine street and Pauineau road, Montreal, and, it is understood, will open a branch there in the near future.

The Banking and Commerce Committee at Ottawa have passed the bills incorporating the United Empire Insurance Company, the Pacific Bank of Canada and the City and County Bank of Canada.

The provisional directors of the Pacific Bank of Canada are Wm. Postlethwaite, W. J. Hetherington, Geo. C. Thompson, and Geo. Clay, of Toronto, and A. G. Murray, of Gore Bay, Ontario. The capital stock is placed at $2,000,000. The head offices of the bank will be in Victoria.

The Municipal and General Securities Company, Limited, have been organized to conduct a general brokerage business, with a capital of $500,000. The provisional directors are W. R. Johnston, G. T. Clarkson, H. Langlois, R. R. Bongard, and R. H. Parmenter, all of Toronto.

PROFITS OF THE LIPTON CO.

The advertising of the Lipton Company is being paid for by the company instead of being, as in the previous year, paid out of Sir Thomas Lipton's pocket. A gross trading profit is reported of £226,915, while expenses of management absorbed £45,559. The heavy increase in working expenses is due to the inclusion of advertising expenses in the present accounts. The directors recommend a final dividend on the ordinary shares at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum for the past half-year, which, with the interim dividend, makes 8 per cent. for the year. £10,000 is placed to reserve, and £4,814 is carried forward. The sum of £19,630 is written off for depreciation.

MEETING OF CREDITORS.

A meeting of the creditors of H. M. Peterson & Co., Toronto, was held on June 24 at the office of E. R. C. Clarkson, the assignee. The assets are placed at $18,000 and the liabilities at $90,000. The Dominion Bank, which has a secured claim for $25,000 on notes endorsed by Peterson Bros., Chicago. have issued a writ against H. M. Peterson & Co., Toronto, and the Chicago firm. The principal creditors are English and American houses.

Wasting Your Energies ?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of the "Griffin" Brand of Dried Fruits and the "Thistle" Brand of Canned Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

"Griffin" Brand Dried Fruits.

Seedless Raisins and Prunes. Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears in all their original goodness. A revelation to the grocer who has been buying other Brands.

Selected with the greatest care and shipped in original boxes right from the Vineyards on the Pacific Coast.

Look for the "Griffin" trade mark before you buy.

"Thistle" Brand Canned Fish.

Canned Haddies, Kippered Herring and Herring and Tomato Sauce. Selected, cured and packed by Captain Austin of The Thistle Canning Co., Little River, N.S.

Absolutely clean, rich, delicate, appetizing. Prepared right at the water side where they are caught. The brand of highest quality and so recognized the world over.

MR. GROCER—

The profit in your business rests upon little things—"mites." If you are forced by the scales you are using to give 50 customers daily one cent each in down or over-weight, you are 50c. poorer and they do not know of or feel any benefit. If you use a Toledo Automatic, Springless Computing Scale the 50 customers will give you the one cent each that you would otherwise give them and you gain 50c., a difference in your favor of $1.00 on the day's business and the customer gets his just dues, so loses nothing.

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

SINCE writing our article of last week, a part of which dealt with the purchase of cattle for restocking Boer farms in South Africa by the British Government, the purchases being made in the United States, a little more light has been thrown on the subject.

We are the last to wish to complain of the British Government, which, as representing the Home country, we wish to support on all occasions and in every way in our power, but the truest support, after all is said and done, is that fair criticism which points out faults, so that those committing them, frequently unwittingly, may expunge them, and restore confidence and good feeling. For this reason we shall continue to blame what we think blameworthy in England's treatment of Canada, in the hope that a similar course pursued throughout this land may take effect across the sea, where things Canadian are getting such attention as never before.

But, to come back to our subject, it is now stated that the main reason for the purchase of the cattle in the United States is one of the best, a reason that we can all accept, for this is a commercial age—the very simple, but all-sufficient reason, that they can be purchased cheaper there. In spite of this, however, our point remains good that our representations made to the Home Government were not met with that promptness which we think they deserved. Had this very reasonable explanation been made to us in time, a lengthy and somewhat acrimonious debate would have been spared us. Canadians are anxious for trade, but we are not begging for it, even from the Mother Country. Our position summarized is this; we do not want Britain to buy our products at a higher price than for what she can obtain them from other countries, (always, of course, excepting the case of a mutual preferential arrangement,) but we do think that where price and quality are equal this land should have the first chance.

It may be mentioned that, in connection with this matter, a motion censuring the Government was introduced by Mr. Pope, who claimed that our interests had not been sufficiently pressed on the British authorities. Mr. Fisher, the Minister of Agriculture, defended himself by stating that two communications had been addressed to the Old Country people by our officials, but without result. The vote, when taken, resolved itself, as usual, into a straight party one, and the Government was sustained by the usual large majority.

Speaking of England's relations with Canada, one may say that this is a most convenient centre for getting light and information upon this subject. Not only are Imperial politics given a great deal of attention by the members, many of whom are extremely well posted, but the well-equipped library and reading-room afford the very best sources of information.

The English press is, at present, most interesting. For example, we learn that in a bye-election, now in progress, "Remember Canada," is a battle-cry for one of the parties. "Remember Canada," just fancy that! "Where is Canada?" was the cry in English mouths which a few years ago was most familiar to the chagrined ears of Canadians. Now, a nation undoubtedly needs advertising, just as a business does, and whether, in the fulness of time, Mr. Chamberlain succeeds in evolving and carrying out some scheme of Imperial preference or not, Canada is bound to be a large gainer by the campaign which he has inaugurated.

As was to be expected, Mr. Labouchere has arrayed himself strongly against Mr. Chamberlain, and in answering the former, the latter has said, in part; "No suggestions have been made, by England or the colonies, that the colonies surrender the liberty of framing their own tariffs, or of an alteration in the practice of leaving the colonies to decide, for themselves, their adherence or otherwise, to the commercial treaties of the Motherland. No colony ever suggested to the Motherland the manner of protecting the fiscal freedom of the Empire." We should think not. Fancy Canada, for example, surrendering so important a part of her legislative rights, of her boasted rights of self-government. The country would be ablaze from Gaspe to Vancouver at the very idea of such a thing. To one of us, it seems rather amusing that British statesmen should so gravely discuss such a thing. They certainly understand but little, as yet, of colonial feeling.

There is yet more significance in that catch-cry, "Remember Canada," than appears at first sight. Why "Remember Canada," rather than "Remember Australia;" or more likely yet, "Remember the Colonies?" Because Canada is at last beginning to get her rights in the minds of the people in Britain. In richness of territory Australia cannot compare with us. In proximity to England she cannot compete with us, and yet for years, yes, almost until the present, the average Englishman knew all about Australia and but little of Canada. To the average Briton, gold is indeed a strong drawing card, and its discovery, in such rich quantities, in Australia, brought, to that country, an inrush of British immigration which put it to the fore-front of the colonies, in the attention received across the Atlantic. Canada moreover, was regarded as a cold country; too cold a country in which for a white man to live, with any degree of comfort, while, strange to say, the torrid heat of Australia, had no terrors for the men of a temperate clime. Well, everything comes to the nation, as well as to the individual, who waits, and things are, indeed, coming to Canada, none of them better for us than the friendly interest at last aroused in England.

The Duke of Argyll, our old-time Governor General, has taken sides with Mr. Chamberlain, and summarizes his views by saying that, in his opinion, the Mother Country and the colonies can assist one another, not in matters of defence only, but in commercial affairs as well.

In reading a recent issue of The Toronto News, we notice the fact that an English official, in discussing a big contract, used the expression 'Canadians preferred,' and yet, it is not more than half a dozen years since English merchants used to request Canadian shippers to send their goods in packages resembling this, that, or the other style of shipment of other countries, in order that it might not be discovered by the purchaser, that the goods came from this Canada of ours. To-day, we venture to assert, the inscription "Made in Canada" is not a detriment, but an assistance to the British retailer.

Chamberlain's suggestion is under criticism in all parts of the world, and especially in the colonies which would be so largely affected by it. As to foreign countries, it is amusing to see those which are well known to be unfriendly to all things British, warning the British electors against the adoption of a policy which will mean the ruination of the Empire's greatness. Surely Chamberlain could hardly have a more potent argument in his favor than the attitude of these, our enemies. As for Canada, it is not our place to discuss Canadian sentiment in this connection, within the limits of a short article, but we can say that, in Australia, feeling seems to be greatly divided. An ex-provincial premier opposes the crusade most strongly, but the Federal Government, if we can believe Mr. Chamberlain, is friendly to his idea.

Some uneasiness is beginning to be felt by the members at the possibility of the re-entry of the Manitoba School Question into Federal politics. As a matter of fact, such a thing seems extremely improbable. A general election is now in progress in Manitoba, and the Roman Catholics of the province are, quite naturally, taking advantage of the opportunity to attempt to make what they consider, better terms with the local premier, Mr. Roblin. As at present situated, those Catholics who live in a locality such as Winnipeg, where they are quite numerous, but still in a minority, are unable to establish separate schools by applying a part of their taxation for that purpose. If they want these schools they still have to pay the full amount of taxes for general school purposes, and to maintain their own entirely at their individual cost. Against this state of things the Catholics of Winnipeg have appealed to the School Board, who have politely replied that they are powerless to amend the situation. From the School Board they go to the Provincial Premier, who very much regrets the fact that there should be dissatisfaction, but declares that it is a matter for the Dominion Government. We are told, that to the Dominion Government then, the Catholics of Manitoba will shortly come, when, no doubt, it will be in order for the Premier of Canada to say that matters of education are for the provinces, that Mr. Roblin was in error when he said that he had not the power to make the changes asked, and that he, personally, with all the good will in the world to see wrongs righted, is constitutionally powerless in this case.

The fact is, there is nothing so dangerous and unpleasant for politicians to handle as questions affecting religion. Old friendships count for nothing, the political allegiance of years goes by the board, the fire and the rope, the rack and the thumb-screw, once more are invoked, not as applied to the body, it is true, but to afflict the mind of former friend and present bitter foe. It is, in public life, what civil strife is in the realms of war, a frightful thing, arraying brother against brother and friend against friend. May it no more come into the realms of politics in this busy Canada of ours where all we want, at present, is opportunity to develop our great resources and our national spirit, undistracted by anything so awful as religious strife.

If customs returns are an evidence, the general prosperity of Canada goes merrily on, in spite of the few failures we have had in connection with that precarious form of gain, stock transactions. The total receipts for customs last year, that is the fiscal year ending June 30, have reached the splendid total of $36,619,659, an increase over the previous year of no less than $4,566,860. While some may be found to deplore this large receipt, as it means a large increase in importations of manufactured goods, many of which might be made in Canada, we need not feel too badly over the matter, since our factories are, for the most part, working overtime as it is. We have so much to do in a country of our magnificent area that money, and a good deal of it, is an absolute necessity for us. We may write, academically as we will, about direct taxation being the most economical and the best, but we know that a Dominion Government that laid on a large amount of it, would last just until the next election, and not a moment longer. We must take note of conditions, and reckon with them whether we regret them or no. Even from the standpoint of the Canadian manufacturer, the development work which we are enabled to do with a large income is a great boon. We aid a railway, for example, building into some part of Canada theretofore a wilderness. Population follows, goods are required for the newcomers, and the Canadian manufacturer supplies his share. Let us, then, rejoice in our abundant revenues, just so long as our own manufacturers are prosperous, and when they cease to be so, we shall take counsel as is our duty.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AFRICA.

A recent number of The Johannesburg Daily Mail contained an interview with Mr. J. G. Jardine, Canadian Trade Commissioner in South Africa, showing the good progress being made in building up our trade with that colony. Mr. Jardine remarked, among other things, that "In butter, cheese, flour, bacon, hams and canned goods generally, we are doing a large business at present. There are several representatives here from some of our largest firms, and they have 'done' the country from the Cape to the Zambesi, with very encouraging success. A particularly large business is being done at the Cape in Canadian butter. When I left there almost every retail grocer sold our butter—at 1s 6d per lb. In a few weeks the direct steamers brought over 3,000 or 4,000 packages. Talking about steamers, the Canada Steamship Co., who are running direct steamers from Canada to South Africa, had to put on an overflow steamer last month, and to-day there are two steamers in the harbor at Cape Town filled with Canadian products. It is more than likely that in future the two steamers per month will be continued—that is, for six out of the twelve months."

A PRO-TRADING-STAMP MAN.

J. E. Wilder, Montreal, proprietor of The Traders Advertising Co., a concern which handles trading stamps, maintains his right to continue business in the face of the recent by-law passed by the Montreal City Council. He argues that the Federal Government only had the right to legislate in the matter, as it was one affecting the conditions of trade and commerce. This is according to a decision given by Mr. Justice Andrews some time ago when he declared a by-law similar to the one in question not only ultra vires of Quebec city, where it was passed, but also beyond the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature. According to Mr. Wilder, his company were making preparations to place the trading stamps in a leading dry goods store in Montreal when the by-law was passed, and the firm then refused to take them, causing some loss to The Traders Advertising Company. He will call upon the city to make good this loss ; nor will he cease his fight against the by-law until the Privy Council itself has rendered judgment on the question if no other court will sustain him. If Mr. Wilder intends to do all this, a very interesting struggle may shortly be in progress.

PACKAGE GOODS.

Attractive packages have a great deal to do in the sale of goods, and the United Factories, Limited, seem to appreciate this fact, as they are now placing all their better lines of Boeckh's and Bryan's scrubing brushes, dandy brushes, bannister brushes, hair brooms and whisks in neat cardboard cartoons. These cartoons not only add materially to the appearance of the goods, but they also protect them and keep them from becoming shop worn and are much more easily handled. This move on the part of the United Factories will doubtless be appreciated by both the dealer and consumer and will add greatly to the popularity of their lines.

DRIED FRUITS IN GERMANY.

FROM the fact that Canada exports considerable quantities of dried apples to Germany the following letter from Joseph I. Brittein, U.S. Consul at Kehl, may be of interest to buyers and exporters.

"While in the United States last year, I visited a number of the larger prune and apricot orchards in the vicinity of San Jose, Cal., and since my return to this country have given the importation of evaporated American fruits considerable study. For this part of Germany—namely, Baden and Alsace-Lorraine—I find the outlook for increased sales most encouraging. From the leading importer in the western part of Germany I learn that California prunes and apricots are rapidly supplanting the products of France and Italy. The California fruit is cheaper and its flesh brighter and more solid.

Speaking of the packing and drying of prunes and apricots, my informant tells me he has no fault to find, except with the manner in which the boxes are put together. He says there would be less breakage if they were dovetailed instead of being simply nailed.

Regarding the time in transit, he says that he has experienced considerable annoyance and some loss of trade in consequence of shipments being delayed en route from California. One shipment was over ten weeks on the way; the buyers think the goods were held in New York several weeks. California fruits are generally paid for in advance, which fact makes delays in shipments especially annoying.

The Elsassische Conserven-Fabrik und Import Gesellschaft, of Strassburg, last season sold eight carloads of apricots, 10 carloads of prunes, and 25 carloads of evaporated apples. Prunes and apples retail here at from 12½ to 15 cents per pound and apricots at 20 cents.

The evaporated apples come from the vicinity of Rochester, N.Y., and find a ready sale. Considerable fault, however, was found with the shipments of last season. The apples were not all sufficiently dried before packing, which caused them to mould in the boxes. The metric system should be used in foreign shipments."

According to the last trade and commerce reports Canada exported to Germany in 1902, 787,224 pounds of dried apples, valued at $62,382. In 1899 we exported 1,735,387 pounds, valued at $265,690. The fruit is used for domestic consumption and in the arts, for preparing certain dyes.

THE FRUIT OUTLOOK.

The fruit division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has issued under date of July 2 the following summary of the crop report to date:

Early apples are reported a good crop in all sections. Winter apples will be only medium. The fruit has been singularly free from the ravages of insects and fungous diseases, though a few correspondents are noting the development of some scab since the wet weather has set in. The Fruit Division a few days ago issued a timely warning that spraying with the Bordeaux Mixture would be doubly necessary as long as the wet weather continued.

Pears in Southern Ontario and Georgian Bay districts are a good crop. In Eastern Ontario they are a failure in many places.

Plums are a heavy crop in all the plum-growing sections, but the rot is developing with the wet weather, and will, if it continues, cause a serious depreciation.

Peaches are also a large crop. Mr. J. L. Hilborn, of Leamington, says: "Peaches of all varieties, except those subject to curl leaf, are heavily loaded. The Elberta, a variety much subject to curl leaf, has suffered very little where it was sprayed early, but where spraying was done late or not at all, many of the trees will probably die."

Small fruits are a heavy crop everywhere except in the eastern portion of the province, where the drought is responsible for the failure.

Canadian Butter in England.

THE development in Canada's butter export trade in the past five years has been great, and Canadian makers and exporters may well be proud of the good reputation their butter has in foreign markets.

In 1897 Canada exported 11,453,351 lb. of butter of her own production, valued at $2,089,173. Last year she exported 27,855,978 lb., valued at $5,660,541. These figures show an increase of 16,402,627 lb. of butter exported, and an increase of $3,571,368 in the value. Taking the values as a standard, there has been an increase of, roughly speaking, about 175 per cent. Great Britain is the importer of nearly all our butter. Of our exports in 1897, 11,413,131 lb. out of a total of 11,453,351 went to the Old Country, and $1,912,389 out of $2,089,173 in values. Of our total exports in 1902, 26,846,205 lb. out of the total of 27,855,978 went to the Old Country, and $5,459,300 out of $5,660,541 in values. From these figures we see that there has been an increase in our exports to Great Britain of 16,433,074 lb. in volume, and $3,546,011 in the value in the last five years.

The foregoing review of the export figures should be a convincing argument to show the great development of our foreign butter trade. However this year, chiefly on account of the big home demand, which keeps the price of Canadian butter very high, and the weak market in the Old Country, the exports of butter so far are behind those of last year.

Now the question is whether this situation is to continue. The competition on the English market is very keen, and special efforts will have to be made in order to keep the position we have gained. One way to do this will be to improve the quality of our butter, and put it on a footing with the Danish, and thus remove it from the competition of countries such as Russia, Holland, Ireland and France.

At present, of course, the Danish is the best butter on the English market, and consequently brings a higher price than that from other countries. We have great difficulty in competing with these other countries on account of our greater distance from the market, and also on account of the high prices ruling here.

If we are to improve our butter we must begin at the beginning, namely, with the farmer. Since the introduction of cream separators the farmers have been doing their own separating, and the butter makers say that the cream is not being brought to the creameries in such good condition as formerly. This should be remedied. Then the packing of the butter for the export trade should be well looked after. English importers state that on account of careless packing Canadian butter often arrives on the market in poor condition, and consequently the dealers are rather shy of handling it. One of the chief faults to be found in the packing is the lightness of the boxes. This could be remedied surely.

It is the duty of all connected with the production of Canadian butter to do what is in their power to help on the good cause, and to try in every way to bring the standard of our butter to a par with the best on the British market.

Warm Weather Poultry Packing.

The following instructions are given by W. H. Rudd, Son & Co., for packing poultry in warm weather :

Leave heads on and entrails in. Strong, sound barrels (sugar barrels preferred) are best for the packing, and the ice should be washed before using. Place a good layer of broken ice in the bottom of the barrel and then a layer of poultry, commencing in the middle and packing in a circle, with heads down, backs up and feet towards the centre ; then alternate layers of ice and poultry, filling the barrel to within six inches of the top, taking care to have ice between the poultry and the staves of the barrel ; top off with large pieces of ice and cover the barrel with bagging (which insures its being kept right side up) and mark with brush or stencil. If shipped from any considerable distance, put an extra large piece of ice on the top ; and if properly packed the poultry can be on the road 50 hours without injury ; and if heavily iced and shipped in refrigerator car, can safely be four or five days in transit ; but even for short distances it is better to use ice, as poultry, especially if not drawn, packed without it in warm weather, if only for an hour or two, will turn green across the back, and become almost worthless. — The National Provisioner.

Argentine Cattle.

According to The Bulletin of Commercial Statistics, for the first quarter of the calendar year 1903, issued by the Ministry of Agriculture of the Argentine Republic, the following data show the conditions prevailing in the cattle industry of the country during the period in reference:

There were brought into the capital 151,772 head of cattle, of which 74.47 per cent. were for slaughtering, 26.35 per cent. for storing, and 0.18 per cent. for exportation. There were brought into the Matanzas and South Barrancas markets 1,094,941 sheep and lambs, of which 787,040 were for the "frigorificos," 258,296 for the "mataderos," and 49,605 for storing. The number of pigs slaughtered for consumption was 1,885. The following was the exportation of live stock : Sheep, 92,101 ; cattle, 25,215 ; horses, 1,530 ; asses, 4,505 (for South Africa) ; mules, 8,584, of which 8,561 were shipped to South Africa. The number of horned cattle slaughtered by the "saladeros" of the Argentine Republic during 1902 was 454,000 (180,600 in the Province of Buenos Ayres and 274,300 in the Province of Entre Rios.

For the month ending March 31, 1903, La Union Argentina Dairy Co. manufactured 470,284 kilograms of butter, obtained from 11,286,816 liters of milk.

bacon, and $656,024 imported. That shows the immense increase of $11,510,192 in the exports. The imports also show an increase of $325,600. T. H. Mason, of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, points out that 10 or 12 years ago Canadian bacon was of an inferior order, and therefore unpopular; but now, he says, Canada is producing a very satisfactory article, and therein lies the impetus to her export trade. He says that the sort of hog the packer requires is one weighing at maturity 250 to 220 lb., preferably between 160 and 200 lb., the largest percentage of first-class bacon being found in carcases between those weights.—Butchers' Advocate.

The Toronto Stock Yard Problem.

The proposal that the city of Toronto spend $30,000 in renovating and enlarging the present cattle markets has brought out a new proposition from The Union Stock Yard Co., of Toronto Junction. The chairman of the Property Committee of the Toronto City Council was startled this week by the receipt of a letter from Mr. Andrew Dodds, secretary of The Union Stock Yard Co., making a proposition that the city of Toronto join hands with the Junction enterprise. After pointing out the cramped quarters of the present Toronto market and the heavy outlay necessary to increase its facilities to meet the growing trade, and also the excellent location of the Junction market, Mr. Dodds concludes: "In view of this, would it not be well for the city, instead of continuing to spend vast sums of money on a place that has been repeatedly declared as insufficient and unsuitable for the trade, rather to avail themselves of the opportunity of developing the trade by encouraging such an enterprise as this with a view to making Toronto as great a live stock and dead meat centre for Canada as The Union Stock Yards Co., of Chicago, and its kindred industries and annual fat stock show with its 40,000 daily attendance has created in that city?

"If a suggestion of this nature is one which would be of service, would it not be well for a committee of your Council to confer with my board and ascertain if some arrangement could not be made which would be of mutual advantage, and through our efforts strive to secure a greater concentration of trade at this centre.

"While we do not urge the matter upon you, yet if the city desired to retain a voice in the market affairs by having representation on our board and would prefer to utilize the $30,000 or more which they propose expending on the old plant by utilizing it in the further extension of our equipment, subject of course, to ratification by our shareholders, I would suggest that the company allow the city a fair amount of paid-up stock for its old plant, exclusive of any land which could be otherwise used by the city."

The aldermen on the committee spoke

Dealers on all hands report continued brisk and firm demand for all kinds of smoked and cured meats. The hot weather seems to help the smoked at the expense of the fresh meats. The hot weather, however, is affecting lard ; there is small demand and accumulating stocks have resulted in an easing off of about ¼ cent. Other prices continue unchanged. We quote :

In barrelled pork business is dull and rather easier prices rule. In clear pork considerable of the cheaper grades have been sold. The quantity of regular clear backs is small ; buyers will not pay the price. Beef shows little change. In pure lard rather lower prices rule ; fair stocks are held ; the demand is rather quiet. Refined lard is lower ; there is but a light sale. In fresh beef, domestic is quite plentiful, but of rather poor quality ; Western is unchanged in price. Veal is offered freely and is of good quality. Lamb is rather lower, but quite full prices still rule. Mutton is low and the sale but limited. Pork is also in light demand. We quote :

The figures paid for the best select live hogs here on Monday of this week was $5.10 per cwt. Dressed hogs ranged from $7 to $7.25. Other meats are the same as a week ago, and at the Saturday market sales were somewhat brisker than for some weeks past.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

TORONTO.

BUTTER.—The easier feeling in the butter market reported last week has continued and developed in a drop of from ½ to 1 cent per pound in the country. Offerings have been very large and as there is practically no demand for Canadian butter in England, accumulations have increased and depreciation in values has necessarily followed. Prices are 2s. lower in England, and Danish, French, Prussian and English butter have displaced the Canadian product. One dealer reports any amount of first-class dairy prints offered at a cent below last week's quotations. We quote :

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 18	0 20
" solids, fresh	0 17½	0 18
Dairy rolls, large	....	....
" prints	0 15	0 16
" in tubs	0 14	0 16

CHEESE.—The cheese market has been weaker since last issue, and experienced a drop of about a half cent all round. The local demand continues unchanged, but the English demand is very dull. Practically nothing is doing. We quote :

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 10½	0 10⅞
" twins, new	0 10¾	0 11

MONTREAL.

Cheese prices continue to decline, averaging ⅛ to ¼c. per lb. lower to-day both on spot and at country points, and values as they stand are fully ⅜c. per lb. below where they were this day week. The extraordinary make now in progress is responsible for the heaviness, and the only surprise is that it did not exert a depressing influence before this. Up to the present time the arrivals at Montreal since the beginning of the present season amount to 494,000 odd boxes, a gain on last year of over 18 per cent. Our exports also are ahead of last year, and from New York also, in marked contrast to last year, there has been a substantial increase. Taking it altogether the present statistical position is bearish, the high prices having decreased the output of butter and increased that of cheese. The aggregate offerings at the various country markets are an additional evidence of this. Last year on the same date the aggregate offerings were over 75 per cent. less, and when this remarkable difference is borne in mind, easier prices are not surprising. The average price also is still fractionally above last year's basis. On spot there have been sales of Ontario white at 10c., though 10⅛c. was holders' asking price, but when the country advices commenced to arrive buyers cut down their offers still further. Business in Quebec goods was transacted at 9⅞ to 9½c., but it could hardly be repeated again. The slump has naturally led to new attempts to gamble on the decline, and offers of finest have been made for forward shipment at 47s., or about equal to 9⅜c. here. Should these result in any extensive short interest being created, the fact may have a tendency to check the declining disposition of the market.

The butter market, while heavy, did not record any further radical change. There was business in fine creamery all the way from 18½ to 19c., with a fraction more in the case of some pet marks, but the outside is an extreme price, and no extensive trading is likely where holders insist on it. The shortage in the butter output also is decreasing. A fortnight ago the aggregate receipts here were over 54 per cent. below last year. This shortage has been made up somewhat, as at present they are only 46 per cent. behind.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—There is quite a wide range in price. Receipts are large, and much of the quality is good, so that even first-class stock is low. However, for small tubs of fancy a good full figure is still asked.

CHEESE.—There is but a fair quantity of cheese offering. Most of the large cheese is bought for the English market. For local sale demand is for twins, or small singles. These latter are largely shipped to the West Indies.

EGGS.—These are quite scarce. The quality is good and there is an active demand. The local supply is small, and the Prince Edward Island shippers preserve large quantities at this season. We quote :

Butter, creamery prints, per lb	0 22	0 24
" creamery solids (fresh made), per lb	0 20	0 22
" prints	0 18	0 20
" tubs	0 14	0 16
" tubs, selected, per lb	0 16	0 18
Eggs, new laid, per doz	0 16	0 18
" case stock, per doz	0 13	0 14
Cheese, per lb	0 10½	0 11

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITISISM

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Edited by

W. Arthur Lydiatt,

TORONTO.

The newspaper is a platform from which the merchant addresses the public. The "impression" he makes is gauged by the weight of his cash drawer and the number of used pages in his order book at the end of the day.

WHEN you try hard to do something well and feel confident that you have succeeded, it is a little disappointing to have someone pick out the faults in your work and exhibit them in a critical, "fault-finding" way.

You are inclined to feel rather harshly toward the person who "dared" to pull your work to pieces and belittle its value.

You are liable to criticise his criticism, in an endeavor to justify your own opinion of work well done.

Yet, after all, it is only by looking for faults that we are enabled to decide on the degree of perfection which has been attained. The fewer the faults the more perfect the work.

When you pick up the paper containing your advertisement, you naturally turn at once to the page on which it is published and read it over. There is a pleasurable self-satisfaction in seeing your work in print—there before the gaze of the hundreds of readers—and you immediately mentally decide on the merits of the ad., imagining, as it were, the unheard comments of its readers.

Quite naturally you look for the good points.

You think that headline looks all right—and reads about right.

You think those prices are pretty well arranged and enticing enough to draw some trade.

You decide that the argument is well put, that it is convincing.

And while you look at the ad. from this prejudicial standpoint, you are apt to decide that you would have been just as successful as a newspaper editor, or advertising expert, as you are at the grocery business.

Then, perhaps, you send that ad. to me in the hope that I will have some nice thing to say about it.

You would like to be told that it is the best ad. I have ever seen—and have it reproduced in this department as a model ad. You would be inclined to think I was an all-right fellow if I passed you a few compliments on it.

And when you read in these columns a couple of weeks afterwards that your ad. "might be better," you either decide that I'm a crank—that I don't know a good ad. when I see it—or, after a little thought, that your ad. would stand some improvement.

When an ad. is sent me for criticism I don't look for the good points.

I want to help you, in so far as I can, to do better advertising and get the consequent better results.

So I look for the faults.

The first question that occurs to me is "How can this ad. be better?" To answer it I must find some faults—and I generally do.

Most ads. have some good points—some lack but a few details to make them about as good as could be.

But if I took the time and space to call attention to an ad.'s good qualities, overlooking its discrepancies, you might feel satisfied that you were doing all right, and cease your endeavor to improve.

It has been said that it is the easiest kind of work to pick faults in the work of another. But when a remedy has to be suggested in each case, it becomes an altogether different proposition.

Because I use the space in these columns to call attention to the faults in the advertisements submitted for comment, it need not be supposed that the ad. under discussion has no good points. Those you can usually discover for yourself. My mention of them will not help to make the ad. any better.

It is my idea to use the ads. sent me for criticism as illustrations of ADVERTISING AS IT IS DONE, and in my comment endeavor to show HOW IT COULD BE DONE BETTER.

The fact that I use one of your ads. to show how space was wasted should be no occasion for your taking offence at my comment. It should rather be a cause for congratulation that your attention is called to a way by which you could save and make more money, and such suggestions should be always welcome.

It is a good idea to criticise each of your ads. yourself.

Look for the faults, instead of for the good points.

Give due thought and attention to the preparation of an ad. Then when it appears, study it on the basis of my question "How could this ad. be better?"

If, then, you decide the ad. is not much good, don't get discouraged. Just make up your mind that you'll remedy this error or that in the next ad. you write—then do it.

And when you send me an ad. with a request for my opinion, expect to get whatever is due. If the ad. could be improved I'll try and show you how—if it has some good points that are either unusual or that illustrate some principle of advertising, it's quite likely I'll call attention to them.

Be sure and read over the criticisms

TEMPTATION

You all know what a heap of trouble poor Eve got into on account of a little apple, when she fell a victim to the temptor's wiles. It was hard luck, but she went into it with her eyes open. They opened wider afterwards when she saw the mistake she had made. Eve lacked experience.

Since Mother Eve made such a bad beginning, the temptor, in various forms, has been continually getting in his fine work on the human family.

For instance, you may be worried and tempted to buy Vinegar—perhaps not a day passes that you are not asked to buy some kind or other—with all the absolute guarantees attached thereto that the would-be seller can think of. He may even say, "It's just as good as 'Imperial.'" That's saying a good deal.

EXPERIENCE IS A GREAT TEACHER. This holds equally good in the manufacture of Vinegar. When we began making "Imperial" White Wine, we engaged the best known expert in this line in Canada—installed the most modern and tried machinery—and made QUALITY our watchword from the start. That quality has made a reputation for "Imperial," and got for us the exclusive business of many of the leading pickle and sauce manufacturers in Canada.

No risk in handling Vinegar that carries the highest endorsation of the best pickle men in the country.

"Imperial" is clear and sparkling, pleasant flavored, full Government strength, and (mark this) fully matured in wood before leaving our factory. To bring out the fine quality in Vinegar it must be properly matured.

DON'T BELIEVE A WORD THAT WE SAY till you've proven its truth, by comparing "IMPERIAL," with other Vinegars. Retailers who originally handled about five barrels of Vinegar a year—just ordinary Vinegar—now sell 20 packages of "Imperial" in the same time.

I am reproducing the upper and lower parts of an ad. which appeared in The Montreal Star a few weeks ago, the missing part of the ad. being but a continuation of the list of specials. The following letter brought it :

Montreal, June 29, 1903.

W. Arthur Lydiatt, Esq.
Toronto.

Dear Sir,—

What do you think of the enclosed advertisement? It appeared last Friday (26th) in The Montreal Star, the highest-priced advertising medium in this city, if not in Canada, and we endeavored to get full value for our expenditure by filling up with interesting matter.

Yours truly,
Co-Operative Grocery Co.

The ad., as will be seen by the reproduction, is made up of a list of special bargains for the day following the publication of the ad. I do not know whether the Co-Operative Grocery Co. advertise in this way regularly or not. If they do, I would consider this a better advertisement than if they advertised only occasionally in this way.

If the public are accustomed to seeing your bargain announcements they have some idea what to expect. If they had never seen ads. of yours like this before, it is hardly as self-explanatory as it might be.

The cut at the top of the ad. is distinctive, although a writer in a prominent advertising journal recently pointed out that white letters on a black ground were harder to read than black upon white ground. If this be the case, it might be well to show a preference for the black letters on white.

An occasional use of the white letters is, however, a good idea. The large number of ads. in our newspapers, set in the plain type, cause a cut of this kind to stand out in an attention-compelling way.

Since space in The Montreal Star is so expensive, I cannot understand why a meaningless cut such as appears in the midst of this ad. should be used. It would have been much better to use that space in a few display heads distributed through the ad.

I think this ad. would have made a more striking appearance if set up double column. As it appears it is fifteen inches single column. You might then have used two electros, and divided your matter into two columns, one to the grocery department and one to the drug department.

The Co-Operative people say : "We endeavored to get full value for our expenditure by filling up with interesting matter."

That's the way to get full value out of the space, but whether or not you received full value from the expenditure depends on the measure of actual results received.

As you say, advertising in The Star costs considerable. The question is, do you get sufficient returns to make it a profitable investment?

I am in receipt of a letter from another Montreal grocer who states that it cost him considerable to find out that it didn't pay him to advertise in The Star or any of the other local papers.

A great many city grocers find it unprofitable to advertise in the daily papers, and the reason is that you pay for a large circulation and are benefited by but a small proportion of it.

As the Montreal correspondent puts it : "You can draw trade from the four corners of the city to the centre, but you can't draw trade from the centre or any of the corners to any particular corner."

By advertising in a paper like The Montreal Star and selling goods at bargain prices, can sufficient profit be made on the increased total sales to pay for the advertising, and does sufficient other trade result to make the investment a profitable one?

That's the question for The Co-Operative Grocery Co. to answer for themselves, according to the results they have experienced.

I wish they'd let me know for the information of other GROCER readers.

TWO INTERESTING EXPERIENCES.

THE clause in the charter of The Canada Grocers Limited, empowering the company to engage in retail trade, has given rise to a good deal of speculation in the minds of retailers. It may, therefore, be of interest to review, for a moment, the annual statements of two large English firms, which are, perhaps, typical of the orthodox wholesale and branch store systems respectively. In recent numbers of The Statist, the standings of Brooke, Bond & Co. and of Lipton, Limited, are set forth with considerable detail, and it is from this source that our figures are drawn.

Lipton, Limited, probably the largest, and undoubtedly the most famous, branch store firm in the world, was incorporated in 1898 to take over the business of Sir Thomas J. Lipton. It was capitalized at £2,500,000, one-half million 4 per cent. debenture stock, one million 5 per cent. cumulative preference shares, and one million common stock. In the eight years previous to incorporation, the net annual profits of the concern had grown from £68,046 to £176,984, and it was expected that the growth would continue. In 1899, indeed, the net profits did reach £244,337, but, since then, they have declined, and this year were but £154,948, despite the fact that the turn-over has increased very much, and the trading profits not inconsiderably. The reserve fund of the company is but £266,666 while £1,250,000 is represented by good will; consequently, although 8 per cent. dividend is paid on the common stock, it stands in the market at £1 3-16, although it was issued at £1.5s, and stood at £3 in 1899. The reason given for the failure of the firm to pay the dividends anticipated is "high prices for raw materials," and "severe competition."

In contrast with this state of affairs, the firm of Brooke, Bond & Co., which does a strictly wholesale trade, was incorporated in 1892 as a public company with a share capital of £150,000, and for the past three years has paid a dividend of 17½ per cent. In its prospectus, the company showed for the preceding five years a net annual profit of £24,000. This has been exceeded every year since, and in 1902 there was realized a profit of £39,958, or 66 per cent. above the amount estimated in the prospectus. Although a falling-off has been experienced this year, the company was, nevertheless, able to show a clear £32,725 to the good. With a share capital of £150,000, the company has a reserve fund of £144,000, while £44,000 in debentures and $100,000 goodwill has been written off from the profits. The shares of the company, of £1 face value, bring £3½ in the market.

In comparing the positions of these two companies, it is not to the respective dividends of 8 per cent. and 15½ per cent. that particular attention should be addressed. The difference is obviously due to the large capitalization of the Lipton concern, and the small capital and large reserve fund of Brooke, Bond & Co. The important points to be noticed are, first, the heavy charge of the operating expenses on the trading profits of the branch store concern, and, second, the noticeable falling off of both trading and net profits, in the face of an increased turnover. It is apparent that the minute details of retail distribution demand an attention which is only secured by the personal supervision of the owner.

The Lipton Company is undoubtedly a success, as the 8 per cent. dividend on its large capitalization shows, but comparison with the Brooke, Bond Co. would scarcely tempt one from the wholesale to the retail field.

The Canada Grocers, Limited, indeed, repudiate any intention of taking advantage of their retail privileges, and it seems scarcely probable that a concern which depends so largely on the goodwill of the retail trade, should enter on a course promising so meagre returns, and which would be certain to alienate a great majority of its present customers.

The introduction of the retail power clause in the charter was, doubtless, more a matter of form than anything else, and the result of the corporation lawyer's strong distaste for omitting anything whatever from a charter.

GROCERY TRAVELLERS' VACATION.

THE grocery travellers' summer vacation has become an annual event in Ontario, but, as yet, no set time has been assigned to it. As a result, there recurs, each year, the same old agitation over fixing the date, and much additional and unnecessary work and worry is thrown on those who have the matter in hand. Each house, as might be expected, has its own convenience to suit, and this convenience may or may not coincide with that of others.

There seems no good reason why certain weeks, should not be set part as the recognized date of the travellers' vacation. Such an arrangement would be a great convenience to the retailers, who, knowing the vacation time from year to year, could govern themselves accordingly. At first, such a move might require the sacrifice of a little personal convenience on the part of a few wholesalers, but a moment's reflection on the benefits thereby accruing to the trade in general, and to the travellers in particular, should bring a generous aquiescence.

Should the summer vacation become a fixture like the Christmas holidays, trade conditions would soon adjust themselves, while the foot-sore traveller could make plans for renewing his youth and acquaintance with his family, without the risk of having those plans disarranged by an unexpected change in the date of his vacation.

A fixed vacation time would make possible a general reunion of Ontario travellers, an event which might be expected to generate sufficient jollity to serve for the rest of the year. And indeed, a field day, in which the wives and families of travellers should also participate, would do much to cement the good fellowship which already exists among the brotherhood.

Nor are the possibilities of this idea confined to Ontario. A general vacation time for the travellers of all the Provinces, which time may not unreasonably be expected to bring forth, would give zest to inter-provincial excursions and visits, engender good feeling, and stimulate trade.

By all means let us have a settled vacation period.

TO THE DEPARTED HOME-COMER.

THE Home-Comers have come and gone. For four days Toronto kept open house for her prodigal sons ; for four days were old friendships renewed, old scenes revisited and old memories recalled. Now the flags are taken down, the bunting removed, the busy city doffs her holiday attire and resumes the wonted routine, for the festival is over.

The "Old Home" weeks and "Old Boys'" reunions have become a noteworthy feature of these latter days, and it is most gratifying to find the enthusiasm for the home land which still burns in the breast of our sons who have become foster children of the great republic to the south. The republic's quota to the crowd of last week was a large one, and showed little trace of inhospitable treatment in the land of their sojourn. They had every appearance of prosperity and contentment. Many of them have attained prominence ; all have taken their part in making the name Canadian a recommendation and certificate of character.

Our sons have done well. We expected none the less of them, and have not been disappointed.

But on coming face to face with the prosperity which has blessed Canada these last eight or ten years, it is not improbable that even the most successful of our sons may have been struck with the thought, "I might have done as well, or better, had I stuck to the old land."

Indeed the same energy and vim which is necessarily exerted in severing old ties and starting over again under new conditions, if exerted at home in Canada, would, without doubt, have produced even greater results.

The material growth in Canada during the past ten years has been remarkable, and out of all proportion with the increase in the population. In 1892, our total exports of home produce amounted to $99,000,000. In 1902 they were $196,000,000. For the same years our total imports, exclusive of coin and bullion, were $125,000,000 and $205,000,000 respectively. Our national revenue has increased from $36,000,000 to $58,000,000, while the burden of taxation has been unnoticeable. The bank discounts, during this decade, have increased from $210,000,000 to $426,000,000 per annum, while savings banks balances have grown from $51,000,000 to $78,000,000. Ten years ago our iron and steel industries were practically non-extant. There were, indeed, one or two smelters at that time, but their output was small, and little faith was placed in their future. Last year our furnaces produced 327,000 gross tons, and there are now in operation, or in course of construction, 16 iron furnaces with an annual capacity of 1,100,000 gross tons. Despite the sneers of Andrew Carnegie, Canadians are anticipating the day when we shall be one of the great factors in the world's iron and steel markets.

As our population has by no means kept pace with the increase in material wealth, the average individual wealth has inevitably grown very greatly. Indeed per head of population our export trade is double that of the United States.

The tide of immigration has been slow in coming our way, but it has come at last with a rush. The world has awakened to the magnificent possibilities of the land of the maple, and is losing no time in getting here. Last year our immigration returns showed an unprecedented influx, and this year settlers are pouring in, in ever increasing numbers. Many of these are from the home land, and many more from across the border, some of whom are prodigals returning after many days.

We are all enthusiastic Canadians nowadays, and it is doubtful if a single Old Boy has been allowed to return to Uncle Sam's domain without being made to realize that this is our growing time, that we are on the crest of the wave and we won't be stopped.

But there is more in life than the amassing of wealth. What are a few thousands more or less, if a man has to live in Pittsburg, a place not inaptly described as "hell with the lid off." These brilliant July days, the golden Autumn, the clear sparkling Winter, the reviving Spring, with which nature has blessed this favored land are enough alone to teach a man to swear by her. Nor can the home life across the border be compared with that which obtains here. American cities may be distinguished for taller buildings, wider avenues, or gaudier residences, but Canadian cities are not less distinguished as cities of homes.

Home-comer, Canadian cities welcome your advent : if you must return, they wish you Godspeed. But remember, if ever wealth palls and the strenuous life grows wearisome, up north, under the maple, lies the Old Home, and the latch-string hangs outside.

FRAUDULENT DEBTORS.

THE Hon. Mr. Beique's bill to amend the Criminal Code 1892, respecting the punishment of fraudulent debtors, has received its second reading in the Senate. The bill deals with the keeping of books by tradespeople, purchasing goods on credit, and is copied from the Scotch Debtors' Act of 1880. The bill provides that any debtor to the extent of $1,000, who for five years previously had not kept books or could not account for his losses to the satisfaction of the court, should be liable for imprisonment.

The necessity for the bill is urged on account of the number of merchants who are being tempted into stock gambling, with funds which rightly belong to their creditors, and it is claimed that similar legislation, in France and other countries, has had a salutary effect.

From a casual examination, the bill strikes one as being perhaps too drastic, although its object cannot be too highly commended. In this day and age of the world, business is done on so narrow a margin that the man who fails to keep a keen eye on his business, exact accounts and a clean stock list, is bound, sooner or later, to find himself unable to meet his obligations, and of course his creditors suffer. Such carelessness, as is contemplated in the Hon. Mr. Beique's bill, if resulting merely in disaster to the delinquent, would be regrettable; when the interests of others are imperilled, it is culpable, and when aggravated by outside speculation is deserving of severe punishment. Ordinary commercial morality should teach men in business to keep their books in good shape, and avoid flyers-in-stocks. It is the ignoring of just such rules as these that makes necessary, at times, the passing of bills like the one under discussion.

BUSINESS MEN AND THE MANITOBA ELECTIONS.

MANITOBA is in the midst of a provincial general election. According to the Government papers the Government is very strong and its record so satisfactory that it will have no difficulty in being returned to power. The tone of the Opposition papers, however, would lead one to the opposite conclusion. But business men may be assured that politicians are much about the same, to whichever party they belong. Business men, therefore, need not be very much concerned in regard to the victory of this or that party.

What should concern the business men in Manitoba as well as in every other province of the Dominion is the election of good men—men of sound business common sense. If they are actuated at all times by a party spirit and not by sound business judgment, they cannot but expect the men that represent them in Parliament will be of the same class. Like begets like, in politics as well as in everything else.

It is to be hoped that the business men in Manitoba will support for parliamentary honors men of experience in mercantile affairs, irrespective of what their party affiliations may be.

In all the provinces there is a demand for a larger representation of the business element in the Legislatures and it is to be hoped that the progressive province of Manitoba will set a good example by returning to the next House men of commercial experience and of sound integrity.

THE HALF-YEAR'S FAILURES.

THE summary of business failures in the United States and Canada for the six months ending June 30, which appeared in last Saturday's Bradstreet's, is particularly gratifying to Canadians, and is indicative of the general prosperity which Canada is now enjoying. During the past six months there have been 480 failures in Canada, as compared with 603 for the corresponding months of 1902. At the same time, the liabilities involved have fallen from $5,103,404 to $4,446,743, and the excess of liabilities over assets from $2,855,194 to $2,331,442. In the United States, although the number of failures during the last six months was 4,790, as compared with 5,262 for the first six months of 1902, the liabilities involved have risen from $56,927,688 to $60,251,563.

Canada can be congratulated upon the fact that, in spite of the unsatisfactory condition of the stock market, the mercantile world makes such a good showing.

TO MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS.

A manufacturing exporter, in England, asks to be placed in communication with a manufacturer's agent, in Canada, who is in a position to introduce and handle one or two lines that will sell well amongst confectioners, grocers and provision men. The editor of THE GROCER would be glad to hear from any agents in close touch with grocers who make a specialty of confectionery.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Lumsden Bros. in this issue of THE GROCER. The matter referred to is one that has interested the trade for some time.

PASSING OF A VETERAN TRAVELLER.

It is with deep regret that we are called upon to announce the death of Wm. B. Croy, who passed away Monday morning, after a very brief illness.

Mr. Croy was one of the best known grocery travellers in western Ontario. About 20 years ago he came to this country from Scotland, where he had gained an excellent knowledge of the grocery business. It was not long before he gave evidence of his ability, and was first engaged as traveller by the then firm of Brown, Balfour & Co., during which time he gained a reputation which has stood with him until the end.

He entered into partnership with Balfour & Co. in 1890, and in this connection undertook to establish business relations in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. Here, also, he had the satisfaction of establishing not only the highest reputation as a grocer, but a business connection which stands in the first rank in the Dominion.

W. B. CROY.

The commercial travellers expressed their confidence in Mr. Croy by electing him several times as the director of their association.

He had been anticipating a long and well earned holiday with his wife in Europe, but has been cut off in the prime of life and usefulness, and will be sadly missed, not only in Ontario, but throughout the broad territories in which he has been so favorably known.

The funeral, which was conducted with Masonic honors, took place Wednesday afternoon, from the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. George A. Matheson, and was attended by a large concourse of friends.

Buyers of table raisins may procure some from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

"THE MAKING OF MONEY."

"SALADA" Natural Leaf Ceylon Green is still making great strides in popular favor with those heretofore used to Japans.

The successful building of a business—the gaining of a good reputation, isn't "just luck"—don't believe it. It's the "Knowing How." There's only one safe, sure and lasting way, and that is to serve the public "well," not passably so, but "well."

So far as your Tea department is concerned, it is our business to put you on the right track, as by helping you we are also helping ourselves. This is not a philanthropic proposition, but a business one.

"SALADA" Ceylon Tea is the Best Tea and the Best Value in the wide world. That the public think so, too, is conclusively evidenced by a sale of Eleven Million packets annually.

"This is a certificate of character that is unquestionable."

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, July 9, 1903.

GROCERIES.

BUSINESS since our last issue has continued to give satisfaction, and up to the present time has shown itself in advance of previous years. Trade on the streets is not so satisfactory, jobbers not manifesting too great interest in stocking up. Orders for futures are, however, moving pretty freely. Canned goods continue to occupy a good deal of attention, and several lines are being well drawn upon. We are quoting this week prices for future delivery, which have been issued by The Canadian Canners' Consolidated Co., Limited, in marmalade, jams, jellies, berries, rhubarb, asparagus, spinach, peas, beans; also lunch tongues and Fraser River salmon. In coffee there is little to chronicle, trade has been fairly good, especially in green coffees, and prices rule firm. In sugar, the home market continues steady; trade has been very good and a quantity of sugar has changed hands since our last issue. There has been a modification in quotations as regards domestic; this week it will be noted that Maple Leaf No. 2 is now removed from the list, whilst Maple Leaf No. 1 is reduced to 4.03. Wallaceburg crystal granulated is also quoted at 4.03, as against previous quotation of 4.13.

Spices are moving but slowly, with prices still ruling firm; the primal markets continue firm and pepper is still maintaining a strong position. Rice and tapioca are fairly active with firm prices ruling. Syrups and molasses are featureless with no note of interest at the present season. The tea market maintains a strong position with little prospect of any weakening; the early sales on primal markets are ruling firm and showing advance in prices on previous seasons, whilst the European markets are commanding good quality teas at fully up prices. Foreign dried fruits are selling well for the present season and prices continue to rule firm.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been a steady and well sustained demand for canned goods since our last issue, and previous quotations remain firm. Stocks are well reduced and there are possibilities of prices firming toward rise. Prices for new pack salmon have come to hand and are in advance of last season's opening. The whole of the first pack in several leading lines of Sockeye salmon are already sold out. We give in a separate list below, prices to hand for futures in salmon, jams, jellies, marmalade, berries, rhubarb and spinach. We quote:

COFFEES.

The demand on the home market in coffee continues well maintained and prices remain as previous quotations. The New York market reports denote slowness throughout with offerings constituting little attraction, on account of the firm prices asked. We quote:

SUGAR.

The course of the market has been interfered with by the holidays in U.S. contingent upon Independence Day, markets there being closed on Friday and Saturday, 3rd and 4th. The market has opened quiet since the holidays, with sellers of raws at quotations, while refiners having ample stocks on hand, and to arrive for prospective requirements, are disposed to hold off and would only accept offerings at a slight concession from current quotations, which may be regarded nominal. Refiners' stocks in store are about 235,000 tons, as against 104,273 tons same time last year; while importers' stocks are, at present, about 84,000 tons, against 31,000 tons at same date last year. It is estimated by N.Y. authorities that Cuba has still to market 246,000 tons, or say over ¼ of the estimated crop for this campaign. Of this quantity, probably 100,000 tons are in the hands of a few wealthy planters, while the remainder is held by merchants and shippers. There is then, little likelihood of any further pressure to sell from these quarters, and it is likely that N.Y. holders will be able to tide over the present dulness and wait for such improvement in the situation as may develop. Sales of raws for the week under review were light, approximately only about 11,000 bags. The larger proportion was centrifugals on spot at 3 9-16, duty paid, landed terms. About 3,000 bags Muscovado sugar were placed on basis of 3c landed terms for 89 test, thus showing decline of ⅛ in this grade. This price is 1-16 below the usual differential in favor of 96 test. For the week ending June 30, receipts at U.S. four ports were 29,299 tons, with meltings unchanged at 36,000 tons. Total stock was 316,227 tons, a reduction of oaer 6,000 tons for the week. Cuban stocks, for same period, were reduced 4,500 tons, and were reported as 340,000 tons, against 407,000 tons same period last year. There are still four central factories grinding. European has fluctuated fractionally for the week and is now quoted at 7s 9d, thus establishing an advance of ¾c per cwt.,

and is reported firm for July delivery. This description is still 33c per 100 lb. above the parity of N.Y. duty paid basis, for 96 test centrifugals. Latest cable advices report that rain is wanted in growing sections.

In refined, N.Y. opened this month with a general decline of 5c per 100 lb. led by the Arbuckle refinery, and the demand is reported fairly active, though confined principally to withdrawals on existing contracts. Little new business is transpiring. Thus far, our local market has not responded to this movement, though there have been modifications in the domestic beet sugar list. All eastern refinery prices remain unchanged, but Wallaceburg "Crystals" and Berlin "Maple Leaf" granulated are reduced 10c to basis 4.03 Toronto, while Maple Leaf No. 2 granulated, is withdrawn from the list. RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The home trade continues fair but without any distinctive feature ; previous quotations still rule firm. The primal markets are making but limited offerings and what is marketed finds ready outlet. Tapioca is reported as holding an erratic market, without any indication of firmness. We quote :

TEAS.

The home market in tea is without distinctive feature, little inclination being shown to purchase beyond immediate requirements. The London market reports denote fair activity, with prices, for any attractive grades, ruling firm. There are few new season's Indian teas coming to hand, any with flavor or strength being well competed for. Calcutta advices, also, point to early sales realizing prices in advance of usual opening averages. In Ceylon teas, the best invoices ruled firm at full figures, while the less attractive weakened in favor of buyers. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The demand has continued satisfactory since our last issue. Advices from primal markets still point to the unsettled condition of the Greek currant market. It would appear that neither of the recent movements, in the Chamber, have actually received royal assent, and meanwhile, a great deal of excitement and uncertainty prevails amongst growers and merchants. It is generally believed, however, that a protective measure will shortly come into operation which will have the effect of fixing the minimum price f.o.b. at primal ports of 11s 6d.

Malaga vines are reported in good condition and outlook for crop is very promising. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.

The fruit market has shown considerable activity this week. Although strawberries and cherries are dropping out they are being replaced by raspberries and currants. Oranges are a little firmer than last week, and pines have increased in value. Raspberries have responded to the larger deliveries by dropping from 14 and 15c to 7 and 8c. Red and black currants have made their appearance on the market at 40 to 75c and $1 to $1.25, respectively. Tomatoes have eased off 50c. per crate. California apricots and plums have shown a disposition to ease off a little, but peaches maintain their value. Watermelons and cantelopes are unchanged. We quote :

VEGETABLES.

The first great break in the price of green vegetables occurred this week and values are from 15 to 50 per cent. lower on many lines than last week. Receipts are very large and the demand at the reduced prices is brisk. Cauliflower are offered at 75c to $1.25 per dozen and carrots at 15c per dozen. Canadian potatoes are displacing Americans and are quoted at $1 to $1.15 per bus. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 9, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THE grocery market has contributed a fair amount of business and the general tone is steady. Sugar is an instance of this, for, despite a rather slack demand and easiness in New York, and a decline in the Maritime Provinces, spot values are unaffected. The first arrivals of new crop molasses came to hand this week, but it is not discharged yet, owing to the congestion on the wharf. Prices on this staple are as firmly held as ever. The same can be said of tea. Some sales of new crop Japans have been made at 29c., that show excellent cup quality. In coffee, some brands of ground have been lowered from 1½ to 3c. per lb. Standard B. & C. C. rice are 15c higher all round this week. Canned Canadian sardines are higher also. In dried fruit, the general tenor of foreign advice continues bullish, and some speculative business has been put through, but the prices in question are no reliable criterion for basing an opinion of the market's future. The same can be said in regard to some offers that have been made on nuts for importation.

SUGAR.

The week has been a quiet one in refined sugar, and orders are confined to actual necessities, but prices here are steady, as the decline of 10c. in the basis of sale in the Maritime Province territory has not affected the local situation in any way, and trading from the refineries is on the basis of $4 to $4.05 for granulated and $3.40 to $3.80 for yellows. Raw sugar is in fair demand, but the situation is still weak. How much lower prices are going to go is difficult to predict at present, but according to advices from abroad the condition of the market is reported much worse than it really is, as invisible stocks everywhere have been reduced to an unprecedentedly low level, while visible stocks are heavier as compared with previous years, owing to the fact that it is necessary now that practically all stocks are held in public warehouses, which hitherto has not been the case, and the prospects, therefore, are that the market will right itself later on in the year, as the coming beet crop will be late. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

In molasses, the chief news of the week is the arrival of the first direct cargo of new crop Barbados, which is consigned to The Boston Molasses Co., of which Rose & Laflamme are the representatives here. It is too early yet to say how it will turn out, as the Laura C., the vessel in question, has only commenced to discharge her cargo. There has been some new import business also put through, a cargo of 700 puncheons having been taken for local account at 18c. per gallon, first cost, at the islands. So far, therefore,

TEAS.

Trade in this staple has been quiet during the past week, but prices are firmly held all round. Some sales of new crop Japans have been made to arrive at 24c., and show good cup quality. Round lots of old stock have also been turned over at 17¾ to 19c., as to grade. Ceylon and Indian greens have been asked for to a moderate extent, but no large transactions have transpired. Cable advices have been received stating that Canada had made fair purchases of new crop Ceylon green teas at an advance in prices. Recent cables from Japan reported the tea market firm and stated that the second crop will be much smaller than last year. Cable advices from Formosa report a firm market for low grades, 15c. being quoted the inside figure for the lowest Government standard. We quote :

COFFEE.

There has been some alteration in certain brands of ground Mocha and Maracaibo, as Chase & Sanborn have issued a new list that is equivalent to a decline of 1½ to 3c. per lb. on some of their output. CANNED GOODS.

There has been an advance in Canadian sardines of 25c. per case, or ¼c. per tin. The price for this season's pack of salmon has been named and they show an advance of 15 to 25c. per case over the opening figures a year ago. This fact has not been the means of checking the demand for future delivery any, as it has been larger than a year ago up to the same date. The sales reported of the leading brands aggregate 30,000 cases on both local and western account, and the prices paid are as follows : Fraser River brands, $4.65 ; Skeena River brands, $4.50 ; Rivers Inlet and Lowe brands, $4.25, and spring salmon, $4 per case, f.o.b. coast. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The spot business in dried fruits has been dull this week so far as trading from stock is concerned, and no import contracts of any kind came under notice. Advices on Sultanas state that there were some rumors to the effect that fruit was dropping from the vines, and that peronosporos had again made its appearance, but the available crop promises to be a large one, and the reports prove to be almost groundless. There is no doubt we shall have low prices if weather conditions continue as at present. In figs, the Smyrna crop is progressing favorably, and orders for import are taken subject to confirmation, though 31s 6d c.i.f., Montreal, has been named for September shipment. In currants, late advices assert that the supplies in Greece are being constantly reduced by buying from practically all consuming markets, which, if it continues, will clear up all the old crop before the new fruit is ready for shipment. A recent cable from Patras quoted fine Amalia currants for prompt shipment at 12s. 6d. in barrels and 13s. in cases. We quote :

NUTS.

In nuts, the situation for shelled Bordeaux walnuts is extremely firm, and stocks of 1902 halves are all but exhausted. What remains in Bordeaux is firmly held at 220 fcs.; with 210 fcs. quoted for the 1901 crop. Prospects are good for the coming season, but it is too early to conclude that the crop will be large ; previous years have proven months of August-October as dangerous as any of the season. A speculative price is out for new crop Grenoble walnuts, viz., 74 frcs. per 100 kilos, f.o.b. Havre or Antwerp, which is figured to be equivalent to 9⅞c., re weight gross for net. According to recent advices, a small crop of filberts is confirmed, and new crop have been sold at 45s. 3d. per bale of 100 kilos, c. & f. New York for October shipment. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.

The week has been a satisfactory one in green fruit. Canadian strawberries are now out of season with no more offering. The first arrivals of new raspberries came to hand this week and sold at 10 to 12c., but these first sales are hardly a fair criterion, as much lower prices are expected shortly. We quote :

MARKET NOTES.

Mr. Mann, representative of The Salada Tea Co., reports very large sales this week of Ceylon green teas.

Rose & Laflamme advise arrival of cargo of Barbados molasses in puncheons, hogsheads and tierces, ex. steamer "Laura C." acct. Boston Molasses Co. This is the first direct shipment this season. Market is firm and higher prices are looked for in the near future.

Rose & Laflamme also report Indian and Ceylon teas coming into the market more freely, attributable, no doubt, to the high prices of Japans.

Lockerby Bros'. sales for "Cherry Blossom" package teas are showing very satisfactory increase.

Forbes Bros. say the new 20th Century patent broom is meeting with good reception, their sales being unusually good in this article, and it appears it has made a good impression on the trade.

Jobbers here have sent in their orders for new Valencia raisins and it is expected that earlier arrivals than usual may result.

Wheatine is establishing for itself a very enviable reputation, jobbers reporting it as a splendid breakfast food seller.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. A. Vance, representing I. D. Bradshaw, gums, etc., Toronto, is looking after the jobbing trade this week.

Mr. D. W. Douglas, eastern representative of E. W. Gillett & Co., Limited, Toronto, is in town for a few days among the jobbing trade. Mr. Douglas reports the various lines of this firm increasing in sales. He is on his way down to the Gaspe coast and expects to consume five or six weeks on the trip.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"
St. John, N.B., July 7, 1903.

THERE is a difference of opinion in regard to business. Some are finding it rather quiet and also say they find collections somewhat slow. The first general half-holiday was observed last week; excepting retail grocers, druggists and liquor men, practically all business was suspended. This is a growing movement. Most of the stores kept open on Friday evening. In the markets there is little change. Cream of tartar is hardly as firm but is still high. Rice gains in strength. There was a very large arrival of foreign granulated sugar this week, the largest for some months. The tourist travel is becoming large; cool weather is being experienced.

OIL.—In burning oil prices are quoted rather lower. There is now but a very slight difference between American and Canadian. Dealers are beginning to look toward fall contracts. In lubricating oil a fairly steady and full demand is reported. Linseeds hold quite firm, demand is chiefly consumptive. Turpentine is quoted lower. Little cod oil has yet been received. Seal oil will be high. We quote :

SALT.—There was quite a large cargo of Liverpool coarse salt, also some fine, received this week. It caused rather lower prices, particularly while landing. There is quite a full stock held. In Canadian fine, it is almost impossible to get supplies. Market is bare of cheese salt. English fine, boxed here, is having quite a large sale. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.—The representative of the association has been appointed, but no prices are yet named. The trade are getting impatient. They cannot understand the delay. They also feel they should know something in regard to the methods of the association. In spot goods corn is firm; peas are scarce and rather higher, but new goods quite close at hand. Tomatoes remain unchanged. Fruits are in good supply. Salmon is rather dull. Meats sell freely at even prices. We quote:

GREEN FRUIT.—Dealers are very busy. Bananas are very plentiful, good stock retailing two dozen for a quarter. Oranges find a fair sale with a few Valencias offered. Prices are firm. Lemons are held at quite full figures. Pines have sold freely this season. In melons, while there is improved sale, the market is small. Tomatoes and cucumbers are easier. Rhubarb is in less demand. Strawberries now hold the market. Native berries supply the trade. In California fruits, apricots are good, but plums and peaches but fair. Some fine cherries have been received. We quote:

DRIED FRUIT.—The spot market is dull. Dealers are well supplied. Seeded have not sold as freely as was expected. New currants are quoted. Some orders for first shipment Valencias have been given. While new apricots and peaches are quoted, there is no sale. Dates are quoted for later shipment, prices about as last season. In peels, prices for new goods are rather lower. Carrots show a slight advance. We quote:

FISH.—In alewives, dealers are quite happy. Prices, which last season showed quite a loss, have advanced to a good average figure. Some old goods held over have been sold, and most of the new pack. This was not large, about eight thousand barrels. Fresh salmon are still a large feature; prices are well maintained as the catch is rather light. There is light sale for dry fish. New pickled herring are received at rather lower prices. We quote:

NOTES.

Grandy & Allison received last week five thousand bags Liverpool coarse salt and five hundred factory-filled.

E. T. Sturdee has been appointed the New Brunswick representative of The Canned Goods Association, and Erb & Rankine representatives for Nova Scotia.

L. G. Crosby received a cargo of Porto Rico this week. Mr. Crosby represents The Porto Rico Commercial Co.

Bowman & Cole have just received a large shipment of foreign granulated sugar.

Ubero coffee is the latest addition to the regular stock carried by Baird & Peters.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"
Minnipeg, Man., July 7, 1903.

THE week has brought the rains that were beginning to be needed, and copious warm showers have been very general throughout the province. The crop conditions continue to be A1. The only suggestion of shortage is in the hay crop of certain sections and that can be overcome and has been by the sowing of late barley to be cut green. The wheat market has been very materially affected by the rains, and from being strongly bull, has become bearish in tone for the last few days. The 1902 crop in Manitoba and the West generally, is pretty well cleared up, and the offerings for the past 10 days have been very light.

Feeling is running very high over the action of the Provincial Government selecting July 20, the first day of the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition, for election day. A more disastrous choice, as far as the exhibition is concerned, could hardly have been made, and it means that the stock and horse section will be practically a failure. The election is exciting great interest and will be a sharply contested fight. For this reason farmers will not leave home on Saturday with their stock, as has been the custom heretofore; they cannot come in on Monday, election day, and Tuesday would be too late. So the chances are strongly in favor of their not coming at all. The general attendance will be lessened and Winnipeg merchants are feeling very sore over the matter, as Fair week has always been looked upon as a good and legitimate opportunity for clearing up Summer stocks.

The jobbing trade is looking forward with considerable interest to quotations and general arrangements for trade being made by The Canadian Consolidated Canners' Association. Agents have been appointed here in the persons of Jos. Huxley, broker, and Jas. Duncan, broker. It is expected that prices and terms will be received early in the coming week.

After considerable talk on the matter, the price of Morrisburg sugar has been put down 10c per cwt. lower than the cane sugar brands, extra standard granulated being quoted at $4.70 and the Morrisburg sugar at $4.60.

The California evaporated fruit situation is full of interest to the West at present, as prices promise to be very high. New apricots will open here at 12c to 12½c, which is practically 2c higher than last year. This is an important factor, for when prices are at all reasonable, enormous quantities of this fruit are consumed in the West. Present indications are that evaporated apples will also be dear and somewhat scarce. At present old stocks of evaporated apples are very firm at 6½ to 6¾c with a good steady demand.

Green fruit shows no material changes. Strawberries are over. The only fruit giving unqualified satisfaction was the Hood River berries. Shipments by express from British Columbia were a failure. The fruit having been too ripe when packed, it had to be sold to a local house for jam-making. Much is said of the large crop of fine berries in Ontario, but so far the few shipments arriving here are irregular in size, small, badly packed, and generally as unsatisfactory as fruit from Ontario always is. Western fruit jobbers begin to despair of ever getting decently packed fruit from Ontario.

Owing to the high price of corn, cornmeal has advanced on this market 15 to 20c per sack and is now quoted at $1.80.

Flour is in good demand, both for domestic trade and export, at $2.15 for No. 1 patent. The advance of last week seems to hold in spite of the fact that wheat has fallen off in price from the point that warranted the advance in flour.

The dairy produce situation presents no new features for the week, though matters are slowly, but surely, shaping themselves towards the factories selling at prices that will warrant shipment to Montreal.

Eggs are still high and firm, and no change of situation is now likely until after exhibition.

Among visitors from the south this week was Mr. Measam, of Libby, McNeil & Libby. Mr. Measam is not offering any new line, nor does he foreshadow any marked change in prices, or conditions, of the canned meat trade.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 3.

THE action of the Vancouver Board of Trade, in moving to obtain the very much needed amendments to the Bills of Sale Act, has been strongly seconded by the Victoria Board of Trade. At its last meeting that body introduced resolutions that the Government should be requested to make such changes in the existing law as would remove the objectionable over-holding of unregistered chattel mortgages. It was further resolved, that any mortgage on current stock of a retail merchant should not be subject to the provisions of the Bills of Sale Act, in such a way as to act to the detriment or exclusion of any creditor, who should have rights because of such being stock. In brief, that is the whole situation. There is an evident desire on the part of the wholesalers to remove any preference in securing open accounts. Of course, while present conditions exist, there is no blame attached to any one who gets in first. As it stands, it is first come, first served, and take the hindmost, as the hindmost have many times learned to their cost.

Wholesale merchants have had the full benefit of another object lesson on the faults of the Bills of Sale Act, in the experience they have had with The Otto Grocery Co., mention of whose troubles was made in last letter. This company, consisted solely of Otto, a young man who came here, ostensibly from Montreal, and who received a fair report, (guarded in the extreme, as is usual with the mercantile reports,) which credited him with a capital of $5,000. "We are informed," the reports read.

Otto was closed out, and got out of town last week. He gave two chattel mortgages, one of which was paid in full, and there was almoct enough stock left to pay the second. But there was nothing for a single one of the unsecured creditors. And there were plenty of them. Every man in the wholesale trade in the city was caught by Mr. Otto's game. In addition, there were a number of people, tradesmen, who had fitted up the premises for the "company," and supplied materials, who were all more or less let in.

Otto appears to have had great ideas. He set out to do a commission business, by getting out circulars to shippers of produce in the eastern portions of Canada, and also to local British Columbia merchants, in rural districts. He stated that, as Peter Otto & Co., he proposed to do business as brokers and wholesale commission merchants, and solicited consignments of produce, poultry, hides, furs, pelts, wool, fruit, etc. He smoothed the mercantile agencies with the finesse of a past master. He simply entered into a contract with each of them to become a subscriber, agreeing to pay the $75, annual fees to each on July 1. His circulars evidently produced some results, for he had orders filled in several U.S. coast cities, all the way from Seattle to San Francisco. Evidently, he expected the produce he would get from the Northwest and Manitoba, on consignment, to serve as security for his chattel mortgages, as he contracted to keep his stock up to a certain standard. But well-laid schemes have gone astray many times before, and the case of Otto is no exception, though he gained a good deal of credit before he gave the chattel mortgages.

The general condition of the grocery and provision trade is excellent. Most of the wholesale dealers simply tell one that they have so much to do they cannot keep track of changes, if any are being made, in prices and stocks. The local demand in all lines is active, in the extreme, the week being especially so on account of the two or three days' holidays. Vancouver always takes the lead, in this province, in a Dominion Day celebration, and, as a result, a large number of visitors spend the week in the city.

There was some disturbance of conditions in the local sugar market last week, but it has all been fixed up, though prices have not yet advanced to normal. The British Columbia Sugar Refinery, which controls the situation on this coast, put the price of sugar down to 4c, but it went up again next day, and is now, possibly, fairly to be quoted at 4½ to 4⅝c. There are two factors in the trade which have always been working smoothly under a practically permanent arrangement since the establishment of the refinery here. The firm of Rithet & Co., Victoria, has been an importer of sugar to some extent and the refinery has recognized this factor, within certain limits, which they claimed had been transgressed. That caused the trouble, which has now been arranged. The demand for sugar is particularly heavy, and with the fruit season, is likely to continue so. The interest in prices, was, of course, much increased owing to this anticipation. There is one other small factor in the sugar market, but owing to transportation handicap, it is not able to extend operations much beyond the local field. This is a stock of Australian sugar, which has been handled by The J. Y. Griffin & Co., Ltd. It sells slightly lower than the refinery price.

Prices of American lard has gone down to a point where it can be handled for northern trade to advantage. There is special demand for the output of American lard manufacturers, in the Yukon, for the simple reason that the package is put up aith a double-capped cover. An inside soldered-cover makes a hermetically sealed package, a big advantage in the rough northern transportation. The Canadian brands of lard have not yet been put up in this way, and price is the only factor which will hold the market against the United States product on that account. The northern people will pay a cent or two more for the United States make because of that sealed cover.

Cured meats are not extremely active yet, the continued cool weather which has marked most of the summer, having kept up the demand for fresh. Prices are fairly steady with firm tendency. The stocks are, this season, altogether Canadian, in contrast with past seasons. The reason, of course, is that prices on the other side have excluded the imported article as against present prices for Canadian goods.

In canned goods there are some importations of California tinned peas, from San Francisco. The Canadian article is out of the market entirely. The price is quotable at about $1.35, and the supply is so far sufficient for the demand.

The wholesale trade is still waiting for future quotations from The Canners' Association. There have been some quotations from one or two packers outside of the association.

Japan rice, of which large importations arrived on the last two steamers from the Orient, has advanced $2 per ton, the quotation in this market now being $1.05 per ton.

In produce, the markets at present stand well supplied. Cheese is in good stock, with some large consignments, one dealer having a straight car of choice eastern, June cheese and other lots of eastern and Manitoba have arrived. Butter is largely local in supply now, and this, of course, all strictly fresh. The importations are from Manitoba and the Northwest, but the prices are fully met by figures at which the local is quoted. Eggs are in better supply as to case stock, which is chiefly from Ontario. The local fresh article is scarcer and higher. Exportations of eggs to Dawson continue heavy by every boat northbound. The steamer Amur had several hundred cases out this week.

Prices may be quoted: Local creamery butter, 22c. Manitoba creamery, 20 to 22c. Local dairy 20c. Manitoba and N.W.T. dairy, 18c. Cheese, eastern, 11 to 14½c, Manitoba, 13 to 13½c, eggs, 20c, which latter quotation is about cost to lay down from Ontario.

Local strawberries, in big supply, fill the market completely now, and there are a few cherries beginning to show, mostly grown up-country. Prices are: strawberries, $1.25 per crate, Burbank plums, $1.75, Tragedy prunes, $1.75, tomatoes, $2.40, apples, $2.40, peaches, $1.25 to $1.50.

To the Grocery Trade of Canada

GENTLEMEN:—

Perhaps you are becoming weary of the controversy over the word "Cream" between the Gillett Company and ourselves. We ask your kind indulgence once more and promise that as far as we are concerned we do not intend to refer to this case again until finally settled in the courts. In 1901 we determined to enter into the manufacture of Yeast, not considering that the plaintiffs had any Divine right to that trade in Canada; so we advertised for a yeast maker. The Hamilton Yeast Co. offered us their business, which we purchased; their brand was "Victoria Yeast," but we had decided to bring out a brand of our own — so we adopted our trade mark used in other lines "Jersey Cream." After placing "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes on the market we were advised that the plaintiffs had a trade mark for "Gillett's Cream Yeast," a fact of which we were not aware, and had we been we would still have used our own trade mark "Jersey Cream," as to this day we have never had one order for our Baking Powder as "Cream" Baking Powder, but always as "Jersey Cream" Baking Powder. We have never received an order for Yeast Cakes without it being ordered as "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes or "Jersey" Yeast Cakes. When we were advised that they had a Yeast with the word "Cream" in it, we asked the oldest Grocers, both wholesale and retail, if they had it, and in every case they said there was no such article in the market; and not to this day, although we have inquired for the same from Vancouver to Prince Edward Island, have we found one man who ever saw, let alone sold, "Cream" Yeast in a round package. A few of the old merchants remember a Gillett "Cream" Yeast made by Gillett, McCullough & Co., of Chicago, Illinois, U.S., about 25 years ago, but it was put up in crumb shape and had a very short career. At time of receiving notice we had a Mr. Jones with us who had been employed for over eight years by Gillett's, selling and advertising their goods in Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, who, when told of "Cream" Yeast, said: It is a lie, they have no such goods. I ought to know. Next morning Mr Jones came to our office and said he might be mistaken, as he remembered seeing "Cream" Yeast on a merchant's shelf in a country store. We instructed him to take a train and purchase two packages, which he did, the merchant informing him that he had been in his present business sixteen years. Gillett's "Cream" Yeast was on his shelves when he purchased the business, and the two packages sold Mr. Jones were the first he had ever sold. If we had called it "Lumsden's Cream Yeast" we might have hesitated in defending a suit. You will notice the unfairness in the plaintiff's cards and advertising, which they ought to be ashamed of. They always refer to our Yeast as "Lumsden's Cream Yeast," when no one knows better than themselves that our Yeast is known as "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes. Even if they had "Gillett's Cream Yeast" on the market we would not have considered it any infringemant to have placed "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes on the market. In their advertisement of 19 June they say compare directions. Well, do so if you can find a package of their goods to compare with. Gentlemen, if there was any copying, our directions were copied. Mr. Buckleè, who wrote the directions for Mr. W. G. Lumsden, who instructed him to do so, never saw nor heard of "Gillett's Cream Yeast" in round cake form until he received their notice that they had such a brand. Again, directions, if correct, must always be somewhat similar. Take a package of "Royal Yeast," it says "Can be used the same as any other yeast cakes." Compare directions for baking powder, the different packages of teas; to be correct directions must be about the same. In their advertisement of 26 June they say "We do not object to fair competition, but will not submit to imitation." Considering the judgments given in our favor, we consider this direct contempt of court. Chancellor Boyd says: "There is no copying of any part of plaintiff's labels as to directions by the defendants, as Judge Street erroneously appears to have thought. Assume that the plaintiff has a trade mark or label in which the words 'Cream Yeast' are used, yet there is no invasion of them on the defendant's part—there is no colourable imitation of the whole part which is the trade mark. 'Cream' is used by the plaintiff merely as a descriptive word to suggest the frothy appearance of the yeast as it works (yeast froths like cream); and, as a word in common use to indicate a creamy frothy look, it is not to be monopolized by the plaintiff. The word 'Jersey' completely distinguishes it from the plaintiff's, as does also the form and character of the label. There is no evidence going to show that the use of the words by the plaintiff has been so long and extensive as to make the descriptive term in any case distinctive. Besides 'Jersey Cream' is actually used in the defendant's preparation, and a man may state that fact on his label without being exposed to injunction. Then there is no obvious imitation by the defendant of the plaintiff's label or of the word he uses on it." Judged by ocular inspection and according to the latest decision "the eyesight of the judge is the ultimate test." Judge Ferguson says: "The plaintiff does not claim that there is any similarity in the packages used by him and the defendant respectively, and I cannot see how the use of the words used by the defendant as they are used can have the effect contended for by the plaintiff. For these reasons I am of the opinion that, even conceding that the registration of the plaintiff's mark is in every respect good, it has not been shown that there is any infringement of it by the defendant, and I think it appears plainly that the defendant has not infringed it." Andrew Craig, foreman for Gillett & Co., in his evidence on cross examination, states as follows:

Question--Between 1894 and 1901 can you remember any orders for "Cream Yeast"?

Answer—No.

His Lordship—Did you ship any of the "Cream Yeast" between 1894 and 1901 ?

Answer—I do not remember.

Mr. W. G. Lumsden interviewed Mr. John Sloan, wholesale grocer, who stated he had no reference in his evidence to having sold "Cream Yeast" in the cake form before 1901. It was the old crumb form of "Cream Yeast" shipped from Chicago, and that our solicitor should have brought this fact out. Did not think he ever sold or saw "Cream Yeast" in round cake form before "Jersey Cream Yeast" came out.

You have been threatened with legal proceedings for damages by post card, etc.?

Damages—to collect same, infringement must be proven. If you never saw, heard of or sold "Gillett's Cream Yeast," would it not be very difficult to prove damages, as the only way to collect them would be to prove that "Jersey Cream Yeast Cakes" were sold in place of "Cream Yeast"? The plaintiff's solicitor told Mr. Lumsden, when he was on a fishing expedition for evidence to Hamilton, that there could be no damages collected, and he had advised his clients to this effect. Mr. Justice Street, who gave judgment in plaintiff's favor in the first trial, distinctly states: "I am of the opinion that the words 'Cream Yeast' are not the proper subject of a trade mark, being common words of description."

The law says clearly: that the goods must be put up to deceive, to make the purchaser believe he is buying the goods of the owner of the trade mark to be an infringement. Gentlemen, we leave it in your hands to judge between us and the E. W. Gillett Co. who has right on their side.

We have the honor to be,

Yours faithfully,

LUMSDEN BROS.

ST. JOHN HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

THE people of St. John, N.B., have a lively faith in the future of Canada, and, what is more, the courage to back their faith by investments which will bear fruit when that future begins to be realized. Already St. John has spent over three-quarters of a million dollars on its harbor, with little or no help from the Dominion. Their enterprise is to be commended; and now they come forward with a scheme to increase their harbor accommodation.

The accompanying cut from The St. John Telegraph will indicate the lines on which it is proposd to operate.

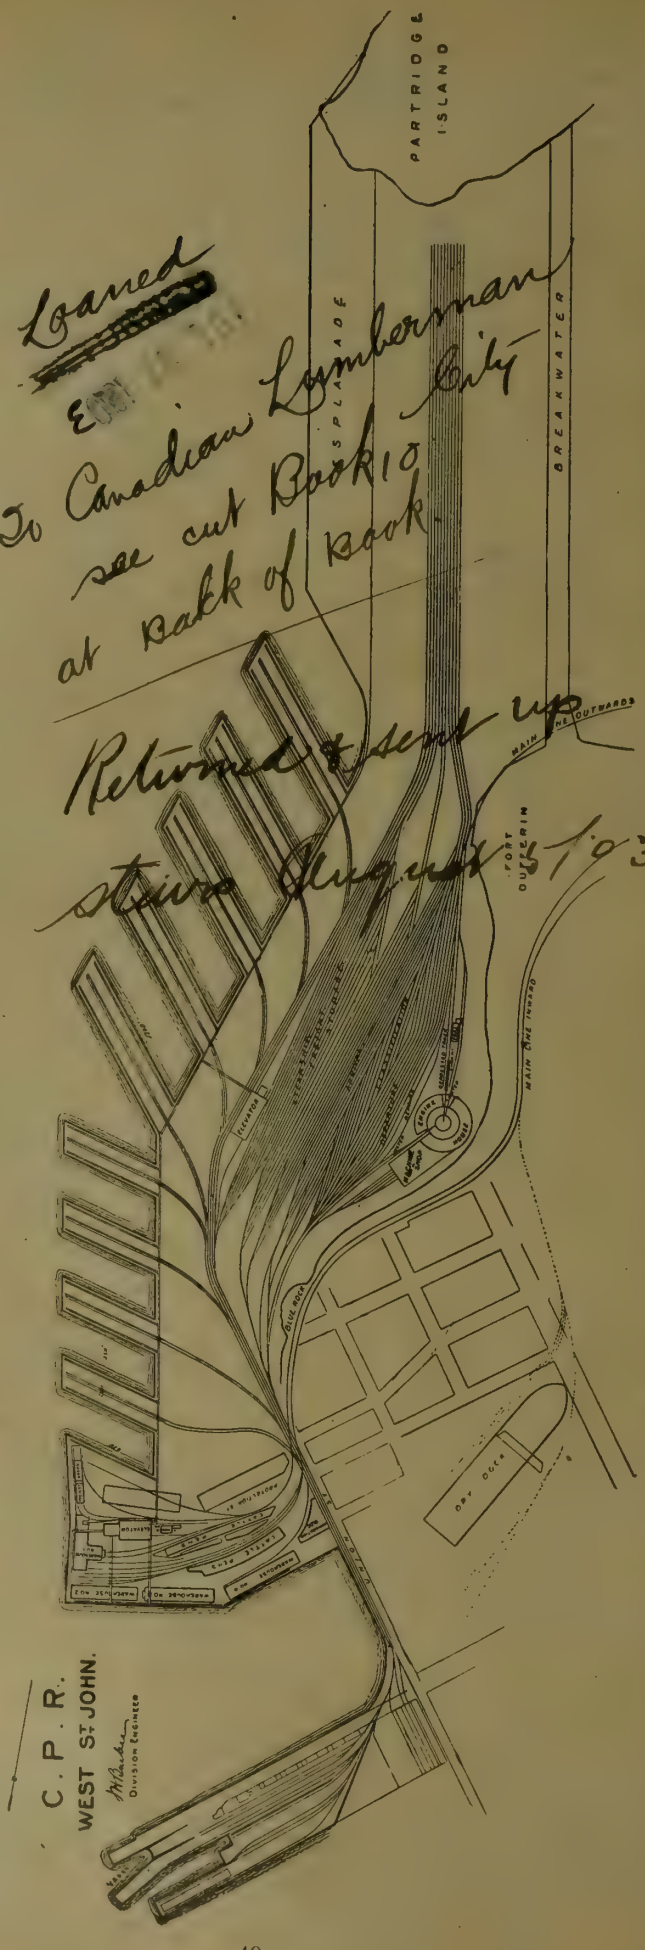
The plan, which was first conceived by Superintendent James Oborne, of the C.P.R., and submitted by him to the Board of Trade and City Council, is most comprehensive by providing berths for thirty more steamers. It is to be hoped that the Dominion Government, from whom, as has previously been noted, they are asking assistance, will give the matter a generous consideration.

The new work would start, according to Mr. Oborne's views, at the present C.P.R. wharf on the harbor front, Sand Point, and run down the harbor to the Beacon light, giving the first five slips shown 11 additional steamer berths. These slips, as shown by the plan, would be 670 feet long by 250 wide.

Then from the Beacon towards Fort Dufferin would be a line of five more piers, double ones, giving accommodation for 18 or 20 more steamers. These slips would be 1,200 feet long by 300 wide. The curved lines represent railway tracks which would serve each berth and in the immense yard which they would traverse would be room for more than 50 miles of tracks.

Extending from Fort Dufferin to Partridge Island along the line of the present breakwater, would be an esplanade, perhaps 1,000 feet wide, with roadway and street car lines. The lines marked "proposed boulevard" and "breakwater" show only the beginning of the proposed esplanade; it would extend to the island, act as a breakwater and also, on the shore side, give room for more steamer berths.

Mr. Oborne's idea is that the piers running to the Beacon should be built at once, and the other work would be for the future.



FRENCH COFFEE.

"AT a seaside place," writes a practical friend in The London Grocer, "I noticed a sample of coffee berries prominently displayed in a grocer's window, and ticketed, 'French coffee, 2s. 2d. per lb.' The berries were roasted as black as the blackest coal. I wondered if there was some great advantage in burning coffee to charcoal. To me it seemed wicked waste, and a friend of mine, who does a magnificent coffee trade, is of the same opinion. But not long ago I saw in a smart shop in the very heart of London a sample of coffee berries roasted black, and ticketed just as I had seen at the seaside. Perhaps someone will explain if there is some advantage in this process of coffee-roasting. I, for one, would like to know. It was not recognized in the competition at the Grocers' Exhibition, nor was I served with that kind of coffee on my trip to France."

An answer to the above is: "If the writer will purchase a small quantity of these coffee beans and grind them he will find it the correct shade that coffee should be. It is difficult to understand why the French should prefer this blackened outside skin instead of the rich old golden hue of the properly roasted berry. But it is uniformly the case with the coffee roasters in Paris. We understand it is done by adding sugar to the coffee while roasting, and whether it is merely to add weight or help flavor we cannot say. We presume it can only be the former."

LOBSTERS.

IN a recent issue of Forest and Stream a writer in referring to Dr. Field's lecture says: The annual expenditure for the crustacean, he declared, to be about $10,000,000. While it is distributed to some extent from the Straits of Belle Isle on the north to the Capes of Delaware, on the south, the greatest number are caught in the waters of Nova Scotia and Maine, and the chief markets are the cities of Boston and New York. The high price at which they are sold, being in reality about 90c. a lb. for the food, and the diminished size of those offered, are conclusive proofs of a decrease in the supply. Reference was made to the statistics in Capt. Collins' reports—the average catch, as there shown, per pot in 1901 in Massachusetts being 84, and in 1902 but 33.

The female carries the eggs from nine to eleven months, according to the temperature of the water, their development being retarded by a cold temperature. The hatching season he affirms to be the months of May, June and July. The infant mortality is enormous, the young, on coming to the surface of the water, being devoured by fishes, so that only a few survive out of a maximum brood of 100,000 eggs. He claimed that "if from every 10,000 eggs two lobsters survived and could be raised to maturity, the total number of lobsters would reamin the same if none were caught." It is well known that the lobster is of slow growth, requiring five years or more to reach maturity.

Two years elapse between the different broods. The chief obstacle to artificial propagation has been the difficulty of finding suitable food, this being, as yet, an unsolved problem. While it is generally known that the efforts of the United States Fish Commission have been continued for several years in an endeavor to propagate lobsters for restocking at Woods Holl, Mass., the attempt has not as yet been as successful as its promoters have desired.

TOBLER'S COCOA.

Since its introduction in 1845, Tobler's has held a position as one of the foremost cocoas in the world. This celebrated cocoa is made in Berne, Switzerland, a famous centre for the manufacture of the products of the cocoa bean. Tobler's goods in their different forms of confectionery, drinking cocoas and chocolates, are all of the highest class and bear a splendid reputation. The Canadian agency of this firm has been placed with Browne & Wells, Toronto.

THE GROCER is glad to learn that Mr. Isaac Blumenstiel, of Hamilton, has entirely recovered from his recent illness.

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

THERE is an unfortunate and fallacious impression prevailing among grocers that in their business the very nature of the goods precludes the possibility of maintaining a tidy, well-arranged store. The principal difficulty in dispelling this idea is that so many accept it as a proven fact without endeavoring by their own personal efforts to establish a different impression, or at least verifying the one that exists.

If the writer were to assert confidently that a grocery store can, with a little care, be kept as "sweet and clean" as a bookstore, his statement would be accepted as having been given without personal experience, or as a supreme effort only to improve the general appearance that prevails among grocery stores.

This statement, however, can be proved by a visit to some places of business, and certain rules can be laid down that, if followed, will effect a great improvement in the present system of the arrangement of goods. In asserting the possibility of neatness, the writer willingly acknowledges his desire to improve the general appearance of grocery stores, but he also maintains that it is not a Utopian dream, but an actual condition that exists among a few of the better class stores.

That almost perfect neatness in a grocery store is merely a matter of personal ability or inclination, the interior presented this week will prove. As will be seen, no better appearance or more careful arrangement could be obtained in any business, and a study of the schemes adopted will show that little practical difficulty would present itself to any grocer who really desires a tasty interior. The bins that are used for coffee, spices, raisins, currants, etc,, are an absolute necessity, and the placing of these in this interior was carefully planned. The coffee bins under the counter are neat and, in addition to occupying a space usually left empty, the expense of a front to the counter is saved.

In the rear on the shelves more bins are placed, and bottles, arranged in sizes and classification, fill up four shelves. Above this, and separated by a noticeable division, are stacked, in neat designs, the canned goods. Bottles are used on the lower shelves on account of the fine appearance they present, while the most is made of the canned goods which are not so open to tasty arrangement.

The divisions in the shelving, the fancy shape of the top half and the ornamental top, supply a relief for the monotony of the straight rows of shelving usually seen. The metallic ceiling, too, is an important part of the general scheme.

Perhaps the most notable deviation from the methods usually adopted in grocery stores is the absence of any goods on the counters. Nothing but scales have a place on the counter of the neatest stores, and where this is, as in some cases, an impossibility, fixtures of some kind should invariably be used to mark definite boundaries to what is open for counter use, and what for display purposes. This point is one very seldom seriously considered when the best effects are aimed at, and yet its place in the category of improvements is at the very top of the list.

This interior of a Rockford, Ill., store, and published in The Inland Grocer, illustrates a dozen devices that help to obtain for the grocer the effects he should have, and prove the fallacy of the accepted idea that grocery stores are incapable of presenting really neat and tasty interiors.

VEGETABLES.

Green stuff, such as radishes, lettuce, cucumbers and celery should never be placed upon the floor or on low benches where dust and refuse abound. A clever grocer has hit upon this plan: around a centre pillar is built a square table, covered with white paper and protected from loafers by a neat railing set out 4 or 5 in. from the edge. All green stuff is arranged upon this table, each kind to itself. A few of the finest Holland cabbage, some purple cabbage for color, and several dozen smooth white parsnips and turnips suggest possibilities to the cook. Fresh stock is added if necessary, but usually the whole supply for the day's trade may be put upon the table. Another table should be added to hold what of fresh fruit is in the market; white grapes, oranges, and lemons—samples from the boxes—bananas, grape fruit, cherries, and whatever choice bit may come in. The greatest care must be taken to have the table cleaned and refurnished each morning. Stock may be kept in good condition.

TELEPHONE JUDGMENT.

The injunction case of the Town of Fort William against The Bell Telephone Company was held recently before Mr. Justice Teetzel at Port Arthur. This case was entered last February by the town. The court ordered that the case be dismissed; the plaintiffs shall not until judgment has been pronounced by the final appellate court, to which the action of the corporation of the City of Toronto against The Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Limited, now pending, may be carried; or such action shall otherwise be disposed of, bring action or take any proceedings to interfere with the erection of poles or the stringing of wires by the defendants in the said town, or the erection or use of any other appliances permitted by their charter and necessary or convenient for carrying on the business of defendants in the said town. The court ordered that the plaintiffs pay the defendants one dollar damages for loss sustained by reason of the injunction orders granted; and also pay to the defendants their costs of this action, including the costs of Feb. 17, 1903, and Feb. 19, 1903, and of the motion and order permitting the defendants to deliver their statement of defence, June 19, 1903, as between solicitor and client forthwith after taxation.

TO HANDLE CANADIAN PRODUCE.

Mr. W. Nursey, London, England, a director of the Canadian Produce Corporation, speaking to a representative of The Toronto Telegram at the King Edward Hotel last week, said that the company with which he was associated had just completed all the arrangements necessary for commencing its business in England.

"We will only handle Canadian produce," he continued. "Anything raised or manufactured in Canada will be dealt with by us. We purpose, by means of the shops we intend to establish in the large centres of population in England, to bring the Canadian producer into touch with the English consumer. Our capital is now paid up. Altogether it is $2,750,000, of which $500,000 comes from Canada."

Mr. Nursey leaves Toronto shortly for England.

MR. JOHN VANSTONE, proprietor of the big roller mills at Bowmanville, and of the flour mills at Tyrone, died in Bowmanville on June 28. He was president of the Millers' Association of the Toronto Board of Trade, and resigned that position since his illness. He was prominent in municipal, schools, church, and society organizations.

Dunnville's canning factory is now in full blast and employs 120 hands.

Thomas N. Dunn, the well-known president of The Strathroy Canning Co. is seriously ill.

John Boughner is opening a grocery and boot and shoe store in the Opera House Block, Delhi, Ont.

Stratford is to have a whalesale grocery. A. H. King of that city and Geo. Ballintyne, lately traveller for Perkins, Ince & Co., Toronto, are promoting a company known as The Stratford Wholesale Grocery Co., capitalized at $100,000. It is expected that the new business will be opened by August 1.

Henry Moore, grocer, Brantford, Ont., has taken his son, Percy, into partnership with him and the firm name will be in future, Henry Moore & Son.

John Fisher, the Toronto representative of Stretton & Co., manufacturers of table delicacies, Worcestershire, Eng., is sending out to the retail trade a neat little price list and private post-card combined. In this list are given three of the principal lines of Worcestershire manufactured by the firm, and on the private post-card part of the list is a form to be filled out and returned to Mr. Fisher, ordering through either the retailers' wholesale house, or the particular traveller to whose credit he desires the sale to go. The idea is a good one and Mr. Fisher is to be congratulated on its arrangement. Stretton's Worcestershire sauce received the only medal awarded at the Food Exhibition in London, England, 1893.

J. A. Stewart, general merchant of Exeter, Ont., was in Toronto this week and called on "The Grocer." Mr. Stewart reports business exceptionally good.

Malcolm Dunlop, of Arkona, and Samuel Johnston, of Goderich, have purchased one-half of the stock of The King Milling Co., of Sarnia, and will take up their residence there. There will be no change in the management of the company, David Rennie continuing as manager and Mr. Hawken as head miller. Ralph King, president of the compan retains his interest also.

The greatest strawberry season in the history of Hamilton and vicinity is the one just drawing to a close. Both the Dominion and Canadian Express Companies have shipped thousands of tons of strawberries to eastern cities, and they are still busy at it. Last week the Canadian Express Co. alone shipped 1,000 tons of berries.

P. L. Baldwin, Coaticook, Que., has sold out his flour and feed business to Mr. George Page, who took possession on July 1. Mr. Baldwin intends to become a partner with Mr. Rowell, and they intend to carry on a wholesale confectionery business in Sherbrooke.

Montreal is enforcing the by-law respecting cleanliness in handling bread in baker-shops and groceries.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Simeon H. White, merchant; Henry R. Ross, editor; John E. Slipp, pork packer; Walter J. Mills, merchant, and Harold Parlee, barrister, all of Sussex, N. B., are applying for incorporation under letters patent as The Maritime Packing Co. The promoters propose to erect and operate at Sussex a pork packing factory and plant with a capitalization of $150.000, divided into 1,500 shares of $100 each, with head offices at Sussex. Barnhill & Sanford, solicitors.

Henry R. Emerson, barrister; James Friel, barrister; Henry R. Emerson, jr., student; Ethel R. Emerson, spinster, of Dorchester, N.B.; David D. Lutwick, millman, and Graham K. Lutwick, clerk, of Alma, N.B., are petitioning for incorporation under letters patent as The Elgin Milling Co., to operate a flour mill at Elgin, Albert Co., N.B., and to engage in the manufacture of lumber and woodenwares and establish and conduct a general mercantile concern with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into 300 shares of $50 each.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Beer & Goff and Jenkins & Son have purchased the grocery business of J. D. McLeod & Co., Charlottetown, P.E.I.

MANITOBA.

The A. E. Hill Co. has purchased the A. Macdonald stock and general store business at Carman, Man. The A. E. Hill Co. has now large stores at Hartney, Griswold, Underhill and Carman. Fred Hill will manage the new business.

S. Lebidensby, general merchant, Carman, Man., is addibg 40 feet in depth to his store to accommodate his growing business.

An estimate of the wheat crop of Manitoba and the Northwest for this year has been made fixing the wheat yield at eighty-five million bushels, as compared with an official estimate of sixty-eight millions last year. The crop conditions are said to be as near perfect as possible and the spring wheat acreage shows twenty per cent. larger than last year.

R. T. Goodfellow, grocery, fruit and crockery merchant for 17 years at Prince Albert, Sask., has sold out his up-to-date business to Thomas Holmes of the same place. Mr. Goodfellow writes acknowledging the many valuable hints he has gathered from "The Grocer" and wishes this journal every success in the future.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

Chesney & Hicks have opened a bright new store at Calgary, N.W.T., and report business as very good. Mr. Chesney originally came from Welland, Ont., and Mr. Hicks from Pinegrove, Ont., where he was connected with Hicks Bros. flour mills and general store. Mr. Hicks has been in Calgary for the last two years working for the C.P.R.

On May 25, 1903, The Calgary Millin Co. opened their grocery department in a large modern building 23x125, on Stephen street, Calgary, N.W.T. The building has a large full-sized basement below and a store-room above of the same size. The store has magnificent windows for displays, as wide as the store and very deep. They have an up-to-date sprinkler for keeping the vegetables green and fresh. The bases of the counters and refrigerators are of marble, and there are other marble trimmings throughout the store. The company will carry a full line of groceries, staple and fancy table luxuries, smoked meats and tobaccos. Their specialty will be flour. Messrs. Manarey and Irwin have taken stock in The Calgary Milling Co and will manage the store. They have been successful merchants in the town and are very popular. Nothing but success can follow this new venture.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

R. M. Palmer, of the British Columbia Agricultural Department, states that the fruit crop prospects are excellent. Large quantities of strawberries are being shipped to the Northwest. The increasing productiveness of the Okanagan Valley has made it necessary that improved facilities for shipping should be afforded the growers at certain points in that district, and Mr. Palmer has been interviewing the C.P.R. officials on this matter.

The British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association, at a recent meeting in Victoria, passed a resolution urging the Dominion Government to establish an experimental station somewhere in the dry belt of this province for the purpose of conducting experiments along the line of fruit growing in connection with irrigation. The Government has not considered it advisable to increase the number of experimental stations at this particular time, and the Minister of Agriculture has written to that effect to W. J. Branduth, the secretary of The Fruit Growers' Association.

JULY 6, 1903.

MORE or less disturbance was occasioned the wholesale trade, last week, by the Dominion Day holiday occurring in the middle of the week. On account of the country stores over the west being closed that day, travellers were all in the city and many did not go out on their usual trip at the end of the week. Their customers' want lists are expected to be longer, in consequence, on their next visit, and no inconveniences will be likely to ensue. All the wholesale grocers report an increase in the first half of this year's business, with payments satisfactory, and no losses of any account, by failures either in town or country. This is certainly a happy condition of trade, and the prospects for a continuation of the same could not be brighter.

Japan teas are very scarce. But few houses hold any stock. Sugars here are firm; standard granulated is delivered in London at retailers' stores for $4.17 in barrels, and $4.12 in hundred-pound bags. The latter are still gaining in popularity. Tomatoes are $1.45 and $1.50 for 2 lb. tins. Sugar cured corn brings 85c. and peas 90c.; tapioca, rice, sago, breakfast foods, lime juice, and all brands of tinned meats and warm weather edibles are moving out in satisfactory volumes.

London has received a carload of canned goods from The West Lorne Canning and Evaporating Co., Limited, and a carload was also shipped by the same factory this week to Winnipeg by the M.C.R. These goods are opening out in satisfactory condition and meet with favor.

A. M. Smith & Co., the well-known wholesale London grocers, will soon have greatly enlarged premises in which to transact their already large business. They have just completed the purchase of the warehouse adjoining, formerly occupied by the wholesale dry goods firm of McMahen, Granger & Co., who were burnt out last month. When the building is repaired, and properly fitted up with modern ideas, A. M. Smith & Co. will have one of the most commodious warehouses in their line in Ontario.

London shopkeepers, on some of the leading streets, had a taste of the recent experience of some of the flood-swept towns of the west. On Friday night, an anxious half-hour was caused by the unusually heavy torrents of rain which stopped traffic for a time, and blocked the drains, while the water poured over the sidewalks into the cellars underneath the stores on Richmond and Dundas streets. The damage done was not very heavy, but a short prolongation of the downfall would certainly have been very disastrous.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

After Our Flour.

THE flour manufacturers of Minneapolis are showing great activity in their efforts to secure reciprocity. The last number of The Flour Trade News, published in New York, says:

"The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce has extended an invitation to the National Association of Grain Dealers to hold their annual convention in Minneapolis. The association usually meets in October, but steps may be taken to advance the date a little. There are more than the usual number of reasons for desiring the association to meet in Minneapolis. The question of Canadian reciprocity is a matter which is of vital interest to the millers and grain dealers of the Northwest,—in fact, to all interested in grain. The Manitoba wheat crop is increasing yearly and serves as a menace to the American wheat market. Its volume is usually discounted, in order to be on the safe side, by the bear interest, so that free admission of Canadian grain could not have any depressing effect on the Northwestern market. If this great volume of wheat could be admitted to the Northwestern market, it would equalize things in a way which is not now possible, and that without resulting adversely to any interest. Hence, the matter will be presented to the convention, and, as the question is being thoroughly examined by local men, its presentation could be more effectively made if that convention were held in Minneapolis."

And quite recently the International Union of Flour and Cereal Mill Employes, meeting in convention, passed the following resolution: "The necessity of a change in the present tariff system of the national government is becoming more apparent each year. The milling industry is particularly interested in the lowering of the tariff on wheat shipped from Canada. The great quantity of wheat grown in Canada is exported in the raw state and manufactured into flour in foreign countries. If this wheat was ground in this country it would afford steady employment to the labor in our mills."

Both quotations show that the American mill owner and his employes alike recognize the growing importance of the immense grain production of our northwest provinces, and the recognition in eastern lands of the marked superiority of Canadian flour. The agitation, however, in favor of reciprocal legislation is entirely one sided. The Canadian people are sufficiently alive to their own interests to appreciate the great opportunities offering in the new avenues of export now opening up, and with the golden prospects now in sight, are not disposed to listen to the overtures of our milling friends of the United States. An American paper, in dealing with this matter recently, says: "It is a difficult problem for us to solve. Canada is getting pretty foxy. She is doing herself good, and, at the same time, is doing us—." It is to be hoped that our Canadian millers will avail themselves of the advantages they have already secured, and intelligently study the best means of reaping the benefits that are sure to accrue from the interest now being displayed by foreign countries in the flour and cereal products of this Canada of ours.

A Good Trade Mark.

The American Miller says: "These are days of strenuous and striking advertising. The absorption of modern life requires something more than formal and perfunctory announcements to catch the eye and hold the attention. The adwriters, that new guild in modern industry and trade, were the first to recognize the new condition and to act upon it

"Naturally, the trade mark, or name, now comes in for a larger amount of consideration than was bestowed upon it in the old days. Formerly it was merely an identification tag which the consumer employed. Now, the trade mark is often itself a means of attracting attention and trade. When a firm so well and favorably known as the Tillsons of Tillsonburg, Ont., adopt a pictorial symbol for their oat products, it is a tribute to the efficacy of the sign and symbol; for their name was already a good trade mark as trade marks go. But they have brought forward the "Tillson Scot," who is already well known and promises to be better known as the campaign for British trade progresses. It is an appropriate and striking trade mark for an oat product, this "braw Scot" of the Tillsons. The strong virile face is one which a glance will fix in the memory. It isn't a face of dough, like so many heads and faces seen in advertisements; it is the face that was in evidence at Prestonpans and Culloden. The Tillson Scot was an inspiration in trade marks."

Canadian Milling Industry.

From the American Miller.

So much has been written of late regarding Canadian wheat and its natural outlet into the United States, that the general public is likely to lose sight of the fact that the Dominion has a large milling industry that requires no small amount of wheat and other cereals. It is by no means a negligible factor in figuring the disposition of the future crops of the great Canadian Northwest.

The latest estimates give the Dominion a total of some 2,500 mills scattered through the various provinces from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Of these at least 200 have capacities of over 200 barrels per day. A conservative estimate places the value of the output at $70,000,000, which is an increase over 1891 of about $18,000,000, and nearly twice that of 30 years ago. Manitoba is credited with about 80 mills and British Columbia with 30. Ontario, of course, has the larger number of mills, there being comparatively few in the Maritime Provinces.

The period of the greatest mill building activity in Canada was in the decade between 1860 and 1870. Too many mills were built, and the industry became too crowded for the markets at hand. The expiration of reciprocity with the United States, for one thing, closed a near and profitable market for Canadian flour. In consequence of this depression, the new system was introduced in Canada somewhat later than in the United States, and was adopted more slowly. But of late years many fine mills have been built, and many old ones overhauled, so that the condition of Canadian mills so far as equipment is concerned, is entirely creditable. There are good mills in plenty from Winnipeg to Halifax. We will never have to grind all the Manitoba crop in Minneapolis, much as we would like to get some of it.

Canada's Orient Trade.

"We expect very shortly to be in a position to make ever-increasing shipments of grain and flour to China, Japan, and Australia. That result, it is anticipated, will accrue from the amendments to the grain act which are now before the House of Commons at Ottawa." These remarks were made recently by Mr. W. R. McInnis, freight traffic manager of the C.P.R., who had just returned from a brief sojourn at the Capital. "Our shipments of Manitoba flour to Australia are even now very considerable," continued Mr. McInnis,

"both The Ogilvie Milling Co. and The Lake of the Woods Milling Co. sending large quantities forward on our Australian steamers. But the flour which goes to China and Japan has thus far been wholly derived from British Columbia, and is much lighter in quality than that obtained farther east. The Osaka exposition this year gave a very pronounced impetus to the demand for all classes of Canadian grain and flour, both the Chinese and Japanese having come to like the quality. Under the existing conditions of the grain act, however, it would be absolutely impossible for us to charter a steamer to sail on any particular date with an absolute assurance that the cargo would be ready in time. Cars must presently go forward in a specified order, but it is hoped by the amendments now projected to obviate the effects of this restriction. We will then be in a position to take out any quantity of grain and flour, filling the cars on the return trip with lumber and shingles, which are now in great demand in the Northwest Territories, owing to the tremendous influx of settlers."

Cereal Notes.

The Dowling Milling Co., of Edmonton, N.W.T., is erecting a new wheat elevator near its mill. The structure will be 40x50 feet, with bins 60 feet in height, and will have a capacity of 80,000 bushels. This will bring the total elevator capacity of the mill up to 120,000 bushels.

A process for making paper from corn leaves is said to have been successfully tested in Brazil.

British North America imported from the United States during April 1,622,471 bushels of corn, valued at $734,343, against 187,350 bushels, valued at $114,761, for the preceding April. The total imports of corn for the ten months ending with April aggregated 4,438,074 bushels, valued at $2,370,949, against 2,735,280 bushels, valued at $1,583,151, for the ten months ending with the preceding April.

Splendid samples of Red Fyfe wheat plant, thirty inches high, were shown The Free Press, Winnipeg, by Mr. C. L. Mather, a leading farmer of the Rosebank district. The wheat is grown on the south half of 25-4-6 west, where Mr. Mather has this year 280 acres of grain under crop. Prospects, Mr. Mather says, were never brighter in the Rosebank district than this year. Farm lands are increasing in price, and there is now not a vacant farm in the neighborhood. Nearly all farms are limited to half a section, and within the last four weeks several have changed hands, one choice piece being sold for $11,400.

Captain Slocum on Bread

Captain Joshua Slocum, who sailed around the world alone in his sloop, the Spray, writes Clifton Johnson in Good Housekeeping, now lives in a little village on Martha's Vineyard with a number of other old sea captains for his neighbors. It was in his home there, with a brush oak fire burning on the hearth, that I talked with him about his experience as a cook on that three years' voyage alone. I repeat what he said in substantially his own words:

"When I started on the voyage from Boston I laid in two barrels of ship's bread, or pilot bread, as some call it. In appearance this bread is like a large, thick cracker of rather coarse quality. There's no nonsense about it, though. It was made for keeps. It isn't fine and white like the crackers most people like to buy. You could eat a bushel basket full of those and get no substance. But this old-fashioned hard bread is a kind of whole wheat. There's good stuff in it and you couldn't do better than to take some of it if you were going out into the woods camping. My two barrelsful lasted me the voyage through. I put them up in tin cans while they were dry and crisp, and I sealed the cans with solder, so the bread was as good three years old as it was new."

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

ADVERTISING AS APPLIED TO CIGARS.*

IF the average cigar manufacturer was to put down in rotation the number and particulars of the various advertising propositions and schemes submitted to him in the course of twelve months, it would make interesting and astonishing reading. Probably there is no business in existence to-day that is approached and applied to as often and as varied as the one we represent, and out of the entire conglomeration of ideas and plans suggested for the publicity of brand and marks, few indeed are worthy of consideration and fewer by far possess any actual value whatever.

One of the most difficult problems which occupy the cigar manufacturers of to-day is the sifting out and classifying of these various advertising ideas, and the one who can successfully cope with the task must possess genius and foresight of a very high order as well as the necessary ability to draw a tight rein and follow out with prudence carefully conceived ideas to a successful issue.

Very few—if any—of our Canadian cigar manufacturers are in a position of being able to specialize this department to the extent of employing exclusive advertising experts to contract for and manage their various ventures in this field. This appears to be the modern way of handling kindred industries, where advertising and publicity are as much a factor to success as in our line.

In these departments men of undoubted ability, who understand the theory and practice of modern up-to-date advertising and who treat it as a science and a study, are employed, in many cases at very large renumeration, to conduct this branch. Their entire time and attention are centered on this one subject alone, until they become adept in the art, and it can easily be understood that in the majority of cases where such a system is possible, good results must and can be obtained. Unfortunately few of us can afford this luxury, however, and therefore to the multifarious other cares of a cigar manufacturer's existence, are added those of being his own advertising contractor, writer and promoter of the necessary publicity to make his ventures a success.

If all the lines open to the adoption of a manufacturer for this purpose were of the strictly legitimate and proper kind of article, the task might not be so difficult, but the pathway is strewn with so many pitfalls of fake and scheme suggestions that fully one-half of our time is occupied in steering clear of these useless propositions and evading the disbursement of large sums, which do not offer even the slightest chance of bringing any return for the investment.

I could, if necessary, enumerate a number of such examples, but feel that to an audience such as we have here, they are too well known to even venture to particularize. Sufficient is that they exist to-day and will no doubt continue to be a factor notwithstanding exposures, warnings and their repeated failure to bring promised results.

Under the head of legitimate advertising, probably there is no field so widely and favorably known as the daily paper. Of late years the establishment of concerns whose business it is to investigate and ascertain definitely the exact circulation of mediums of this nature and to guarantee to the advertiser the correctness of these figures, makes the purchase of this class of advertising less venturesome than in the past. At one time such claims were, in many instances, bounded only by the imagination and versatility of the publisher, and the only question in arriving at circulation figures was the ability to advance more extravagant claims in this direction than those of a competitor. By the new system the purchaser of space in the average daily or weekly paper knows pretty well how much publicity he will receive in return for his investment. In this way, and with other considerations to be mentioned later, a basis for comparison exists and a relative value is properly established. The next consideration of the advertiser is the fitness of the medium under consideration to reach the people who are interested in the article offered for sale, and the methods to be adopted to attain the result.

Some very large circulating mediums, while of value in certain fields of advertising, possess none whatever as applied to our particular line. Again the various methods to be adopted are of paramount importance, as, for instance, argumentative advertising—illustrated advertising—the publicity of names or brands, only with the object of familiarizing the purchaser with the mark in view, and nothing further. Then there is the jingle style—poetry (some of a very crude nature indeed)—the use of catch phrases or words such as "Generously good," "Enormously the largest," "She—that's all," and others too numerous to mention.

Many and multifarious are the plans adopted to catch and hold the public attention and the successes recorded are so much in the minority that it takes a stout heart and a strong mind to face the issue. Lithographs, show cards, fence and poster work—novelties of all description in the way of handy things about one's pocket—things in daily constant use stamped with the name of the article intended to exploit. Articles of necessity around the shops and places where cigars are sold, such as cigar lighters, cigar cutters, cigar cases and various other devices, all and more are being used for the purpose of what one might signify legitimate advertising. Then we have the trade paper, that beautiful system, whereby we have the opportunity of putting before those who sell our goods the undoubtedly superior merits of each individual brand.

It also offers us the opportunity of keeping prominently before our confreres who all receive it (and who religiously peruse its every column, down to the minutest detail), in such a way as probably no other medium could. Of course this is a decided advantage and of particular and peculiar value. But one thing the trade paper does do, and that is, when propeely conducted, it raises and maintains a standing for the line it represents.

Speaking for the trade, it voices its views, gives them importance, and creates an influence not easily otherwise attained. The extreme modesty of those interested in our trade paper, present on this occasion, alone prevents me from giving this subject closer and more personal attention.

Suffice it to say that in your advertising expropriations this medium must have a place.

Then we have this new importation from the land of Uncle Sam—the premium plan.

This is a system whereby certain consideration is given for the actual preferential placing of the goods by the vendor or the stimulating of the users' interest in any particular brand. It has met with much favor on the other side of the line and has been introduced into Canada extensively in connection with the sale of tobaccos and cigarettes. In a small way it has been practised in the cigar line, but now is coming largely into vogue and increasing in importance.

It is a system of advancing the sale of goods by direct application of the method and is one of the very few plans of advertising by which it is possible to trace closely the returns and definitely estimate the result.

There are a hundred and one other methods of advertising which may be mentioned, but not wishing to tire you we will leave them to your imagination for the present and conclude by expressing the hope that the consideration we have been able to give this subject will prove of some practical benefit. First in making us, for the future, more careful to avoid the unworthy schemes of designing advertising sharks, and secondly, to the same extent increase our appreciation of what is rightly termed legitimate advertising propositions.

The key note of success is to be able to distinguish between the two, and when the latter is found, to be able to use and apply it judiciously, and in such a way as to bring the best and most profitable results for the money expended.

Advertising is a necessary adjunct to our business, and we must treat it as such, and give it the important place it merits in our struggle for success.

NO CHANGE IN PRICE.

The recent changes in duty reported from Ottawa have as yet had no effect on the prices of tobacco or cigars.

MR. T. J. HORROCKS.

T. J. Horrocks is well known throughout Canada as the only dealer in tobacconists' supplies selling exclusively the goods manufactured by the independent factories.

It is not generally known that the Philippine Islands are the centre of the greatest tobacco and cigar interests in the world. Manila, the principal city, with a population of 350,000, is the headquarters for this immense and profitable business, and a residence there of some years enabled Mr. Horrocks to secure a thorough insight into the trade. Returning to Canada in 1899, he commenced business in Toronto on a very limited scale, occupying a small 6 x 8 ft. office on Lombard street,

T. J. HORROCKS,
Wholesale Cigar and Tobacco Dealer, Toronto.

and confining his attention principally to the sale of Manila cigars, doing his own travelling, bookkeeping and shipping.

His business has gradually developed until it has now reached its present goodly proportions, and Mr. Horrocks finds that his present commodious premises on Wellington street are entirely too small for his steadily-increasing trade. He employs a staff of 12 people, and, in addition to his tobacco business, pays much attention to his cigar trade, controlling the output of the Helios, T. J. H., and Ronto brands, the latter of which has recently become quite a factor in the cigar market.

LONDON NEWS.

Revenue returns are not complete at this writing. It is expected that they will show a very substantial increase over last year. June was the biggest month in the twelve for all the local manufacturers as regards cigars shipped, and this in face of the fact of the alleged strike. A very large proportion of the goods shipped out this past month (and indeed the same is the case every month) went to the Northwest Territories, British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces. Trade in Manitoba and the Territories has been considerably stimulated owing to recent immigration. As to British Columbia, the manufacturers here are experiencing the good results of the numerous mining strikes in that province having been recently adjusted. Once upon a time Montreal 10-cent cigars held the market almost exclusively, and London the 5-cent trade. There has been a wonderful change regarding 10-cent goods manufactured in this city, the lines made by the different manufacturers here being quite as famous, and in a great many instances more so than those of Montreal.

It may not be generally known perhaps, that almost an even hundred travellers leave London every Monday morning with cigar sample cases. This does not include of course the number who are resident in the North-west, British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces, and the city of Montreal. Speaking of Montreal, does it not show considerable enterprise on the part of London manufacturers when the fact can be related that several of them have resident travellers in that city, who do nothing but sell London cigars right in what was once headquarters for the manufacture of same for Canada.

The Tuckett Cigar Company, who are at present located in what was once the Olmstead factory, adjacent to the Parisian Steam Laundry, are, it is reported, negotiating for the purchase of the latter's building. Should the deal not go through, it is expected that they will in the near future put up as handsome a building as any of those now occupied by the other manufacturers.

Wm. Ward, one of our prominent cigar manufacturers, who has been quite ill for some weeks, has so far recovered as to be able to again attend to business.

A very handsome building is in the course of erection, adjoining the present premises of Line, McDonald & Co. When complete, it is understood, a portion of same will be occupied by them.

With due deference to the other manufacturers in the city, it must be admitted (in fact it generally is) that Brener Bros. have the largest and most up-to-date buildings for the purpose of cigar manufacturing both as regards equipment, offices, location, sanitary arrangements, etc., in London.

THE MONTREAL GROCERY CLERKS' PICNIC.

ABOUT half past eight o'clock on Sunday morning, July 5, some 600 people left Windsor station, Montreal, for Magog, to enjoy themselves at the annual picnic of the Montreal grocery clerks. The trip to the grounds was enjoyed as much as any other part of the day, passing as the excursionists did through one of the most beautiful sections of the French-Canadian country. After a journey of 99 miles, Magog was reached, and an hour after the arrival there, a splendid banquet was served at the Park House. Mr. O. Dionne presided, and at his table were Messrs. Jos. Contant, president of l'Alliance Nationale; E. N. Chartrand, of the Grocers' Association, M. Havard, president of the Early Closing Committee; A. Lacroix, Dr. Beigne and A. Audette, of Magog, H. Sauriol, and a number of guests. The chairman (after two hundred hungry picnickers had prepared themselves to listen) proposed the toasts. To that of the King, Messrs. N. Chartrand and J. O. Levesque replied. "The Grocery Trade" brought forth speeches from Messrs. J. Contant and A. Lacroix. "The Press," "Our Hosts," and "The Ladies" followed, and the speakers were: O. Chaput, M. Havard and H. Sauriol.

An address was read by the Mayor of Magog, giving the freedom of that town to the visitors; and after the dinner l'Alliance Nationale of Magog came to tender its respects to the president, Mr. Jos. Contant.

From the banquet hall the throng proceeded to the picnic grounds on the banks of Lake Memphramagog, where the programme of races and games was carried out with great enthusiasm. A little rain fell, but it was not sufficient to spoil the sports or dampen the spirits of the Association and its guests. The contests resulted as follows:

Race (open to chairmen of the committees), 4 prizes—1, E. Turgeon, silver teapot; 2, J. N. Walker, 1 doz. Gloria soap; 3, B. Guenette, 1 Seal Brand coffee; 4, O. Dionne, 1 Christie Brown's biscuits.

Committee members' race, 5 prizes—A. P. Lalande, case McLaren's essence; 2, A. Lacroix, case Peptonine; 3, B. Guenette, case Diamond Baking Powder; 4, Z. Dubuc, case Imperial soap; 5, Ernest Etzmere, doz. McLaren's essence.

Grocers' race, 3 prizes—1, H. Dessin, case Seagram's; 2, A. Laniel, case Surprise soap; 3, J. A. Mesnard, case prepared flour.

Race (open to members of Association), 4 prizes—1, A. Gauvreau, case Melcher's gin; 2, E. P. Lalande, case Chinese starch; 3, A. Turgeon, timepiece; 4, Z. Dubuc, case Manitoba flour; 5, J. N. Walker, pipe.

Ladies' race, 3 prizes—1, Miss R. Collier, Argenterie Dr. Bergeron; 2, Mrs. H. Dessin, 3 bottles essence; 3, Mrs. P. Cote, 3 bottles perfume.

Race for girls under 16 years, 3 prizes—1, Miss Josephine Gosselin, ½-dozen portraits; 2, Miss Ambroise Gosselin, 2 boxes Swiss caramels; 3, Miss Eva Ledoux, box sponge cake.

Race open to clerks, not members of Association, 4 prizes—1, M. Larocque, case of claret; 2, H. Allarie, ½-doz. Colonial fluid beef; 3, O. Bouvier, case Libby McNeill fluid beef; 4, Georges Gervais, candies; A. Bedard Race (open to grocers and clerks), 3 prizes—1, E. P. Lalande, pair trousers; 2, R. Jordan, box biscuits; 3, P. Cote, case Ontario flour.

Boys' race, 3 prizes—1, J. T. Desielles, dozen King's jam; 2, J. Crevier, cushion; 3, U. E. P. Lalande, bottle lime juice.

Sack race, 3 prizes—1, P. Cote, 3 bottles Sanderson's; 2, A. Gauvreau, 2 bottles Sanderson's; 3, E. P. Lalande, 6 sacks flour.

Three-legged race, 3 prizes—1, E. Gervais and O. St. Maurice, case Heinz pickles; 2, M. Larocque and E. Etzmere, case Northwest flour; 3, A. Gauvreau and R. Jordan, case stove blacking.

Swallowing string, 2 prizes—1, J. A. H. Laucelle, case Cooke's Favorite; 2, G. Gervais, box coffee.

Throwing weight, 3 prizes—1, R. Jordan, 6 bottles claret; 2, J. C. Leclaire, dozen Ewing's coffee; 3, P. Cote, 1 pressed ham.

Fat men's race, 3 prizes—1, A. Gendron, case Bordeaux; 2, C. Levesque, box cigars; 3, J. C. Leclaire, hammock.

Consolation race, 2 prizes—1, H. Benoit, box coffee; 2, J. O. Villeneuve, 125 lb. flour.

Cheese-eating contest, 2 prizes—1, O. Legendre, Christie, Brown's bircuits; 2, E. P. Lalande, box Klondyke candies.

Eating soda biscuits, 2 prizes—1, G. Gervais, 4 bottles Scotch whiskey; 2, P. Cote, box Klondyke candies.

Tug-of-war, between 12 members of the Clerks' Association and 12 non-members, prize 12 bottles Clandon brandy; won by Association clerks.

Tug-of-war, between 12 citizens of Montreal and 12 of Magog; prize, 12 bottles Richard's brandy; won by Magog.

Race of travellers, calling on grocers, 3 prizes—1, O. St. Maurice, case Sauterne; 2, O. Plamondon, smoking set; 3, J. Levesque, 1 case Tamilkande tea.

Members of Grocers' Association race, 3 prizes—1, E. P. Lalande, case Radnor water; 2, A. Laurelle, case shredded wheat; 3, J. A. Mesnard, case prepared flour.

Free-for-all race, 4 prizes—1, R. Jordan; 2, E. P. Lalande, box of tea; 3, J. A. Mesnard, bottle claret; 4, A. Gauvreau, 2 fruit cakes.

Messrs. J. O. Levesque, N. Chartrand, E. A. Upton, J. A. Mesnard and W. C. Gadon acted as judges and gave perfect satisfaction. The Organization Committee's arrangements could not have been bettered and everything passed off smoothly from first to last. About eight o'clock in the evening the excursionists left Magog for Montreal, where they arrived about mid night, having had one of the most enjoyable holidays since the Association was formed.

NEW CANADIAN INDUSTRY.

Letters patent have been granted to E. Gilbert, R. Tourville, E. J. Chapleau, O. Dufresne and R. Lacroix, all of Montreal, incorporating them under the name of "La Chevrerie Canadienne," with a capital stock of $20,000. The object of the new company is to trade in and sell goats and the products derived therefrom, including especially the trade of milk, the manufacture and trade of condensed milk and of butter and of cheese, the preparation or treatment and trade of the skins, meat and preserved meat of goats and of all other products or underproducts; to establish and operate nurseries and sanatoriums for the treatment of children and sick persons with goats' milk.

WHAT A GERMAN EATS.

A German statistician has been figuring up the meat asset value of the average human stomach and its digestive apparatus as a factor of value in the economy of the agrarian of his country. He finds that the average man of 70 years of age, if he has a fair gastronomy, eats about $10,000 worth of food during his lifetime. Knocking off some 2,900 days for his milk and mush period of existence the gent is left 22,600 days in which to do his task, or at the rate of less than 23c. a day for meat. At Germany's price for such food it means very little to keep up the bone and sinew upon which the agrarian relies. When it comes to the defence of the flag and the Fatherland, you can't fight successful battles with white men on milk, mush and beer.

BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS.

Is it Necessary to Send Receipts?

By J. H. Scales.

THE question of "the discontinuing of sending receipts in acknowledgment of all forms of remittances, upon which the endorsement of the receiver would be a legal receipt," seems to be one upon which little can be said, certainly little that may be termed new.

This question was taken up by the house I have the honor to represent nearly two years ago. It had been our custom for some time previous to print on our remittance forms: "No acknowledgment necessary." Having experienced no inconvenience from the practice, we concluded it could be extended to our customers, and so decided to try it.

I believe we were the pioneers in this move, and now, after 21 months of actual experience we are convinced that it was a move in the right direction. So successfully has it worked that I have yet to see the first complication to arise from it, and you can get an idea of the great saving of labor and postage to us thereby when I tell you that we acknowledge the receipt of less than 10 per cent. of the remittances that come to us.

However, it is impossible to eliminate altogether the formal receipt, for it must be given in some instances, such as formal vouchers required by corporations, settlements with administrators, receivers, etc. It is also our custom to acknowledge receipt of currency when the amount exceeds $1, and, if a customer insists upon it, we send him receipts regularly. In other words, if the question of business or no business hangs upon a receipt, we send the receipt.

As another proposition, the present era in commercial life demands the introduction of the most modern methods and the discarding of all practices which are unnecessary or cumbersome, so long as it does not interfere with or retard the progress of business; in other words, that we take the shortest cut to reach a given point, and this principle applies to the credit man as well as to any department, for he must see to it that the machinery of his department works with the least possible friction and that the expense does not compare unfavorably with that of others, and, as we have already shown, the abolition of the sending of receipts, though comparatively small, is one feature that counts.

At this point I will digress to say I think it would be well to incorporate some other features which are of a kindred nature, viz.:

First.—Insist upon the customer remitting for specific charges.

Second.—Urge him to use a regular remittance form or make an intelligent statement of the remittance in his letter, and then let him specify on his cheque the invoice it is intended to pay.

The third feature will require some explanation.

When this subject came up for discussion at The National Association of Credit Men of the United States, there was an objection offered on the ground that the discontinuing of the sending of receipts would induce a customer to send his individual cheque instead of exchange.

When paid and cancelled, the customer's cheque goes into his possession and can be kept as a record, but the cashier's cheque, of course, remains with the bank: therefore, if he has not the receipt, it is only natural that he should want his own cheque properly endorsed.

This can be overcome by suggesting that the customer buy exchange in his own name, and then endorse it over to the firm he intends to pay, specifying, if he chooses, in the endorsement, the bills to be paid. Then, should any question or dispute arise, which is exceedingly doubtful, it is a matter of little trouble to obtain a complete history of the transaction by going to the records of the local bank.

Personal Interviews in Granting Credits.

By Geo. H. Sheble, St. Louis, Mo.

THE position of credit man in a large concern is not a sinecure, and at times is most unpleasant; in fact, I have had gentlemen in other positions not nearly so prominent tell me that they would not have the place with many times their present salary attached; and I assure you that I recently had two experiences when I wished I was almost anywhere else in the world but at the credit desk. I was informed that a young lady, daughter of one of our customers, was in the house purchasing goods. Now, this customer was considerably behind in his account with us, and, supposing that the young lady had been given instructions, I sent for her and upon questioning her found out that she kept her father's books and was well acquainted with his affairs, but was not inclined to tell me anything about them, till I so positively insisted that she became offended and would say nothing.

The other case was somewhat similar, the lady being the wife of a customer, and upon being questioned felt so much offended that she set up a good "cry," and then, being somewhat relieved, said that her husband, though his account was so far behind, was well able to pay, but that he gave the business very little attention, leaving it almost entirely to her. She, between her sobs, instructed me not to ship the goods she had just purchased—she did not need them, anyhow, and could get them somewhere else when she got ready for them.

Now, such cases as these, I say, are anything but pleasant, and I hope none of you may be called upon to go through them.

The credit man's duties are multifarious, he having many things to do besides pass upon the fact that a prospective purchaser is good to sell upon credit or not. You know, it is often deemed necessary for you to go out of your office to meet a customer, accidentally, as it were, to "jolly" him—pat him on the back—make him feel at home—take him to a department and call some particularly good salesman to handle him, because you know he likes this special attention, or is "cranky" in some way—and in many other ways depart from your legitimate line of work.

One of my most unpleasant duties is to decline an order, or "turn down" a buyer; for this, in most cases, "puts you in bad" with the salesman who would get credit for the sale, as he, nine times out of ten, thinks you are wrong—that you have made a mistake—though this is more on account of a prejudice he always has in favor of the customer, as he looks at the transaction from one side only—a salesman's standpoint.

You must not harbor the idea, however, that the credit man is never in error, for he, being human, is naturally liable to mistakes and often makes them, for if he did not, his services would be invaluable to his employer; in fact, he would be so much sought after that he could not take care of the many positions that would be offered him.

There are so many conditions to be considered in the granting of credit, more than I have time to take up here, that I will present but a few cases that have come under my personal observation or attention, some of which were correctly and some incorrectly diagnosed by me.

Those decisions in which I was correct were made in personal interviews with the customer, and the contrary, where I passed upon the credit from information obtained through various channels usual to the credit department, and from this fact it is my opinion that to decide upon credit it can be done much more intelligently from personal contact with the parties than in any other way, and where it is possible I always insist upon it.

A few years ago a party by the name of John Smith came into our house, and the salesman for his territory being called, he learned that Mr. Smith wanted to purchase a small bill of goods, between $200 and $300, payable in 60 days, also informing the salesman that Mr. So and So, a salesman for another house, had sent him there. Mr. Smith, being a stranger, was requested to step in and interview the credit man, which he readily consented to do, and on being introduced, was requested to make a showing of his affairs, and to this made no objection, though, at the same time, saying that his purchase would be small, as he needed but few goods just then. Taking down my blank form, I asked the usual questions, and these are the figures he gave :

Stock in hand (insured for $2,000)		$2,500 00
Notes and accts., all good		500 00
Cash on hand		300 00
Cattle, horse, etc		500 00
Total assets		$3,800 00
And total indebtedness, all for Mdse. (none due)		1,198 00
Giving him a net worth of		$2,632 00

Now, from these figures, this man, if honest, was unquestionably good for the quantity of goods he desired of us, but here is where the personal interview was the thing, for, upon quite a long talk with him, after obtaining these figures, I informed him we could not sell him the goods, except upon a spot cash basis.

The salesman was very much dissatisfied, and after considerable talk, and representing that his friend's house had shipped him a much larger bill of goods, he succeeded in getting the goods shipped by an order from a higher authority than myself. I told this gentleman that if he talked to the man he would not have shipped him, and to show that my judgment was correct, the party failed in less than 60 days, and we succeeded in getting 25 per cent. of our claim, less attorney's fees.

A few seasons ago the head of our Arkansas department informed me that Thos. Jones was in the house and told him that he had decided to transfer his dry goods purchases all to St. Louis, and would give our house his business if we would make prices right and we wanted to sell him. He was told that we did, and he started in to make his purchases. After a day or two our department man informed me that the party was buying a very liberal bill and I said I would see him. When he had finished buying he was brought to me and introduced. He was a clean cut intelligent man, "full of ginger," as it were, seeming to have his business well in hand, with figures at his tongue's end, and was very particular as to details, not overlooking the smallest items. He stated his competitor was a large advertiser and took full time on his purchases ; but he (my prospective customer) discounted his bills and took advantage of this advertising, being able to sell the people brought into town by this means, at lower prices, thus getting the benefit of the business without the expense. These are his figures :

Stock, $12,000 to		$13,000 00
Insurance, $7,500
Book accts		5,000 00
Cash on hand		700 00
Store bldg		1,500 00
Bank stocks, etc		1,600 00
Total assets		$21,800 00
Liabilities :
Mdse., none due	$5,000 00
Borrowed money	4,500 00
Miscellaneous debts	1,000 00	10,500 00
Net worth		$11,300 00

Annual business, $76,000 00.

Now, here was a hustler, as you will observe from his sales ; he turned his stock nearly six times per year, and was bound to succeed. His bill, with us, was about $4,000, and promptly discounted, as he said it would be, and he is to-day one of our most valued customers. In the making of this credit you will readily see that the personal interview is again of great advantage, because without the many little points and conditions brought out by conversation, I would hardly have cared to ship his bill of goods, even had other information borne out his figures given.

The cases to which I have especially called your attention are ones in which a personal interview took place, and I repeat that in my opinion a "credit" can be passed upon much more intelligently in this manner than in any other. The agency information or bank reference may be prejudiced or given with a view of obtaining credit for the party, when, if the true conditions were known, and a chance to study the man were given, you would not take it on, though on the information you have you "take a chance."

If You Have Money to Burn

Why! Go burn it. There is 10 times more satisfaction in burning money than in losing it in driblets, through carelessness of clerks, or disputed accounts. Who that has "pass-book" customers, has not had accounts disputed and partially repudiated? The best way to avoid all complications and misunderstandings is as follows:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Let us send you a free sample.

ARGUMENT.

We now offer a practical time piece for the Grocery Trade of Canada, and base our statement upon the following:

First—It is absolutely guaranteed to keep accurate time.

Second—It stands rough usage and does not get out of order easily, making it the only watch for dealers outside of the jewelery trade to handle, and also making it a practical one for sportsmen, boys and all men who give a watch hard usage.

Third—Its low price and high quality insure a tremendous sale, which we further augment by furnishing many handsome advertising devices for your store.

Fourth—Last but not least, these watches offer a handsome profit. Price cutters are not supplied.

Sold by several leading Grocery Jobbers of Canada. We will tell you who they are upon request.

Trial Offer—To any General Merchant who will write to us upon his business letter head and inclose 75c. we will send a sample watch (duty not paid) and our catalogue, so that he can test its accuracy and durability.

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

THERE is joy in the camp of the British Columbia members over the announcement that the Government has decided, after all, "to do something" for the lead mining industry of British Columbia. Probably no state in the Union, certainly no province in Canada, is so rich in silver lead mines as is British Columbia, and this richness is very largely neutralized, if not utterly destroyed, by the big American combine and the unfavorable smelter conditions locally. It has been urged by the British Columbia advocates of state aid that while the effect of the proposed legislation may be to increase slightly the price of lead to the consumers in other parts of Canada, that the fact must not be lost sight of, that the miners out there are large purchasers of the out-put of eastern factories, for all of which they pay an enhanced price, owing to the protection enjoyed by the latter. Not only is this the case, but the British Columbians, from the circumstance that they manufacture but little locally, are also large importers from outside of Canada, on all of which they pay duty to the Treasury, so that, as a matter of fact, they pay in, in taxes, from two to three times as much per head of the population as do people in other parts of Canada.

I believe that while there may be some objections taken to the proposed increase in bounties, it will not be very great, and that it will be confined to certain theorists who worship a fetish instead of meeting a condition.

A kindred subject to this is that of aid for the iron and steel industries. As at present constituted, state aid is given by way of bounty, and by way of import duty. The bounty was on a scale diminishing with time, and the proposition now is to keep it up to its old level for a further short period. As to the duty part of the matter, a large number of iron and steel manufactures now come into this country, either free or at a low rate, so low as 10 per cent. in some cases. It is said that the large works at Sydney now propose to instal new machinery to produce goods not hitherto made in Canada, and that for this new product they ask the same protection as is already accorded to articles manufactured in Canada. Their position seems to be a strong one, if we justify the present duties, for, if the protection was right when afforded to an industry now in existence, it must be equally right to accord it to the manufacture of articles not hitherto produced.

The long discussion over the lengthy Railway Bill of the Hon. Mr. Blair is at last drawing to a close, and only a few of the more disputatious clauses still remain to be passed upon.

In the early stages of the session we drew attention to certain farmers' grievances, which were exciting a great deal of attention among the rural members, and, inasmuch as the legislation proposed to remedy them had a very direct bearing upon the whole community as a "travelling public," we devoted some time to a discussion of the pros and cons, most notably in connection with cattle-guards upon railways. There has been a most vigorous struggle throughout, ranging from the railway position of a wish to retain the law as at present constituted, which is very favorable to the roads, to the position of the promoter of what has become widely known as the Lancaster Bill, which sought to make the railways liable for all cattle killed, no matter what carelessness the farmer had been guilty of in connection with the accident, even if, to quote an extreme case, he had driven his cattle upon the railway in the hope of getting liberal damages for their death. A middle course has been hit upon, and will most likely be law by the time this reaches our readers. The railway is to be required, as of yore, to maintain cattle-guards, "suitable and sufficient" to turn cattle from getting on the track, and is to be liable to pay the owner the value of the animal killed which has got on the railway right of way because of the absence or insufficiency of cattle-guards, unless the railway proves that the farmer has been actually guilty of negligence, by himself or his agent, in connection with the accident. Under the old law it mattered not how guiltless of carelessness the farmer was, if a high wind had thrown down his fence in the night, if the ubiquitous book agent had called and left the gate open, as he usually does, still the poor farmer had to shoulder the loss when, as a consequence, his cattle strayed away and got killed. Now this is all altered; only his own carelessness, by himself or his agent, can disentitle him to recover. The travelling public is still protected from the carelessness which absolute immunity might engender in the farmer by two risks he still runs: (1) If the animal is killed not upon the railway's own property, but at the point of intersection of the railway and the highway, he cannot recover, and (2) Any person can impound cattle found running at large within half a mile of the intersection of the highway and the railway at rail level. This latter may seem a trivial protection to those who do not know the farming community. As a matter of fact, however, there is nothing which a farmer more heartily dislikes than having his cattle driven to pound. Not only does he decidedly object to the cost entailed, but he feels it as a kind of application of brute force, which is humiliating to him. Just let the railway section men drive some careless man's herd to the nearest pound, and that man will become a most exemplary citizen, so far as the tending of his cattle goes, for the rest of his life. The point which gives most general satisfaction to the farmers in this matter lies in the fact that the railways are absolutely obliged to prove the carelessness of the farmer, and that the farmer is not obliged to prove his innocence of it, as was desired by many who have been interesting themselves in this bill.

Not only have the farmers distinctly scored in the matter of cattle-guards, but they also win in the matter of fires kindled by railways. As the law previously stood, a farmer had to prove, not only that the railway set fire to his property, but also, that it set fire negligently, which interpreted means, for example, that there was something faulty in the construction of the engine which threw the sparks. This was practically an impossibility. No farmer could follow an engine up to its round-house and there make an examination of the fire screen to see whether its mesh was of the required fineness and in good repair. To prove out of the mouths of the railway men themselves that anything was wrong, again and again proved impracticable, so that lawyers had pretty generally taken to advising their clients that it was useless to enter suit. The law, as just enacted, throws very properly upon the farmer the burden of proving that the engine started the fire complained of, but, having proved that, the railway company must show that it was operating its road with proper plant in a fit state of repair and without carelessness in so doing. The change seems a simple one, but it will mean that hereafter an owner of land along a railway right of way will be able to recover in cases where he is reasonably entitled to do so, and will no longer be met by the imposition of a condition which it is impossible to fulfil.

HINTS FOR THE WIDE-AWAKE.

By J. M. Steele, Clarksburg.

THIS is an actual transaction that happened to myself a few weeks ago, and should be a good lesson to the trade generally.

I have always made it a habit to weigh all goods sold by weight coming into my store. The other day I got in some tea and, of course, weighed it along with the other goods. (How many merchants weigh their half chests of tea ?) Taking the gross weight and comparing it with the net weight charged I found that there was a very small allowance made for tare, too little in fact, as I had a fair idea of the tares of tea packages, having observed it in previous shipments. I wrote the wholesale house, calling their attention to this and received the following reply: "It is by mistake that the tea was entered in our tea list at 62 lb., because the correct weight is only 56 lb. We enclose you a note for the 6 lb. difference and thank you for telling us, and now have sent out credit notes to all who had any before you, none of whom noticed this weight. Please excuse the mistake."

I think it pays to weigh. The wholesale house had not the slightest intention of overcharging the weight, but yet, just through some mistake of their entry clerk (we are all liable to make mistakes,) in putting down the wrong weight in the stock book, the overcharge was made.

THE TEA TRADE.

THE annual review of the tea trade issued under date of June, by Messrs. Wm., Jas. and Hy. Thompson, tea brokers, Mincing Lane, London, Eng., suggests that the season of 1902-03 may prove to have marked an epoch in the history of the tea industry.

In reviewing the events of the past few years it is pointed out that between 1892 and 1902 the output in India rose from 124 to 175 million pounds, and in Ceylon from 72 to about 150 millions, with the result that, in spite of yearly increased consumption and export, stocks of both kinds, in England, stood at 87 millions in 1902, against 58 millions ten years previously. The conditions which produced these results were plentiful land and labor, abnormally cheap, owing to the depreciation in the silver rupee. The margin of profit offered attracted universal attention, and in the five years previous to 1900, 107,000 acres in India and 80,000 in Ceylon were planted. The result was over production. Prices fell, the rupee appreciated in value and profits vanished. In the meantime consumers were habituated to low prices.

On the other hand, the low prices have ousted China teas, almost entirely, from the United Kingdom, and soldified the interests of India and Ceylon.

During the past season the downward progress has been arrested, yields and acreage have been smaller, and India and Ceylon have taken to manufacturing green and uncolored teas, so that for the first time in many years, there has been an equilibrium of supply and demand.

The prospects for the continuation of these conditions are good. The estimated supplies from India and Ceylon for 1903-4 do not exceed three hundred and thirty-six millions, of which fifteen million will be green, which is no more than will be required.

Supplies other than from China do not endanger the situation, and Africa, so largely an English land, promises to become a great consumer of tea.

The Ceylon planters have shown great enterprise and activity. During the past year, appreciating the changed condition of affairs occasioned by over supply of black tea, they have with rapidity turned their attention to the manufacture of, to them, an entirely new product, with such success that this season will witness the manufacture of eleven to twelve millions of green and uncolored tea, to which must also be added probably three to five millions from India. Owing to a less favorable yield in Japan, with a consequently higher price, a ready market has been found, mainly in America, for both descriptions, green and uncolored, and prices plus Cess have been in advance of those obtainable for blacks of similar descriptions.

Slightly precipitous supplies have somewhat reduced values in Canada and the United States, but it is anticipated that this will have the ultimately advantageous effect of forcing British grown teas into consumotion and thus acquainting the public with their virtues.

LEAVING FOR CALGARY.

D. J. Kelly, ex-president of The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, is leaving for Calgary, N.W.T. For the last year or so Mr. Kelly has not been in good health, and he has decided to spend some months at least in the invigorating climate "in the shadow of the Rockies." There are few grocers in Toronto who have more friends than "Jack" Kelly and when he goes west he will take with him the best wishes of them all. The business of Kelly Bros., Queen street east, will be continued by his brother, H. D. Kelly.

BUYING TERMS ON CANNED GOODS.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER:

Sir,—In your issue of last week we note the several objections taken to the policy adopted by The Canadian Canners' Consolidated Cos., Ltd., of Hamilton. First, from British Columbia merchants, who complain that no prices have been sent them, and that they are not in a position to quote goods for Yukon trade for Fall delivery. One of the primary objects of consolidation of the various companies was to do away with selling of goods before they were packed, which in the past had been a source of trouble to the packer, and as a rule, very annoying to the trade. Prices have recently been sent to the trade for such goods as are now packed, and other goods will be quoted as soon as packed, or as soon as the crop can be satisfactorily estimated. In adopting this policy, we hope to fill all accepted orders in full, and thereby avoid a repetition of the disappointment and annoyance of last Fall.

It is said by your Halifax correspondents that we prohibit buyers who buy Consolidated goods buying from outsiders. This statement we desire to correct. Buyers are as free as ever to buy from whom they like, and any kind of goods they want. We do, however, offer a special discount to the wholesale trade who purchase all their requirements from The Canadian Canners' Consolidated Cos., Ltd.

We do not know of any canning companies in the Consolidated Companies that put up blueberries, nor do we think the purchase of blueberries would conflict with contracts in any way made with this company.

The object of the consolidation may be clearly set forth in a few words. Economy in cost of production; uniformity of quality; developing export market and reducing the hazardous nature of our business by refusing to sell goods before they are packed. The many savings effected should put us in a position to offer goods to the trade this season as cheaply as heretofore, notwithstanding the increased cost of raw material and labor of fully 25 per cent., and we believe as the policy of this company becomes better known, it will meet with universal approval of the trade.

Hamilton, July 7. STOCKHOLDER.

The price quoted for one quality, five strengths vinnegar in the advertisement of The Imperial Vinegar and Packing Co., of Hamilton, Limited, in last week's "Grocer," should have read 18 to 32c., instead of as printed.

OTTAWA TRADE GOSSIP.

Business here has been extra good and retailers are very busy; the demand for seasonable lines was good, and prices were well maintained. A noticeable feature among the grocery trade is that almost no cutting of prices is practised.

The sugar market remains the same and is very strong at $4.12 for granulated and $3.47 for yellows. Granulated in bags is 5c. less.

Canned goods are now as high and higher than ever. Tomatoes are $1.65, peas, $1.20; corn, $1. Stocks are pretty well cleaned up. Orders for new season's pack are being solicited at lowest association prices, which of course are not announced as yet. Canned gallon apples are quoted at $2; 3s at 90 to 95c. String and Golden Wax beans are selling slowly at 80c. Lobsters, in tall tins, are very firm at $3; half size, No. 1 stock, $2. Sardines, Canadian, $3.25 a case. Herrings, in tomato sauce, $1.40 and ditto, kippered, $1.50 per doz. No change has taken place in canned meats. Corned beef, in 2s, $2.75; in 1s, $4.50, and in 14s, $19 to $20. Lunch tongue, $3.

Rice is firm at $3.15 per cwt. Tapioca and sago are as low as ever; quotations are around 3½c. There seems to be an overabundant supply this year.

In syrups and molasses there is no change; molasses is quoted 38 to 40c.

Japan teas are continually advancing. Low grade Japans cannot be found under 20c.

The currant market is slow at this season of the year. Fine Filiatras, 4½c.; cleaned Filiatras, 5½c.; cleaned Amalias, 6½c.

Evaporated apples are firmer than they have been this season. Good stock is well worth 7c., although some can be bought at 6½c.

NOTES.

Last week the Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association had the pleasure of entertaining the members of the New York Retail Grocers' Association, together with their wives and families, for a few hours. They arrived on Wednesday night, and on Thursday morning were escorted to the City Hall, where the whole number were introduced by the president of the New York association, Mr. J. Meyers, to the Mayor of Ottawa, Mr. Fred Cook. The mayor then invited them to be seated around the Council Chamber, when he spoke, welcoming them heartily to the city. He was replied to by the spokesman of the party, Mr. Frank Meyer, ex-mayor of Brooklyn. Mr. Provost then welcomed them on behalf of the Ottawa Grocers' Association, and was replied to by the president of their association. The local committee now took the visitors in hand, and proceeded to show them the sights of the city. Special electric cars were chartered for the occasion, and the party visited the Chaudiere Falls, Booth's and Eddy's mills, the business portion of the city, Rockcliffe Park and the Rifle Ranges. At noon they visited the Log Shanty at the Park, where pork and beans were put up in regular shanty style. The Americans seemed to enjoy this part of the entertainment immensely, a great deal more so than if they had been banquetted at the best hotel in Canada. They then boarded their steamer, the Rideau Queen, which was engaged for the round trip, and left about 2 p.m., en route for the Rideau Lakes.

This party consisted of 78 in all, and before leaving they expressed themselves as greatly pleased with Ottawa, which, as a city was a revelation to them for beauty and cleanliness. They thought the way goods were exposed for sale by the merchants here quite up to date, and in some ways better than their own.

The Ottawa association feel quite proud of the advertisement they have made for the city, and there is no doubt it will be the means of bringing other tourists from American points to Ottawa.

The committee in charge were assisted by the associate members of the association, who were as follows:—G. W. Shouldis, G. W. Hunt, T. C. Bate, Alphonse Provost, H. W. Booth, W. J. Eastcott, Chas. Provost, Wm. York, J. F. Sissons, Jas. McIntosh, Fred Lee, H. C. Ellis, A. M. Douglas, R. Tunnic.

J. E. Cox, late of J. G. Whyte & Sons, has opened up as a broker and commission merchant on his own account. Mr. Cox is so well known to Ottawa trade, that any line placed in his hands will meet with success.

Provost & Allard are just opening up a large consignment of Morton's goods, imported direct from England. They have another car of peanuts on the road from Missouri.

THE PRESERVATION OF EGGS.

By E. Wiggins, 48 Bramah Rd., Brixton, London, Eng.

THE preservation of eggs is no new thing. The method of using lime-water for this purpose is said to have originated in Holland more than six hundred years ago. But during recent years the importance of preserving eggs when they are cheap and plentiful has received a great deal of attention. During the next month or two eggs will be cheap on account of their abundance; later on they will be dear on account of their scarcity. The preservation of eggs can be carried on to a small as well as large extent. The best months of the year for this operation are March, April, May and June or July. Many methods have been adopted and at various times experiments have been conducted in different parts of the country. Among the materials used may be mentioned water-glass (silicate of soda) dry table salt, slacked lime and salt brine, a coating of vaseline, dry wood ashes, bran, finely powdered gypsum (sulphate of lime) powdered sulphur, permanganate of potash, salicylic acid, and salt brine, as well as the cold storage method. To preserve an egg the germs of putrification must be kept dormant, or destroyed, or their growth prevented in some way. The oxygen of the air is the chief factor in the changes which take place in the egg. Thus, in the preservation of eggs it is most essential that air should be either sterilized or excluded. Of all the devices made use of, that of water-glass (silicate of soda) has been proved to be the most satisfactory. The modus operandi is simple, and, providing that the circumstances will permit, can be undertaken by any grocer who may be desirous of keeping a good supply of eggs for the winter months. There can be no doubt about the remunerative side of this venture. In the first place, the eggs selected for preservation should be the best. The receptacle, for preference, should be an earthenware jar, or other vessel. Before placing the eggs in the preparation they should be carefully washed in cold water. Water-glass can be obtained from almost any chemist or druggist; the price is usually half-a-crown a gallon. This material is easily manipulated and has the advantage that it can be used more than once. A ten per cent. solution is the strength required; but a three per cent. solution has been found to possess a complete preservative power. To obtain a ten per cent. solution one pound of water-glass should be used to nine pints of water, (boiled water serves the purpose best). The eggs should be placed in the earthenware jar, and the solution poured over them so as to cover the top layer to the extent of about one inch. The receptacle requires a covering so as to keep the contents as air-tight as possible. They should then be placed in a cellar where a temperature of not less than 33 deg. Fahr., nor more than 45 degrees can be maintained. It is better if the jars can be raised off the floor to enable a current of air to pass underneath. If any of the eggs have a tendency to float something should be used to avoid this, in some instances an inverted saucer has proved successful. New laid eggs are the most profitable to preserve, and they should be placed in the water-glass solution as soon after they are laid as possible, but not before they have cooled. When the eggs are taken out for use they will be found sticky and should be wiped before package. The outlay of water-glass at half-a-crown a gallon amounts to about one-third of a penny per dozen eggs. In addition there would be the cost of the jars; but although these are, as above stated, all the better for being earthenware, yet glass or wood may be used, providing that the latter is water-tight. Eggs placed in this solution of water-glass will be found to be perfectly sound next December.

Cold storage has proved a useful factor also in enhancing the keeping properties of the matutinal egg. In selecting eggs for cold storage care should be taken to see that only new laid ones are obtained; where possible also it is advisable to have them infertile, as, when fertile eggs get exposed to a temperature of 90 to 100 degrees for even a short time, they will deteriorate, the germ will start in life, and no subsequent treatment will then be of any avail to impart a quality of freshness. Eggs for cold storage should, if possible, be gathered every morning, before the sun has gained any strength, and placed at once in the storage boxes in a cool place. To attain the highest success they should be graded as to color and size, the boxes being marked accordingly. Care should also be taken to have them clean and free from unsightly stains. The boxes used should be of the usual trade size, holding 36 dozen, and packers should see that they are made of odourless timber, as eggs are peculiarly liable to absorb flavors from their surroundings. Another important point is to see that the boxes are thoroughly dry before being used; this also applies to the "fillers," otherwise musti. ness is almost sure to ensue. Beyond the "fillers" of tasteless cardboard, no packing of any kind should be used, as the natural moisture exuding from the eggs should be allowed to escape, otherwise a musty flavor is likely to be perceptible when the cases are opened. Eggs for storage should be forwarded to the cold rooms as soon as packed. Provided that the eggs are given the proper temperature in the cold storage department, the effect will be that everything in the egg is held in suspense, undergoing no change whatever during the storage.

South African Provision Market.

THE recent falling off in the volume of orders for provisions and kindred goods from the South African market is attributed by "Grocery," London, Eng., to the action of the military authorities in South Africa, who have recently been, what may be termed, "off-loading" surplus stores on the various local markets in huge quantities, and disposing of them at greatly reduced rates—in fact, at any price they will fetch, at public auction.

Information in our hands shows that the total of these sales amount to about £3,500,000, and the stores, which are of the most miscellaneous character, embracing farinaceous and other foodstuffs, preserved and tinned meats and fruits, beers, wines, spirits, liqueurs, mineral and other drinks, tobacco and cigars, jams, sauces, vinegar, etc., have been parcelled out among twelve towns in the several colonies in certain proportions, and acquired, for a large part, by the retail clients of coast houses, who have exhausted all their ready financial means to make profit out of the opportunity.

The effect of this arrangement is two-fold. The trade of the coast houses, and, as a consequence, that of oversea merchants, has fallen off, and, on the other hand, the retailers, having spent all their available means, and pending the realization of their purchases in a glutted market, are ignoring their financial obligations to the wholesale merchants from whom they usually draw their supplies. As a consequence, the latter are hit in a double degree—by the lack of the usual trade and also of due remittances.

Dislocation of the normal course of business of this kind is a result which might have been foreseen by the military authorities, if they had cared to do so, before they launched their surplus stocks on the market, and some arrangement devised to safeguard the interests of wholesale and coast firms. It is surely an ill policy which sacrifices the interests of one class of the community to those of another, and it is really absurd and a breach of common sense that the military authorities, when they trespass beyond their sphere and enter into the domain of commerce, should do so to the detriment of legitimate trade by underselling the market.

Industrial Packing Co., Limited

WM. J. FALCONER, merchant; John Burns, farmer; and John Oliver, real estate and insurance agent, all of the town of Palmerston, Ont.; Hugh Cunningham, farmer, of the village of Ethel, Ont., and James Stewart, financial agent, of the city of Toronto, have been incorporated as The Industrial Packing Co., Limited, with a share capital of $300,000, divided into 6,000 shares of $50 each. The head office of the company is to be at Palmerston, and is authorized to slaughter and dress cattle, hogs and poultry, and to engage in and carry on a general packing-house and canning business, and to buy, sell and deal in all kinds of fresh and cured meats, eggs, butter and cheese, and all other kinds of farm produce, also canned goods and fruits.

Cause of Tainted Milk.

The cause of tainted milk, which is the source of much loss to cheese factories, is, according to a late bulletin of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, largely the result of undesirable germs which get into the milk during and after milking. Care in keeping the barnyard and cows clean, and brushing the flanks and udders of the latter before milking, will eliminate most of the trouble. Other causes of tainted milk are said to be absorption of neighboring odors, impure water supply, and improper food, such as turnips and rape. Free access to salt on the part of the cows is an important factor in improving the quality and flavor of the milk, and the butter and cheese made from it.

Canadian Produce in England.

A despatch from London, Eng., states that English dealers are selling Canadian produce as the English article. For instance, Collingwood hams are sold as best Cumberland, and Canadian cheese as English cheddar, thus showing that the quality of Canadian produce equals England's best. Its sale as English produce enables the retailer to buy Canadian goods at a depreciated price, while the quality of the product enables him to dishonestly sell it as the best home-grown. The despatch suggests that if Canadian produce were indelibly marked, its quality would command a price from the consumer vastly in excess of that obtained at present.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

The demand for cured meats continues firm on all sides, and the volume of trade done is satisfactory. Lard is still easy, however, but there has so far been no break in the prices quoted last week. Quotations are uniformally unchanged. We quote:

These departments of trade show good steady business, but nothing new or exciting. In cured meats, hams and breakfast bacons are off ½c., but otherwise there is no change. In dressed meats, the supply of good steers is limited, but of butchers ordinary there is more than enough; prices are firm. Mutton and lamb continue scarce, and a good deal of the latter offering is not of first quality. The sheep for mutton are coming almost entirely from Ontario. It is claimed that sheep raisers in the West find ample market for all they have to sell nearer home.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

TORONTO.

BUTTER.—Receipts of butter continue heavy and values have eased off from ½ to 1c. per lb. since last week. In creamery prints an accumulation is reported, largely accounted for by the large offering of especially good dairy prints. The English market does not seem to have improved since last writing and little has been forwarded. One dealer reported no inquiries and no sales. He was of the opinion that we would have to supply better butter at closer rates before we could control the English market. At present the Danish butter supplies the top quality demanded, while the Russian is making large inroads on the cheaper market. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 17	0 19
" solids, fresh	0 17	0 18
Dairy rolls, large	....	....
" prints	0 15	0 16
" in tubs	0 14	0 15

CHEESE.—The market is easier since a week ago and quotations show a drop of from ¼ to ½c per lb. Prices are still higher than a year ago, and at present rates there is but a light demand for export with little going forward, except for sales made some time ago. The quality is not on the whole up to last year, which saw the high water mark for good cheese. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 10	0 10½
" twins, new	0 10½	0 10¾

MONTREAL.

BUTTER.—The market has been a very irregular one and hard to quote—no doubt caused by the total absence of any export demand. Finest eastern has been bought on this market for 18 to 18¼c.; occasional fancy lots or pet creameries bringing 18½c. In the jobbing way and to the retail grocers 19 to 19½c. is the ruling price.

CHEESE.—During the past week prices have declined about ½c., but dealers state that this is not sufficient and are daily expecting a further decline. It has been slow in coming, owing to the fact that some of the exporters have sold short and are now buying to cover these sales. The ruling price for Quebecs has been from 9 to 9⅜c., Ontario, 9½ to 9⅝c., in the country, costing about 9¾c. in Montreal, but even this price, we understand, cannot be obtained over the cable. Grocers are buying new goods at 10 to 10½c. from the jobbers. There is practically no old cheese on the market.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—Prices are easy; there are large receipts. Sales seem light, as demand is largely filled by direct shipments from producers to the retail trade, and even to consumers.

CHEESE.—Prices, while lower, seem quite firm. The local trade will not accept anything but twins, so that large cheese are hard to sell, except for export. Quotations are:

Butter, creamery prints, per lb	0 22	0 24
" creamery solids (fresh made), per lb	0 20	0 22

BACK FROM THE GREAT WEST.

W. L. HUNTER, western representative of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, is in Montreal. In an interview with THE GROCER Mr. Hunter reported having an excellent trip. He met a number of old friends in the Territories, with whom he opened up business for his house. He speaks in the highest terms of the business conditions and possibilities of the Great West.

"What impressed me particularly," said Mr. Hunter, in answer to the inquiry as to the new emigration, "was the extent of the settlers' movement and the steady improvement in the western towns which have been recently opened up. It is remarkable, and there does not appear to be anything of a mushroom character about the places."

Asked as to the condition of affairs in the British Columbian mining districts, Mr. Hunter is of the opinion, based on observation and inquiry, that but a short time will elapse before there will be a steady resumption of mining in the silver lead mining districts. In the boundary section better conditions prevail, as, owing to the advance in copper, the industry is now on an excellent paying basis. Further than this, gold mining has developed to a large extent in West Kootenay, and the smelters at Trail, Greenwood and Grand Forks are kept busy running day and night. The drawback to a full resumption of business in British Columbia has been the prevalence of labor strikes, which, together with political complications, has spread a period of depression over the province as unnatural as it is undeserved.

Indications are not wanting, however, that the end of this unsatisfactory state of affairs is approaching, as it will probably form the subject of legislation during the first session of the Local House.

In Vancouver Mr. Hunter was struck with the number of whilom easterners to be met, many of them old-time friends, who are now in business and thriving. Mr. Hunter, after a two weeks' vacation, will return to his territory.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. H. Magor, Montreal, returned from a five weeks' visit to Great Britain. His bronzed face and healthy physique bespeak the good time he has had in spite of its being a purely commercial journey.

Mr. D. Gilmour, of Chase & Sanborn, has shaken the dust of Montreal from off his feet and hied himself to the shores of the Bay of Fundy for his annual Summer outing. Mr. Gilmour possesses a splendid Summer home at St. George, N.B., and every Summer recuperates under the cooling breezes of the Bay of Fundy.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE Toronto Retail Grocers' Association held its regular monthly meeting in St. George's Hall, Elm street, Monday night last, with President David Bell in the chair, and a goodly representation of the members present.

The attention of the meeting, after routine business was disposed of, was devoted to perfecting the arrangements for the 17th annual excursion of the association, which is to take place on Wednesday, the 22nd, to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, via the steamers Lakeside and Garden City, connecting at Port Dalhousie with the electric cars.

Mr. Van Loon, on behalf of the committee which had gone over to spy out the land, reported all arrangements made. A 35c. rate from the Falls to Buffalo had been secured, providing 150 of the party decided to go. Mr. Van Loon was enthusiastic in his description of the hospitality meted out to the committee by Mr. Robertson, the transport agent.

The question of music was brought up and the appropriation increased to $40, while Messrs. Kelly, Coots and Van Loon were appointed a committee to arrange for it.

Secretary Nettlefield produced some sample ribbons for badges, and quoted rates which had been offered. It was decided to have white badges for the guests and colored badges for the members of the association. The president and the secretary were authorized to attend to this matter.

A few other details as to the excursion were discussed, after which, under the head of "good of the order," the matter of price-cutting was brought up. It was stated that a number of dealers were taking advantage of the coupons attached to Force packages to cut prices. The secretary was instructed to communicate with the Force people in regard to the matter.

The meeting then adjourned.

A. A. Steward, of L. and J. A. Steward Co., Rutland, Vt., paid a visit to the Montreal office of "The Grocer" a few days ago. Mr. Steward was in Canada calling on the canners and pork packers, in the interests of his firm, who are manufacturers of machinery for canning purposes and the like.

Lees & Langley, of Colborne street, Toronto, manufacturers of Worcestershire sauce, have purchased the business recently carried on by The American Coffee Co. at Front street east, where it is their intention to concentrate the whole of their manufactures. They are carrying a full line of coffees and all goods connected with the spice trades at best values. Their address will be 109 Front street east, Toronto.

THE WESTERN FRUIT TRADE.

THE fruit division of the Agricultural Department, Ottawa, has issued a bulletin to the effect that Ontario's fruit trade with the west is in a critical condition, owing to the fact that Ontario shippers persist in neglecting to adopt the methods of packing demanded by western conditions. This confirms the paragraph in our last week's Winnipeg letter, stating that "Western fruit jobbers begin to despair of ever getting decently packed fruit from Ontario."

Numerous requests, says the bulletin, have been received for Ontario fruit of the best quality put up in neat and attractive packages of the sort western dealers prefer to handle. Fruit Inspector Philp, of Winnipeg, writes that unless Ontario now makes a determined bid for the trade, the market will be occupied almost exclusively by fruit from California, Oregon and British Columbia ; even Kansas and Missouri are becoming strong competitors in apples.

The packages wanted in the Winnipeg market, according to Mr. Philp, are ; Early apples, the bushel box ; pears, the half-box, holding 20 lb. of wrapped fruit ; peaches and plums, the crate holding four boxes, similar to those used by California shippers, and which are well known to the Canadian markets.

This question of packing is a vexed one in the Ontario fruit trade. It is most humiliating that Ontario fruit cannot be placed on the Winnipeg market in as good condition as fruit from San Francisco. The western market for fruit is already a large one, and will increase in value year by year, and yet, for want of a little care in packing, this lucrative trade is slipping through the fingers of Ontario fruit growers.

It is not enough to grow good fruit ; it must be put on the market in good condition and in the shape preferred by the consumer. Fruit in a neat attractive package is half sold.

Let the fruit shippers take a lesson from the cereal food people and make their packages attractive in appearance, as well as convenient in size.

More direct transportation should also be secured. At present, according to the bulletin of the Department, fruit is often forwarded from Toronto to Winnipeg, via Smith's Falls, or even Montreal, instead of direct by North Bay.

There is evident need for immediate and concentrated action on the part of Ontario fruit men, if they are to take their place in the western market.

STRONG PEPPER MARKET.

ALL indications point to a very strong pepper market shortly. The price now is firm with a tendency upwards, and stocks, in some quarters, are smaller than they have been for a number of years. Grinders have, of late, been demanding larger quantities, though there is little speculation, as it is felt that buying will be of a hand-to-mouth character ; prices are most likely to gradually advance.

The visible supply in New York, up to August 15, is estimated to be no more than 9,000 or 10,000 bags, with stocks of Acheen and Lampong peppers together amounting to about 2,000 bags at the outside.

On the New York market little business has been done in pepper to arrive, though the demand on spot is good. Consequently, sellers have offered July, September and October–November shipments at 12½c. per lb., which was followed by a small amount of business, sufficient, however, to cause the sellers to advance the price about ¼c.

Stocks in London are placed at about 1,200 tons of black and 900 tons of white.

MONTREAL'S EXPORT TRADE.

ALTHOUGH in two or three items the export business of the port of Montreal from the opening of navigation to the end of the fiscal year, June 30, shows some decrease, the general trade has been very satisfactory. The Montreal Board of Trade have compiled the following table of the exports this season, as compared with last :

	1902	1903
Wheat	6,111,468	5,259,350
Corn	17,150	1,647,574
Rye	240,645	350,123
Oats	562,332	239,612
Barley	65,563	140,419
Cheese	350,561	399,880
Butter	82,241	30,123
Cattle	15,956	36,303
B'x'd meat	28,090	33,706

In the above list it will be seen that while three items show decreases in the volume of export business, six show increases, some of them very large. The decreases include wheat, oats and butter, the last being over 52,000 packages short of the export number of 1902. Wheat shipments are also considerably less, so far, but it is a satisfaction to know that about three-quarters of the wheat shipped is Canadian grown.

Owing to the small amount of corn shipped last year from United States sources, the increase in the export this year is not surprising. It is the largest in the list. The increase in cheese amounts to nearly 70,000 boxes, a most satisfsctory showing, considering the high prices ruling on the English market. Cattle shipments also give cause for rejoicing, though a portion of the cattle shipped this year from Montreal came from the United States. Much of the boxed meats in the above list is also of American origin, but Canadian shipments have been good.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST CANADIAN GOODS.

TRADE with South Africa has received considerable attention from Canadian exporters during the past few years, and the action of the Federal Government in subsidizing a steamship service from Canada to Cape Town and Durban is in line with a progressive policy only too necessary to develop a trade that was becoming practically monopolized by our friends to the south.

When the Government entered into the subsidy agreement with the Furness-Withy line of steamships plying between Montreal and South Africa it was naturally assumed that the movement was started with the view of encouraging Canadian manufacturers and shippers. It was to be reckoned with that American shippers would in all likelihood take advantageof the line as well, owing to their ability to secure low inland rates to Montreal, and some of the most prominent western firms have not been slow to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them ; but it is somewhat startling to learn that a discrimination in favor of American shippers is manifested by the subsidized steamship company.

Our attention was called the other day to what seems to us to be an unjust partiality shown an American concern recently as against one of the largest Canadian packers in Montreal in the loading of freight for South African ports. The last steamer leaving was the Wyandotte, and it seems that The Laing Packing Co. of Montreal, who are amongst the most progressive exporters of Canadian dressed meats, had arranged for storage space on the vessel. Orders were given to The Lilley-Cameron Cartage Co. to commence loading June 29 and 30, and deliveries were made on the days named. It appears that, owing to July 1 being a holiday, the balance of the shipments were not offered until July 2, when, on arriving at the dock, the captain of the Wyandotte refused to permit the Canadian goods to be taken on board, and after keeping the Canadian goods waiting for over two hours, sent them back to the packing-house, but took on 10 carloads of American beef, which were standing in refrigerator cars in the dock.

The cartage company's protest was of no avail, and the result was that about 50 cases of Canadian meat were left behind, while the 10 carloads of American meat secured storage room.

It seems to us a matter for Federal investigation, and should it be shown that Canadian shippers are being discriminated against the parties at fault should be brought to task. Canadian manufacturers and shippers should at least have equal opportunities with competitors, to say nothing of a legitimate preference, on their own subsidized lines, but when it comes to a case like this, where Canadian goods were kept in the sun for over two hours, and then absolutely refused, while American shipments were being loaded out of refrigerator cars, it seems to us time to enter a protest in the name of our Canadian manufacturers and shippers. It will be the object of THE GROCER to fully investigate cases of discrimination against Canadian exporters, and should they be proven, to follow the matter up until a remedy is applied.

CANADIAN FLOUR IN TRINIDAD.

A SHORT time ago complaint was heard from Trinidad that shipments of Canadian flour had not been keeping well. THE GROCER wrote to Gordon, Grant & Co., of Port-of-Spain, enquiring the cause, and their reply was published in our Export Number. The fault was largely, it seems, that of the shippers, who were not sufficiently particular in sending their goods to a climate so trying as that of Trinidad, and occasionally sent consignments which were known not to possess good keeping qualities.

It is gratifying to notice in the last Commercial Review published by Gordon, Grant & Co. that a recent consignment of Canadian flour per S.S. Ocamo turned out of reliable quality and found ready sale.

Evidently, with sufficient care, our breadstuffs can be placed on the tropical markets in good condition. It behooves our exporters to build up a sound reputation by attending to those little details which make all the difference between success and failure.

THE DEMAND FOR CANADIAN FRUIT.

FROM the report of a Californian fruit exporter it appears that there is a great future for Canadian fruit on the English market, as well as for other products. He states that his own firm are already experiencing difficulty in controlling the market there, as they once did, owing to the fact that with the increasing sentiment in favor of the colonies, the British people are giving the preference to Canada and the other colonies. Grapes, peaches and other fruits from Canada, certainly hold their own in point of flavor with those from any other countries, and though it will likely take some time to convince the people of Great Britain generally that such fruits are grown successfully in this country, yet when the awakening comes, there will be room in Canada for many more orchards, vineyards and fruit farms.

TRAVELLERS' VACATION.

THE movement for securing a uniform date for the Ontario Grocery Travellers' vacation seems to have found an obstacle in the fact that the Toronto and western houses have not been able to agree on the same two weeks. The Toronto people have agreed on the two weeks ending August 15, while the western people on a week later.

It would be regrettable if this matter should not be adjusted. It is in the interests of all that the vacation period should be uniform throughout the province, and the travelling men turned loose in a body.

It is not yet too late, and it is to be hoped that the houses concerned may arrive at some agreement, which, without prejudicing the legitimate interests of any, may result in the settling of a common date.

He who would avoid being overtaken by failure should keep up with the details of his business.

COMMERCIAL INTEGRITY.

THE experience of manufacturers, regarding the conduct of dealers in handling their goods, varies considerably. The many advantages and great convenience of the dealer to the manufacturer, is indisputable. He serves as a medium for distribution, at once complete and effective, and therefore of great value; beside which he saves to the manufacturer the multiplicity of detail, risk and expense which naturally arises upon the more minute distribution. The dealer, owing to the great number of lines handled by him, is in a position to undertake these responsibilities at a commission comparably small to the cost it would mean to the individual manufacturer, were he to undertake such.

Further, the dealer who retains the good-will and confidence of his retail clients is clearly in a position to introduce more readily and effectually the many new and varied kinds of products which it is continually necessary to bring forward, if the reputation of the manufacturer is to be maintained.

This latter point without doubt is one of the dealer's strongholds. The retail merchant regards his jobber, not merely as a medium of supply, but as a channel, by means of which, he is enabled to keep continually in touch with the constantly varying markets, and from whom he can obtain those courtesies of information and advice which often will make all the difference between profitable and unprofitable business.

Without question, confidence is the great establishing factor in building up a clientage; the dealer who can command the confidence of his patrons secures for himself an asset which will survive the keenest of competition. But to obtain this, he must be moved by a principle far in advance of, and which will surmount, the often delusive considerations of dollars and cents—notwithstanding the important part they play in the race for success.

There are, however, men who are too short-sighted to see beyond the range of present advantage, who greedily seize any opportunity to make a few additional dollars, and who will stoop to make mean use of this confidence to suit their ends, even though it be at the expense of that principle which is a positive necessity to healthy business existence.

That this class of man is to be met with in all positions of trade and commerce is unfortunately true, but nevertheless their presence should stimulate every honest trader to denounce and expose their methods.

Our experience of such men is that they are short-lived, seldom succeeding in holding trade for any length of time, notwithstanding their ability to deceive. Still it is difficult to estimate the extent of damage thus done to healthy trade.

Quite lately our attention has been called to an example of what was, to say the least, a palpably mean and discreditable way of opposing a manufacturer and which it seems difficult to credit, were it not that the information came from indisputable authority.

The said manufacturer making, as he does, a line of goods of undoubted quality, to maintain which necessitates a deal of extra expense and labor, has had his wrappings and packages copied, in almost every particular, by a rival firm who are making goods to imitate, but decidedly inferior in quality to those supplied by the first manufacturer, and at, of course, a much lower price than it is possible to produce the better class goods.

It is in the very nature of things that competition will always be active to avail itself of any noticeable success in any given line, and is, in all probability, an incentive rather than a hindrance to trade, but competition, to be beneficial, must be on equably correct lines, and the first principle should be that all goods should stand on their intrinsic merit alone and not dependent upon subterfuge for an entrance into market.

Now, this imitation by no means disconcerted the manufacturer referred to, believing as he did, and having every reason to believe, that, taken on their absolute worth, his product would come out on top, and that the dealers would not be deceived by the similarity of their "get up."

This in many instances proved correct. But where the real injustice of the situation comes in, as has been pointed out on other occasions, is between dealer and retailer. And it is upon this feature that comment becomes necessary.

The retailer mails his order to his jobber, mentioning, amongst other things, a line of So-and-So's goods, and the jobber, alive to the extra profit on the deal and knowing his man, sends off a line of another make, got up to look like the better article, trusting to his ingenuity to meet complaint should one arise. The retailer, however, probably in immediate need of the goods in question, places them in store for sale and the error is not detected until it is too late for correction, and possibly injury has been done to his trade.

Now, as regards the manufacturer there is little to say. It is clear that as regards his goods he is quite at liberty to make what quality he desires and whatever style he thinks fit, but for his own reputation's sake, and the permanent success of his venture, it would have been better to place his goods on the market in an independent way and on their own merits, to say nothing of the injustice done to the goods imitated.

But the dealer stands in a different light and no excuse can be raised to justify anything on his part bearing the semblance of deception. Standing as he does as a middleman between manufacturer and trader, it is of the very first importance that he give fair and equal consideration to every product coming to his hand, and warrant, in every way, his position as trusted agent of the manufacturer. No language can be found adequate to condone conduct of the character before mentioned.

And equally so is it the duty of the jobber to see that any variation or imitation, such as we mention, is pointed out to his retail friends, that in their turn they may be readily on guard to protect their customers.

In these days of easy and quick communication, there can be no excuse for introducing such unequal and deceptive methods of competition. The traveller, telephone and telegraph place jobber and merchant in such ready touch with one another, that the "out of stock," and "just as good" excuses cannot for a moment hold water, and the retail merchant will do well to think twice before placing further confidence in firms resorting to such manœuvres.

As between wholesaler and retailer the greatest confidence should exist in the interests of both parties, and for the maintainance of that commercial morality without which healthy business life cannot be maintained.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, July 16, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THE general trade outlook has been fairly good since our last issue, and the volume of business done is considered satisfactory. On the street, however, whilst there has been a good amount of activity regarding futures, there is not the same degree of satisfaction. In canned goods business continues to be well maintained, and it is contemplated that by the time new packs come to hand old stocks will have almost disappeared, provided present demand continues. Coffee still maintains a fair demand and prices are ruling firm. In spices there is nothing to chronicle, the interest being of small character with prices still ruling firm. Rice and tapioca continue to call for a fair degree of attention and are well maintaining quotations. Syrups and molasses are notably weak at this season, and the present is by no means an exception. The home tea trade is not over active; there has been a fair degree of business done, but no disposition to buy largely on present market conditions. The London market reports still denote a strong position, teas showing quality being well competed for, and ruling at fully up prices, whilst the commoner grades, although showing tendency to weaken, still show considerable advance over last year's averages, and it is expected will maintain firmness in coming sales. Dried fruits are continuing to be well in demand, and stocks on spot are being materially reduced with prices ruling firm. The demand for sugar since our last has been exceedingly good and there has been some substantial business doing. On July 10 there was an advance of 10c. per 100 lb. on all domestic refined in sympathy with the advance on American markets, and we have revised our list below accordingly.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade continues satisfactory as regards canned goods, the demand being still well maintained. Stocks are much reduced and it is found difficult to keep up the supply in many lines. Prices are continuing firm at previous quotations. We quote:

COFFEES.

There has been a fairly even demand in milder grades of coffee on the home market since last issue and prices are ruling firm at previous quotations. The N. Y. market reports business as very slow with prices slightly yielding. Reports from primal markets denote crops as continuing full. We quote:

SUGAR.

The markets have developed considerable strength since our last, and we have to record an advance of 1-16 to ⅛ in raw sugars. There have been sales of Muscovado sugars, 89 test, at 3 1-16, and later at 3⅛, also of centrifugals at last quotation of 3 9-16, and we hear of sales at 3⅝, with sellers now asking 3 11-16 and buyers disposed to accept offerings for shipment on this basis. The market is very firm with holders asking higher prices and with a good demand for refined. Refiners are ready buyers. Stock at U.S. four ports for week ending July 8 was 328,000 tons; receipts being for the week 39,834 tons, and meltings, 30,000 tons; the reduction in meltings for week being due to closing of refineries over the holidays. Cables from Cuba report stock 325,000 against 387,740 tons at same time last year, with four central factories still grinding. Combined stocks of U. S. and Europe at latest uneven dates were 2,550,061 tons, against 2,624,780 tons at same period last year, the decrease being 74,719 tons. Europe has shown increasing strength with quotations for 88 per cent., fluctuating between 7s. 10½d. and 7s. 11½d. for July shipment basis f.o.b. Hamburg. According to latest cable reports there was a reduction in the world's visible supply of 60,000 tons for the week. Total figures were 10,000 tons less than last year.

In refined we have to report greatly increased activity with heavy withdrawals under existing contracts and American refiners being several days oversold. With new business all orders are being accepted subject to delay in shipment. Quotations were advanced 10c. per 100 lb. all round, with the exception of Arbuckle's refinery, on morning of July 10, and this advance was promptly followed by a similar advance in Canadian quotations, which we show in list at foot. There is a decidedly better demand locally, consumption being good, and dealers generally showing disposition to anticipate requirements in view of strong attitude of foreign markets. We quote:

SPICES.

Spices continue featureless on the home market, with previous quotations remaining firm. The advices from primal markets continue strong with upward tendency on pepper quotations. We quote :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The demand in these goods has been well maintained since our last issue and previous quotations continue firm. Foreign reports denote surplus stocks as exceedingly light, dealers not being at all anxious to market. Many southern rice mills have nothing on hand to offer. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Trade in these goods remains inactive with nothing of interest to notice. Local stocks are light and prices continue firm at previous quotations. New York reports are of steady markets at full prices, refiners' stocks on hand being small. The tone of market in molasses is pointing to a decidedly upward tendency. We quote :

TEAS.

The business on home market in tea has not been in great activity since our last issue, the tendency being decidedly in favor of keeping up merely immediate requirements at present prices. The London market reports denote the demand as fairly brisk, running principally on common tea, ranging 6d. to 7d., with a decidedly upward tendency. The new season's offerings coming forward are about average for early manufacture. Good class teas are likely to be well competed for, and a strong market is expected for the better quality invoices. The outlook for the present season is so far favorable for producers. With moderate production and judicious handling there does not appear to be any real reason why stocks should unduly accumulate as they have done in the past. The present aspect is clearly a commercially healthy one. The over supply of the last few years appears now to be well worked off, and with the demand continuing to be well maintained, offerings are likely to be well competed for. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The home demand continues to be satisfactory, and stocks are being severely drawn upon, with the result that prices are ruling firm. The reports from primal markets denote crops in fine condition and a plentiful harvest is expected in both currants and raisins, with prospects of their reaching market in advance of last season's opening. GREEN FRUITS.

This week has shown a fairly satisfactory turn over in the fruit market. Strawberries are out of the market, but raspberries have come in in reasonable quantities, but the indications point to a short season. New Canadian apples are making their appearance on the market at 40 to 60c. per basket. California apricots have eased off 25c. and peaches strengthened 15c. Oranges generally are a little easier, lemons are up and watermelons 5c. higher than last week. Black currants are a little lower. Raspberries maintain last week's figures. We quote :

VEGETABLES.

The vegetable market is receiving large supplies and meeting with brisk demand. Green peas are an important feature, ranging from 75c. to $1.50 a bag, the outside figure being for large pods. Canadian potatoes of excellent quality have begun to come in in large quantities at 80 to 90c. per bushel, a drop of 20 to 25c. since last week. Cucumbers are scarce and high. Asparagus is off the market, and parsnips are offered at 40c. per dozen. Butter beans are offered in larger quantities at easier prices. We quote :

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of " The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., July 14, 1903.

BUSINESS continues active in nearly all lines. Orders are largely, as is usual at this season, for smaller quantities than move either in Spring or Fall. It is a sorting-up business. The weather keeps cool ; we read with surprise of the extreme heat at other points ; in fact, but a few miles inland from our city, but with us it has been even rather cool. There was a meeting of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild during the past week, which was the annual meeting, with representatives from Halifax and other points. The visitors were given a dinner by the local members. In markets there have been few changes. In cream of tartar some sales are reported at somewhat reduced prices.

OIL.—In burning oil the rather lower prices reported still rule. The difference in price between American and Canadian is now very slight. Some sales for Fall are being made. At the lower prices ruling for turpentine there is quite free buying. Linseed is unchanged. In lubricating oil things are rather quiet. Little cod oil has been received ; it is yet early. Rather higher prices are expected. Quotations are :

CANNED GOODS.—This is a line of very much interest. While the association have declared their terms, the trade here have not, at this time of writing, taken action. There are many packers outside. It is difficult to see how the present method can be worked to success. In spot market, corn is quite plentiful ; peas are scarce and still high ; the near approach of new prevents the advance being as high as otherwise would be the case. Tomatoes are still very high. Fruits command a fair business. Salmon is dull. Meats sell freely at even prices. Oysters are again slightly higher. Quotations are :

GREEN FRUIT.—Business is very active. Bananas were never as plentiful or as cheap. Oranges are firmer, and but fair in quality. Lemons range rather higher, they have a free sale. Strawberries are quite plentiful, but the sale is active and receipts have not been as large as were expected, so that prices are rather higher. Melons, this week, were

DRIED FRUIT.—There is little interest. Some few orders for Valencia raisins, currants and Malaga seeded raisins have been given. Peels have largely been ordered. Prices have somewhat declined and orders will be about as last year. New California prunes, apricots and peaches have been quoted, but trade is little interested. New dates are being bought. In spot goods, movement is very light. Nuts have quite a free sale. New Chili walnuts are here. In peanuts, higher prices rule. We quote:

FISH.—Salmon are still being freely received, though the catch is not more than an average one. Prices have been well maintained, and are likely to be firmer. Some few very nice shad are being offered. Pickled shad are very high. Halibut keep quite low. In dry fish there is little change; business is rather quiet. Smoked herring are still scarce and high, but there is little sale. Pickled herring also have a light demand, but new goods bring quite full figures. We quote:

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL.—In flour there is little change. Quite an advance was reported a little while ago in Manitoba, but it seemed to be only a report. In Ontario flours quite full figures rule. Oats and oatmeal show quite a range in price, but tend firm. Cornmeal is rather higher. Beans seem easier. Barley and peas are rather scarce. We quote:

NOTES.

The many friends of Mr. Saunders, representative for Armour & Co., are greatly pleased to see him in town this week very much improved in health.

Theo. H. Estabrooks, packer of "Red Rose" tea, has gone to Toronto for a short visit to overlook his western business, which shows a large and rapid growth.

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Maritime Wholesale Grocers' Guild:—President, C. H. Peters, of Baird & Peters; 1st vice-president, H. G. Bauld, of Halifax; 2nd vice-president, S. A. Corbett, of this city; secretary, W. H. Aitken, of Charlottetown. The visiting members were entertained by the St. John men at dinner at the Union Club, and left for home by the late train, highly pleased with the meeting and the harmony that prevailed. The next meeting will probably be held in Halifax.

While the name of Sir Thomas Lipton is now on every tongue, it may be of interest to state that the first Lipton store in New Brunswick was opened last week in St. John. It is in the McLauchlin building on Germain street.

W. A. Simonds, formerly of the C.P.R. passenger department, has been appointed to the position of agent in New Brunswick for all Lipton's goods. J. N. Creed & Co., of Montreal, are the Canadian agents, and are now forming a stock company which will extend the business to all parts of the country.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, July 13, 1903.

THE wholesale grocery houses have maintained a fairly steady volume of business during the last week, quite up to the average amount booked during the usual period of mid-summer dulness. Conditions generally have a healthy aspect, and collections, though not up to the mark, have been much better than was anticipated. A month ago some dealers were so pessimistic,—and indeed there was some excuse for it—that they were free to think that Nova Scotia was on the eve of the hardest time she had ever experienced. Since then crop conditions have materially altered for the better, more money has come into circulation from various directions, and the prospects for the balance of the year are much brighter.

The consumer, however, is bound to experience high prices. If the farmer's crops are light, he will be able to command higher prices, expecially in such products as are not easily imported from abroad. Just now, the strawberry crop is being marketed, and it is found to be extremely light. In former years the amount nightly brought in from the Annapolis Valley would amount to three to four hundred crates, of two dozen quart boxes each. This year, the quantity is less than two hundred; on Thursday last there being only 152, and on Friday 150. The quantity coming in by the morning train has also decreased proportionally. The result is that strawberries are retailing at fifteen, eighteen and twenty cents a box, according to the quantity on the market.

The hay market is also affected by crop conditions. Considerable quantities of last year's crop have been held by growers and traders, and these are not anxious to sell at any price. As high as fourteen dollars has been bid for carload lots, and not accepted. Sixteen dollars is being quoted in some quarters for No. 1. One dealer last week expressed the opinion that should the Quebec hay crop be even comparatively small, or should it find as good a market elsewhere as it did this season, the Maritime Provinces will see $20 hay before the Spring of 1904. The present prospects are that the Maritime Provinces will have no hay for export from this season's crop.

Butter is now in fairly good supply and prices have eased off one cent all round. Cheese is coming in in small lots, but, that put on the market is not up to the usual standard. Eggs are scarce, and not of the most reliable quality; there has been an advance of 1 to 2c. on good stock. Beef is not over abundant, and some western stock has to be imported. Lamb is quite plentiful. Fowls and chicken are scarce. Potato stocks are about sold out, and the consumers are looking anxiously for new potatoes. By July 1 green peas have usually been selling freely in the market, but this season has been so backward that few have come in. St. John reported green peas on the market on June 29. Sydney market prices last week were reported slightly higher for farm produce than Halifax.

There was a meeting of the Maritime Grocers' Guild in St. John last Thursday, when some of the Halifax and Dartmouth grocers attended. What business was done has not been reported.

* * *

Another cargo of molasses arrived last week from Fajardo, Porto Rico, consisting of 624 puncheons, 51 tierces, and 31 barrels, imported by Geo. P. Mitchell & Sons, Ltd.

R.C.H.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 13, 1903.

INTEREST still continues to centre in the canned goods situation. The statement from The Consolidated Canning Co. has been received, but, so far, the contracts are not to hand. Until the actual contracts have been received, and gone into, jobbers will not express an opinion on the scheme, though judging from casual remarks, it is not looked upon with favor.

The jobbing trade is good in all lines, in fact, is keeping up surprisingly, as the flatness usually experienced in the early part of July is not yet making itself felt.

The all absorbing subject of conversation now is the crops, that is, of course, politics excepted, and the news coming in is encouraging. Roughly speaking, the crop will, as a whole, show about the same as last year. This may seem strange when the acreage is larger, but the fact is that the dry weather did rather more damage to wheat on old land than was at first estimated. On summer fallow and new breaking or deeply cultivated land the crop is luxuriant, but on stubble plowing it is thin and short in a good many sections. The shortness is not regarded as any special disadvantage, so long as the heads fill well, and the past two weeks have been ideal filling weather; warm bright days, cool breezes and occasional warm showers are filling the heads. The only crop that is really likely to be unsatisfactory is that of oats, of which the west had such a bumper crop last year. From now until the harvest is well over, there will be scares from time to time as to damage either from rain, heat, or frost.

In groceries, the only change recorded for the week is the advance of 10c per cwt. on all grades of sugar. This will make extra standard granulated $4.80, the Wallaceburg sugar $4.70 and bright yellows $4.20. There seems no reason for the advance beyond the fact that sugar generally goes up in preserving time.

GREEN FRUITS.—This is one of our most active markets at the present time. Small fruits are beginning to arrive; black currants, gooseberries and raspberries are offered this week. Blueberries are looked for shortly. California box apples are offered and show good quality. Apricots are nearly over and have ranged about 25c per case higher than the lowest point of previous years. Plums and peaches are in good supply. Prices run about as follows: Peaches $2; plums $2.50; apricots $2; cherries $2; raspberries $3.50 for the 24 pint crate; gooseberries $2.50 for the 24 quart crate. Lemons have advanced 50c per case owing to increased demand and heavy shrinkage; oranges 126 to 250, $5 per case; watermelons $6 per dozen; bananas $3 per bunch.

VEGETABLES.—The supply of home-grown is now very good; cabbage, cauliflower, beans, peas, new potatoes, celery, beets, turnips, carrots, are all offered and the cauliflower is of good size, firm, fine and white as snow. Cucumbers are down to $1 per dozen.

DAIRYING.—The butter question continues to be somewhat a difficult one Creameries are slow to accept export prices, and there is no demand in the west. Some speculative buying has been done by large dealers in the past week, and prices are varied. It is pretty certain that for export to Montreal, dealers cannot pay over 16c at factories, and indeed some purchases have been made under that figure. There is the old tendency to hold, on the part of the creamery men, and this is sure to bring disaster later in the season, for few, if any, creameries have suitable storage for long keeping. With dairy butter, the quality continues to be very varied and prices that really represent the market are difficult to quote for this reason. Quite fancy prices have been paid for small lots here and there, while on the other hand as low as 10c has been paid for others. Fair sized lots of good fresh dairy are worth 12 to 13c. Smaller lots of farm separator butter, in bricks, bring about 15 to 17c at Winnipeg, and between these prices there are many shades and grades.

CHEESE.—Wholesale grocery houses continue to pay fancy prices for small lots of cheese while regular produce dealers refuse to go over 9½c to 9¾c. The present promises to be a good season for cheese, as pasturage is good and the cows have not been unduly troubled by heat or flies. The local demand is larger than usual, owing to the increased population, many of the Old Country people, and the Germans from the United States, looking upon cheese as a staple food rather than a luxury, as do the Canadians.

EGGS.—The receipts are very light, but it is confidently expected they will be heavy during the coming week, as country merchants will begin to ship in for the exhibition. As high as 15c has been paid or rather offered during the week, with but little result. The consumption of eggs in the country has been much larger than formerly, and there is really not as great a supply as usual for sale, and to this is added the usual tendency to hold back for three weeks before the exhibition.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 10, 1903.

BUSINESS conditions generally have not been much disturbed by the very startling and original methods taken by the lumber manufacturers and the contractors, who are organized in the Builders' Exchange, a body closely allied with The Lumber Manufacturers' Association. The city is very much interested in the action taken by the mills of refusing to supply lumber to the local trade. The reason they give is that the factory and planing mill hands who are out on strike are getting work on buildings as carpenters, and the carpenters' unions are upholding the strikers with money earned by working on lumber supplied by the mills.

The Builders' Exchange followed this up by taking action also. They called off all construction, begining with yesterday morning, and the reason they give is, that they cannot obtain lumber to go on with. The cessation of all building operations will affect the retail trade very seriously, as this has been one of the brightest seasons in building in the history of the city, with a consequent benefit to all lines of trade. If the men are all laid off, the unfortunate grocers and provision dealers, as in the case of a strike, will have to bear the burden of carrying the out-of-works. This experience has been the lot of the grocers and provision men of this city often enough, but this year has been bringing it on rather thicker than usual. The recently settled strike of the U.B.R.E. was the first. It would look as if the tie-up would be general for some time, in which case a good season's trade will be spoiled.

The season of heavy importations of fresh fruit from California brings with it the very frequent condemnation of large consignments. The laws of the province are very stringent as to the entry of fruit or trees into the province, if infected with any of the fruit pests known elsewhere, and which it is the effort of The Board of Horticulture to keep out of British Columbia. The codlin moth, and the San Jose scale are two of the most troublesome pests to be dealt with. The provincial fruit inspector meets all boats bringing in consignments of fruit, and careful examination of the contents of a number of packages is made. If there is any trace of infection, the examination is extended to a larger number of boxes, and the lot is passed, or condemned, according to its condition. Condemned fruit has to be taken out of the country again, not being cleared customs, or else it is sent to the crematory and burned.

This week, Fruit Inspector Cunningham condemned several lots of apples, pears and peaches. The apples were affected with the San Jose scale, and, like the peaches and pears, the moths were present also. It is the custom to demand the prepayment of guarantee of freight charges on the fruit imported from California, so that the shipper not only loses the stock, but the freight has to be paid as well.

The local wholesale men do not complain of the operation of the regulations, despite the fact that it frequently works inconvenience for them to have a lot of fruit they are depending on sent to the crematory. They recognize that the inspection is necessary to protect the fruit industry of this province, which is growing rapidly, and if inspection is to mean anything, the fruit deserving of condemnation must be dealt with strictly.

Fruits are liberally supplied on this market now. The Californian shipments have continued heavy until this week. Local arrivals on the market have tended to reduce demand for California goods. Local cherries are competing freely now with the handsome Queen Ann and black Tartarian cherries of the Golden State. There is no question, of course, that in quality and appearance there is no cherry equal to that grown in California. It is a perfect picture to see a crate of the big beauties opened. The undesirable feature of local grown cherries is that the moist climate seems to make them too liable to crack and thus spoil the appearance.

Local strawberries are, of course, the only thing in that fruit on the market now. The crop of strawberries this year has been enormous, and appears to be just in the middle of the season now. One grower is reported as having over 300 crates containing two dozen pound boxes from a three-quarter acre plot in North Vancouver. His average price was fully $1.50 per crate, and his cost of boxes, crates and picking 60c per crate, thus netting him a handsome return for his "patch."

are now coming in very freely. Prices of raspberries have been quoted as low as $1 per crate this week.

In California fruits, Bartlett pears are beginning to come forward. Peaches are still of the clingstone varieties. Indeed, it is asserted that the freestone crop in California is not likely to be up to usual size. The tendency of the nut to crack, thus cracking and disfiguring the fruit, has been one of the drawbacks with the growing crops this year, it is stated. In past years this tendency of cracking has been noted in stocks received here. It may be from the apparent emulation existing among peach-growers in California to produce peaches of the extraordinary size. The gigantic Crawfords which are frequently seen are surely a special product.

Oranges coming forward are fairly good quality yet, the favorite being the late Valencias, a few Mediterranean Sweets being quoted. Navels are practically out of the market. Prices are about $3 to $3.50 per crate. Lemons are now jobbing at $4.50, the recent flurry having passed over.

California potatoes have almost ceased coming for this season. There are still some stocks of old "spuds" on the local market and the new crop is coming in fairly well now. By another week there will be plenty of new potatoes offering from local growers. Prices from California have been higher of late too.

In the produce market the supplies coming from Manitoba and the Northwest have been liberal recently. Butter, both dairy and creamery, is in good quantity now, and cheese is well stocked, both Manitoba and Ontario having forwarded shipments. Dealers here report a firmer tendency in prices quoted for Manitoba creamery and dairy butter, especially the former. They lay it to the competition in Manitoba and the Territories for the stocks. Buyers are contracting with creameries for their entire season's output in advance, a fact which has had a tendency to make the price go up. There have been instances, earlier in the season, of creamery butter in Manitoba selling at 16c factory, but the average price is now fully 18 to 18½c factory. Several carloads and partial cars of butter have come forward during the week from Manitoba and the Northwest. A part car of cheese was also received, the quality of which was very good, being well matured and uniform in color, flavor and texture.

Eggs are coming from Ontario mostly, three cars having been received in the past week. A small lot from the Northwest was also received. The stocks are ready for shipment north, and for coast, camp and fishing trade.

Prices quoted this week by jobbers to the trade range about as follows:

BUTTER.—Creamery, Manitoba and Northwest Territory 21 and 22c, selected dairy, 17 and 18c.

CHEESE.—14 and 14¼c, with tendency to easier prices.

EGGS.—Selected Ontario stock jobbing at 21c per doz.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 16, 1903.

GROCERIES.

TEAS.

THE situation since last week is practically unchanged. Low-grade Chinas are, if anything, just a shade easier. Medium and good teas are firmer, if at all noticeable. Ceylon and Indian greens are very strong. In China blacks London reports show a distinctly stronger position. New Japans appear to be higher on the moment but easier prices are looked for shortly. First and second grade Japans have been very high since the opening of the market, and on third grades, cable quotations are still very firm and no weakening apparent at present. Gunpowders are quoted from 22 to 25c. Third Young Hyson, 17c. This shows about 20 per cent. higher than same period last season. Very little demand here for China blacks. We quote:

SUGAR.

An advance of 10c. this week is the only feature to report, the market showing nothing of an exciting nature. Demand continues fairly good, though no very large lines are being moved. Granulated, in bags, $4.10; barrels, $4.15, and half barrels, $4.30. We quote:

The raw sugar market is quoted in New York as steady, with centrifugal 96 test at 3½ to 3 9-16, Muscovado 89 test at 3c. and molasses sugar 89 test at 3c to 3⅛c. London quotation for beet sugar stands at 7s. 9d. for July.

COFFEE.

In coffee there is nothing of any striking character to report, market being unaffected by the slight fluctuations in New York markets. We quote:

SPICES.

Market has been fairly active with good demand for pepper; prices advanced and tending higher. Cassias and cloves also show strong characteristics, largely due no doubt to small stocks in New York and Europe. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Market steady for old and the new arrivals of Barbados, the latter quoted at 37c to 38c for good round lots, and 38½ to 40c for smaller quantities. The consignees of the new lot of Barbados reported last week are not offering too freely. The quality is very fine and giving excellent satisfaction. Jobbing prices range as under. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Salmon, as noted in our last week's report, is holding some attention and fairly heavy orders have been placed with packers at the opening advances over last season's quotations. Fraser River brands quoted $4.65, Skeena River brands at $4.50, Rivers Inlet and Lowe brands at $4.25, and Spring salmon at $4, f.o.b. coast. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

No import contracts of any importance are reported this week. Spot sales are on firm basis. Figs—prices on new are not settled yet; some speculative quotations are out, but so far buyers are not operating largely on them. Sultanas—Smyrna cable received yesterday quotes prices somewhat lower than last year, probably 2s. Currant crop is reported as being a good one and prices should be reasonably low. The action of the Greek Government toward the syndicate is watched carefully, and the report in London Times last week that the consuls of the English, Italian and German Governments had waited on the Government protesting against the contemplated movement in favor of the syndicate, clearly shows the seriousness of the state of affairs. Instructions had been given by their respective Governments to the consuls to withdraw from the International Chamber of Commerce should the Greek Government give in to the contemplated monopoly. GREEN FRUITS.

Nothing of importance to chronicle, with exception of demand for raspberries, cherries and small fruit ; market is quiet. The week has been a satisfactory one in green fruit. COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.—During the past week the deliveries have been coming forward freely ; the result is that there is decidedly easier feeling in the market. Whereas last week we were paying 13½c f.o.b. country points, this week they have reduced the buying price to 12½c. RAW FURS.

Trade continues very quiet this week. A variety of prices are quoted for good furs. An advance of $1 in large Labrador and choice Eastern, Territory Rocky Mountains beaver, and $2 advance for large, strictly prime, being noted. Otter shows strong advance, large North-Eastern being quoted at $20, and small at $12, an advance of $10 and $5 over last week's quotations. We quote :

NOTES.

The Canada Sugar Refining Co. have removed their offices from 39 St. Francois Xavier street to their elegantly and commodiously fitted quarters in the new building of the North British & Mercantile Co., corner St. Francois Xavier and Hospital streets.

The new price list of The Canadian Canners' Association is in the hands of the jobbers, all lines being quoted except corn and tomatoes. Prices generally are about on basis of last year's opening, with exception of strawberries and raspberries, which are about 10 per cent. lower.

A tour of the tea brokers last week shows trade quiet, though the tone of the market is firm. Great difficulty seems to be experienced in getting hold of green Indian and Ceylons on the moment. Exporters say there will be ample supplies later, and they are willing to take orders for future shipments. It is found almost impossible to get anything for prompt shipment. The high prices ruling in Japans, and the inability to locate green Ceylons for prompt use has opened a way for the old stocked teas that have been hanging on brokers' hands. In Chinas, advices from Foochow report market opening 3c higher than last year.

BEANS IN KENT COUNTY.

BEANS form one of the principal money crops—one might almost say the main money crop—of Kent county, says The London Free Press. The Bureau of Industries' Report shows that in 1900 there were produced in Ontario $817,000 worth of beans, and that $557,000 worth of these were grown in Kent. In one year (1895) the bean crop of the county was valued at $830,000.

Last year was an off-year for Kent's characteristic crop. The wet weather which came just at harvest time largely reduced the yield, and very seriously damaged the quality. In some cases the crop after cutting was turned a score of times in the field to prevent rotting. The cool, wet weather which has prevailed during a considerable part of the time since planting this year has been none too favorable for the growing plants. As Wm. Simpson of C. Farm, near Ridgetown, said, the bean requires conditions, particularly as to warmth, under which it will start in three or four days after planting, and then shoot right ahead. Conditions this season have not been at all ideal, but still the crop is making fair progress, save that here and there complaints are made of attack by insect enemy, an enemy that some believe was brought in with seed from New York State.

The area sown this season is believed to be greater than in any previous year. The lake front farms, near Rondeau, appear best suited to this crop, and on some places down there, Mr. Simpson says, it seems as if three-quarters of the land is in beans. These, however, are rare cases. On the farm of Cecil O. T. Hall, between the village of Morpeth and the lake front, 24 acres out of 60 are in this crop. On the farm of Walter Springstein, right on the lake, 27 acres out of 100 are in beans, and on a neighboring farm 50 acres out of 200 are devoted to the same purpose. Taking the whole of his section as an average, Mr. Springstein says a fourth of the land is in beans.

VISIT OF A SUGAR OPERATOR.

Mr. A. G. Brand, Glasgow, Scotland, is spending a few days in Canada after a lapse of ten years absence. He is a sugar operator, and has been out to Canada once or twice before. He was largely instrumental in bringing about the amalgamation of the three companies now known as The Acadia Sugar Co., Halifax. He is a director of that company, and was a director of the old Halifax Sugar Co. He is looked upon as a connecting link between the old and the new company.

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION AND MUNICIPAL REFORM.

THE members of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association manifested the growing interest being taken in municipal reform last Monday evening when at the dinner in the National Club, following the annual meeting, they listened to addresses on this subject by Mr. Goldwin Smith and Mr. C. R. Woodruff, a young Philadelphia lawyer, who has become distinguished in his own country in connection with civic and political reform movements.

The addresses received the most earnest attention, and good fruit therefrom is anticipated. There were present, among others, in addition to the retiring president, Mr. W. P. Gundy, and the guests of the evening, J. P. Murray, chairman-elect.; Ald. Curry, J. O. Thorn, P. W. Ellis, W. K. George, W. K. McNaught, George Booth, W. J. Gage, C. N. Candee, J. D. Allan, Robert Crean, J. W. Woods, Miles Vokes, Andrew Gunn, W. H. Shaw, T. A. Russell, E. A. Wills, A. W. Thomas, J. S. McKinnon, Trayton Blaber and S. M. Wickett.

Mr. Goldwin Smith, who spoke first, was heartily cheered. In thanking the association for the honor shown him, Mr. Smith expressed an abiding trust in the future of Toronto. The residential attractions of the city were, he declared, unsurpassed, and all that was required was a thoroughly good government. The trouble to-day was that people were endeavoring to govern a city on a system fitted to a village. The vast populations of to-day required expert and scientific administration, for which the elective system was inadequate. A permanent and responsible administration was necessary, and the building of Toronto's city hall was instanced as showing the waste and irresponsibility of the present system. Washington, D.C., was an example of a well-governed city. He suggested the division of the civic government into legislative and administrative branches, the latter to be in the hands of expert, thoroughly competent and responsible people, who should be out of reach of all sinister influences.

Mr. Woodruff was also enthusiastically received. He endorsed the position taken by Mr. Goldwin Smith. The fundamental principle of good civic government was the separation of politics and administration. A great change, the speaker declared, had come over the public attitude towards municipal government in the last ten years. Hopeless criticism had given way to constructive statesmanship. There had been a ten-fold increase in the number of reform bodies, whose persistency was strikingly characteristic. The business men were taking up the movement and had done notable work in New York and San Francisco. The outlook for municipal reform was bright and full of encouragement. The forces making for righteousness and improvement were being strengthened from day to day, and, in time, must overcome.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers on motion of Mr. W. K. McNaught and Mr. J. P. Murray.

At the business meeting, held in the Board of Trade during the afternoon, the Executive Committee reported a membership of 331, a gain of 59 for the year.

The officers elected were as follows :

Toronto branch—Chairman, J. P. Murray ; vice-chairman, W. B. Tindall. Committee—C. N. Candee, R. J. Copeland, Geo. W. Watts, Robt. Crean, D. T. McIntosh, F. A. Ritchie, J. T. Sheridan, J. W. Cowan, John Dick, P. W. Ellis, A. S. Rogers, J. S. King, J. H. Housser, J. S. McKinnon, E. J. Small ; ex-officio, W. K. George, W. P. Gundy, J. O. Thorn.

Nominations for Dominion Executive Council—J. O. Thorn, W. P. Gundy, J. P. Murray, R. J. Christie, F. Nicholls, C. N. Candee, J. K. Osborne, William Stone, A. W. Thomas, A. F. Rutter, A. S. Rogers, Thomas Roden, J. S. King, P. H. Burton, E. C. Boeckh, S. M. Wickett, W. B. Tindall, George H. Hees, J. W. Cowan, R. A. Donald.

THE CURRANT CROP.

THE proposed currant monopoly, promising as it does phenomenally high prices, is causing great excitement among the growers in Greece. Discussion of the details of the convention in Parliament is regarded as an attempt to burke the project. But in spite of the pressure brought to bear upon it, the Parliament has not accepted the convention in its original form. Nearly every member, it is said, has had some amendment to make, and the Government has had perforce to withdraw the proposed measure and negotiate again with the syndicate along the lines suggested by the members. Whether or not the syndicate can be induced to accept the new terms is unknown, but in some quarters it is believed that the last has been heard of the monopoly project. The excitement among the growers has resulted in turbulent outbreaks, and troops are being sent to the disaffected quarters.

In any event, it is now too late to affect the present crop, and the Government has been compelled to again provide for the surplus production of currants. A bill has been voted by the Chamber providing for the purchase by the Currant Bank of any currants which may be presented at a price equal to about 11s. 6d. f.o.b. in quarter cases. Any currants which the bank thus purchases will be turned over to distillers for industrial purposes.

This measure will undoubtedly be agreed to, it is said, and it is important for all interested to know that we shall enter the season of 1903 with the lowest possible price for Provincial of about 11s. 6d. f.o.b.

The growing crop is progressing favorably in all respects and promises abundance. The first shipments will, as usual, commence during the second half of August.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

ALTHOUGH in a grocery, unlike in a dry goods store, there is not a very great necessity for the expenditure of much money in the window trimming, a merchant should not conclude that all expense is unnecessary. There are various seasons of the year when a special display is advisable, such as Christmas, Thanksgiving, Easter, and possibly, Victoria Day and July 1st. The first three occasions should be celebrated in every store, and, as the public are always watchful at those seasons for extra display, no window that is worthy of notice will be passed.

For these trims money should be expended, as a mere arrangement of the goods, no matter how careful or how striking, will not be conspicuous enough to stop the pedestrians on the sidewalk. Special backgrounds or fixtures will have to be made use of, and, although a very good display can be made with very little money and an inventive mind, the money is a part of it that cannot be overlooked.

However, it is not only for such annual events as these that some little expense is a good investment. Merchants can ordinarily use their window space satisfactorily by using only the goods themselves as adjuncts to the display. But, at various times through the year, whether taking advantage of any historical or local event or not, an extra trim should be indulged in, and something out of the ordinary done to show that there is still a living and interested influence in the store; otherwise the passers-by will think that the merchant is perfectly satisfied with his business, and considers any extra effort to attract trade as a useless expense of money or labor.

Such an impression is one of the most disastrous to a business, and no matter how large a trade may have been done, its influence will soon be felt. If people see a store has no interest in them, they soon cease to interest themselves in the store. Constant and substantial effort must be employed in the best business to retain its position, and in the poorest, to obtain a position; and it is just as necessary to the former as the latter.

It is through his window that the merchant who realizes this necessity impresses the public with the idea that he is after its trade, and to get it is willing to exert himself. Not only does the window reach his customers, but, more than that, all who pass. A regular customer can be retained by personal attention, by well-kept stock, by good business methods, in addition to the influence of the window; but it is only in the latter way, combined with advertising, that those who do not enter the store, can be reached, and, more effectually in some ways than advertising, it attracts attention.

Mr. A. may have dealt for years with the store across the way, but a carefully arranged window may draw to his attention an article, which is either a specialty of the store displaying it, or, which has never before received his consideration. If he decides he requires, or wants it, the chances are that he will buy it where he saw it displayed, rather than across the street, and a beginning has then been made in the obtaining of his trade. He may buy only that article at the time, but he will never forget that Blank supplied his wants at one time, and the chances are exceedingly good that Blank will do so again.

A Window Display Competition.

THE CANADIAN GROCER, for the encouragement of tasty window displays, has decided to open a competition for its subscribers. Prizes will be awarded for photos or drawings of window displays and accompanying descriptions of the same. The prizes will consist of:

First Prize - - -	$10
Second Prize - -	$7
Third Prize - - -	$5

and $2 for every picture and description which is considered worthy of publication.

The competition, which closes on Sept. 1, will admit of photographs, pen and ink or wash drawings, with good ideas counting more than the picture itself, although, of course, all pictures in order to receive a prize, must be of sufficient distinctness and good workmanship to admit of their publication.

There is no progressive merchant but has at least one window a month that is worthy of entering this competition, and the prizes are so arranged that, even if a window does not win the $10, $7 or $5 prize, it may be awarded a $2 prize, provided only that it is of sufficient merit to publish in the columns of this paper. This award will cover the cost of the photograph and there is no reason why any merchant should not obtain it. The number of photographs or drawings submitted by each store is not limited, nor is the number of $2 prizes; a merchant may win a dozen if his pictures merit them.

Should any intending competitor not know how to take a window picture, this paper will be glad to furnish him with instructions. In general terms, it may be stated that the early morning, when the light is clear, when few people are abroad and when there is the least reflection, is the best time to photograph the display. A good photograph can also be taken at night by the aid of an electric or flash light.

To such men as these a special display is the only thing that serves, and if a half dozen like him can be induced to buy once, surely the money expended on the extra effort has been well spent. A couple of dollars put in a window may return fifty to the till, even directly, and when the indirect moral benefit is considered, the returns are far greater. Even where direct returns are not noticeable, the indirect, if they could be computed, would show a large profit to the merchant.

Corner Windows.

A corner window is one of the most valuable assets a merchant can have, and there are few who do not appreciate its importance. He is fully alive to the fact that it opens great opportunities for window display and has the immense advantage of catching the eye of a passer-by long before he has reached the store. In this way the man outside is not compelled to stop and look at the display, but can see it as he walks along, and without turning his head.

Such a window well arranged is sure to attract people who would not bother to look at or would carelessly pass a straight front, and yet there is not one merchant in many who understands the knack of turning all its opportunities to advantage.

In a vague way he knows that the side elevation is important, but in some way he cannot get rid of the idea that the front elevation of the same window requires a more elaborate trim. Such is not the case. It is the side window that first attracts the eye, and it is that part of the window that gives a corner window its value. Accordingly it stands to reason that it should receive the most attention.

The best plan to adopt is to place the central figure a little to the side and far enough back to be seen from the side, without being interrupted by the corner. Then the part seen from the side should be the most carefully arranged, with the front aspect more as a good support than as the display that is intended to count. The observer will stop on his way up and naturally look at the side next him; when he reaches the front, the window across the entrance should be elaborate enough to give value to the front view, so that no matter from what position he looks at the window, he sees an effective display.

AN ADDITION TO OUR STAFF.

Mr. W. H. Seyler has joined the staff of "The Canadian Grocer." His headquarters will be Montreal. Mr. Seyler is well and favorably known to the grocery trade of Canada. He was with The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, for about ten years, and travelled extensively through Quebec and the Maritime Provinces for one of the largest grocery specialty houses in Canada. During the last couple of years he has been with E. W. Gillett & Co., Limited, as sales and advertising manager. His connection with the wholesale grocery trade dates back to 1878, and he has had experience in the United States as well as in Canada, although he is a Canadian by birth. As an advertising specialist Mr. Seyler has been prominently associated with the leading Canadian trade newspapers, and his advertisements are noted for their striking effectiveness. In fact, his designs and ideas have been preserved as models by some of the leading journals devoted to advertising. A recent article of his on "The Art of Advertising," was published in The Daily Star. It attracted a great deal of attention, and was afterwards with others published in pamphlet form.

Mr. Seyler will always be ready to place himself at the disposal of advertisers, and he will be found ready at any time to make suggestions that will assist advertisers here in Montreal in the preparation of copy.

BUSINESS IN ST. MARY'S.

Mr. F. W. Hutton, grocer, St. Mary's, Ont., was in Toronto for a few days last week. In conversation with "The Canadian Grocer," he said: "Things are going along nicely. The town is not exactly booming, but there is a lot of house building going on and every house in the town is rented. Business is good, as a consequence. Several new stores are also being erected. We are putting up one ourselves, and J. M. Adams, grocer, and A. Beattie & Co., dry goods and groceries, are also erecting new stores.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. John Cameron, who has for many years been so well known to the trade in Canada on account of his connection with the advertising staff of "The Canadian Grocer," left a few days ago for a holiday trip to Great Britain. He is accompanied by Mrs. Cameron. No doubt the good wishes of the trade will accompany him. It is to be hoped that he will return to Canada much benefitted by his trip and fortified for many more years of hard and successful work.

AN EVIDENCE OF CIRCULATION.

An example of the far-reaching circulation of "The Canadian Grocer," was afforded the other day by the fact that The Auer Light Co., of Montreal, received an inquiry from a firm in Patras, Greece, by the name of Arsenis & Co. Only a few days previously they also received an inquiry from K. Varathargulu Naidu, Ulsoor, Bangalore, India. Both these firms have excellent reference

WHILE the hardware branch of the wholesale trade of London is now getting slack, the wholesale grocers are unusually active. This is the rule, not the exception; for a visit amongst all the firms doing a jobbing trade brings out the fact that shipping rooms are crowded with packages going out, and orders are coming to hand by every mail. While the bulk of these orders are from travellers who make regular periodical trips, a greater number of letter orders for goods are reported by every house than it has been usual to receive.

Sugars, as a matter of course, are a prominent feature everywhere, and always in shipments at this season; but it is worthy of note that during the last two weeks, general groceries, covering the entire list, have been moving out in larger and more frequent lots than at any time this year, and wholesale men are correspondingly elated. In answer to my query as to the cause of the unusually good demand at this time I am told, "Oh, it's just the exceptionally good prospects; everybody is full of hope and feeling flush."

The wholesale and retail grocers are certainly having their innings just now.

An advance of 10c. per cwt. on all grades of sugar took place here at the end of the week. Standard granulated is now delivered in London retail stores at $4.27 in barrels, and $4.22 in 100-lb. sacks. No special advance on any other lines this week is worthy of note.

Offerings of butter and eggs have been good in the London market during the week. Prices are firm. Rolls ruled at 17 to 18c.; crocks, 16 to 18c.; creamery, 21 to 22c. Eggs, 14 to 15c. Honey is offering in 12-lb. boxes at $1.50, and 10-lb. boxes, $1.25. Chickens are in good supply, and are larger in size, at 50 to 75c. per pair. The offerings of raspberries are very large at 8 to 9c. a box. Gooseberries are 5 to 6c. a box; cherries, 8-quart pails, 90c.; black currants, 10 and 11c. a box; red and white currants, 4 to 5c. a box.

Immense deliveries were made last week of roots and vegetables: Young beets, turnips, new potatoes, new cabbage, and home-grown tomatoes. Old potatoes may now be said to be out of the market. The new tubers were sold at 75 and 80c. per bushel.

A visit to the establishment of Wall & Guppy this week, disclosed the hands busy in the cellar repacking oranges and lemons. The former are now almost out of the market, and the latter are a very precarious stock these warm days. Every case has to be examined carefully and repacked with sound fruit. Four dollars and a half is the price of lemons.

A matter of much importance to merchants, manufacturers and business men generally is now about being settled. News has been received this afternoon from Ottawa that the G.T.R. has agreed to immediately construct a connecting line with the Canadian Pacific at London, and to enter into negotiations with other railways for general interswitching arrangements. The proposed spur will afford to established industries switching arrangements common to all railways and provide ample accommodation for new industries.

THE INDUSTRIAL SOAP AND OIL CO.

The business of The Industrial Soap and Oil Co., of Toronto, manufacturers of Soap Chips, has grown so extensively in the last few months that they have found it necessary to get into much larger premises than they are now occupying. As announced in last week's "Grocer," they have purchased the large factory building in Brantford recently occupied by The Brantford Soap Co., and will now have the third largest soap factory in the Dominion, the building being 168 feet long by 75½ feet wide, and four storeys high. Six large boiling kettles will be used, the largest of which holds 30 tons at a boil; another, 25 tons, and the other four varying from 3 to 15 tons each.

This company has not only purchased The Brantford Soap Co.'s building, but also the good will and the rights to the well-known "Ivory Bar," and all kindred lines of the old company, comprising some seven different articles. They have also been lucky enough to get the original soap makers, so will be able to turn out "Ivory Bar" the same as in its palmy days.

Mr. H. E. Cardinal, the general manager of the company, who is now in Brantford superintending the renovating of the factory, expects to have everything running very shortly, and will have his travellers out about August 15.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Dealing With Farmers.

By W. W. Cole, in The Roller Mill.

BILL NYE, now at rest, in relating his experience as an apprentice in a grist mill, tells us that among other duties it was required of him when weighing in wheat always to deduct a certain amount for screenings, chess, Egyptian buckwheat, etc., and in fact, to make it a rule to chisel the old farmer out of all he would stand. With due respect for the lamented and laughable William, I must say that my milling experience has been somewhat different from his. While in the capacity of apprentice or of head miller, covering a period of many years' dealing with farmers, I have invariably found it necessary to work on the defensive, in fact, to use the utmost persistence in order to prevent them carrying away the mill.

The farmer abroad is humorously pictured as a ready victim of gold bricks and an easy mark for the confidence man and pick-pocket, but the farmer when he goes to the mill is abundantly able to take care of himself, and unless the miller or mill proprietor is up to specifications will put him out of business.

Farmers, as a class, are very well posted on crop reports and the markets. When dealing with the miller they are dealing in wheat, corn, oats and barley, things that they know all about. They sell grain to the miller and expect cash for it; they buy of him the products of grain, in the shape of bran, oats, meal and corn meal, and expect a credit of six months.

It would seem that every individual miller was trying to prosper by underselling his neighbor. A majority of the small mills throughout the country are dependent upon the farmers' trade; they cannot do business without their patronage. Mills are so plentiful, however, that the farmer generally has a choice of two or more mills where he can bestow his custom.

With these circumstances in view the question arises, What is the best method of dealing with the farmers? Experience has taught me a few things along this line which I will try to set forth. One essential is to do good work. To do good work it is essential to have a good mill, kept in good repair. A large mill and close yields are not always essential for a successful and profitable home trade, but good flour is very essential. Mr. Farmer is to get his flour as cheap as possible, or as many pounds of it as he can for a bushel of good, bad or indifferent wheat, and as regards quality, he is going to have very nearly the best. It is the same with feed grinding. He does not want the miller to toll the grist very much, or if it be ground for money he does not want the miller to charge much of anything for doing the work; but he will invariably insist that the feed be ground fine.

Another essential is that the miller keep good goods. By this we do not mean that it is always advisable to buy the highest grade of corn or oats on the market, but we mean reasonably sound grain that will work up into good, wholesome feed.

If bye-products are handled, the miller should sell them for what they are. I do not believe a mixture of oat shucks and pulverized corn cobs should be palmed off for straight corn-and-oat feed. The miller may be tempted to do something of the kind in order to compete with the other fellow, whose prices are so much lower, but in the long run, I believe, there is nothing gained by being crooked.

A miller should know his own business and allow no one to conduct it for him. If he is persistent in his determination to do this his farmer friends will generally let him alone while waiting for their grist, and devote their time to explaining how the navy should be run or outlining a policy for the Government of the Philippines.

There should be but one price for goods; all customers treated alike in this respect. A little cut in price to one is not only an injustice to those who pay the regular rate without objection, but demoralizing to the business. If a farmer succeeds in jewing a miller down a little, rest assured that his neighbors will soon know of it, and when they do there will be any amount of trouble in store for the poor miller.

The proprietor, the head miller, and every one connected with the mill should be pleasant, patient and accommodating with customers at all times. I can scarcely conceive of a successful business man or salesman of any kind or in any line allowing himself to be otherwise to his customers, no matter what the provocation.

Insist on a good margin of profit and a fair renumeration for the work done. This, I believe, is the most essential requisite for successful dealing with farmers. I believe that one of the most, if not the most, frequent causes of failure in custom mills is the miller's allowing himself to be hoodooed out of his just dues. When a farmer sells his produce he demands, and gets, the market price. We know of no reason why he should expect feed to be ground for less than the actual cost of the work, or to receive an amount of flour for a bushel of wheat that the quality of the grain does not warrant. The most of this evil is caused by adjoining mills endeavoring to win all or the larger part of the trade. It would be far better to let the other fellow have the bulk of the trade if at ruinous prices, and be content with a small share at living rates. Less capital and less work would then be necessary for the results realized.

Good work, fair dealing, and strict attention to business on the part of the miller, will win some of the trade, even if the farmer knows that he cannot get quite all there is in it when he goes to mill.

A Combined Mill and Bakery.

THE modern tendency of consolidation and simplification of industrial processes is exemplified by the completion of a plant in the City of Mexico where the wheat will go in at one door and come out in the form of bread at another. This combined flour mill and bakery is owned by The Sociedad Mexicano de Molineriary Panification, which is capitalized for the sum of $400,000.

The plant occupies a large building, built especially for this purpose. The mill is equipped with modern roller machinery and the flour making process does not differ materially from that employed in ordinary mills. It is only after the flour is made that the unique character of the institution is apparent.

When the flour leaves the last milling machine it is transferred to the room in which it is mixed with the yeast, and after the mixing machines have finished their work, the brew is transported to enormous fermenting or raising vats. When this process has been carried on for a sufficient length of time, the dough is carried to the mixing room, in which there are twenty machines which will mix the bread to the proper consistency. There will be no lack of "working," which is so essential to good bread. From the mixing room, the dough will again be carried to a raising room for a short time, and then will go to the moulding roam, where the loaves will be formed by machinery, placed in long pans and transported to the last raising room. When it is light and ready for the ovens, another set of traveling carriers will transport the bread to the baking room in which are twenty-four long, sloping ovens, arranged in two rows, each row sloping to the centre so that every loaf in the ovens, which are about 18 feet long, can be seen by the baker in the centre. When it is thoroughly baked, the machinery will again take charge of it and carry it to the distributing room.

During the entire process, it will not be necessary to touch anything connected with the making of the bread, as the machinery will perform all the operations, including transferring the different articles at the different stages of the process from one room and set of machines to the other. The daily output of bread will be valued at $2,000 and will consist of Paris and Vienna loaves of all sizes and shapes. The baking is in Grinding of Canadian Wheat.

The Washburn-Crosby Co., at Minneapolis, Minn., has asked for the release of the bond on the Washburn E. mill because it is impossible for them to get any more Canadian wheat, all of that commodity now going abroad via Port Arthur, at figures that are more profitable than can be realized in that market. During the past winter the Washburn-Crosby Co. have ground a great deal of Canadian wheat in bond, and the product all went forward for export. The experiment has proved satisfactory in every particular, and it was never intended to run the mill the year round on Canadian wheat, as during the lake and rail season the shipment of flour in bond is somewhat impracticable. All the Canadian wheat that was shipped into that market has been ground into flour, and the last of the product is now going forward via the various lines to foreign markets. The company expects to have its bond released within a short time, and will, as soon as it is released, commence to grind domestic wheat and ship the product to any point they wish. A representative of the firm stated that if the occasion demanded their doing so, they would again bond their mill as they had been perfectly satisfied with the business during the past four months.

Flour for Jamaica.

The Canadian Agent General at Jamaica, in a report to the Department at Ottawa, writes as follows :

It is pleasing to turn to a more promising situation regarding flour, and it would seem that at last some Canadian millers are beginning to realize that this market is worth capturing, and this, too, at the sacrifice of probable cherished conservative methods. I mentioned in a previous report that two brands from a St. Thomas, Ont., mill had fairly "taken," but complaint was made of delay in shipments when ordered, and also not strictly complying with grade and other instructions. I am glad, however, to report that there has been an all-round improvement in this, with the result that two other brands (grades) from the same mills promise also to be successfully placed. A Chatham, Ont., brand is also making headway through a specially appointed sole agent, as in the previous case mentioned. Occasionally other small lots of Manitoba grades drop in. It is, however, necessary to explain that while I have written as I have done, Canadian millers in the aggregate have by no means made any appreciable inroad on the 170,000 barrels imported annually on an average from the United States ; still it is encouraging to note that practical efforts to get a substantial "footing" are at last receiving serious attention.

Canadian Wheat.

A despatch to The Toronto News says : Mr. William Halliwell, lecturer on Flour Milling Technology to the London County Council, made an official inspection of Canadian wheat and reports that he has never seen better. He strongly urges the re-imposition of the cereals duty, but upon flour alone, wheat entering free, and leaving the prices of bread unaffected. Asked whether under a preferential system British millers would admit Canadian flour free, Mr. Halliwell replied : "Yes, Canada is open to great developments in milling, and it would be as much to her advantage to send flour as wheat. Canadian flour is equal for British requirements to American, but is not superior. Americans flood Great Britain with their surplus flour to fetch what it will."

Crop Prospects.

The crop reports from Ontario and the western provinces are of a most cheerful character. The wheat is in splendid condition, and the hay and grain crops generally show signs of great improvement.

Wheat in the province of Quebec promises a very heavy yield. In fact the reports from every section of Canada are of the most satisfactory nature.

New Elevators.

The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., will, during the present season, erect 18 new elevators in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. The capacity of the new elevators will be about 3,500,000 bushels, and will give the company fully 100 elevators in the Northwest Provinces. The officials of the company have made a careful estimate of the prospects of this year's crop, and place it at 60,000,000 bushels. They expect the average yield per acre will be somewhat less than last year, when the crop was a phenomenal one. Particular care has been taken as to this year's estimate and it may be taken as pretty correct, as the figures heretofore given by The Ogilvie Co. have come remarkably close to the mark.

Tailings.

The Ottawa Milling Co. recently made a shipment of over 1,000 bags of rolled oats and oatmeal to Glasgow, Scotland, and has orders from various foreign countries. This fact speaks well for Canadian manufacturers, particularly in the cereal line, as competition is so keen across the water.

During the month of May, there were exported from the United States 1,461,592 barrels of flour, valued at $5,535,587, and 8,050,482 bushels of wheat, valued at $6,446,771.

The people of Grandview, Man., are agitating the erection of a flouring mill and the necessary preliminaries have been already arranged.

The McCann Milling Co., Toronto, are having a very busy season, the increased demand for the bulk brands of cereal manufactures handled by them being of the most satisfactory nature.

A large quantity of wheat was milled last season at Peace River Crossing and at the Hudson Bay mill at Fort Vermilion.

Two more grain elevators are soon to be erected by The Canadian Northern Railway, with a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels each.

"The Canadian Grocer" is glad to learn that the foreign enquiry for Canadian flour and cereals is constantly improving. The increased demand from South Africa during the past week has been particularly noticeable. Several enquiries received from that country through Montreal and Boston houses are receiving the attention of those of our millers who are cultivating an export trade.

Long Suffering Dyspeptics.

It is said that a grocer down in Philadelphia is now on the road to fortune through a timely discovery that promises to give dyspeptics another lease of life. It occurred to him that if sea water is so beneficial to the outside of the body it should be good for the interior. He therefore incorporated it with bread instead of using fresh water in the baking, resulting in the sale of it increasing five fold in a very short time. Just as has been the case with every other fad food, dyspeptics find this the "only food they can eat with comfort."

The Central Milling Co., Limited, of Peterborough, are making extensive alterations in their mill, and adding an office building and an elevator with a capacity of from 40,000 to 50,000 bushels. This company are the manufacturers of the well-known "White Patent" and "Diamond Crown" brands.

Judging a Cigar.

THE manoeuvres that some customers indulge in when buying cigars, furnish amusement for all who happen to be standing near. The most common trick, says a writer in Tobacco Leaf, is to hold the cigar unlighted under the nose and smell it. Now, a member of the "profesh" never attempts to judge a cigar by this method. A good deal can be learned of a carot or hand of tobacco by the sense of smell, and a buyer of leaf will invariably spread out the sample, bury his nose in it and snuff; but this is done more for the purpose of ascertaining that the tobacco is sound. If there is any must in a hand of tobacco, a leaf buyer can usually detect it by the sense of smell; but the man who holds an unlighted cigar under his nose, sniffs, and looks wise, merely makes a fool of himself in the eyes of the trade.

There is in New York a certain retailer who isn't very well posted on tobacco or cigar matters, despite the fact that he has been behind a retail counter for a number of years. He is a good bluffer, however, and tries to impress everybody with his ability as a judge of tobacco. A salesman was calling on him the other day, together with several other cigar drummers. The dealer was smoking a cigar, and the salesman asked him casually what brand it was.

"I don't know, I'm sure," answered the dealer. "It happened to be lying here on my desk, and I lighted it just as you came in."

"Clear Havana?" queried the salesman.

"I think so," answered the dealer, carelessly; let's see."

He knocked the ashes into his hand, and laying down the cigar, rolled them (the ashes) between his palms. Then he threw them into the air ostentatiously, and watched them carefully as they fluttered to the floor.

"Yes," he said, "clear Havana. The filler is 1900 Vueltas and the wrapper is a leaf of Partido, also 1900 crop."

He took up the cigar again and settled back in his chair, with the air of a man whose opinion is decisive, final and undebatable. The salesman ought to have been squelched by this, but he wasn't.

"Give me a bit of the smoke," he said.

The dealer puffed and blew out a large cloud of it.

The salesman put his hand into the smoke knowingly, and rubbed his thumb and forefinger softly together. Then, dropping his arm languidly, he said: "You hit it about right, sir; indeed you did. But there is just one small sprig of '99 Vueltas in with the 1900."

"What makes you think so?" asked the dealer.

"Oh," responded the salesman, "I can feel it in the smoke."

And the dealer wondered why all the boys laughed.

Strike at St. Hyacinthe.

The cigar makers employed in the factory of The Emporium Cigar Co., of St. Hyacinthe, have been locked out.

The officials of the Montreal union, who have jurisdiction over the local union at St. Hyacinthe, state that the men were locked out because they refused to give labels for cigars made for the representatives of a non-union firm of the city of Quebec.

The officials say that the firm in question had signed an agreement with the union not to furnish non-union houses with cigars, but that the agreement was violated several times after having been notified.

The representatives of the men say the firm will not be able to get cigar makers to take their places, and they seem to think that an amicable settlement will be reached in a few days.

There will be a mass meeting of the local union to discuss the situation. The London strike, as well as the St. Hyacinthe lock-out will be considered and the question of levying assessments to assist the strikers will be decided.

British Tobacco Expenditure.

For the year ending March 31, 1903, the total amount of revenue from tobacco in Great Britain and Ireland was on 81,132,874 pounds, which on the basis of 1,250 pounds per hogshead, is equal to 64,906 hogsheads. In money £12,442,939, or about $62,214,745, calculated at $5 per pound sterling.

W. H. STEELE has been closely connected with the cigar and tobacco business for the past 21 years. Entering the employ of J. W. Scales 17 years ago he acted in the capacity of clerk and traveller until 1895. Commencing business on Yonge street, and afterwards removing to Bay street, the growing requirements of his business soon necessitated his removal to the present bright and commodious warehouse, 40 Scott street, Toronto. His business record has been one of progress. Of a kind and genial disposition Mr. Steele is very highly regarded from a social as well as from a business point of view. Will Experiment on Smokers.

A DESPATCH from Washington says: Upon the conclusion of the food tests, which Dr. Wiley, of the Agricultural Department has been conducting for several months, he proposes to institute another and quite as interesting a series of tests with tobacco, which will include experiments to determine the effect of tobacco upon the digestion and upon the human system in general. When the tobacco tests are taken up Dr. Wiley will proceed with them as he has done in the food tests. Pure tobacco in its various forms for chewing and smoking will be proceeded with, and experiments and observations made to ascertain what effects its use has upon the consumer when used in various quantities.

He will then take up the adulterated or flavored tobacco, and by experiments ascertain what effect tobacco of that character has upon the system. How far these experiments will go has not been determined, nor has Dr. Wiley decided whether he will use Turkish, Cuban, and other brands of foreign tobacco, or confine himself to the domestic commodity. Should the Bureau of Chemistry go into the subject exhaustively and ascertain the difference between the effect of cheap cigars and cigarettes on the system as compared with that of high-class pure tobacco cigarettes and cigars, the result would be very interesting.

It is Dr. Wiley's intention to take men who are regular smokers and ascertain their physical condition as to heart action, breathing, digestion, etc., while continuing the use of tobacco under normal conditions, and then to have them suddenly cease the use of tobacco entirely. The effect of such stoppage will be carefully noted, and Dr. Wiley expects to be able to report on the benefits or injuries in the sudden change of the habits of smokers and chewers. After the effects of the prolonged use of tobacco have been eradicated from the system, it is proposed that the subjects of experiment shall recommence the use of tobacco, beginning in small quantities, which will be gradually increased until they are using as much as when the experiment first began, or more. Throughout the course of the experiments, the effect of the tobacco on the digestion will be carefully noted.

In St. Louis, Mo., two sneak thieves robbed the local branch of the Continental Tobacco Co., and secured 1,000,000 tobacco tags, valued at $800.

The cigar dealers of Germany have called a congress at Cologne, at which a resolution indorsed by 360 Berlin dealers will be presented, providing that all retail stores in Germany refuse to handle trust-made articles.

One cigarette machine will make 280 cigarettes a minute, and requires only two human workers, one to feed the machine with tobacco the other to take the finished cigarettes from the case into which the machine finally drops them.

Are prepared to supply manufacturers or dealers with choice brands of leaf tobacco for cigars or pipe smoking, either processed or in the raw leaf.

Recent stock depression in Consolidated Tobacco Preferred, although it may reflect an unsatisfactory condition in the plug tobacco market, possibly has reference to the very disappointing results of attempts to secure control of the German market.

J. Bruce Payne, of Granby, has converted his cigar business into a joint stock company, with a capital of $100,000. The incorporators are J. Bruce Payne, James S. Neill, John J. Payne, Frederick W. Taylor, James Topp, and V. J. Racette.

The independent Havana cigar factories have now entered into an agreement not to sell or lease their factories or brands. The Havana branch of the tobacco combine has sent circulars to the trade denouncing the decision, formerly taken and subsequently rescinded, to the effect that it will not accept orders through Havana commission men. The latter do a considerable trade, especially with Germany.

It is considered a crime to smoke in Abyssinia, and the law forbidding tobacco dates from the year 1642. It was at first merely intended to prevent priests from smoking in the churches; but it was taken too literally, and nowadays even foreigners have to be careful not to be seen smoking.

BRITAIN'S FOOD SUPPLY.

A PARLIAMENTARY return issued the other day, says the London, Eng., "Grocery," shows annually for each year since 1870 the imported quantities of (1) wheat, wheat meal and flour, (2) meat, including animals for food, (3) sugar retained for home consumption, and also the countries from which these supplies were derived. In 1870 our total imports of wheat in grain were 30,901,000 cwts., of which we received 10,269,000 from Russia, 12,372,000 from the United States, 2,838,000 from British North America and 8,600 from British India.

Last year we imported 81,002,000 cwts., of which only 6,540,000 came from Russia while the United States supplied 43,312,000, British North America 9,527,000, and British India 8,842,000. Australia in 1870 sent 12,800 cwts. and New Zealand 72,420; last year the respective figures were 4,175,000 and 157,000. In 1900 we drew 18,524,000 from Argentina, but last year only 4,315,000. Of wheat meal and flour we imported 4,804,000 cwts., while last year we received 19,386,000 cwts., of which 15,587,000 came from the United States and 1,943,000 from Canada.

FRUIT INSPECTION SATISFACTORY.

"There is no room for complaint about the inspection of fruit this year," said J. G. Gibson, Yonge street, Toronto, the other day. "The strawberries sold here this year have been marketed in excellent condition, and no complaints will be heard if all fruit comes to us in such good shape."

Offerings continue to be rather small for the time of year, showing a falling off of 985,455 lb. against May, 1902. Brokens are still very irregular, but tippy ones up to 8½d. are a little firmer—above 8½d. prices are weak except for very tippy kinds, which are in strong demand. Orange Pekoes and Pekoes remain about steady except for commonest, which are 1c. lower—common Pekoe Souchongs show a drop of fully 1c. and are cheaper to-day than any time since January. Fannings and Dusts mark a further rise of 2c. due entirely to Russian buying. Green teas were in more demand at about recent rates.

Some invoices show improvement, but generally speaking the quality is poor.

Fine weather is reported from most districts.

ANOTHER WHOLESALE GROCERY CO.

A charter has been granted by the Ontario Government to W. B. Rogers, M. M. Clancy, John Lambie Davidson, William Scott and John Medland, to carry on in all its branches, the business of wholesale grocers. The company is to be known as The Provincial Grocers, Ltd.

The capital is $250,000, head office Toronto.

It is the intention of the company to offer the shares for subscription to retail grocers. It is also proposed that the net profits of the company, after paying six per cent. on the amount of capital subscribed, be divided amongst the shareholders according to amount of trading each has done with the company during the current financial year.

PACKING SALMON ON NORTH COAST.

The Vancouver Province, of June 25, says: "The outlook for a large pack of salmon on the Skeena and other northern rivers is especially good, according to news brought down yesterday by the steamer Coquitlam.

"The vessel left on Monday, and on that day the boats were starting to go out in large numbers, and were meeting with considerable success. The run looked to be fairly good."

"SALESMANSHIP."

The above is the title of a new monthly magazine, published by The Salesmanship Co., at Meadville, Pa., at one dollar a year, single copies 10c. Frank H. Dukesmith is the editor. "Salesmanship" will aim to make better salesmen and therein will be helpful to employers, sales managers and salesmen themselves, whether store or road, men or women.

Irish flour importers declare that United States millers are now sending them inferior flour, and express the opinion that the millers are taking too much out of the wheat. This is a lesson for Canadian millers. They have turned into their mills the best wheat in the world; they should turn out the best flour possible for the home as well as the export trade.

THE TRAVELLERS' HOLIDAYS.

A PREVIOUS issue stated that arrangements were on foot to settle the holidays for grocery salesmen for two weeks starting August 10. This agreement has been signed by the leading grocers in Hamilton, London, Windsor, Sarnia and Collingwood, but it seems that Toronto houses, while in sympathy with the movement, do not agree to the date as arranged by the representative of the western houses.

The travellers' interests in Toronto are being looked after by Frank Sloan, of John Sloan & Co., with the result that the following have agreed to make the time the first two weeks in August, ending Saturday, 15th:—H. P. Eckardt & Co., Davidson & Hay, Limited, The Ely, Blain Co., Limited, T. Kinnear & Co., Warren Bros. & Co., James Lumbers, F. W. Humphrey, John Sloan & Co.

It is felt by these houses that while they would like to comply with the western trades' suggestion, as to time, it would not give their men time enough to cover their ground before the annual exhibition starts. It is now a question under consideration whether the western trade will meet Toronto, or each city act independently. The Toronto trade seem willing to make it the first two weeks in August whether Hamilton and the west agree to this or not. At an interview with our representative on the subject, Mr. Frank Sloan said: — "I am enthusiastically in favor of the travellers' holidays, because I think they need them as well as any of us, and if they are to get any why not let it be at a holiday time. One of the great advantages of this arrangement to us is that we all agree not to send out substitutes, but do all our business by mail or wire. Every year we receive letters from some of the retailers expressing sympathy with the idea, and as it is such satisfaction all around I cannot understand why any house should hesitate for a moment about entering into an agreement so beneficial to all."

CHEESE AT 10c. A POUND.

"What's the price of cheese?"

"Fifteen cents per pound."

"But the fellow opposite sells it for ten."

"Then go and buy it there."

"But he hasn't got any."

"Well, then, the kind of cheese I haven't got you can have here at 10 cents a pound also."—Vikingen.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

When Your Story is Well Told the Goods are Half Sold.

IT has been said that we should write an advertisement just the same as we would talk to a customer over the counter—that it is practically the same thing. But this is not always the case. When we get a customer to the counter we already have their attention, and we know to a certainty that what we are going to say will be listened to, and that if one argument fails to impress we have the means of bringing other arguments to the customer's attention.

ONE THING

a good housekeeper should be very careful in, is buying her

GROCERIES

where she knows everything is kept nice and clean, and fit to put on the table. We take great pride in saying with every one else that we have the

Cleanest,
Neatest,
Most Attractive

GROCERY IN THE WEST.

This is largely why we are doing by far the largest grocery business in town. And is it not a good reason? If there is anything a person should be particular about, it is what they eat. Come along, then! We are doing two-thirds of the grocery business in town and we still want more. We will be delighted to have a trial order. When up town drop in. We often have exhibited just what you perhaps have been asking for in these smaller grocery stores. We will use you well.

But in the case of an advertisement in the newspaper we must say something that will command attention. It must be something which sticks out and catches the eye and the mind of the casual reader.

After you have secured the reader's attention you can talk in the ordinary common-sense way, just about the same as you would to someone at your side; but, until you have attracted the people's attention, your talking in a moderate type is not always sure to attract attention and draw trade.

Therefore, while the real value and selling qualities of an advertisement may lie in the body matter, still the eye-catching qualities lie almost entirely in the display which is used. and we must catch the eye to secure the attention.

I have a favorite maxim, which I think is very good advice in this connection. It is this: "Break the news first, explain afterwards."

I've seen so many ads. in which a long preliminary explanation was gone into in order to "lead up" to the point.

The best ads. tell as much as possible of their story in the first sentence. This is calculated to create a desire for particulars, which should be found in the "explanation" immediately following.

It is the first mission of an advertisement to be seen. Its greatest mission, of course, is to convince, but before an ad. can get the chance to convince, or convey any message whatever, it must be seen by the reader for whom it is intended.

Therefore, the display is very important. The headline should be such as would be calculated to attract those persons who might be interested in the article or articles advertised. When possible make the headline "break the news."

Some advertisers spend too much energy in trying to attract attention, like the man who puts a monkey in his window, or sends one of those freaks through the streets on stilts, or in the guise of a country guy with a carpet-bag sign reading "I'm going to Blank's."

The ingenuity of the compositor is entirely exhausted—the variety of styles of type is run to the limit—in the effort to satisfy this man's desire for novelty.

In a letter from a correspondent of this department received last week, he remarks: "Don't you think if you'd arrange the body of your ads. with different styles of type they'd be more attractive?"

No, I don't think so. I believe in simplicity of typography.

Many an advertisement loses most of its force because too much of the reader's mental power is required in getting through the "type thickets."

The average reader is not an easy reader, therefore, the effort should be to invite him by extreme legibility. Have the ad. set so as to cause the reader the least possible effort to digest its contents.

Avoid ornamentation; use borders only for the sake of securing contrast; headlines, as an aid to the reader, or, as a summary of the thought to follow; cuts, only when they save a lengthy description or better describe the goods.

There are a few good suggestions for attractive display in the book of "100 Good Ads. for a Grocery Store," which

I have recently prepared, and a great many helps toward constructing convincing ads. The grocer who has one of these books will have no trouble preparing good ads., and after a little practice along the lines followed in the book, he will soon become so fertile with ideas that ability will quickly be acquired.

A couple more ads. have reached me from "McCammon, The Main Street Grocer, of Moose Jaw." They are along the same lines as the previous one sent me, and give evidence of a natural adaptability to the advertising feature of his business. MR. LYDIATT,
Department of Advertising, etc.,
CANADIAN GROCER, Toronto,

DEAR SIR,—Some time ago I hurriedly clipped from one of our local papers a potato ad. of my own, and forwarded it to you, scribbling on the margin "How is this for an ad.?" I noticed a week or so afterwards it appeared in THE GROCER with a lengthy criticism, and I must thank you for the kind remarks thereon. I am only sorry that business duties prevented me from replying to you until it was too late.

I must say I am greatly interested in your Department of Advertising Suggestion and Criticism in THE GROCER, and I am pleased to see so many of your readers contributing to the department.

I might say I am a tenderfoot in this prairie town, coming here last August from the Rockies, but I am pleased to say that we are, through (to a certain extent) judicious advertising, getting a nice share of the best business in Moose Jaw and surrounding country.

I am sending you an ad. which appeared in one of our local papers last week, and would ask your opinion regarding this style of continuous advertising. You might give us your opinion as to which of the two ads. will sell the most goods, and on the whole be the most profitable in the end.

I might say there are five other grocers in town, who are all carrying as large, if not larger, stocks, but bear in mind there is no hard feeling between any of us. I simply send you the clipping for criticism.

Yours truly,
T. J. MCCAMMON.

I like the "Berries" ad. best, because it talks business more directly. The argument contained in the other ad. is good, but such logic is better when dealt out in small packages. One can often include a few remarks along that line in connection with an ad. which makes pertinent remarks about some of the goods in the store.

Instead of the heading "Berries! Berries!" I would have had "Strawberries," or whatever berries it was intended to advertise. The display lines would then have read: "Strawberries!! —25 Cases—Prices Away Down—McCammon, The Main Street Grocer," and it will be noticed that the whole story of the ad. would then have been practically told in the display lines, which aptly illustrates the preceding remarks on display. In order to have made the effect complete it might have been better to have "Raspberries" in small type.

The "Berries" ad. talks business—the other one talks sentiment. Which would be likely to result in the most business? Of course, it is plain that the "Berries" ad. would likely bring the most direct results, and I think this style of an ad. is much more likely to result in permanent good. It is a case of making claims—bare claims—in the one ad., and demonstrating facilities in the other.

To demonstrate that you do have things is generally more effectual than making the mere statement.

Thom & McNab, dry goods and grocers, Almonte, have gone out of business.

CANADA AND JAMAICA.

A steady increase of trade appears to be taking place between Canada and Jamaica, according to latest advices from Kingston. All the most recent reports indicate not merely an increased trade, but very rosy prospects for further development, now that Canada has imposed a countervailing duty on beet sugar in favor of cane sugar. This preferential tariff on the part of the Dominion is said to have given a decided impetus to the exports of cane sugar from the West Indies to Canada. Further than this, it is said that Messrs. Pickford & Black are manifesting considerable energy in connection with their steamship service, which is jointly subsidized by the Canadian Government and various Governments of the West Indian Islands. Some very large cargoes of sugar have, it is stated, been recently shipped from Jamaica to Canada, all of which goes to show what is possible if the various units of the British Empire display a disposition to work together.—The Merchant and Shipper.

ANCIENT RECEIPTS FOR MAKING COFFEE.

The following receipt for making coffee is copied by an exchange from an old cook book published in England in 1662, and is, perhaps, the first English receipt for making coffee. The receipt reads:

"To make the drink that is now much used, called coffee. The coffee berries are to be bought at any druggist's, about seven shillings the pound. Take what quantity you please, and over a charcoal fire, in an old frying pan, keep them always stirring until they become quite black, and when you crack one with your teeth that it is black within as it is without, yet if you exceed, then do not waste the Oyl; and if less, then will it not deliver its Oyl; and if you should continue fire till it be white, it will then make no coffee, but only give you its salt. Beat and force through a lawn sieve.

"Take clear water, and boil one-third of it away, and it is fit for use. Take one quart of this prepared water, put in it one ounce of your prepared coffee, and boil it gently one hour, and it is fit for your use; drink one-quarter of a pint as hot as you can sip it. It doth abate the fury and sharpness of the Acrimony, which is the gender of the Diseases called Chronical."

A gold medal for excellence of quality, and diploma for unique packing was awarded Batty & Co., Ltd., London, Eng., at the Southern Counties Grocery Exhibition recently held at Brighton, Eng.

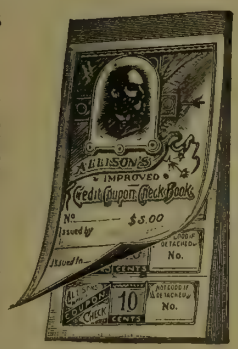
They Cost Less Than Nothing



Literally, ALLISON COUPON BOOKS cost less than nothing. By using them a mistake is impossible, thus saving many times what we charge for them. Hence, by absolutely saving a great deal more than you pay for them, they not only cost less than nothing, but you recieve a great, big premium with every book you buy.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Let us send you a free sample.

"Nonpareil Jellies."

A Fable.

A cochin-china hen once set for 24 hours on a white china door-knob without hatching as much as a keyhole. In great alarm she called in Dr. Shanghai, who felt her pulse, looked at her tongue and then advised her to get a setting of eggs. "I admire your persistence," he said, "but even persistence may be misplaced."

A whole lot of dealers are almost as persistent in the wrong direction as that hen. It's strange how some of them push poor jellies when they can sell NONPAREIL JELLIES.

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

House of Commons,
Ottawa, July 20, 1903.

IN an earlier issue we noted an endeavor on the part of the member for North Norfolk (Mr. John Charlton) to improve the existing election laws. Mr. Charlton is ever to be found on the side of morality, and whether he be engaged in "raising the age of consent," in what is known as "The Charlton Act," or one of its amendments, in assisting anti-cigarette legislation, in hastening the death of "The Commons Bar," now for some years defunct, or even as to-day, in an attempt to purify election contests, one thing is certain, the object of improvement is ever in his mind. He is, perhaps, better entitled to the old party name of "Reformer" than is any other man on the Liberal side of the House to-day, and one would never imagine in listening to his full voice, as he exercises it in the use of strong and telling Anglo-Saxon language, that he has passed the age of three score years and ten, by four.

To many of the purists throughout the length and breadth of the land, to whose immaculateness politics is "too dirty a game" in which to take a hand, the average public man appears as one who is not only willing, but even anxious, to evade the election law, and to promote the return of himself or his party by the means of bribery and corruption. Now if these gentlemen who stand afar off, with the pharasaical expression "I am holier than thou" stamped upon their faces, would only mingle in the fray, arraying themselves on the side of purity in the actual contest going on, an immense advantage to all would accrue. The average member of Parliament, for example, detests bribery as truly and as thoroughly as does the man who takes no part in politics whatever. He knows it to be the one thing which can, and often does, cost him the loss of his seat in spite of work well done, and public service of marked merit. There is no use closing our eyes to the fact that under manhood suffrage (for which so much was claimed and by which so little has been realized) there is in eighty per cent. of the constituencies, a purchasable vote of sufficient magnitude to turn the tide of the war. Parties in Canada are pretty evenly divided after all, in the various ridings, and the capture of one hundred corrupt votes, in a total of five thousand cast, is very likely to give the seat to the successful manipulator. Many things enter into a political contest which make it well nigh impossible for a candidate, however honest he may be in intention, to come through it absolutely without breach of the law, as to bribery, corruption, or undue influence.

A contest in a constituency is a great number of small skirmishes all over the field of battle. The riding is divided into a number of polling divisions, in each of which some few men stand out as rival leaders. Frequently then there is a trial of strength between these local giants. Bill Jones, who prides himself that he has never cast anything but a Grit vote in his life, has had a row over a line fence with Jim Smith who thanks Heaven that he and his father and grandfather before him have been true to the good old Tory cause. Personal animosity is added to political enthusiasm; the ward is about evenly divided between the parties. It is reported to Bill Jones by some cunning politician that Jim Smith has said that he intends at this election to show him just how little ice he cuts in old division 3, and, at the same time, some equally zealous party man on the other side, desiring to heighten the zeal of Jim Smith, tells him that Jones says that whatever influence he ever did have is reduced to the polling of his own and his hired man's vote. Then the struggle, heightened by the family pride of the women, begins, and Jim and Bill forget all about the election law in a wild endeavor to demonstrate to the expectant neighborhood how little the other fellow amounts to, and how big he himself looms in the public eye.

Take another case. A man has made up his mind that a public office is the thing for him. He knows that to procure the necessary sanction of his party he must show good work done in his particular locality. By "good" work is meant a big vote, not "good" in the sense of election morality, by any means, and once more sinster influences are set at work to produce the desired result. Thus it happens that a candidate who has been elected, as he thinks, in a fairly pure election, learns to his horror that an election petition has been filed against his return, and that he had better throw up the sponge after all his hard work, as the case will surely go against him anyway, and disastrously large costs will be added if he fights it through.

On the other hand, let us suppose that the candidate, not too squeamish himself, has the abiding fear, constantly fanned by his over-anxious friends, that his opponent is out with the stuff, as it is elegantly expressed. He heaves a big sigh, thinks of the depletion of his meagre treasury, and ends by saying, "Well boys, I'm out to win, and if the other chap is after the loose fish, why go ahead and see that we get our share." No, it will not stand analysis, the man who has the most to gain by the absolute and complete banishment of bribery is the candidate himself, and if anyone would invent a process by which it could indeed be done away with, he would have something for which members, irrespective of party, would throw up both hands.

It is curious to note that in some places electors are quite honest in the selling of their franchise, regarding it as a chattel of which they have every right to dispose, but which once sold must be delivered as surely as a bag of flour or a brace of chickens. A member of the present House tells a story of a man who called at his house after an election contest and throwing a ten dollar bill on his desk said, "That is yours, sir." The member did not even know him, and remarked that he thought that there must be some mistake, as he did not know of any debt between them. The stranger replied, "One of your friends gave me that to vote for you, but on election day I was sick and could not get out, so I have no right at all to it." It is strange indeed how little stringent election laws have done to check the evil. The fact seems to be that the average man does not look upon the taking or giving of money at election time as a sin, but merely as a risk, which party loyalty, devotion to a friend, or even one of the ulterior objects above mentioned, in large measure justifies or even glorifies. Men who are most estimable citizens, regular church members, and strictly honest business operators will, under the excitement of an election contest, do things which, if proved in court, would mean imprisonment and disgrace which it would take years to live down, and which could never be utterly effaced.

And so we say, "Good luck, John Charlton and the eight who are laboring with you on the purity committee, as it has been nick-named in this land of nicknames. May you and your friends discover paragraphs, clauses, and sub-sections that will not only threaten dire and dreadful things, but which will, in the working out thereof, be such a real terror to evil-doers that this disgrace will be wiped off the face of our land." Yes indeed, we wish you well, but with past experience of similar effort, and with knowledge of present conditions, we wish rather than hope.

By the time this appears in print the dailies will have succeeded in pretty well exhausting the interest aroused by the resignation of the Hon. A. G. Blair, and it is no part of our purpose to give a synopsis of his reasons for going out, or of the reasons of the Prime Minister for allowing him to do so. On the other hand, it is impossible to write of the doings of the week without reference to this, the most dramatic occurrence, not of the seven days, but probably since the Liberals have come back to power.

In the case of Mr. Tarte, the retirement took place long before the session began, and when the time arrived for ministerial explanation the whole thing had, to a large extent, been discounted, and only a rather languid interest was aroused. Not so with Mr. Blair, he had just completed the passage of his Railway Committee Bill, a stupendous piece of work, and from his labors, he had undoubtedly emerged with a great reputation still further enhanced. Let unfriendly comment now or later take what form it will, the fact remains that Andrew G. Blair is not only great in his province of New Brunswick, but great in all Canada, one of the foremost men in Canadian public life to-day.

The issue between him and his late colleagues is clear-cut, it lies in the Government policy with regard to the building of the transcontinental railroad. On one point all are agreed; another trunk line is necessary. But with the manner of the building, and the conditions in general surrounding it, the difference begins. Mr. Blair states that so great is his conviction as to the unsoundness of the Government proposals, that he could not honorably swallow his own opinions in deference to those of his colleagues. If a man has even a strong suspicion that a certain line of policy is inadvisable, he may, in good conscience, bow to the opinion of a number of strong colleagues in whose judgment he has confidence, but when that suspicion becomes conviction there is but one thing for an honorable man to do, and that is what Mr. Blair has done, to resign. With the question of who is right, and who is wrong, we shall not attempt to deal. That will be under discussion for months to come in every paper great and small in Canada, and it will no doubt be the paramount issue, too, in the general election, be that interesting event far or near. But even his opponents must admit that Mr. Blair is not only justified, but even to be praised for having done what other great men before him—the Hon. William Gladstone among others—have done, resigned for the sake of his convictions.

Never in years have the galleries been so crowded as when the Premier arose to make his explanation of the rupture between himself and his late colleague. Peculiar sympathy was felt for Sir Wilfrid because of his state of health. While infinitely better than at the beginning of the session he is still not robust, and it was felt that an incident so painful as this must necessarily be, could not but tell upon him. Mr. Blair himself referred to this aspect of the case in a way at once courteous and sympathetic. The Premier, however, seemed less affected than did his ex-minister, and carried off the strain of the occasion in a way which delighted his loyal supporters.

Throughout the proceedings were marked by a dignity that did credit to a House of Commons that, young as it is, is not without great traditions, and, as the members, after the sitting, broke up into little animated groups, discussing the events of the afternoon, the opinion was unanimous that, however painful the incident, the pain was minimized by the excellent way in which the main participants, Sir Wilfrid, Mr. Blair, and Mr. Borden, had borne themselves.

One little incident did somewhat mar the general effect. The way in which the irrepressible Mr. Tarte, and that adjective we fancy, will qualify him to the day of his death, injected his personal grievances into the debate. He took occasion to present himself with a few fine bouquets, to disclose some Cabinet secrets, and to take a shy at several of his late colleagues, quoting from The Toronto News an article far from complimentary to Mr. Blair and himself, responsibility for which he tried in a fishing expedition to fix on some one or more of the members of the Cabinet, but without success.

AUSTRALIAN CUSTOMS REGULATIONS.

U. S. Consul-General J. P. Bray writes from Melbourne that the following order has been issued by the Australian Comptroller of Customs:

In view of the number of cases which have occurred in which advertising matter is discovered in packages, though no mention of it is made in the invoice, the acting minister directs that action be taken in regard to all advertising matter not shown in invoices and the goods forfeited by the department. Importers should be careful to see that all advertising matter is shown in the invoice.

The forfeiture applies to the advertising matter in the packet only. Canadian exporters should note this.

"STICK TO YOUR LAST."

Editor CANADIAN GROCER:

The condition of the grocery trade in Canada to-day can best be described as "topsy-turvey." The editorial in your issue of July 10 is opportune, and the note of warning should be heeded by those eager to rush headlong into another man's business. I remember seeing somewhere a picture of men fishing from two banks of a stream and each casting into the opposite water; it would aptly illustrate the attitude of certain grocery firms who are reaching across to the other man's preserves and neglecting their own possibilities. The jobber is striving to become a manufacturer, also a broker, and possibly eventually a retailer; the retailer, by co-operating, becomes his own jobber; the broker turns wholesaler, and the tendency of the manufacturer is to deal direct instead of distributing through the jobber as formerly. The consequence is that business is all disjointed, each man striving to work a branch of business that he does not thoroughly understand, and necessarily cannot perform to the best advantage. Each branch is a special business of itself, and is a necessary component part of the distributive machinery. The man who strives to be a Jack-of-all-trades is seldom master of any. Specialization is a necessity to good service, and must eventually prevail. Let the cobbler stick to his last.

SUGAR FACTORY PROPOSED.

A Michigan man, who is alleged to have money, is desirous of starting a beet-sugar factory in Western Ontario. He is in communication with Galt and is inquiring for information as to the prospects for a free site, exemption from taxation and local stock subscriptions.

BEET SUGAR PLANT FOR PETERBORO.

A HANDSOME factory is being put up in Peterboro, by the Peterboro Sugar Co., Limited, for the purpose of manufacturing beet sugar on a large scale. The main building, the foundations of which are now in, will be a substantial structure, of architectural beauty, possessing the latest and best economic features of a beet sugar factory. It will measure, in all, 340 feet long by 110 feet wide. The foundations and walls throughout will be of concrete. The running capacity of the factory is roughly estimated at about 550 tons of beets per day. This year the company intends to handle only some 50 tons daily, but by next year it will take care of 75,000 tons or more. Canada has now only four factories in operation. All of these are in Western Ontario, and as statistics go to show that it will require thirty factories, each of a 550 ton capacity, to supply the demands of Canada's sugar eaters, we can easily stand a few more enterprises such as The Peterboro Sugar Co., Limited.

THE CANADIAN BROOM CO., LTD.

The Canadian Broom Company is one of the latest industries to be established at the Capital. The company secured a charter some six weeks ago and is now in full operation. Their factory, shipping room and offices are located at 400 Wellington street, Ottawa. The factory is fitted up with the latest and most modern machinery, and none but skilled labor is employed in the manufacture of their product. The quality of the goods manufactured is pronounced by good judges to be unexcelled, and their goods meet a ready sale in all quarters. The company have contracted in advance for one year's supply of material and secured most favorable terms, thereby ensuring a uniform price to customers. A staff of travellers are now on the road taking orders and are meeting with success right along the line. The management of the factory is in the hands of a man who understands every detail of the business and the prospects of success are considered very rosy. The company believe in the efficacy of advertising and their advertisement will appear in each issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER, hereafter, where it may be consulted with profit by those interested in the sale of brooms, whisks, brushes, etc.

DOMINION FISH CO.

The Owen Sound Times is authority for the statement that The Dominion Fish Co. will make Owen Sound their headquarters hereafter instead of Wiarton. The reason given for the change is the convenience for shipping.

HOW OLIVE OIL IS ADULTERATED.

Marseilles is the great market for olive oil. Yet how little of so-called olive oil is genuine is proved by the fact that last year that town imported 2,900 tons of cotton-seed oil and 107,000 cwt. of peanuts. The latter yield an oil resembling that from olives.

HOP PRODUCTS EXCLUDED FROM AUSTRALIA.

Word has been received from U. S. Consul-General J. P. Bray, Melbourne, Australia, that an order-in-council had been issued in pursuance of the Customs Act, placing among articles, the importation of which into the commonwealth is forbidden, hop aromas, hop oil, hop extracts, hop flavors and hop bouquets, whether simple or compounded in any manner with other material used in any brewing process or for addition to beer.

Cause of Inferior Cheese.

AT the meeting of the Brockville Cheese Board a week ago yesterday an interesting discussion arose over the complaints recently heard as to the inferior quality of the cheese being shipped this year. The trouble was being ascribed to the poor nature of the box when Inspector Publow arrived on the scene.

The latter was called to the platform, and said that 90 per cent. of the present bad condition of cheese was due to the quality of milk brought to the factory by farmers. The patrons of factories should clean up the whey tanks and factories, as under the conditions as they are to-day, no instructor could have the finest cheese. If the factorymen would keep the whey tanks and factories clean and the farmers look after the proper cleansing of the milk cans, the result in the quality of the milk and cheese would be surprising. The whey tanks should be cleaned at least once a week, and if not, there would be symptoms of it in the cheese. Mr. Publow also stated that he had been through the eastern part of the province during the last three weeks, and during all his visits never saw a cheese that he would call fine. They compared favorably with other cheese throughout the country, but they were not the fancy article that was turned out a few years ago. The instructors might just as well be taken off the road as ask them to turn out fine cheese under the conditions. Some of them, he was free to admit, were not first-class men, and would either have to improve or else give way to better men. The farmers were the ones to demand that the cheese was the very best, as the article turned out was theirs, and one of the biggest profits in their business. The buyers were also to blame for accepting the cheese and reporting them to Montreal as O.K. If they demanded the standard set for fine cheese they would be justified in not accepting a box at present.

Analysis of Canned Meats.

A BULLETIN has just been issued by the Inland Revenue Department giving the results of the analysis of 99 samples of canned meats purchased between April 11 and May 8 from various vendors throughout the Dominion. Of the 99 samples examined, the meat in two samples was quite spoiled, in three others it was slightly spoiled, and the remaining 94 were in good condition. One of the slightly-spoiled samples contained boric acid. With this exception, all samples containing preservatives were found to be in good condition. The only preservative discovered was boric acid, which was found in 21 samples, representing the products of three Canadian firms and one American firm. In no case did the quantity of boric acid found exceed the limit fixed by the British Parliamentary Commission, viz., .05 per cent., and in most cases it fell markedly below that amount.

The Parry Sound Dairy Co.

The Parry Sound Dairy Company, Limited, Powassan, Ont., has been incorporated with a share capital of $5,000, divided into shares of $100 each, to manufacture and sell butter and cheese. The provisional directors are J. J. Durrell, John Hogan and Owen Gough, all of the township of Himsworth, Parry Sound.

Precarious State of German Dairy Industry.

Cheese-making in Germany is principally carried on in the Allgau, a district in the southern part of the Bavarian provinces of Schwaben and Neuberg. From the report of a meeting held by the Allgau cheese makers recently we gather that their industry is at present in a very critical condition, due in some measure to the increasingly keen competition of Dutch cheese in Rhineland, Westphalia, Berlin, etc., but chiefly to the high prices of milk brought about by the establishment of two branch factories by two leading makers of Swiss condensed milk in the best parts of that Bavarian Cheshire. It was unanimously resolved at the meeting that owing to the heavy losses suffered by the Bavarian cheese industry last winter, and the unfavorable prospects of the near future, they would be compelled to demand of the milk purveyors a reduction of 15 to 20 marks per 1,000 liters on their coming Summer quotations, otherwise cheese-making in the district would have to be carried on with considerable loss.

New Slaughtering Method.

The Butchers' Advocate says that the Belgian Society for the Protection of Animals has lately been discussing the best methods of killing animals, and has at last hit on a system which it is now urging the communal authorities at Brussels to adopt in their abattoirs. The killing apparatus devised by the society takes the form of a mask, in the centre of which is a cartridge charged with an explosive. It is claimed for this method that the cartridge can be made to explode very simply, and that when it does explode a tubular spike is at once driven into the brain of the beast, causing instantaneous death. Trials with the new slaughtering method have already taken place in the abattoirs at Careghem.

Canadian Chickens in London.

The London Canadian Gazette says that Canadian poultry is now capturing the best trade in fashionable London suburbs, the specially bred Canadian chickens having a great demand and retailing from $1.75 to $2 per couple. Their highly-finished appearance and flavor has demolished all prejudice on the score of "foreign" produce.

London Prices Current.

The Thomas Nesbitt & Co.'s Prices Current of Irish and Foreign Provisions, London, July 6th, just at hand, makes the following general comments :

Business generally dull.

Butter—Trade slow at reduced prices.

Bacon—Market demoralized. Heavy arrivals of continental and a slow trade has upset prices, and clearances can only be made at low and irregular rates. Irish and Canadian dull.

Hams in fair demand.

Lard—Bladders quiet ; pails, etc., very slow.

Eggs—Market fairly steady at quotations.

Cheese—Market quiet.

What is most unusual is that clear pork is offered well below mess. The quality, however, shows a wide range. Sales are light and market very weak. Beef, while not weak, tends easier. In lard, the market is still very dull; pure lard is rather lower; in refined, prices have been steady, with a fair sale. Of fresh beef there is a good supply; while domestic was rather easier, Western beef was unchanged. Mutton is low and in limited sale. Lamb improves in quality; the sale is large at quite full figures. Veal is still offered; there is a wide range in price. Pork is little seen. We quote:

BUTTER.—There has been no change in butter quotations since last week's writing, although stocks have continued to accumulate and there is no relief to the situation in England. Russian butter still floods the market and even enquiries are stilled. The quality of butter marketed is good but dealers still complain of the shape in which it is marketed. Cheap imitation parchment paper is one thing complained of. Another is the large amount that is forwarded in tin buckets. These cannot be shipped, and rust when stored. Tubs, or first-class prints are preferred. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 18	0 19

Dairy rolls, large	....	....
" prints	0 15	0 16

Under qualities	0 12	0 13

CHEESE.—Values are reported easier since last week but no break in quotations has been learned of. The situation can only be described as dull with no dawn apparent. The quality is generally reported not to be up to last year's make. One dealer told "The Grocer" that so far as he could see the quality deteriorated with the age of the factory. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 10	0 10½
" twins, new	0 10¼	0 10½

MONTREAL.

BUTTER.—Market is reported better this week, there being some little more inquiry for export, 18¼ to 18⅜c. being freely paid on the wharf here yesterday for choice lots. Cowansville, on Saturday, 18½ to 18⅝c. was the ruling price. We quote the local market as follows: Finest creamery, prints, 19¼ to 20c.; ditto, boxes and tubs, 19 to 19½c. Finest dairy, tubs, 16 to 17c.

CHEESE.—Market is unchanged from last week's quotation, the buying price in the country remaining the same. The traders would like to hope for lower prices but they do not seem to be able to be gratified, all the exporters being free buyers. Outside boards in Ontario ruled 9½ to 9⅝c., and Quebec cheese on the wharf sold for 9¼ to 9⅜c. English market is quiet and feeling the effects of the high-priced cheese which are now arriving. The local market price is 10½c.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—The market is dull and prices low; quality offered is good. This is the season of supply. Receipts are not in quantities but are scattered, and retailers and consumers receive many direct shipments.

EGGS.—The price is rather firmer. Local stocks would not supply the market and when dealers went outside they found they had to pay higher prices.

CHEESE.—There are quite free offerings. Prices have gone off rather quicker than was expected. There is no local demand for other than twin. Shipments to England at ruling prices keep market quite well cleaned up. Quotations are:

Butter, creamery prints, per lb	0 22	0 24

LARD

There is one word sadly misinterpreted, that word is "substitute." Because an article is a substitute it is not necessarily inferior. The electric light is a substitute for the candle and the modern flour for the product of the windmill. Our "Boar's Head" brand of Refined Lard Compound is a substitute for hog lard, and is an improvement on any other frying and shortening medium. Grocers totally unable to sell other brands of Compound with any satisfaction, find that Fairbank's "Boar's Head" brand takes the place of every other lard with their customers; then, too, the price is about 2c. less per lb. than hog fat.

COFFEE AND SPICES

Increase Your Coffee Sales.

IT has been said, with some suspicion of truth, that the chief difference between Canada and the United States is that you can't get a decent cup of coffee on this side of the line, nor decent tea on the other. What is the cause of this state of affairs? Anyone who has travelled at all knows the wretched concoction that passes for coffee at most Canadian hotels and lunch counters, while at even the most unpretentious house of entertainment across the line one is reasonably sure of a good cup of coffee. Coffee is very much like the little girl with the curl right down her forehead, "When it is good it is very good, and when it is bad it is horrid." Very little coffee, comparatively speaking, is used in Canada. Whether our bad coffee is due to the small amount we use, or use so little because it is so bad, is a conundrum. The answer very probably lies in the coffee pot. Very few people know how to manipulate it, and the best coffee is often made to yield indifferent results.

In any event this is a line which has not been pushed by the grocery trade, and which has large possibilities. There are few grocers who could not, by a little judiciously exercised energy, double their coffee sales. A reputation for first-class coffee is of the very greatest value to a house, not only for the increased trade in that line alone, but for additional custom such a reputation would attract.

To gain such a reputation two things are requisite. First, only really good coffee must be offered for sale. Secondly, care must be taken that the coffee supplied to customers is properly made after it passes into their hands. This is a more delicate matter. It will never do to tell the housewife, or even the cook, that she does not know how to make coffee. She will resent it, the more so the nearer it comes to the truth.

An excellent means of coming at this, however, is to have printed on gummed slips minute directions for making the coffee. Advertise your directions with your coffee, explain them to the customer in selling the goods and see that no package of coffee leaves the store which is not accompanied by explicit directions for making a first-class drink.

Every woman is imbued with a desire to try all new receipts that come to her hand, and the chances are she will try yours on the coffee. The result will be gratifying all round. You have won a steady coffee customer and a persistent advertiser of your line. No woman who gets a good thing is selfish enough to keep it to herself. Your best advertiser is a pleased woman.

There is great virtue in specializing, and no more attractive line on which to specialize exists than coffee. It may mean a considerably increased amount of attention and no little persistence, but the attention will pay and the persistence, if intelligently directed, will be amply productive.

Rio's Coffee Output.

Next to Santos, Rio Janeiro is the greatest coffee port of the world. Millions of bags are shipped from that city every year, and the chief business of Brazil's vast coffee crop is done there. Rio Janeiro lives upon coffee. The big coffee factories are interesting places. Some of them are as full of machinery as a Minneapolis flour mill. One walks under a network of moving belts through air mixed with coffee dust, and goes through room after room filled with machines for dressing the berries to suit the different tastes of the world. Each market seems to have its particular desires. The Germans, for instance, demand that the husks be on the beans when they arrive in Hamburg. The Germans prefer to do the shelling themselves.

Other countries want their coffee polished. It is shined up as you shine silver, being brushed by the most delicate machines, which do not injure the grain. The coffee which goes to Canada and the United States is sold just as it comes from the plantation, there being no demand here for polished coffee or for any other than that natural in color.

About Cinnamon.

In the early part of the last century, says Planting Opinion, and down to about 1840, the first quality of cinnamon commanded as much as eight shillings ($2) a pound, second sorts selling for six shillings (1.50). Until 1833 the cultivation and trade in Ceylon cinnamon remained vested solely in the Government, who maintained a large and costly establishment under highly-paid European supervision for the proper care of the fine plantations which yielded the eight thousand bales which then formed the total export of the spice. In the year above-named the monopoly was abandoned and the Government sold off their large stocks of the spice as well as their gardens, which have since been cultivated by private individuals. Larger crops and competition with inferior spice from the Malabar coast and China (where an inferior quality of cassia bark is exported to the extent of eleven million pounds) have gradually lowered the value in the home markets, and the best Ceylon cinnamon is now selling at a little more than a shilling (25c) a pound, so that only very well cultivated and carefully managed properties yield an income to the proprietors. Spain is a large consumer of cinnamon for use as incense, for flavoring drinks, and for making chocolate creams. An inferior description of this spice is shipped under the name of "chips," being the cuttings from imperfectly-grown cinnamon branches.

The Pepper Tree.

The pepper tree is a member of the anacaid family, known botanically as schinus molle, or mulli, the latter representing, it is said, the Peruvian name of the plant. It is a small tree with unqually primate leaves, the segments being linear, entire or finely saw toothed, one of the terminals being longer than the rest, and all filled with a volatile oil stored in large cells, which are visible to the naked eye and appear like holes when the leaf is held up to the light. When the leaves are thrown upon the surface of water the resinous or oily fluid escapes with such force as to violently agitate them.

The flowers are small and whitish, and are arranged in terminal clusters. They are polygamus, with fine sepals, five petals and ten stamens.

The style is simple, being three cleft. The fruit is a small, globose, pea-like drupe, with a horny kernel enclosing a single kernel.

TEMPTATION

You all know what a heap of trouble poor Eve got into on account of a little apple, when she fell a victim to the temptor's wiles. It was hard luck, but she went into it with her eyes open. They opened wider afterwards when she saw the mistake she had made. Eve lacked experience.

Since Mother Eve made such a bad beginning, the temptor, in various forms, has been continually getting in his fine work on the human family.

For instance, you may be worried and tempted to buy Vinegar—perhaps not a day passes that you are not asked to buy some kind or other—with all the absolute guarantees attached thereto that the would-be seller can think of. He may even say, "It's just as good as 'Imperial.'" That's saying a good deal.

EXPERIENCE IS A GREAT TEACHER. This holds equally good in the manufacture of Vinegar. When we began making "Imperial" White Wine, we engaged the best known expert in this line in Canada—installed the most modern and tried machinery—and made QUALITY our watchword from the start. That quality has made a reputation for "Imperial," and got for us the exclusive business of many of the leading pickle and sauce manufacturers in Canada.

No risk in handling Vinegar that carries the highest endorsation of the best pickle men in the country.

"Imperial" is clear and sparkling, pleasant flavored, full Government strength, and (mark this) fully matured in wood before leaving our factory. To bring out the fine quality in Vinegar it must be properly matured.

DON'T BELIEVE A WORD THAT WE SAY till you've proven its truth, by comparing "IMPERIAL," with other Vinegars. Retailers who originally handled about five barrels of Vinegar a year—just ordinary Vinegar—now sell 20 packages of "Imperial" in the same time.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS' ANNU L PICNIC.

WEDNESDAY, July 15th, was a red-letter day in the annals of the Retail Grocers' Association of Montreal. It was a day looked forward to by its members with anticipations of pleasure, and great preparations had been made by the Executive Committee to ensure a happy outing for all; that everybody was pleased at the close of the day's festivities goes without saying, or, as our French Canadians express it, "ce va sans dire."

The day opened dark and lowering; indications of rain, however, do not prevent the grocers from enjoying themselves, and when the special train at Bonaventure station pulled out at 9.30, it had on board about 800 grocers and their friends. The place selected for this year's outing was Ste. Hyacinthe, and when the train reached there at 11 o'clock, the excursionists were met at the depot by Mayor St. Jacques and a brass band. After a hearty welcome had been extended to the visitors by the Mayor, a start was made for the picnic grounds near the race-course. Here a large tent had been erected where luncheon was served at 2 o'clock. President Turner presided, and after partaking of a hearty luncheon and the toast of "The King" had been duly honored, short speeches were delivered by prominent wholesale and retail grocers, and merchants of Montreal and Ste. Hyacinthe. The following gentlemen addressed their fellow-grocers, both in English and French:

Ald. Turner, J. Roberston, V. P. St. Pierre, Ald. N. Lapointe, A. Ethier, M. Trepanier, P. O'Brien, M. Levesque, Ald. Vallieres, N. Chartrand, J. B. St. Pierre, J. G. Trahan, C. Brodeur, H. Raymond and J. P. Dixon. Madame Chartrand was presented with a bouquet of flowers by Ald. Vallieres on behalf of the members of the association.

In the afternoon the chief interest centred around the baseball match and the prize waltz, the former being won by the west end grocery clerks from the north end grocery clerks by a score of 8 to 2.

Following are the winners in the events on the programme of sports:

Quoits—J. A. Rice, 1; W. J. P. Wylie, 2; Hugh McFee, 3.

100 yards, bookkeepers and salesmen of the retail trade—C. L. Harding, 1; A. Gauvreau, 2; H. Allard, 3.

100 yards, drivers and retail grocery storemen—A. O'Brien, 1; J. R. Hutton, 2; G. Neil, 3.

75 yards, boys 10 years and under—A. Daoust, 1, R. Brossard, 2; E. Farrell, 3.

75 yards, girls 12 years and under—M. Manning; 1; A. Parent, 2; E. Levesque, 3; J. Neil, 4.

100 yards, wholesale travellers—A. E. Landry, 1; C. A. Corrigan, 2; E. W. Sullivan, 3.

75 yards, grocers over 50 years of age—P. O'Brien, 1; J. B. Roy, 2; T. R. Collins, 3.

200 yards, beer and ginger ale drivers—M. Jordon, 1; J. P. McEntee, 2; S. Stuart, 3.

100 yards, commercial travellers—E. P. Lalonde, 1; J. McConomy, 2; J. Langlois, 3;

75 yards, girls under 15 years—R. Ripley, 1; A. Broden, 2; D. Neil, 3; L. Brossard, 4, 75 yards, grocers' wives and daughters—M. Manning, 1; V. DeRepentigny, 2; A. Edwards, 3.

100 yards, chairmen of committees—J. A. Menard, 1; A. Laurendeau, 2; E. W. Farrell, 3; P. O'Brien, 4; F. Bigaouette, 5.

75 yards, grocers' sons over 15 years—R. Walsh, 1; H. Turner, 2; A. Daoust, 3.

100 yards, committee members, chairmen excepted—J. Landry, 1; J. E. Hutton, 2; A. P. Lalonde, 3.

100 yards, grocers' or their employes' sons, 18 years or under—A. O Brien, 1; R. Walsh, 2; W. Neil, 3.

100 yards, retail grocers—J. A. Seguin, 1; A. Laniel, 2; J. E. Hutton, 3.

100 yards, bread and biscuit drivers—A. P. Lalonde, 1; J. McConomy, 2; R. Fletcher 3.

100 yards, grocers' special race—J. A. Seguin, 1; A. Landry, 2; J. E. Hutton, 3.

75 yards, men 200 lb. and over—J. U. Archambault, 1; C. Levesque, 2; M. Contant, 3.

100 yards, reporters—J. R. Walsh, 1; J. Fournier, 2; M. DeLabruere, 3.

50 yards, consolation race for women—Miss Blackstead, 1; Miss Collins, 2; Mrs. Lapointe, 3.

100 yards, consolation race for men—M. O'Brien, 1; H. Warren, 2; T. Elliott, 3.

Rifle shooting contest—A. Laurendeau, 1; J. Menard, 2; G. Silcock, 3; O. Berthiaume, 4.

Prize Waltz——. Caron and Mrs. O'Brien, 1; A. Laurendeau and Miss E. Gillet, 2; M. Martineau and Miss Rodrique, 3; M. Galarneau and Miss Masse, 4.

The manner in which the Montreal retail grocers go about to enjoy themselves on their great day is one that strikes the westerner as decidedly worthy of emulation by the Toronto and Hamilton associations. The number of prominent wholesalers who take an active interest in this outing of their customers is notable. They come out and enjoy themselves as only a thorough French-Canadian can. They seem to have the interest of the trade close at heart and are known by everyone as hearty well-wishers.

To Mr. Dixon, the secretary of the association, special thanks are due for the very active and unremitting interest he displayed throughout the arranging and successful carrying out of the festivities. President Ald. Turner, Ald. Lapointe and Ald. Vallieres also deserve commendation for their efforts. Taking it altogether, a very joyful day was spent, and the weather being fine throughout the day, everyone returned home thoroughly happy and no doubt looking forward to next year's picnic with pleasurable anticipation.

PICNIC NOTES.

A feature, and one that drew a good deal of attention, was the "Red Rose" tea guessing contest for retail grocers. The affair was in charge of Walter C. Gaden, Montreal representative of T. H. Estabrooks, packer of "Red Rose" tea, St. John, N.B. The handsome gold watch, valued at $75, was won by Eugene Denne, grocer, Rochelle street, whose guess of 3,268 beans was the nearest to the actual figure, namely, 3,278. "Red Rose" tea seems to have caught on here, as everywhere Mr. Gaden was received with "Hello, 'Red Rose.'"

An interested and sociable quartette at the picnic were John Robertson, of John Robertson & Son, the prominent St. Catherine street grocer; R. Solmes, of Solmes & Edwards, University street purveyors; W. Hofmann, agent for White & Co., Toronto, and Geo. C. Silcock, local agent for Geo. Mathews & Co., packers, Ottawa. There wasn't much going on that this quartette didn't see and take part in.

E. J. Cowan, of The Cowan Cocoa Co., Limited, Toronto, and R. Smeall, Montreal Biscuit Co., were also conspicuous by their geniality and popularity.

Mr. Ethier, of Laporte, Martin & Cie, seemed to be one of the most popular participants of the festivities and known by almost everybody present.

A. W. Childs, traveller for Laporte, Martin & Cie, also assisted Mr. Ethier to make things pleasant for their many friends and customers.

Fred. Hughes and Alf. Robitaille, of The Eureka Vinegar Works, were noticeable by the general friendliness and popularity with which they were greeted on all hands.

Nearly every visitor to Ste. Hyacinthe paid a visit to the burned district in the heart of the city. The terrible fire that but lately swept the city left a frightfully bad scar on the face of the beautiful city on the banks of the Yamaska. The enterprising citizens, however, are hard at work, rebuilding, and soon, Phœnix-like, larger and more pretentious buildings will rise from the ashes.

W. H. Steele & Co., Scott street, Toronto, are arranging their stock and purpose having several job lots of pipes and cigars to offer to the trade next week.

Ada M. Tudhope, carrying on grocery business at Ingersoll, under the firm name of Tudhope Bros., has sold out to T. L. Moyer, of Woodstock. The above firm had no connection with the well-known firm of Tudhope Bros. of Woodstock.

ADULTERATION OF FOODSTUFFS.

The following appeared in a recent issue of The Montreal Star :

To the Editor of The Montreal Star :

Sir,—The member for St. Ann's Division for the Dominion Parliament must certainly get credit for trying to give us pure gin and whiskey. It is too bad to poison men with bad liquor, but how about adulterated and poisoned foodstuffs? Bad liquor, as a rule, only affects men, while bad foods affect the whole community, and it is strange that Mr. Gallery should confine himself to liquor. We must presume, however, that he knew what he was talking about, and taking it for granted that the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof, a full meed of praise must be given. Yet after what has already been made public by our own medical health officer regarding the adulteration of pickles and preserves, we were justified in expecting that proper provision would have been made by the Government to protect the public from one of the worst frauds possible to practise. Here we have commercial coffee, peppers, mustard and spices of all kinds containing not more than 30 per cent. of the articles whose names they bear. We have pickles (so-called) with a decoction of acid and water enough to destroy all the teeth in Canada, and thousands of gallons of this same decoction are sold to anybody and everybody for vinegar daily by grocers, and used in eating-houses and oyster stores. Several kinds of vegetables are put up in tins, and sold for preserved fruits, and it is a frequent occurrence to hear of people being poisoned through eating canned tomatoes, fish, meats, etc., nearly all of which is caused by lead-poisoning. Why? Because in the manufacture of cans, far too much lead is used in the solder with which the cans are sealed. In France (I am informed) not more than 20 per cent. of lead is allowed to 80 per cent. of tin, while in Canada the quantities are reversed, 80 per cent. of lead to 20 per cent. of tin. This could easily be determined by a careful analysis.

Again, we have tea imported into Canada, which is refused admittance into the United States. Because of its inferiority, this tea goes through a process of coloring, and chemicals are added to give it an aroma. It is then palmed off on the public as a genuine article, according to color and smell. It only needs to be put into a little cold water to extract a large portion of the color.

There is probably more tons of young herring put up in cotton oil, sold in Canada for sardines, than there are pounds of real sardines imported into the country, although they are comparatively harmless. Yet the public has a right to know what they are getting. It would take columns to enumerate all the articles in which fraud or deception is practised. And, in spite of it all, the Government votes a paltry $20,000 for analytical purposes to ensure 5,000,000 of people getting pure food. And most of the amount voted goes to officials having comparatively nothing to do with the real work, which generally consists of analyzing some of the best imported goods. What the public wants to know is, if it is to buy adulterated articles, to what extent the adulteration goes, by having a law compelling the vendor to label all goods showing the amount of foreign matter they contain. The severest penalties should be imposed where fraud is practised.

The Government seems very solicitous about sending bad butter, cheese, or fruit outside the country, but it apparently does not care a rap about the people in this country. Not only the Government, but the city, should safeguard our interests better in this matter. Regarding liquor, I am sure many will thank the member for St. Ann's Division for his efforts, although, let us hope he is not depending for his future support upon those who only drink bad gin or whiskey. They are usually very changeable during election times, and are not always in the majority. But if the member is successful, no one will object to his labelling his work as usual. We now have the Gallery Park, Gallery Bath, and we shall then have Gallery gin, Gallery whiskey, Gallery rum, Gallery brandy, Gallery beer, etc. It will look very nice on the bottles, and perpetuate the name of a member of this important parliamentary constituency.

ANOTHER PORK-PACKING FAILURE.

Still another pork-packing industry in Ontario has been forced to close down on account of financial difficulties. On July 21, The Paisley Pork Packing Co., which was formed three years ago, with a capital of $10,000, was forced to make an assignment of its business. The cause given by the promoters for the failure is keen competition and the high prices for hogs which have ruled this season. The assignment was made to H. Cowan, of Paisley, and the liabilities are not yet known.

LET US MILL OUR OWN WHEAT.

THE removal of the British corn duties should be a stimulus to Canadian milling. The incidence of the tax, whether intentionally or no, bore more heavily on flour and manufactured foodstuffs than on the unmilled grain. Discriminatory freight rates contributed, in addition, to effect a measure of protection in favor of the British millers by rendering it more profitable to export our foodstuffs unmilled than to grind them at home and export the manufactured product. Now that the freights alone stand in the way, it is to be hoped that this last obstacle to the development of our milling industries also may be removed.

The railroads owe it to the country and to themselves to encourage the milling of our grain in Canada.

About 85,000,000 bushels is the estimated wheat crop from our western country this year. Over 250,000,000 bushels is prophesied within a few years. The milling of that wheat will be an immense industry. Where will this industry be located? Who is to reap the profits therefrom?

Already the Minneapolis millers have become seized of the situation, and appreciate the place Western Canadian wheat is to take in the food market of the world. During the last Winter among others The Washburn, Crosby Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., have taken advantage of favorable transportation rates to bond their mills and grind Canadian wheat for export. The Millers' National Federation meeting at Detroit last month passed strong resolutions demanding reciprocity with Canada so that our wheat may be available at all times. They declare that if they can secure the grinding of Canadian wheat they can control the prices of flour in the world's market instead of finding the Canadian product a competing factor in that market.

It is to the advantage neither of Canada nor of Canadian railways that this dream should be realized. Every bushel of wheat which crosses the line to Minneapolis mills means a loss to the Canadian milling industries and to Canadian trunk lines. The railways and the millers should work together. The capacities of both for the next few years are certain to be taxed to their utmost. The beginning of an industry is often its most crucial period, and Europe should be taught before it is too late to take our foodstuffs in the form of flour. We have the most extensive hard wheat lands in the world. We should become the greatest milling country. Let us begin now by taking advantage of the removal of the British corn duties.

THE AGAMOMERIS CULICIS.

HAIL to the Agamomeris Culicis! At last he has been discovered, and promises to relieve a sweltering world from the noisome pest which fattens on our luscious red corpuscles, and, ingrate! injects in return the deadly malaria microbe.

The Agamomeris Culicis, as everyone knows, is not a new claimant for the Servian throne, but an able-bodied, hard-working parasite which preys upon the ubiquitous and enterprising scourge of these Summer evenings, the Jersey mosquito.

Science has devised various schemes for circumventing the wily mosquito and compassing his death. A year or two ago petroleum spread over their breeding places was announced as a sovereign remedy. But the ingenious insects used the stuff to lubricate their wings, and the century biting record was lowered in no time. It has even been hinted that The Standard Oil Co. launched the oil remedy in order to unload an overstocked market.

But as to the Agamomeris Culicis there can be no reasonable doubt. Dr. Charles Wardell Stiles, of the U. S. Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, is his sponsor, and warrants his protege to be of unimpeachable lineage. He comes of a fighting race, moreover, and can be counted upon to kill millions of mosquitos each year.

It is proposed to encourage the Agamomeris Culicis by means of artificial propagation for a few years, at the end of which time it is hoped he will be able to hold against all competitors. For indeed even a parasite has to meet non-union competition. As sung by the poet:

Big bugs have little bugs
Upon their backs to bite 'em,
Little bugs have lesser bugs,
And so ad infinitum.

GROCERY TRAVELLERS' VACATION.

IT is with great interest and a decided degree of satisfaction we learn that the endeavor to secure a uniform date for the grocery travellers' vacation is now an accomplished fact. This has been a movement keenly advocated by this journal for some time past, and one which there is every reason to believe will be to the advantage of all concerned.

It will be a comparatively simple matter for the retailer, when he knows of the arrangement, to control his orders accordingly, and one in which he will be found to readily acquiesce. And the "men-of-the-road" on their part can revel in two weeks' undisturbed enjoyment, knowing that the ground is clear from all intrusion, whilst the wholesalers, all being on the same platform, cannot possibly be losers, and their unanimity will be hailed with pleasure by all concerned.

We are hoping to publish in our next issue a full list of those houses whose travellers will be on vacation on the fixed dates, viz., August 1 to 15, inclusive, and which, we understand, comprise all wholesale houses in Toronto and west.

FRAUDULENT FOOD STUFFS.

THE subject of adulteration of food stuffs is of vital interest to all grocers, as they are the distributors of household necessities. The matter has in past years been brought spasmodically to the attention of the trade, and at various times the Federal Government has attempted to investigate existing conditions, and health officers have pounced upon and punished innocent merchants. The trouble is that the authorities have sent out detectives into the wrong quarters, and instead of going to the fountain-head of adulteration, the manufacturer, have visited punishment on the innocent grocer.

It is regrettable to have to state it, but the fact is that Canada is not free from the curse of unscrupulous manufacturers who foist upon the public their spurious wares. To such an extent has this been done that the conscience of some of the manufacturers seems to have become dulled and the word "pure" assumed such an elasticity that it is now without value.

Everything is branded "pure." "Pure" pepper is in many instances only pepper shells or husks. "Pure" cocoanut is paraffined to death. "Pure" catsup is nothing but colored tomato pulp, and "pure" jam is apple juice, turnips, glucose and coloring, etc., ad infinitum. "Is there anything pure?" The question may well be asked by the dealer.

When one thinks of what one has to eat it is appalling, and the only thing to do is to take everything on faith until our Government wakes up and enforces a stringent Pure Food Law. A rigid inspection of every factory where dietary articles are prepared is absolutely necessary.

It is to the credit of a few houses that they have realized the necessity of making only absolutely pure goods and inviting an inspection of their factory and processes.

We print in another column a letter which appeared in The Montreal Star last week on the subject of "Adulteration of Food Stuffs" and would advise careful perusal. While a few local references are made in Mr. Darlington's communication, the majority of the statements contained therein will apply equally to the trade generally. Mr. Darlington's arraignment of the Government, though severe, seems to us justifiable, and it is to be hoped that some action will be taken to put a stop to this unscrupulous and injurious method of providing dietary articles for Canadian consumers.

PROFIT-SHARING EXPERIMENT.

MR. R. A. BARTLEY, a wholesale grocer of Toledo, Ohio, has decided to take his employes into partnership on a profit-sharing basis. The employes will in addition to their regular salary receive a share of the profits of the business so long as they remain with the firm.

The profit-sharing system, as a remedy for the admitted defects of the wages system, has received considerable attention of late and no end of comment pro and con. The most conspicuous example of successful profit-sharing was that of Leclair, the celebrated Parisian decorator, who in the middle of last century conceived and carried out the scheme of sharing the profits of his business with his workmen. In a short time through the improved care and workmanship of his men, who were now financially interested beyond their day's pay, he secured complete control of the Parisian trade. Although the master mind has long since passed away the firm is still in existence and successful operation.

In the wake of Leclair's enterprise, various profit-sharing plans have been spasmodically adopted, but the success which has followed these experiments has not been such as to warrant any general rules being laid down. The cases of failure are about as numerous as those of success.

On the other hand, from an examination of recorded experiments in profit-sharing, it will be found that where the workmen are of the average degree of intelligence, where they are thrown largely upon their own responsibility and where the nature of the work is such as to admit of an appreciable degree of saving or waste on the part of an employe, that the adoption of a scheme of profit-sharing has usually been successful. In the United States it has been found to work well in soap factories, and in Canada The Wm. Davies Pork Packing Co. have for some years had a scheme of profit-sharing which has been found to work very satisfactorily.

It would appear that a wholesale grocery business would lend itself readily to successful profit-sharing. There are numberless little leaks which added carefulness on the part of employes might check and it is by inducing just this care and awakening a degree of self interest that profit-sharing pays the employer and employe.

THE DELIVERY WAGON.

THERE is opportunity for an enterprising grocer in nearly every locality to win golden opinions from the consuming public by improving the appearance of his delivery wagon. The average grocery wagon is a sorry affair, and gives no very favorable impression of the cleanliness which characterizes the internal economy of the store. It is seen everywhere within the circle from which the grocer may hope to draw customers. It is seen almost continuously, and by people who may never pass the store and who may have no other means of sizing it up. The fact that what is carried in the grocery wagon is to be eaten makes appearances doubly important. There can be little doubt that a handsomely-decorated, spotlessly clean wagon, drawn by a well-groomed horse and driven by a neatly-dressed, clean-faced boy, would very soon pay for itself in added custom.

CARELESSNESS OF RAILWAYS.

COMPLAINTS are frequently heard from commission men of the careless way in which the railways handle provisions consigned in their charge. THE GROCER was recently shown a lot of 15 firkins of butter which were 5 days coming 60 miles. When delivered at the commission house, not only was the butter in oil, but the packages looked as if they had been forwarded in coal cars and were grimy to a degree.

The shape in which the butter was received meant a severe loss to the consignor, and could have been avoided by ordinary carefulness.

HAMILTON AND BRANTFORD RETAIL GROCERS VISIT THE FALLS.

FOR years The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association picnic has been the success of the season, and their excursion to Niagara Falls Wednesday, July 15, was no exception, when their picnic was held conjointly with their Brantford brethren. Over four thousand Hamilton people, together with a thousand from Brantford, took in the event and despite passing showers, enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The Grand Trunk looked after the transportation and excellent service was rendered. The first train arrived at Niagara Falls station at about 9.15, where awaited a long train of The Niagara Falls Park & River Railway Co.'s cars to convey the crowd to the park.

It was noon before the last train load arrived and while all were busy with preparations for lunch the shower came up. But all that is part of a picnic and but added zest to the appetites which were already in first-class condition.

Cut rates had been arranged for neighboring points and many took the opportunity for visiting Brock's monument, the Whirlpool Rapids and Chippewa, while some crossed over to the American side. But the bulk of the excursionists remained in the beautiful Queen Victoria Park where the Thirteenth Battalion Band entertained the crowd with a liberal selection of fine music. During the afternoon many Americans came over to join the picnickers and were greatly surprised and pleased to be greeted with a series of American airs.

The sports began at two o'clock in the afternoon, the band heading the procession to the arena, where Hamilton and Brantford joined issue for supremacy in athletic sports.

Mayor Morden, of Niagara Falls, was introduced to the crowd by Mr. R. M. Moncur, chairman of the Sports Committee. The Mayor made a few remarks, congratulating the grocers upon the great success of their picnic, and upon the elements that make it such a success—perfect arrangements, well carried out. The games were then begun. The results were :

Tug-of-war, between members of Hamilton and Brantford Associations, seven men to complete on each side—Won by Brantford.

Tug-of-war, between Hamilton and Brantford grocery clerks—Won by Hamilton.

Potato race, 50 yards, between members and clerks, Hamilton and Brantford Associations—A. Watts, J. L. Brown, Reg. Hartley.

Special race, 100 yards, for Brantford clerks only—Finch, Lincott, Hartley.

Three-legged race, 100 yards, open to Hamilton and Brantford members of Association and clerks Servos and Brown, Dunsmore and Watt, Markle and Lane.

Special race, 100 yards, for Hamilton clerks only—English, Watts, Mayberry.

Sack race, 100 yards, open to Hamilton and Brantford members of Association and clerks—Copple, W. Norman, Burns.

Long distance race, about half a mile, open to Hamilton and Brantford members of Association and clerks—W. Norman, A. Finch, Lane.

Very much credit for the success of the games, which passed off without a hitch, is due to the travellers, under whose entire direction the games were conducted. The committee in charge consisted of R. M. Moncur, chairman; B. B. Morden, secretary; Fred Carruthers, treasurer; A. P. Nicol, Sandy Ballentine, W. Jackson, W. Norman, C. King, R. M. Griffin, James Price and George Gow. The Brantford committee consisted of W. J. Westwood, chairman; Fred Harp, J. Burns, C. Hartman, W. H. Westbrook and M. Mintern.

After the games the two committees, with the officers of the association, went to the Museum, where a health was drunk to Chairman Moncur and his staff; also to Chairman Westwood, of Brantford. All spoke of the great importance the games are to the picnic, and the city travellers came in for much praise. Mr. Moncur and Mr. Westwood responded suitably.

The committees were :

Transportation—Joseph Kirkpatrick, chairman; A. G. Bain, Adam Ballentine, C. H. Peebles.

Music — John Ronan, chairman; J. O. Carpenter, Adam Ballentine.

Refreshments—Geo. Powell, chairman; A. G. Bain, H. Taylor, H. P. Boyd, G. H. Richardson, W. Smye, Geo. Cann, A. Robbins, Geo. Hunt, W. McBride, E. Layland, J. Lampman.

Printing and advertising—A. G. Bain, chairman; J. O. Carpenter, Thomas Hazell.

Games— J. Forth, chairman. J. Young, F. D. Harrigan.

Finance—C. Bremner, chairman; J. Y. Osborne.

The association is to be congratulated on the success of their outing and the way in which they looked after the comfort of their guests. The officers are: President, Joseph Kirkpatrick; 1st vice-president, J. Main; 2nd vice-president, W. Smye; treasurer, C. Bremner; secretary, M. R. Hill.

The chairman of the Picnic Committee was Mr. C. H. Peebles, upon whom, along with the secretary, Mr. M. R. Hill, devolved many arduous duties, which were, it is seen, discharged in a most satisfactory manner.

PRESERVING EGGS.

Richard Guenther, U. S. Consul-General at Frankfort, Germany, reports that the "liquid glass" method of preserving eggs, a description of which was published in last week's GROCER, has given remarkable satisfaction in Germany. The treatment, he says, produces the formation of a coating which renders the egg perfectly air-tight. The eggs so treated retain their fresh taste for many months. The best proof of efficacy of this treatment has been furnished by the fact that such eggs, after having been kept for a whole year, were hatched, and the chickens were strong and healthy. If one of these preserved eggs is to be boiled, the shell must be first perforated in order to prevent cracking.

THE McGREGOR-HARRIS CO., LIMITED.

The McGregor-Harris Co., Limited, carrying on business at Pearl street, Toronto, is the outcome of an amalgamation of the business of W. S. McGregor, manufacturer of marmalade, chocolate and butterscotch, with that of The Harris Confectionery Co., Limited. The company was incorporated in June last with a capital of $40,000. The Board of Directors is composed of C. T. Stark, president; Burton S. Harris, vice-president; C. H. Whitaker, secretary-treasurer; W.S. McGregor, managing director; Elmore Harris, I. N. MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, July 23, 1903.

TRADE continues to give every satisfaction, many firms considering that business has maintained exceptionally well. Street trade is also giving great satisfaction, enquiries having more the character of anticipating demand, than has been so for some time. In canned goods trade continues to maintain itself, leaving stocks well drained and new packs are eagerly looked for; canned peas, (new packs), are now in the markets at slightly modified prices, present quotations being 90c to $1. Tomatoes are somewhat easier at $1.45 to $1.50. Coffees are now in active demand at previous quotations. Sugar has been in excellent demand, some refineries being several days in arrears with their orders. There has been a further advance of 10c per 100-lb. in sympathy with foreign markets and quotations are corrected accordingly. The Berlin, Wallaceburg and Dresden refineries had just previously reduced their quotations to the extent of 5c per 100-lb., thus placing all domestic beet sugar on the same level, the advance of 10c thus affecting them in our quotations as 5c only. Spice is slow and uninteresting; prices, however, rule firm, and primal markets continue to maintain great firmness and character. Rice and tapioca are well in demand and prices continue firm. Syrups and molasses are uninteresting at the present season; prices, however, remain unchanged. Tea has been in better demand and there is decidedly better interest shown in samples on hand. Foreign reports all denote great firmness in the situation and prices are expected to be well maintained. In foreign dried fruits trade is good, stocks are greatly depleted and primal reports are all indicative of healthy conditions. Prices for currants are firming up, Patras being now quoted at ¼c advance, and other prices continue firm.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade in these goods has been well maintained throughout, and it would appear as though new packs will be to hand barely in time to keep market going. The new pack peas are now to hand with quotation at 90c to $1. Prices for tomatoes are somewhat modified, now standing at $1.45 to $1.50. Other prices remain as previous quotations. We quote:

COFFEES.

The home trade in coffee since our last issue has been well maintained; in green coffee trade has somewhat improved, while the milder grades have continued steady. Prices rule firm at previous quotations. The New York market is still slow, with prices remarkably weak, in face of reports of large crops on hand in addition to the already heavy supply in sight. SUGAR.

We have again to report an improvement in the sugar situation with a ready disposition on the part of the refineries to accept all offerings of raws at buyers' ideas, resulting in large sales at 1-16 to 1-8 advance, quotations being now firm at 3 3-16 for 89 test Muscovado and 3 11-16 centrifugals, duty paid New York. We note large sales, Cuba centrifugals loading and for shipment on this basis. The advance is attributable to the increased demand for refined, refiners' requirements for meltings being some 4,000 tons larger than receipts. For week ending July 15 meltings were 37,000 tons, an increase of 7,000 tons over previous week, while receipts were only 33,378 tons. Total stocks in United States four ports at same dates were 324,439 tons, against 140,299 tons same period last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America were 2,337,439 tons, against 2,428,252 tons at same uneven dates last year. The decrease in stock is 90,813 tons, which is 16,100 tons greater than decrease of previous week. Some United States refiners are said to be short in the supply of raw sugars and this feature of the situation may lead to a further advance in raws, though at the moment of going to press the market is reported quiet, with buyers showing little interest in offerings, and with sellers more disposed to let the sugar go at current quotations.

European markets have again shown slight fluctuations for the week and at the close 88 per cent. is quoted at 7s 11¼d basis f.o.b. Hamburg, for July shipment. This is equal to parity of 3.93 duty paid New York, for 96 test centrifugals, from which it will be observed that Canadian sugars have still a differential in the favor of .24 per 100-lb.

The refined markets have been particularly strong with a very large business doing and on morning of July 17 all New York prices were advanced 10c per 100-lb., which was promptly followed by a similar advance in Canadian refined, at the close prices remained unchanged as per list at foot. Just previous to the general advance in market quotations for Berlin, Wallaceburg and Dresden beet, granulated were reduced .5 per 100-lb., the same basis as Wiarton granulated, thus putting all the domestic beet sugars on the same level of degree .15 per 100 lb. below basis of Montreal granulated.

The movement in refined in both Canada and United States has been heavy, though late in coming, and present indications are that it will continue for some time. United States refiners have been oversold, but are now overtaking their orders and at the close there are no further special indications. We quote:

TEAS.

The home tea trade has been decidedly more active since our last issue, the interest on the streets showing a marked improvement. Reports from the tea centres still denote continued firmness in prices. The London market reports on Indian teas denote a fall in demand and little animation, attributable to the holiday feeling abroad ; necessity continues however, to bring some strong buyers into the market, especially for lower grades. Quality of new season's offerings is variable. Dooars are, so far, considered the best to hand. Darjeelings are fair, and sold well. Assams are poor, with prices somewhat low. Cachar and Sylhet descriptions are about the average for first arrivals. Fine tea, both old and new, is commanding full prices with dearer tendency. There were but small offerings of Ceylon teas with qualities of indifferent character ; prices, however, which showed a slightly easier tendency, ruled fully 1¼c in advance of same period last year. China teas in little demand. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The trade in these goods is still well to the front and stocks are now materially reduced, with result that prices are firming up. Patras currants are quoted this week at an advance of ¼c per lb. and in some other lines it continues to be difficult to keep up demand. In prunes, stocks on hand are low with demand good. Candied peels are steady. The report from Mediterranean markets continue to be most favorable ; it is exed, however, that early arrivals will be somewhat in arrears of previous years. We quote :

VEGETABLES.

The vegetable market is reported brisk. The need of rain has been felt but the showers of Sunday and Tuesday have more than supplied the want. The hail did considerable damage and some washouts are reported. There are several new vegetables offered. Corn appears at 15 to 20c per dozen. Some fine celery was offered at 40 to 60c and green peppers found sale at 75 to $1.25 per basket. A tempting line of vegetable marrows were exposed at $1 per dozen. We quote :

GRAIN, FLOUR AND BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN.—Quotations remain about the same as last week. The Manitoba wheat market is strong on account of a feeling on the Winnipeg Board of Trade that the old supply will not last until the new comes in. QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, July 23, 1903.

GROCERIES.

TRADE generally has been quiet during the week. With exception of heavy orders for sugars, stimulated by the advance of 10c., and the consumption for preserving and canning purposes, there is nothing unusual or interesting to report. Teas are quiet, the old stocks being gradually cleaned out. Canned goods have received some attention, and a few fair-sized orders have been taken by jobbers. In dried fruits there is nothing outside of the unsettled currant question of interest. In cheese, some heavy receipts have lately been noticeable, for week ending July 11 no less than 131,640 boxes having come in. In spices, pepper, cassia and ginger are somewhat higher, and indications are for still further rise. In provisions, new potatoes and tomatoes are attracting attention. Taking it all round the market is none too active, and only a fair trade is being done.

SUGAR.

The advance of 10c. last week has stimulated the sale and some very fair-sized orders have been filled, and refineries are busy. Stocks, generally, it seems, had been allowed to run down low. Sales of 8,000 to 10,000 bbls. are reported as sold on basis of $4.15 for granulated and $3.50 for No. 1 yellow, up to $3.95 and $4 for extra brights. Cane sugar is quoted in New York at 3 9-16 to 3⅝ for centrifugal 96 test, Muscovado, 89 test, 3 1-16, and molasses sugar, 89 test, 2 13-16 to 2⅞. London market for beet sugar was quiet, with July 7s. 11½d. Our quotations are :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Trade is quiet and nothing new to report. Barbados, new, quoted at 37 to 38c. for fair lots, and 39 to 40 for small demands. Though quality of new Barbados is fine, buyers are not open to pay prices asked. Quotations are :

SPICES.

Peppers are still rising, showing an ⅛ advance in New York over last week's prices. Cayenne is up ¼c. Market generally is active and firm, especially in cassia, cloves and cayenne. Shipments to the United States are small. Quotations are :

TEAS.

Last week's market showed second crop Japans as being purchasable at 19c. for good drawing quality teas, but it is reported that they can be bought at even lower prices. Good medium old Japans have sold on spot at 17 to 18c., about 350 packages having changed hands. Ceylon greens are going at 14 to 18c., Indian, 16 to 19c.; Japan style China Congous, 8 to 10c. Orders for new Japans have been placed at 15 to 20c. for not later than October delivery. It looks as though third and fourth crop teas will be lower. Young Hyson Ping Sueys have also receded, and it would not be surprising to see them a few cents lower in the course of the next few months. On account of the high market no orders have been placed on the moment. Ceylon greens are still in active demand, the market being comparatively bare of such goods. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

No activity is as yet apparent, the week passing quietly, and though a few heavy orders have been booked for future, the general feeling seems to be that buyers are holding off. There is a feeling among the jobbing trade that the rules of the Canadian Canners' Association are arbitrary, and indications point to a disturbance in the near future, and sympathy is expressed for the independent canners, who will no doubt receive good support. GREEN FRUITS

Market in green fruits continues quiet. Raspberries are not quoted on lists this week, arrivals being spasmodic and not large enough to figure. Cherries, red and black currants and gooseberries are holding the attention of the dealers. Canadian apples are coming in more freely and prices are easing up perceptibly. We quote :

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.—Conditions are unchanged since our last report. Dealers tell us that the price which they are paying in the country is 12½c., with an occasional 13c. price where the buying point is close to the city. Market is unchanged, straight gathered selling at 15c., selected, 16 to 17c.; No. 2 stock, 13c. Dealers advise us that the loss in bad eggs is very heavy, in some instances running two to three dozen per case. This shows carelessness on the part of some people, and we think that it would be in the interest of the store keepers to see that the eggs which they are receiving each week from the farmers are fresh. There is no reason why the loss from bad eggs should not be borne by those who are responsible for same. Deliveries continue about the same as last week.

POTATOES.—Old potatoes are practically off the market; new are coming in freely. We quote :

HONEY.—We are advised that there is some offering, but it is hard yet to know what the price will be, as dealers are not aware what the make will be like. During the past few weeks quite a large shipment of honey from Jamaica has arrived on this market and has sold from 6 to 6½c. The quality, although not quite equal to the Canadian, fills the requirements, and it would look as though Canadian honey would receive considerable opposition from same. We quote :

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR.—The market is firm and local and export inquiries are active. The scarcity is apparently due to western millers buying in this market to cover advance export contracts made beyond what they are able to supply owing to scarcity of wheat. Sales of 90 per cent. patents are reported at $3.45 to $3.55. In Spring wheat flour Minnesota patents are quoted at $4.70 laid down here, which is 30c. per bbl. over the price of the same class of Manitoba patents. This class is said to be getting scarce. We quote :

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., July 21, 1903.

WHILE in markets there is nothing of particular importance, this being a rather quiet season, there have been one or two outside matters of interest. The short visit of three men-of-war to the port created considerable stir. Among the transportation companies it is doubtful if any have the same regard of our people as The Eastern Steamship Co.—the old International line—therefore, the arrival of their new boat, the Calvin Austin, was more than a passing event. Everyone wished to see her. Without a doubt she is the finest steamer of her class ever here, and the enterprise of the company is much appreciated.

In markets, cream of tartar is rather easier. Rice is held firm ; there has been quite a direct shipment of Porto Rico received since my last report.

OIL.—In burning oil interest now centres in Fall business, for which forward orders are now being taken. The rather easier prices tend to improved sale, particularly for American. In lubricating oils there is but a fairly active demand. Paint oils are not very active. Receipts of cod oil are still light. Outlook is for firm prices. We quote :

SALT.—In Liverpool coarse salt the market is well supplied ; prices are rather higher than when landing. No further arrivals are expected for some time. In factory-filled a fair stock is held. Canadian fine is in very light supply Shippers have not been at all able to keep up with demand. In cheese salt market has been bare for two weeks. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.—The association is still the matter of interest. It is impossible to get full information. The regulations, as far as known, are not popular, and it is a great question with very many of our trade if they will have anything to do with it. Much depends on further information. In spot stocks, there is little change. Peas are scarce. In domestic fish, sardines, kippered, are likely to be a light pack. Haddies show better output. Salmon are rather dull. Oysters tend higher. GREEN FRUIT.—Dealers are busy. Bananas continue very plentiful and cheap. In oranges there is fair stock, but quality is rather poor and sale is rather light. Lemons are tending higher ; dealers are fortunate who hold fair supplies ; prices show but a limited sale. Melons are small and rather scarce, but sale here, at best, is light. Cucumbers and tomatoes are easier. Strawberries are firmer. Very few Nova Scotia berries have been shipped here ; general crop not large. California small fruits have a good sale. Some nice Georgian peaches are offered. Quotations are :

DRIED FRUIT.—Business is quiet. Spot stocks are quite ample for the light sale. It has been a rather disappointing year. Prunes, which are large sellers here, have kept low, and seeded and loose raisins, from which a profit was expected, have been disappointing. Stocks were rather large owing somewhat to the lateness of arrivals last Fall. Evaporated apples are rather higher. Currants are higher, and the outlook is for firm and quite full prices this Fall. Dates will be quite low. We quote :

EMPOIS CHINOIS

Two Memorable Epochs

551-479 B.C.
AND 1899 A.D.

The Grand Priest of China and Empois Chinois (Chinese Starch).

Strange, is it not, that a product may sometimes mark an historical epoch ?

That is what the famous Chinese Starch manufactured in Montreal does.

Our fellow-countrymen will learn with surprise that this product existed five centuries before Christ and that Kong-Fou-Tseu (Confucius) the author of the Chinese religion and moral and political code, insisted on the use of "Chinese Starch" (Empois Chinois) in his own linen as well as for the use of his priests.

All the Imperial Court of China insisted on the use of "Chinese Starch" only. They would have no other.

We know that the Celestials were accustomed to dress entirely in white and hence with them laundering has become an art.

How was this article introduced into Canada ? In a few words, a Chinese explorer and traveller on his way to Montreal in 1899 sold the secrets of its manufacture to the present proprietor. The result has been an enormous success.

"Chinese Starch" has brought happiness to all housewives, as it ensures real economy and a perfect whiteness and an incomparable gloss in the linen. It has become a genuine Canadian product, a fact which our cut explains.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.——BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

It is the only real Chinese Starch on the market. Manufactured solely by the holds good. Currants are reported to be advanced in primary markets, but so far no change has been made here.

OCEAN MILLS, 109 Mount Royal Ave., MONTREAL

New pack salmon is offering this week, but prices are not yet settled. It will be higher than last year, however, just how much cannot be stated yet.

GREEN FRUIT.—A good supply is being received and prices are holding firm with the exception of pears which are quoted 25c lower this week. Blueberries are arriving and are very fine. The present price is 15c. per lb. retail but will soon drop, as the supply is plentiful. Blueberries are the only new line on the market this week. Shipments of raspberries continue small and the price high.

GREEN VEGETABLES.—Are growing more plentiful, but are still dear and the Exhibition week has sent up prices. In fact all classes of produce are higher for the time being, owing to the heavy demand.

Among visitors to the city is Mr. Macpherson, head of The Macpherson Fruit Co., who has rented a furnished house and brought his family here for the balance of the Summer. Mr. Macpherson has not visited the city for five years and expresses himself as startled at the growth and improvement in that time. He was an old timer here who showed his faith in the future of the West by his investments after the breaking of the boom of 1882 and is now reaping his reward.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 17, 1903.

THE settlement of two labor troubles in British Columbia this week has had a materially brightening effect on trade feeling in general. The strike of factory hands in the various planing mills of the coast which has been on since June 1 was settled yesterday by the return of the men to work. This action was preceded a few days ago by the mill owners withdrawing the embargo their association had placed on the delivery of lumber in the city of Vancouver. This action the mill men declared had been rendered necessary by the fact that the strikers in the factories were getting moral and material aid from the building trades unions, the carpenters in particular. Had the mill men continued to refuse lumber to the builders, the shut down which would have followed would have placed the city in a bad position with a large amount of unfinished building. This building expansion of the city has been better this year even than the past three of four seasons, which had been considered phenomenal. Trade is very largely dependent on the money circulated in the building season, and it would cause serious trouble to have shut off that source of ready money suddenly without replacing it.

The other strike, or threatened strike, was that of the fishermen, who usually engage in the salmon fishing during the run of the sockeyes on the Fraser River. The canners had offered 15c per fish for July and 14c for August and the fishermen had asked a cent higher for each of the two months. The Japanese fishermen who far outnumber the white men and Indians had also struck out for a higher offer than the canners had made. However, the Japs gave in and accepted the cannery prices. This was followed in a day or so by the white men accepting also.

The salmon run has not yet fairly begun, but it is expected that the fish will be taken in numbers in a few days. Large shoals are seen outside in the Gulf of Georgia, and it is well-known that they are not, as a rule, in a hurry to enter the river. The industry has grown to such dimensions that the money put in circulation annually by way of wages to fishermen and cannery employes is a very large item in the total of the province's trade. There are 49 canneries on the Fraser River and 30 at various upcoast points. Of the Fraser River canneries there will be some 42 in commission this year. The majority are now owned by The British Columbia Packers' Association, a big syndicate which purchased a large number a year ago. These are operated under one management and if it is thought advisable to shut down one or two it is arranged easily enough to handle all the fish by equalizing the distribution among the others.

Local crop prospects in the lower Fraser valley, where the bulk of the farming in the coast section is done, are very bright. The growing grain crops are very heavy. The oat crop, which is a standard crop, and one which is depended on by the ranchers, is a very good one this year. The farmers are now in the hay cutting and the crop is very heavy, much heavier than the average, and of good quality.

In fruits, the Australian steamer Miowera brought a consignment of Australian oranges for a local firm. They seldom arrive on this market. They are packed in a box about 2x3, the standard size, and the price quoted is from $1.50 to $2. California oranges are quoted at $3.50 to $3.75, and quite a few are still moving. Peaches, plums and apricots, all from the California market, are arriving freely and in better condition than former shipments. Prices are somewhat lower. California cherries are out of the market almost. Local cherries are plentiful, but few of them come into the hands of the wholesale trade, being sold direct to retail trade, or to the consumers. In peaches a few freestones of the yellow St. John variety have been added to the shipments this week. The clingstones are more plentiful yet. California apples are plentiful at $1.75, and watermelons are also in from California. Strawberries are nearly out. The local crop has been very heavy and large shipments to Alberta have been made with very good results. The trade in small fruits from British Columbia to Alberta is engaging more attention every year, and with prices such as have been realized, should continue so. The strawberries shipped have been selected, of course, and they realized about $2 per case. The local price has averaged $1.50. Shipping cherries to Alberta is also becoming a bigger trade from this portion of British Columbia.

California potatoes have ceased to arrive as the local new stock is now plentiful. The old crop is not all gone, but it is not being brought in now, ranchers feeding them rather than take low prices. The new stock is bringing $1.25 per cwt. For a short time there was a shortage in the potato market owing to the old ones not being brought in and new ones not being plentiful. The last Empress which sailed wanted a lot of five tons of any sort and could not get them in time for sailing.

There was a great deal of interest aroused momentarily this week by the report that a representative of Portland capitalists had been looking over the ground here for the purpose of advising as to the location of a flour mill to mill wheat for the export trade. It was stated that the object was to erect a large roller-process mill which would grind wheat brought from Alberta and from the interior of British Columbia. The wheat country of the neighboring state of Washington was to be drawn on to keep the mill supplied if found necessary.

What progress is being made has not, so far, been given to the public. It would seem that some radical change would have to be made in existing conditions, especially regarding rates of freight on wheat from Alberta to this point, before such a proposition could be made a success. There are three flour mills in operation in British Columbia, all of them in the Okanagan district, where the largest quantity of milling wheat is grown. These mills are at Vernon, Enderby, and Armstrong, and none of them are of great capacity. The stock they grind is partially from the Northwest, and they make a point of advertising the fact. This is necessary for the reason that the wheat of British Columbia production, even in the Okanagan district, is much softer than the Northwest and Manitoba article. Possibly a certain proportion is mixed, but to make a good merchantable flour, which these mills certainly do, the local wheat could not be used exclusively.

There is a large mill in Victoria which has been idle almost since it was erected nearly fourteen years ago. The gentleman who built it, Mr. T. B. Hall, invested some $75,000 in the scheme, putting up a fine mill and endeavoring to encourage the growing of wheat in the province. He distributed free seed from Manitoba hard wheat which he imported for the purpose, but the grain grown from the hard wheat was as soft as other samples grown in the province. Shipping wheat in from Manitoba was not profitable, on account of freight charges, and importing from Washington was just as unprofitable, the duty being too high. The mill has been idle for many years now. It would seem that the only way to bring Alberta wheat or flour to this coast for export trade is to get a freight rate which will make it profitable to handle the stock. Then it is more than likely that the conditions will be found to favor the milling of the wheat in Alberta and shipping the flour only. As the states of Washington and Oregon export to the Orient and Australia a large quantity of flour every year, it is quite likely that the flour from Alberta wheat can be placed in the same markets on equally as good terms, if the freight rates are made right. Many cargoes of wheat from Washington and Oregon are shipped by sailing ships every year to the markets of the Old World, and this field too would be open to Alberta wheat in case it can be delivered at the coast on a paying basis. The rapid expansion of the wheat crop of Northern Alberta is inducing the growers and grain men there to seek some outlet to the Pacific coast seaboard for the surplus which is getting bigger every year.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

LAPORTE, Martin & Cie. report the well-known "Victoria" brand of fine red sockeye salmon (for which they are sole agents) being called for freely and orders for large quantities have been booked, several carloads having been disposed of this week. Laporte, Martin & Cie. are in position to deliver these goods in Quebec, Sherbrooke and Maritime Province points at Montreal prices.

The "United Service" brand of salmon, (pink), a 10c retail line, can be bought in connection with the "Victoria" brand, and several carload lots, assorted, of these brands have been placed.

Lucas Steele & Bristol offer Royal salad dressing, all sizes, also McMechen's and Snider's.

H. D. Hofman, Montreal agent for White & Co., Toronto, is working up a splendid trade in bacon, ham, etc. White & Co's. goods are now to be found in the best grocery stores in the city.

Diamond Crystal Shaker Salt is the line to use during the heated term. Lucas, Steele & Bristol are agents.

R. Herron & Co. have received numerous orders for their new line of lime juice. It is put up in pints and quarts and commands ready sale. They also report increased demand for their high-grade "Red Cross" flavoring extracts.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have still a full assortment of all sizes of gem jars. Grocers who wish to sort up should place their orders before assortment is broken.

A novelty in prepared French mustard is the new line of fancy steins, put up by S. H. Ewing & Sons. The article is put up in three styles, blue, opal and green, and makes a splendid 15c. retail line.

The new Vichy water "St. Louis", which L. Chaput, Fils & Cie. have placed on the market, is taking hold. This line is a genuine pure French Vichy and highly recommended. If the price is less than the older lines and the quality reported excellent, it should become a seller. L. Chaput, Fils & Cie. are sole Canadian agents.

J. A. Mathewson & Co's sales of their "Quaker" brand Ceylon teas are showing a steady increase. These teas are packed on the plantation and purchasers are assured of absolute purity.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol offer exceptional values in natural and finished Ceylon green, chests and halves.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

Window Dressing in Town and Village.

THE home of the fancy window is, of course, in the city, but it by no means follows that the window of the town or village grocer must go bare or shabby. The end of each is the same, although the means necessary in the two cases to bring about that end may be somewhat different.

Windows in city or country are dressed to attract attention and sell goods. In the hurry, bustle and crowd of a large city more startling effects are necessary to capture attention. There the difference ends. Once attention is gained, town and city window are alike designed to induce the passer-by to enter and purchase what has been displayed in the window. Consequently, the prime requisites in arranging your window are to display only what passers-by are likely to want, and to display them in the manner most likely to increase the intensity of that want.

To readers of THE GROCER the importance of the most scrupulous cleanliness need scarcely be alluded to. Even the most common articles, displayed with immaculate surroundings, are attractive, while the most tempting viands only induce disgust when associated with squalor. The extravagant use of soap and water never drove anyone into bankruptcy.

But assuming that everything is spick and span, what shall be put in the window—staples or specialties? It may be advisable sometimes to have a tea window, a sugar window, or soap window, but generally speaking, everybody knows you keep these articles. But if you have a line that your competitor has not, if you have an especially early consignment of fresh or dried fruit, put them in the window where everyone can see them. Put the price in, too. Have a neat white card with a plain, legible price mark. It will be an eloquent salesman, convincing a whole window full of prospective customers.

Be sure that these displays are seasonable. If you must have a sugar window, arrange it at the beginning of the fruit season. If it is soap you are going to display, why not at house-cleaning time?

Whatever you decide to put in your window, make it as attractive as possible, and don't be afraid to show your prices. There should be no "fuss and feathers" about your window. You are not a dime museum keeper, but a grocer. You are not fitting up a window to amuse the public, but to sell goods. It is sales you want, and the accessories must never overshadow the principal of the display—the goods to be sold. For instance, you have received a fine consignment of raisins. They are beauties, and the price is right. Into the window with them! Don't let a thing appear but dazzling whiteness and big fat raisins. Then put in your neatly-printed price tickets and you have a "grocery" window fit for a king. Every woman who passes will begin to wonder whether she does not need some raisins.

Don't put too many things in a window at once. It is confusing. Put in a good thing and push it hard.

A Window Display Competition.

THE CANADIAN GROCER, for the encouragement of tasty window displays, has decided to open a competition for its subscribers. Prizes will be awarded for photos or drawings of window displays and accompanying descriptions of the same. The prizes will consist of:

First Prize - - -	$10
Second Prize - -	$7

and $2 for every picture and description which is considered worthy of publication.

The competition, which closes on Sept. 1, will admit of photographs, pen and ink or wash drawings, with good ideas counting more than the picture itself, although, of course, all pictures in order to receive a prize, must be of sufficient distinctness and good workmanship to admit of their publication.

There is no progressive merchant but has at least one window a month that is worthy of entering this competition, and the prizes are so arranged that, even if a window does not win the $10, $7 or $5 prize, it may be awarded a $2 prize, provided only that it is of sufficient merit to publish in the columns of this paper. This award will cover the cost of the photograph and there is no reason why any merchant should not obtain it. The number of photographs or drawings submitted by each store is not limited, nor is the number of $2 prizes; a merchant may win a dozen if his pictures merit them.

Should any intending competitor not know how to take a window picture, this paper will be glad to furnish him with instructions. In general terms, it may be stated that the early morning, when the light is clear, when few people are abroad and when there is the least reflection, is the best time to photograph the display. A good photograph can also be taken at night by the aid of an electric or flash light.

Mark all manuscripts and photographs intended for this department with the words "Window Dressing Competition."

Sir Thomas Lipton's First Shop.

Sir Thomas Lipton, as he goes along our streets in his automobile, says a New York paper, cannot help but feel an especial interest in our meat markets, for before he became the great merchant he is to-day, he personally conducted an unpretentious provision store in Glasgow, Scotland. It was in a modest little shop like hundreds on our street corners that he began to build up his immense business and great fortune. Speaking of his first shop, Sir Thomas says: "I made it my business to keep the place thoroughly smart and spotlessly clean. You know there is a great deal in the appearance a shop possesses and the treatment customers receive. When asked for his recipe for success he said: "Work hard, deal honestly, use careful judgment, do unto others as you would be done by, advertise freely and judiciously, and success is bound to come."

Fly Time and the Show Window.

Pretty soon the fly will be putting in his appearance in droves and figure in the window man's troubles. We know of nothing more aggravating than putting in a nice window and on going out on the sidewalk finding a lot of blue-bottles ornamenting the space called the extreme front. It can be avoided. After you get your window thoroughly cleared out and ready for the trim, heat a large saucer over a lamp; place it in the centre of the window and pour on it a few drops of strong ammonia. Leave your door open and in ten minutes there will not be a fly left in the window. Furthermore, they will not return for some time. Another way to get rid of these beauty destroyers is to paint all around the outside of your door with coal oil or kerosene. Either way is a considerable improvement over sheets of fly paper strewed about.

Mr. S. S. Arnold, western representative of R. Herron & Co., Montreal, returned from a very successful trip to the Coast. His sales of "Red Cross" jelly powders and extracts were very satisfactory, and the western trade are taking hold of them very freely.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. Laporte, of Laporte, Martin & Cie, has returned from New York, where he had gone on the invitation of Sir Thomas Lipton.

A visitor to Montreal this week is Mr. A. M. Piper, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., Toronto. Mr. Piper, who is well known in Montreal, has just returned from a trip to the Maritime Provinces. "Of all the trips I have made to the Provinces," said Mr. Piper, "this was the most successful; in fact, it was a remarkable one." Asked as to the condition of trade in the east, he says a great improvement in all lines is observable, and every indication points to a prosperous year.

The friends of Mr. R. W. Hayter, of Front street, Toronto, will be pleased to hear that he has just returned from England, where he has been spending a three months enjoyable vacation. Whilst visiting London, he naturally took his usual keen interest in the state of the tea market and says that the striking feature of the situation was its remarkable strength, based upon the known firm statistical position, it being generally conceded that prices would continue to maintain themselves.

A SOAP FIRM'S NEW NAME.

The Atlantic Soap and Oil Co., Limited, Toronto, is the new name of the Empire Soap and Oil Co., Limited. After the incorporation of the latter company it was considered advisiable by the directors that another name should be adopted, with the result that it will in future be known as The Atlantic Soap and Oil Co., Limited, Toronto. The officials of the company are F. N. Vanzant, president and treasurer, Geo. Dickson, vice-president, I. E. Hoare, secretary. It has an authorized capital of $40,000. The business of the company will be the manufacture of textile soaps, pressers of lard oil, etc. The factory is well equipped with the latest machinery for the purposes of its trade and is conveniently situated at 74 Don Esplanade. The offices of the company are at 26 Front street east, Toronto.

INGERSOLL CANNING AND PRESERVING COMPANY.

The Ingersoll Canning and Preserving Co., Limited, Ingersoll, Ont., have been incorporated with a share capital of $40,000, divided into shares of $100 each, to manufacture and deal in canned goods, evaporated apples, pickles, jams, jellies, preserves and grocers' sundries. Provisional directors are F. G. Walley, O. E. Robinson, H. E. Robinson and W. H. Cook, all of Ingersoll.

FOREST CITY GOSSIP.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"
365 Richmond Street.
London, July 12, 1903.

BUSINESS continues active in all branches of the grocery and provision trades in this city, with no special features to report. Prices remain as at last week's figures and shipments continue to be made up of general goods as well as sugars.

This market is still firming up on eggs which are being sold to the trade by commission men and jobbers at 15c per doz., while cheese does not show great demand so far this season, the price to the trade being around 10½c per lb.

The keen competition in the United States between the fruit trusts and the independent operators, has had the effect of lowering the figures for bananas all round about 30c per bunch. London dealers are buying freely from both Chicago and Buffalo non-trust firms who are making things lively on the other side. In this connection, we might repeat that the Forest City consumes per head a larger quantity of imported fruits than either Montreal or Toronto.

Mr. T. B. Escott, wholesale grocery merchant, and family, are residing at their cottage, Orchard Beach, Port Stanley.

Mr. Andrew McCormick, ex-Mayor of London, and of the firm of A. McCormick & Sons, grocers, is, it is regrettable to say, in a very low condition, and there is much doubt of his recovery. A complication of ailments has laid him low.

The D. S. Perrin Mfg. Co. will hold their annual picnic to Port Stanley on Saturday, July 25. Perrin's picnic is acknowledged to be one of the best outings of the year, and this, it is expected, will in no wise be behind those of the past. A splendid programme of sports is being arranged.

The retail grocers of London had their annual excursion and picnic to Niagara Falls on Wednesday of this week. The committee who had control of the excellent arrangements are deserving of much credit, and are worthy of mention here, viz.: J. C. Trebilcock, chairman; T. A. Rowat, treasurer; E. Sutton, secretary; F. Harding, F. Harley, N. McLeod, F. Robinson, A. McCormick, George Loveless.

The London grocers invited the grocers of St. Thomas to participate, and the M.C.R. trains stopped en route at St. Thomas, Aylmer, Tillsonburg and Waterford.

An enthusiastic meeting of the retail clerks of the city was held last week in the City Hotel when the matter of forming a union was discussed. International Officer Todd has succeeded in rousing the interest of the clerks in the advantages of a union. It is expected, should they organize, that all branches of the retail trade will be included. The union will likely assume the nature of a club, with well-furnished rooms as headquarters.

James Wilson & Co., grocers, 398 Richmond street, this city, are retiring from business. Mr. Wilson has, for seventeen years, occupied the same premises, and carried on the business of liquor dealer as well as grocer; his stock is being reduced prior to giving up, and is offering lots cheap to buyers.

London is bound to give a cordial reception to her Old Boys on August 3. Active preparations for this great home coming have been going on since last Christmas, and the executive have been in communication with towns and cities, both far and near, in United States as well as the Northwest Territories; so that many thousands of visitors will be added for a few days to the population. The active committee have decided that one special feature of the excellent arrangements will be the big parade which will be held to Queen's Park. Invitations for this have been issued to the City Council, Board of Water Commissioners, Board of Health, Board of Police Commissioners, Public and Separate School Boards, Hospital Trust, and the different fraternal societies of the city. An effort will be made to have the members of the police force turn out and lead the procession. The Seventh Regiment will take part, and in addition to their band, there will be bands brought by the associations from St. Thomas, Toronto, Stratford, Sarnia, Detroit and Cleveland.

Mr. Isaac Waterman, one of London's most highly esteemed citizens, died on Saturday morning after a lengthy illness. His brother, Mr. Herman Waterman, for some years a resident of Buffalo, left his home last week to visit his brother Isaac at London, but suddenly expired at the railway station at Buffalo from a stroke of apoplexy. These two brothers, now deceased, at the time of the oil boom in Upper Canada, in the early sixties, were engaged in the clothing business in this city. This line of business they gave up for the more lucrative one of dealing in oil and oil wells, and later, carried on The Imperial Oil Co. with headquarters at Montreal. Mr. Isaac Waterman has been hospital trustee since 1902. Much respected, and in every respect a valuable citizen, his loss is deeply felt by the business community.

AN ENTERPRISING FIRM.

ENGLAND AS A MARKET FOR OUR PRODUCTS.

MR. E. V. TILLSON, of The Tillson Co., Tillsonburg, Ont., was in Toronto on Monday en route home from a nine weeks' visit to Great Britain. He was accompanied by Mrs. Tillson and son. Mr. Tillson's visit to England was chiefly in the interests of his firm, who, as our readers are no doubt aware, have a large export as well as a large home trade.

"By the bye," said Mr. Tillson to a representative of this paper, "I saw your export number several places in Great Britain, and the people there thought very highly of it. It was indeed a credit to Canada. I must also inform you that one of the articles in 'The Grocer' was of great help to me while in Great Britain. A number of customers there wanted to know why it was that we were not able to supply them with all the split peas they wanted. I asked them if they had a copy of the export number of 'The Canadian Grocer' at hand and as most of them had, all I had to do was to point out an article there on the pea situation in Canada. This explained to them better than I could have why it was we were unable to ship them all the split peas they wanted."

"What do you think of the prospects for Canada increasing her trade with Great Britain?"

"Very good indeed. The people there are taking very much more interest in Canadian affairs and in Canadian goods. They like to deal with the Canadian people. There is no question about that; but one trouble is, the Canadian people have not enough stuff to sell them. One has to go to England before one can gather any idea of the enormous quantity of food products that are consumed there. Until I went there I can tell you I had not. I was in the office of one firm which has its own line of steamers plying regularly between British and foreign ports carrying nothing but flour. One house informed me that it had just then due 500,000 sacks of flour and that this would soon vanish in the consuming market. There is a great field in Great Britain for Canadian enterprise."

Speaking of the political situation in Great Britain, Mr. Tillson said that Mr. Chamberlain was putting up a wonderful fight, but that the feelings, both pro and con, were very strong indeed. As to what the result would be Mr. Tillson did not care to prophesy.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

A Little Insurance Sermon.

INSURANCE rates on flour mills are so very high that many mill owners, operators and renters are compelled to forego such pleasure and profit as may come from this sort of protection. There is but one thing that makes these rates high, and that is the unusual number of fires in flour mills. The impression must not obtain that an insurance company desires to make more money from carrying insurance on flour mills than on any other property, for that is not the case. The insurance company knows at the end of any year what amount of premiums it has received, what its losses have been, and the proportionate expense of its business chargeable to the class that includes only flour mills. If the losses have been unusually heavy, the rates must go up correspondingly. If the losses have been less than what was expected, the rates should be lowered.

It follows that the better the construction of flour mills and the greater the care exercised in their operation the less millers will have to pay for fire insurance. In building mills, 99 times out of 100 the question of fire protection is not once thought of, the governing intention being to get through at the least possible expense. It can be very easily demonstrated that the wise expenditure of a few extra dollars while a building is being erected will soon come back to its owner by way of decreased insurance rates. To insure this result it is of course essential that the planner of the building have a practical knowledge of what constitutes fire-protective features. If he fails to find anything on the subject "laid down in the books," he can count on getting much useful information and many valuable hints about the subject from the insurance companies that are to be asked to carry the risk, for they are never desirous of fires—their profit comes from not having fires. Strictly speaking there is and always should be a mutuality between the insured and the insurer. It is rare that a fire loss, partial or otherwise, results in a profit. It certainly never does to the company that carries the risk.

The ideal way is to put the property in such shape that it presents the fewest possibilities of burning, and then to insure it. Manifestly this is economy for both parties, and equally manifest is it that the best time to so equip a mill that its liability to burn is reduced to the lowest possible minimum is when the mill is being built, for then the greatest latitude is possible in original construction. Where a mill has been built without any reference whatever to protection against fire it is obvious that ample protective features cannot be added without involving too great an outlay of money. However, much can be done, even with an old mill, providing one knows how to get at it.

A miller making any sort of pretensions to intelligence ought to know the most dangerous spots in his mill. He should know that wherever there is friction there is likelihood of fire; and while he cannot operate his mill without some machinery running at high speed, yet he ought to know how to surround such machinery with conditions presenting the greatest barriers to fire. Then, having the plant in the best possible condition, the remaining duty of keeping his mill clean must rest heavily upon him. The accumulation of dust and mill products in and around the machinery and mill never fails to increase rates when the inspector comes round. In many other ways, aside from an insurance standpoint, it does not pay to be dirty. Cleanliness is quite a near neighbor to Godliness and gives the miller a good reputation.—Roller Mill.

"Our Coming Competitors."

THE Dixie Miller, an American milling journal, says under the above heading in its last issue: An authority on the subject estimates that the area available for wheat raising in northwest Canada is 400,000 square miles, or four times that in which wheat is grown in the United States. Only 1 per cent. of this is under cultivation. The Western States show some nervousness over the recent emigration from their regions to the Canadian Northwest. In 1896 the American emigration was counted at only 36 people, but in 1902 it rose to 37,000. About the same number last year was reported from Europe, and it is estimated that this year 50,000 English-speaking people will seek homes in the new lands, and probably the same number of Americans. At this rate the Canadian Northwest can soon supply Great Britain with foodstuffs. All they are waiting on is Chamberlain's preferential tariff.

White Bread and Appendicitis.

THE Brooklyn Eagle says, with reference to the statements of a certain "Doctor" regarding the relationship of flour to appendicitis: It is utter rubbish to assert that appendicitis is due to the use of good flour. The flour of our ancestors differed from the flour of to-day only in the relative amount of the germ of the wheat, which in modern milling is removed, to the great advantage of the consumer. The germ of the seed is composed of material that soon decays, and flour containing it could not be depended upon to keep. As early as the '50s of the last century machinery was invented which reduced the amount of germ contained in the flour, and this machinery has been improved from time to time until something near perfection has been reached in the process of milling. It is ridiculous to assert that the presence in the flour of the germ made the bread any more easily digestible. On the contrary, such bread is less digestible, and the same is true of the whole wheat flour now affected by the faddists.

The bran has been removed from the flour for many centuries and no one fully acquainted with the subject will care to eat flour containing the indigestible, worthless mass of the bran. It is a good fodder, certainly, but I would suggest that hay is cheaper, and will answer exactly the same purpose. Americans are said to "feed" instead of dine, and it is easy to see how beneficial bran or any other fodder would be to one in the habit of "feeding," as it will certainly aid in a measure in dividing the food, and save the trouble of mastication, which requires time. It will also have the usual effect of fodder, to keep the mass of half masticated food in motion, until it is gotten rid of and so is out of the way of doing harm.

The Production of Wheat

IN an editorial under the above caption The Toronto World points out that the idea of Canada taking the place of the United States as a source of wheat supply for Great Britain is not a mere patriotic imagination, but is founded on hard facts. It is founded not only on the rapidly increasing wheat area and product of Canada, but on the probability of a diminishing surplus for export from the United States. About two-thirds of the wheat grown in the United States is now used for domestic consumption. Estimating the present population of the United States at 80,000,000, another 40,000,000 would consume the amount of wheat now grown. This increase of population may be expected in 20 or 30 years.

With the present production, the United States would then cease to have a surplus of wheat for export. The possibility of an increase in production must be considered. The present indications are, however, that production will increase at a far slower rate than population. The United States is receiving every year hundreds of thousands of immigrants, who represent mouths to be filled. We do not think that their settlement of wheat lands is increasing in anything like the same ratio. The exodus from the United States is mainly an exodus of farmers to Canada. Therefore the tendency is a rapid increase in the surplus for export from Canada, and a decline in the surplus for export from the United States. Already the American millers are eager to obtain Canadian hard wheat, and this demand will grow.

The Manitoba Crop.

THE July number of The Nor' West Farmer says: From almost every quarter we are being told of fresh, healthy looking crops and a good promise of abundant harvest. "What everybody says must be true," but the accuracy of some of these reports is open to question. Some observers see only skin deep and their reports are to that extent misleading. Of course there must be a considerable variety of experience in a country so far stretching as Western Canada, but it is quite certain that over a large part of the area on which most of our crop is grown, the rainfall up to a recent date was very limited. Seed time was all right and in some sections rainfall was ample for immediate requirements, but there was a very remarkable difference between this year's June precipitation and that of last year. It was to that month's rainfall the liberal yield of last year was largely due. The question is whether with a much smaller amount of moisture anything like the same yield this year can be looked for.

No fault can be found with the June report of the Manitoba Government. Up to the time that report was prepared every condition was as favorable as was there stated. It is the month of June itself that according to all previous experience is the crucial stage of crop growth in this country. Last year there was a heavy rainfall in June with corresponding profuse growth in all kinds of vegetation. But this year the June rains have been very limited over wide areas, and the effect of this is already manifest to every clear-eyed observer. Lands well worked, not previously over-cropped, and having a good open clay subsoil, have suffered comparatively little from the short rain supply and some districts have had more rain than others. With moderate showers from now on this class of land will make a very satisfactory showing. Crops there are still in the grow- In many sections of the Red River Val ther we are enjoying at time of writing have yet a fair chance to do well.

But there are other sections where drouth has already done serious damage. In many sections of the Red River Valley the men who have 60 per cent. of last year's crop will be fortunate. The amount of crop in the Red River Valley does not furnish a large percentage of the crop of the whole country. But if our carefully gathered information is correct, there are in the Mennonite country, the Portage Plains and Souris Valley—the very wheat gardens of the province—indications that 18 bushels to the acre will be the maximum average. In all cases where there has been prolonged cropping a short rainfall develops evidence of exhaustion, and we have now large areas subject to that condition. Plenty of well done work helps to mitigate this tendency and this year's experience will very strongly emphasize the importance in a dry season of good work. Last vear any kind of work had a decent yield after it, but dry years tell a different tale.

Perhaps the most promising sections in Manitoba will be found between Manitou and the western boundary and from Minnedosa westward. Northwestern Manitoba has special advantages of soil, and rainfall there has been more liberal.

It is pretty certain that this year the Territories have had the best of it as regards rainfall and will come out fairly well. Much of the land there is newer, and where properly worked it will be all right. Let us say here in passing that this year's crop results everywhere will furnish one more illustration of the folly of shallow and slipshod work. Lands with a gravelly subsoil will always suffer severely in a dry summer, but with a clay subsoil, the opener the better, this country will always give fair crops with a very limited rainfall, if the cultivation is right.

The Nor'-West Farmer is the only paper, so far as we know, that has as yet hinted at the possibility of a diminished crop yield. But we are quite satisfied of the accuracy of our diagnosis of the crop conditions of the whole of Western Canada, and think it in the very best interests of the farmers themselves that we should state our opinions with all possible plainness. The men who proclaim all over the world a prospective yield of 25 bushels of wheat, where the actual outturn will be nearer 18, are not the true friends of this country. If our forecast turns out too pessimistic we shall gladly own up—at the right time.

We may in conclusion point to the record of the Winter wheat crop of the U.S. for this same year. On April 1 they had a showing of fully 97 per cent. In two months that splendid showing had to be cut down 21 per cent., and some critics allege that even that reduced estimate is still too high. The foreign nations that want cheap wheat from this continent prefer big crop reports. Our real friends are those who keep inside the truth.

The Crops.

Crop reports concur as to the magnificent outlook in Ontario and the western provinces. Making every allowance for the ever cheerful statements of the ever sanguine Manitoban, a more than average yield is looked for in that section, and the weather conditions in Ontario continue of the most favorable nature. Reports from the Province of Quebec are also of the most cheerful character, and the country at large has been blessed with the most favorable weather.

Notes.

A tank house with a capacity of 5,000,000 bushels is included in the elevator plans of the Canadian Northern Railway at Port Arthur, Ontario.

An official estimate places the wheat crop of India at 7,780,000 tons, the largest ever known. Surplus for export is estimated at 64,000,000 bushels.

Some idea of Canada's increasing export trade in flour may be had from the shipments of flour from Montreal during the past week which totalled over 83,000 sacks.

The most noted European authorities on the wheat crop of the world believe that the yield in Europe will be about 250,000,000 bushels less this year than it was in 1902. They think that the American harvest may exceed that of last year by 150,000,000 bushels.

A Marvellous Cigarette Machine.

A COMPANY is being organized, says The United States Tobacco Journal, for the exploitation of a cigarette making machine, which those interested in declare will revolutionize that industry. According to their claims this new machine will do everything in connection with the making and packing of cigarettes from the time the tobacco, paper and pasteboard is fed into the machine until it is delivered in boxes of ten, stamped with the internal revenue stamp. The tobacco is fed into the machine by girls and cut into the proper shape by revolving knives. At the other end of the machine are long rolls of pasteboard and cigarette paper. The tobacco is rolled into the cigarettes, which are pasted up and then dropped into boxes made from the rolls of pasteboard. The machine makes the boxes, top and bottom, packs ten cigarettes in each box and wraps it with a suitable label and affixes the internal revenue stamp. Each cigarette is also stamped with the trade mark. According to those interested in the company, all the attendance required is that of girls to feed the tobacco and of boys to carry the boxes away and to pack them in larger boxes for shipping, with proper attendance on the rolls of paper and cardboard. It is claimed by the inventor that this machine is capable of delivering in boxes of ten, duly stamped and sealed, 170,000 cigarettes an hour, or 170,000 boxes in a day of ten hours. As soon as the organization of the company is completed steps will be taken to place the machines on the market on a royalty.

Terrors of the Tobacco Habit.

A WEALTHY Indiana grocer, whose name is here shrouded in silence, since a good man might, could, would, or should wish to do good by stealth, has burned a collection of idols. In California he got a message from the land of spirits. Whether by a medium or by telepathy, the story declines to say. He is sure that he received the message, and that it warned him that the use of tobacco was not consistent with salvation. Like a prudent man, he resolved to save his soul and lose his tobacco. When he got back to Indiana and his grocery, he found that his manager had just "put in" a large and expensive stock of "smokers' goods." The grocer ordered them destroyed. The manager protested. The grocer was firm. "Burn them up," was his order, and burned they were; and great was the smell thereof. Here was an iron resolution and a fine disregard for profit. But is tobacco so deadly in its moral effects as the message from California asserts? May it not be in some sort a means of discipline, a trial and a punishment? Think with what agony, what mutiny of the system, the habit is acquired; with what far different and keener agony it is given up, if it has to be given up, at the doctor's orders; with what doubt and worry it fills the man who knows that he is smoking too much. Think, most of all, how bad many cigars are, and how rebellious against suction. If smoking be an evil, has not the smoker his punishment here? If it be a good, why are so many cigars totally depraved?—Everybody's Magazine.

Sister Marfa's Pipe.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, the new moderator of the One Hundred and Fourteenth Presbyterian Assembly, sat in the Waldorf-Astoria recently, while to an appreciative surrounding he told this story: "A certain colored clergyman in the South had among his parishoners an old colored 'mammy, whose short-comings and back-slidings were many, and who caused the old minister to make numerous trips to 'mammy's' old shanty, followed by exhortation and prayers. After a long time he succeeded in causing the old lady to renounce one by one each of her bad habits until none remained but the old black pipe.

"'Sister Marfa,' he said solemnly one night after an unusually long argument, 'how do you spec to meet yo'r Lord with sech a 'baccy bref?'"

"'Bless you, honey, dat's all right,' cried mammy; 'befo' I meets my Lord, I specs to lose my bref.'"—N.Y. Times.

Here and there is a grocer who is groping in darkness, and about ready to give up the Cigar Department in his store. If that particular grocer would get into correspondence with me, I could easily convince him that the probable cause for his despondency was, first, because the profits he had been making were too small, and second, because the quality of his cigars was not up to the mark.

I would like the opportunity to lead him "into the light." If he can't write he can at least send in for a trial order of a thousand or more of my cigars. I'll pay the charges!

As a reward for faithful service as employes he is admitting as shareholders Jas. S. Neill, John J. Payne, F. W. Taylor, James Topp and V. J. Racette. The style of the firm henceforth will be "J. Geo. A. McGowan, Kingston, has moved into his new factory on the corner of Rideau and North streets, and celebrated the event by a big procession. Headed by a band and a carriage with Mr. McGowan and a couple of friends, the parade was loudly cheered by the onlookers on the streets. "The Canadian Grocer" adds its congratulations to the many Mr. McGowan has already received.

"Catchy" Words for Advertisements.

THE object of this column is to give readers up-to-date information about one of the largest centres of cigar manufacturing in Canada, which everybody understands London is. We conclude that any suggestions that might be of assistance in disposing of cigars would be accepted in the spirit in which they were given. We therefore give a few ideas on advertising. As a stimulating suggestion for the getting up of price cards along this line of thought the following short sentences are given you :

Quality counts.	Figures talk.
Small profit.	Quality and quantity.
You can't beat it.	You can afford it.
Worth the price.	A business-bringer.
Just to advertise.	High price, but—
To keep busy.	For a good smoke.
Our Loss—Your gain.	A trade-catcher.
A sale-riveter.	None better.
To please a customer.	For critical smokers.
The best, because it is.	To get you started.
A quick-step price.

Every time a new sentence flits through your mind write it down. You will have a bountiful supply to draw from as occasion may demand. These to be used on every price card—a different one on each card, no matter what the price may be. The suggestion following is for a general card that may be appropriately used in either the window or store. Use it first in the window, and afterwards a good location can doubtless be found in the store. The head or catch phrase at the top of the card should be printed within a circle, while the bottom may be displayed in whatever style is thought best :

How Kaffirs Smoke.

EVERY nation and every people has its peculiar smoking customs, but the most unusual, perhaps, is that of the South African natives, employed by The De Beers Consolidated Diamond Mining Co., Ltd., in their mines and compounds at Kimberley, South Africa. Here, according to Gardner F. Williams, in his new book, entitled The Diamond Mines of South Africa, the De Beers company employs several thousand blacks from all over South Africa. These native miners are very fond of cigars, but for all that they have seen white men smoke them for over 20 years, they still persist in smoking them themselves with the lit end in their mouths, shifting the cigar about and holding it between their teeth, so that the fire does not burn their mouths. This, to a white man, would be the height of discomfort, for in such a case he would have to keep his mind intently on the cigar, to prevent having his tongue scorched or getting a mouthful of ashes, but, according to Mr. Williams, the native workmen prefer smoking cigars in this way to the white man's method, and are so deft in managing their weeds that it is an unusual occurrence for a native to get a mouthful of ashes or have his tongue scorched.

Large Tobacco Crop in Essex and Kent.

A tobacco grower said to The Leamington News that the reports in eastern papers that the tobacco crop is likely to be a failure were absurd. The prospects were never brighter. One paper said a farmer had lost 250,000 plants, as if this were a large number. A farmer putting in a quarter of an acre would not sow less than a teaspoonful of seed, and this would produce 250,000 plants.

Last week was fine for transplanting and this hot weather is just the thing to further the crop. Fully 5,000 acres of tobacco has been planted this season in Essex and Kent. With a good season, the yield should average 1,200 lb. per acre, or a grand total of 6,000,000 lb.

To the Trade.

Having received several inquiries from the cigar manufacturers on the subject, "The Canadian Grocer" wishes to inform the trade generally that no charge is made for the framing or preparation of advertisements. We will have much pleasure at all times in placing the services of an experienced advertising writer at the disposal of our friends without additional cost. We have also in our service an art department, where designs and drawings are prepared for our advertisers. In many cases the use of ornamental designs or illustrations makes an advertisement much more effective, and the charges in this department are of a very reasonable nature.

INQUIRIES ABOUT CANADIAN TRADE.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government office in London, Eng. :

1. A London house has asked to be referred to Canadian firms who might be open to take up the agency for electric lamps and electric light accessories.

2. The manufacturer of a new patent electricity meter is desirous of bringing it to the notice of those in Canada who are interested in such goods.

3. A Zurich (Switzerland) firm asks to be placed in touch with Canadian cheese exporters.

4. Inquiry has been made for the addresses of Canadian makers of brick-making machinery.

5. A firm in Rennes (France) reports a considerable demand for apples suitable for the production of cider and asks to be placed in correspondence with Canadian shippers of apples.

6. A correspondent wishing to acquire a first-class manganese deposit would like to hear from Canadian owners of properties.

7. A Liverpool firm invites quotations from Canadian shippers for box shooks for direct shipment to South Africa in lots of from 10,000 to 20,000 boxes each shipment.

8. The selling agents for several manufacturers of railway supply lines seek the services of a first-class Canadian firm in close touch with railway, tramway and similar enterprises as their Canadian representatives.

Parties interested may obtain the addresses of the inquirers by communicating with the editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

CANADIAN PROVISIONS VINDICATED.

Prof. Robertson, who was sent to England by the Dominion Government to refute the reports from the War Office reflecting on the character of provisions supplied by Canada to the War Department in South Africa, has succeeded in convincing the Secretary of State for the Colonies and the officials of the War Office that the quality of the Canadian goods had been misrepresented.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

The Results You Get Out of an Ad. Depend Largely on What You Put In it.

CONTINUING the remarks on display in last week's issue ; it is very hard for a man who is not throughly familiar with type and its practical uses, who has not studied the value of contrast, to do anything exceptional in the way of displaying his ads.

This is a very good reason why he should not try.

If you could see some of the copy the newspaper compositors get, you'd wonder how they made any kind of an ad. out of it at all. This word written large—that one heavily underscored—and many other pet ways of "emphasizing" every sentence—often almost every word—in the ad.

An advertisement may be ever so fine, may contain ever so many convincing arguments, and yet be set in so unattractive a manner as to absolutely destroy its value, because so few persons will ever get to the "meat" of it. Very few people are even tempted to give an advertisement a second glance unless it have the eye-catching qualities.

The perfect ad. will be one which has a good substantial argument for business, clothed in proper expressions, and with some sort of an appropriate display in it which will draw the eye of the person who may be reading the paper.

A great many retailers make the great mistake of leaving the display entirely to the compositors on the newspaper, and while too much "marking up" with typographical instructions is undesirable—more likely, in fact, to confuse the compositor and result in a botch job—still it is a good plan to have a clear idea of the form in which you wish to have the ad. appear—the lines you wish displayed, paragraphs, etc., plainly marked so as to convey to the compositor your desires regarding the style of the ad. in a clear and easily understandable manner.

A merchant with either a natural or acquired knowledge of what constitutes good advertising will be not only able to write his advertisement in attractive and convincing wording, but will also have the ability to select the proper type in which to have it set, and will be able to so "lay out" his copy that the poorest compositor cannot help but set up an attractive eye-catching ad. therefrom.

It is a good idea, therefore, for each newspaper to furnish its advertisers who are capable of using it correctly, with a type book or type card, showing the various styles and sizes of type which they can place at the disposal of their advertisers. From this type book the advertiser can select such type as may meet the requirements of his advertisements, and see that the tone of his ads. is properly brought out by the style of type which will make the best display.

That book of ads. which I have recently compiled under the title "100 Good Ads. for a Grocery Store," was prepared with the idea of producing a book that would prove of real practical value to every reader of THE GROCER.

Its real usefulness lies in the suggestiveness of the ads. it contains.

They illustrate a number of interesting ways of talking about the goods in your store, and while so arranged that they can be used just as they are, it is their thought-stimulating qualities which are most appreciated.

They suggest ideas for ads.

Included in the book are a number of short catchy sayings that add a "point" to any advertisement, and also prove suitable for headlines and show cards.

There is also a talk on the best methods, and some good suggestions for effective, yet simple, display.

Any grocer ought to be able to write good ads. with a copy of "100 Good Ads. for a Grocery Store" at his elbow.

A copy will be sent by the publishers of THE GROCER on receipt of a dollar bill, which will willingly be returned if you should not find the book satisfactory.

A great many newspapers do this, and we generally find that those publishers who give close attention to the composition of their ads., that they may be attractively displayed and arranged, not only have the paper of the nicest appearance, but generally carry the largest amount of local and foreign advertising.

I think most merchants would rather have their ads. looks nice and read poorly than to have them read well and be poorly displayed. They stand just as good a chance of getting results, anyway.

But when a merchant really takes pains to construct an attractive ad., couched in convincing language, and then finds on the appearance of the newspaper that it is poorly displayed and presents an unattractive appearance, practically all his enthusiasm is killed for the time being.

There is often a great deal of science to be used in arranging the display, as certain styles of type which are very proper for a fire sale, for instance, would not be at all proper for the announcement of an "opening." One requires a bold, black-faced type, while the other would want something very neat and attractive, but not loud.

When an advertiser trusts entirely to the ability and taste of the compositor for the arrangement of the display in his ads. he is very apt to be disappointed in the way his advertisement looks on the appearance of the paper. The very line, perhaps, which he wished most prominent will probably be set in a small type, whereas something that he is not particular about calling attention to is shown up in big letter.

There are some advertisers, however, who either from lack of experience or lack of talent are not capable of selecting the proper type in which to set an advertisement, and these would do well to give the matter thought and attention until they have drilled themselves into a proper knowledge of the subject.

THE LOSS OF A GALLON OF OIL.

DOUBLE TANK.

Will not make you poor. But it is equivalent to losing the interest on a Dollar for a Year. Many lucky people who live in "Easy Street" are enabled to live there because they look carefully after the six or eight cents of interest each dollar brings yearly. Can you afford to look less carefully after your interest money than the inhabitant of "Easy Street?" You may not have money to lend, but you have oil to save, and when you have saved a gallon of oil that would otherwise have been wasted, you have as surely collected your interest as though some one had paid you six or eight cents for the use of a "Daddy Dollar" for a year.

BOWSER OIL TANKS

TORONTO RETAIL MERCHANTS' PICNIC.

OLD PROBS favored the Toronto Retail Merchants with ideal weather for their picnic at Exhibition Park Wednesday afternoon, 15th. inst. The merchants, with their wives, sweet-hearts and friends to the number of about 6,000, gathered in the grand stand enclosure, forgot all about shop and gave themselves up to enjoyment of the summer outing and the diversified programme of sports arranged for by an enterprising committee. It was a jolly, good looking, well groomed crowd. The substantial business man, relieved of care for the afternoon, smoked his cigar in solid contentment as he strolled along the lawn, the good wife gazed down benignantly from the grand stand, and the younger generation found ample means of amusement. A number of the leading wholesalers were also present and enjoyed the opportunity of meeting their customers on a social footing.

The grounds were handsomely decorated, and the beautiful silk banner of the association, the Cross of St. George, occupied an honored place floating from the centre of the stand.

The features on the programme of amusements were almost too numerous to mention, but included a baby show, foot-races, jumping, climbing greasy pole, water melon eating contest, jam feeding contest, bicycle races, clowns, dog races, catching greasy calf, prize waltzing, horse racing, besides special vaudeville attractions during the evening.

Of course, the chief interest centred around the baby show. There were 28 entries and all types, shades and complexions were represented. They were withal a fine-looking lot of youngsters, and a proud circle of fond mothers were confident that though other babies might be younger, older, fatter, or something else, "mammy's little baby boy," or girl, as the case might be, was the finest that ever. They were brave men, the judges who faced that array, Drs. W. P. Thompson and E. Fraser Bowie, but after grave deliberation the prizes were awarded to three boys, the children of Mrs. Carmody, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. W. H. Chadwick.

Catching the greasy calf was another feature which afforded considerable amusement. The calf was turned loose in the centre of the speeding ring, with the announcement that whoever caught it could have it. The calf had no intention of being caught, but, head out and tail up, made a wild dash for freedom. The crowd followed with a rush, the calf dodged, doubled and twisted, but all in vain. Overcome by superior generalship he surrendered at discretion to Gus Farwell who has not announced what he intends to do with his catch.

A jam-eating contest, in which the competitors were blindfolded and fed each other with long spoons from a basin, resulted in Joe Gray securing the first prize, his face being less dirty than that of his fellows. The greasy pole contest was won by John Gladstone from 50 competitors. The horse races were the important event of the afternoon's entertainment and resulted as follows :

2 30 class, pace or trot—1, Fleet Wilkes, J. Davis; 2, Emma L., John Lamb ; 3, Antile, D Rownt ee. Time, 1.11½.

2 50 class, road waggon, trot or pace—1, Little Boy, Snow & Dennis ; 2, William H., J. Marshall; 3, Bert Beal, J. Crawford.

Delivery horses in waggons or buggies—1, Little Cricket, C. Verrall ; 2, Frank Fitz, J. Lougheed ; 3, Junction Boy, William Woods.

Pony running race—1, Tommy ; 2, Dangerous Maid ; 3, American Girl ; 4, Rosebud ; 5, Dick.

Basket race—1, Fly-.n-Amber ; 2, Bertie ; 3, Captain Kennedy.

The officials for the horse races were : Samuel McBride, starter ; Ben. Smith, Albert Holman, judges ; R. B. Burkett, Frank Rogers, timers.

The results of the bicycle races were :

One mile—1, R. J. Reid ; 2, S. H. Bounsall ; 3, G. Little.

Half-mile dash—1, W. Anderson ; 2, A. Wat on; 3, W. Sinclair.

One-mile dash—1, J. Henry ;-2, A. Watt ; 3, B. Anders-on.

Two-mile dash—1, H. Macdonald ; 2 J. Smutch. 3, J. McNaughton.

Slow race—1, W. Anderson ; 2, B. Pring'e.

During the afternoon the Cadet Battalion Band discoursed appropriate music under the leadership of Bandmaster R. Richardson.

The officials in charge of the arrangements of the picnic were : Picnic Management Committee—J. Wilmot, chairman ; W. Dineen, treasurer ; E. M. Trowern, secretary ; and the chairman of the various sub-committees : G. J. St. Leger, F. C. Higgins, H. Puddy, P. N. Judah, J. H. Lock, F. J. Denning, W. B. Rogers, A. E. Walton, E. R. Rogers, P. B. Whytock, T. W. Barber, A. R. Price, M. Bredin, R. W. Hull, G. T. Gibbard.

CONVICTION UNDER TRADES MARKS ACT

Samuel Patterson, a Toronto mineral water manufacturer, pleaded guilty before P. M. Denison last week to two charges of using bottles emblazoned with the business inscription of J. J. McLaughlin. He claimed to have got the bottles along with some second-hand goods and that their use was a mistake. The magistrate decided that their use was a contravention of the Trades Marks Act, and imposed a fine of $20 and costs in each case.

FISH PIRATES OF PUGET SOUND.

There is likelihood of a fish war in Puget Sound. The canners have declared their intention to refuse fish offered for sale by fish pirates. The latter in the past have reaped a rich harvest each year by robbing the traps of the large fishing concerns. There are said to be upward of 1,000 of them on the sound, and they threaten, if their market is cut off, to be revenged by destroying the traps. Last year a watchman met death at the hands of the pirates, who, other times than at the fishing season, are general miscreants, and serious trouble is anticipated. A single watchman is customary for each trap, but as the pirates travel in pairs, he has little chance against them. The legitimate fishers are said to be preparing armed boats to patrol the fishing waters, and will endeavor to clear the sound of the pirates.

The powers expressed in the charter are: "To manufacture and deal in canned goods, evaporated fruits, condiments, pickles, jams, jellies, preserves, table delicacies, grocers' sundries and supplies and prepared goods, and for the said purposes: (a) To provide for growing them or otherwise for the raw material to be used by the company and (b) to take over the business and the assets of the business of any firm carrying on a similar business."

The provisional directors are: O. E. Robinson, F. G. Walley, W. H. Cook and H. E. Robinson.

THERE'S BUSINESS WHEREVER "THE GROCER" GOES.

Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of the Chinese Starch (Empois Chinois) on Mount Royal Ave., Montreal, received inquiry for his starch from Amsterdam, Holland, under date of July 7. The inquiry was from Mr. Gerhard Polak, and was the result of advertising in THE CANADIAN GROCER. As Mr. Lefebvre expresses it : "You have the greatest trade paper on earth. I have only advertised but a short time and received inquiries (and orders have been filled) from Vancouver, Victoria, Halifax, Winnipeg and St. John—and now comes a request for the goods from Europe. You seem to go all over."

A Two Cent Mistake

Don't amount to much in any business, but the striking point is that a clerk is just as liable to make a mistake of $2.00 as he is of two cents, and a few mistakes like this would pay for enough of Allison's Coupon Books to last a year or more. With these books mistakes are impossible.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? THE TRUTH
Of the Matter!

Quality counts, and there is no use trying to dodge the question. If you build on "Quality" you build on a rock foundation; if you build on "Price" your structure will fall with the first hard blow It pays to be honest and true to yourself as well as to your trade. It pays to make "Quality" your watchword.

Let's look the matter squarely and fairly in the face and be satisfied with moderate profits—satisfied to build on the strong foundation rather than the shifting one. Stop for a moment and think of the truth of the matter—the truth in a nutshell is "Quality."

Wheat Marrow

is a Cereal Food whose quality has been tried, tested, trusted. Its sales have been far beyond the fondest expectations of the makers.

Quicker and more easily prepared for the table than any other. Sterilized. A mental and physical strengthener. Easy to digest — equally good for infants, children and those of weak digestion as for well folks.

Stephens' Pickles.

Crisp, sound, piquant, appetizing. Packed in absolutely pure Malt Vinegar—brewed by The Messrs. Stephens. Always the same reliable quality—tried, tested, trusted.

Packed in bottles with very showy labels. The outside of the bottle is as attractive as the inside. Quick, steady sellers. That's "the truth of the matter."

Codou's
Genuine French
Macaroni, Vermicelli and Fancy Paste.

Nothing better is made anywhere. Made only from finest Russian Wheat—at a model factory.

Sold by Leading Wholesalers.

THE MOP THAT THE SUN NEVER SETS ON.

TO THE RETAIL TRADE

We desire to announce that we are filling many delayed orders on our "TARBOX SELF WRINGING MOP," to the jobbers at all points from St. John, N.B., to Vancouver, B.C.

And we especially desire to intimate that every Mop is fully equal to any we have ever put out. When you find our name, which appears plainly stamped on all of our make, it is a guarantee that the Mop is fitted with a full weight Cloth, one that is sufficiently "stockey" to be of practical use. We can supply an inferior Mop Cloth at $1.50 less per gross than our regular standard Cloth; but we do not AND WILL NOT fit our Mops with them. When you get an inferior Mop look for the maker's name.

Why Put a Guard over your Cash Drawer?

AND NOT OVER YOUR BULK GOODS?

Why do some merchants employ a cashier, buy a Cash Register and a Safe to protect their cash, and then refuse to guard the bins and barrels that hold this money in another form? Just realize this. Your bulk goods were cash yesterday, and will be to-morrow. Your success depends on the difference between these two amounts, and you need protection right at this point. A Dayton Moneyweight Scale fits in right here; it gets all the profit so that your Cashier, Register, and Safe may have something to hold. It will

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

IT is a strange coincidence that July 22 saw the publication of the most favorable trade returns ever recorded in the history of Canada, and, at the same time, in the Commons, a spirited debate as to the evils of speculation in stocks, or stock gambling, as it is frequently and, too often, with justice, called.

It is a strange fact that the greater the general prosperity of a country the greater seems to be the temptation to wild speculation. It has been said that the general idea of "enough," is just twice as much as one has "from time to time," and, certainly, the number of men on this continent who have a certain definite amount fixed as the sum on which they are willing to retire, and, who, having attained it, do retire, is small indeed. We say "on this continent," for it is a fact, well known to close observers, that in England the opposite of this is the case. The English merchant frequently has his idea of "enough" definitely fixed; an amount not constantly changing and increasing, and when he has been fortunate enough to secure the desired sum, he betakes himself to his favorite pursuit, and thoroughly enjoys life for the remainder of his days—be they few or many.

Probably never before have there been so many people scattered all over Canada who are getting better off from day to day, and yet, certainly never before have we had so many madly anxious to become speedily rich. Given, then, the funds for first deposits, as we might describe margins, and this intense thirst for riches, we have stock speculation run mad. To no class of the community has the fever been harmless. The widely scattered area of successful Canadian enterprises is partly answerable for the wide-spread character of the disease. In the Maritime Provinces the inhabitants had before them the rich coal properties of The Dominion Coal Co., and the great activity and apparent prosperity of the iron and steel industries at Sydney. Stock which sold freely at 15c. on the dollar, advanced rapidly to par, and even away beyond it. Rumors of large fortunes made in a year or two on the investment of comparatively small initial amounts, set the steady accumulators wild with desire to do likewise, as they saw man after man among neighbors, who had never been looked upon as in their class in industrial circles, pass them in the race for gain. There could be but one result,—speculation, and speculation there was with a vengeance.

Striding with seven-league boots over 3,500 miles of Canadian territory, we find very similar conditions in The Crow's Nest Coal Co., of British Columbia. Once again the stores of nature, so long dormant and unknown, are being drawn upon by men whose enterprise has found them out, and once again the sight of fortunes grown big in a night has "got upon the nerves" of the "small" financier. In the middle land—the land of old Canada, Upper and Lower—the land where money, as yet, is most plentiful, the fact of no such great mineral deposits had no effect in stopping the craze or moderating the excitement, for, if the mines lay to the far east and the far west, "the miners," if we may thus describe the great capitalists who set these great operations afoot, found their homes in the great cities of the centre provinces. Agents with stock to sell for the various corporations, smooth-tongued as the walking vendor of books, spread far and wide the tale of wealth easily acquired, and the newspapers from day to day gave items, eagerly read along the same lines. There could be but one result. The man comfortably off, with a thousand or two of spare money, was told that he might double the same in a few days by buying on a ten-point margin, and the "tip" came true just often enough to set all the intimates of the fortunate one doing likewise. So long as the stocks kept soaring, which for months upon months they did, all was well, but when the barometer began to fall, wide-spread ruin followed. The man who had made well from his "investment," had very naturally become an optimist, and was easily persuaded, the wish being father to the thought, that the drop was but a temporary flurry, to be succeeded by yet higher prices. He held serenely on then, till his profit had disappeared to the sound of the remorseless ticker; held on till his first margin had gone too, till his second and third had followed suit; till his home, from which years of patient toil and economy had cleared off the mortgage, was mortgaged once more; held on till for very lack of funds he could hold on no longer, and then, perforce, let go, to find himself well advanced on the downward slope of the hill of life, and penniless. No wonder that minds became unhinged under such circumstances; that the waters have covered the troubles of some; that the bullet has sent others to find whether there be more tolerable conditions across the great divide.

Yet, to some extent at least, the rapid making of wealth is justified in a country such as Canada. We possess immense natural resources, as yet but little utilized; as yet, in fact, but little known or explored. Take, for example, the coal mines we have mentioned. While hidden away in the bowels of the earth these were no asset; discovered and worked they at once became worth millions. Nor can we fairly complain that those who have first adventured in these enterprises, which, in the initial stages, are always more or less risky, should reap a rich reward. Where they accumulate their wealth, Canada, as a whole, becomes the richer in the labor furnished to thousands of hardy miners, to hundreds of railway employes; and her revenues swell because of the increased consumption of goods by these men, on which duty, either import or excise, is paid. From these increased revenues come increased expenditures on useful public works; works not only furnishing employment to our laboring and manufacturing classes, but in their turn implementing the commerce of the country, so that the stream of prosperity flows wide and far over the land, enriching and refreshing, as does the famous Nile the lowlands of Egypt.

We would not wish to weary our readers by too great an array of figures, but we are in no fear of doing so by what we are about to quote, since they must fill every Canadian heart with honest pride, and with unbounded hope for the future.

Our fiscal year ended, of course, with June 30, since July 1 is our National birthday, and the figures given out by the Customs Department, while not final, are no doubt approximately correct. Think of little Canada, little in population if not in area, doing a foreign trade last year on the basis, of imports which actually entered into consumption and Canadian produce exported, of very nearly four hundred and fifty million dollars. When this has properly sunken into your mind, think another happy thought, to the effect that this shows an increase over the preceding year, a year that had been considered more prosperous, of nearly fifty millions of dollars. We are wont to look towards the United States as the country of great prosperity, and yet we are doing a foreign trade $130,000,000 in excess of what that country did when its population was twenty millions, or bringing the comparison down to more recent times, we are trading with the outside world to the extent of $81 per head, as against a per capita trade of the States of $31 per head, in the year 1902.

It is encouraging to note that the prosperity is confined to no one or two of the main branches of Canadian industry, but that the advance is generally all along the line. In choosing a motto recently for the new commonwealth of the island continent "Advance Australia" was decided upon. It is pleasant to reflect that Canada has advanced, is advancing, and seems likely to continue to advance for some years more to come. We are not in this article engaged in an argument as to whether or not the present Government of the Old National Policy is responsible for the present splendid conditions, as good Canadians we are satisfied that they exist, and shall leave the discussion of the causes thereof to the politicians. It seems almost incredible that in seven short years our exports of domestic produce should have increased in round numbers from $110,000,000 to $214,500,000, and yet such the report shows to be the case. Analyzing this we find that exports of farm products have increased over last year to the tune of about $18,000,000, and show a total increase for the past seven years from fifty million and odd to one hundred and fourteen million and odd, and that exports of forest products have improved over last year by about four millions, and over seven years ago by nine millions. This is very large in proportion to the total exports, which this year reach $36,386,015, and can be accounted for in part by the large development in the past few years of the pulp industry. When we realize that this great industry is still in its infancy, that countless thousands of acres have still to give up their spruce and countless water powers are still to be harnessed to grind it, that the world's consumption is constantly on the increase, and that the building of the new trans-continental road, no matter what may be its precise location, will make profitable production of this staple possible where now it is out of the question for want of transportation facilities, we can see that, not only the wheat fields of the west, but the timber fields of the older provinces will, in the next decade, see a development that will mean millions to Canadian revenues, both public and private.

Coming to the division of manufactured goods we find that here too there is satisfactory increase. Last year these totalled $20,624,967, as against $18,462,970 for the previous year, and as against $9,365,384 for seven years ago.

The free list too, largely made up of raw material for manufactured goods, shows a heavy increase, amounting in 1903 to no less than $88,000,000, or an increase of ten millions over the preceding year. Over a million tons of bituminous coal was imported in excess of the importations of seven years ago, and as this largely goes for fuel for manufactories, it is a good evidence of the activity of this great Canadian line of industry. True, the importation of manufactured goods has also increased largely, giving a good text to Mr. Tarte and his friends for continued lectures on increased protection.

And this brings us back for a few closing words on the debate re stock gambling inaugurated by Mr. Bourassa. He, and others who supported his contentions, point to the fact that this form of speculation leads to the crusade for special aid in certain lines of industries which are not in fairness entitled to it. He takes, for example, the Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, which according to his views was vastly overcapitalized. The speculative mania carries the price of the shares well up towards par, and then, as must invariably be the case where there is not real worth behind it, the reaction takes place; thousands are crippled, not a few ruined. Those who have been able to hold on at once clamor for increased protection, claiming that so great a Canadian industry must not, for the sake of Canada's credit, be allowed to go down. Pressure is thus brought upon the Government which it is well nigh impossible to resist, and burdens are laid upon the people at large to make up the losses of the imprudent speculator. Mr. Tarte, speaking along the same line, openly charged that Ministers of the Crown and many members of Parliament had gone recklessly into the stock business, and that, in some cases, personal holdings influenced their legislative views.

Finally Mr. Bourassa withdrew his resolution, saying that he had wished to call public attention to the extent of the evil, rather than to get legislation upon it this session, and that he hoped that by next year something might be thought out that would limit, if not eradicate, the evil.

TWO HUNDRED AND FOUR CARLOADS OF FLIES.

We are informed that upon a very conservative calculation, the quantity of Wilson's Fly Pads shipped this year will kill the immense number of flies above mentioned.

At this rate, Wilson's Fly Pads will probably be responsible for the destruction of more flies than could be loaded into four hundred freight cars before the end of the present season.

PACKING GOODS FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

Mr. Yager, of The Cockshutt Plow Co., Brantford, has just returned from a two years' trip to Australia and South Africa. Speaking of the opportunities for Canadians extending business in South Africa he directed the attention of an Expositor reportor to the inclination of the people of South Africa to favor the colonies in preference to other nations. Canadian apples are greatly in demand, as also every kind of fruit. Hams and bacon would also find a ready sale, and all sorts of canned fruits sell well.

An important point Mr. Yager mentioned was the matter of shipping and packing. The negroes who handle the goods are grossly careless, and often cases are completely smashed. Mr. Yager advised that heavier packing cases be used and that they be heavily banded, so as to prevent cases from splitting.

GROCERS' WHOLESALE CO., LIMITED.

The annual meeting of The Grocers' Wholesale Co., Limited, of Hamilton, was held on Tuesday, July 21. A good representation was present. The financial statement presented to the shareholders was considered very satisfactory, business showing a very substantial increase over last year. The directors declared a seven per cent. dividend on paid up capital stock in addition to the dividend paid upon purchases in January last.

NOVA SCOTIA CROPS.

The Secretary of Agriculture for Nova Scotia reports as follows on Nova Scotia crops: Hay on upland is reported as 73 per cent. average; dyke marsh, 71 per cent; intervale, 86 per cent. He adds: "But from reliable sources of information I am of the opinion that since the returns were sent in there has been great growth made and the final result will be much better than the returns indicate. The same may be said of oats and grains reported 88 per cent., which will be fully 100." Potatoes and roots are reported 82 per cent. Apples are reported the best since 1896, when 430,000 barrels were exported. The estimate for this year is 400,000.

FRESH FRUIT FOR LONDON.

The first shipment of American fresh fruit to Europe for this season, and one of the largest single consignments ever sent across the Atlantic, was on board the liner St. Paul when she left New York for Southampton last week. The shipment consisted of nearly 10,000 boxes of pears, plums, cherries and peaches, which were rushed across at this early date to take advantage of the good prices sure to be obtained in the English market before the London season closes.

The fruit was all from California, and will make the 6,500-mile trip in record time. It travelled across the continent in a special refrigerator train eight cars of which were entirely occupied by the consignment. The fruit was re-iced only once in its transcontinental journey at Chicago.

When the train reached Jersey City and the cars were transferred to floats and towed alongside the St. Paul at Pier 15, North River, the fruit, which was packed in square boxes, just as it is delivered at the markets in New York, was transferred to the refrigeration chambers on the ship. It will not be disturbed again until it reaches Southampton, when it will be transferred to a special train and carried to London. The whole journey will have occupied little more than two weeks.

In addition to the California fruit, the St. Paul also carried 100 barrels of New York State apples from the Hudson valley. This is the first transatlantic shipment of apples grown this season.

The above consignment was forwarded by Geo. R. Meeker, fruit exporter, New York.

The Cheese Situation.

THE following table showing the fluctuations of the cheese market in Canada cannot fail to be of interest to all dealers. We are indebted to Mr. I. S. Wotherspoon, of the Montreal Board of Trade for its compilation. The statistical position of the Canadian cheese market is always of interest to manufacturers, cheese boards and produce dealers, and the appended chart will undoubtedly be appreciated. It is clearly evident from a glance that the tendency of the market during the current year, with the exception of slight advances in February and a rebound in April, has been steadily downward, and from present indications, bottom does not seem to have been reached. It will also be noticed that prices are practically the same as last year at this period. The opening price in January, 1903, was the highest seen for years, and it was but natural to expect a decline,—though the drop from May to June was somewhat sharper than during similar period last year.

A Wonderful Egg Preservative.

THE preservation of eggs has always been a vital question for the produce trade, and many experiments have been tried, some with more successful results than others; but, if the invention of the eminent French chemist, M. Louis Parisot, is all that is claimed for it by its discoverer, the long-looked for result has at last been obtained. We await with pleasurable anticipation a practical demonstration in our own market. Mr. Parisot claims he has discovered a liquid which, he says, will keep eggs quite fresh for a period of 12 years. If he can do it for one year he has fortune enough. Early last year he placed a large number of new laid eggs in this liquid, and he took the precaution to get a magistrate to witness the proceeding and to affix to the tank his official seal. At the expiration of 12 months the magistrate witnessed the opening of the tank, and the eggs were found in excellent condition. Four, which were selected haphazard from the tank, were at once boiled for eating, and were found to be in first-rate condition and of excellent flavor. Later on the inventor had another triumph. Some eggs which had been in the liquid for four months were successfully hatched, eight out of twelve which were placed under the hen proving fertile. M. Parisot states that he can preserve a thousand eggs with his preparation for the sum of 7½d.

Hogs Scarce in Maritime Provinces.

SPEAKING of the business of packing hogs on a large scale, J. Fred Fraser, of Davis & Fraser, said to The Maritime Merchant: "There is no room for a very big concern in Halifax as it is impossible to get the necessary supply of hogs. The business is available all right, but the packers' raw material is lacking. Notwithstanding all that has been said and done to induce our farmers to go more largely into hog raising, I believe that instead of there being an increase of hogs the tendency is rather the other way. We intend to start a branch establishment on P. E. Island this season in order to be near our hog supply. We get the bulk of our hogs on the island, but even there very little increase is to be noted in the number of hogs available. At the present time live hogs are worth about $5.75 per cwt., or, for packing purposes, about 7c. per lb. dressed. This has been a very good year for the farmer owing to the high prices, of which he got rather more benefit than the packer. Personally we have had a very good trade. There has been a steady demand for our output, which shows that people appreciate our goods."

The Small Danish Bacon Factories.

DENMARK is the home of the co-operative hog industry. M. P. Blom, chairman of the Association of Danish Co-operative Bacon Curers, states that the first Danish factory on this plan was started in 1887 at Horseno. There are now 27 of them. He attributes the success of this kind of plant in Denmark to the following causes: (1) The widespread practical education of the Danish farmer supported by the valuable lessons in trade combination which had been taught him in the development of the dairying industry. (2) The thoroughly systematic manner in which a national scheme for the improvement of the quality of the pigs of the country has been undertaken and maintained. (3) The rapidity with which the farmers of the country adapted their system of farming to the requirements of the bacon factories so as to secure uniformity in the size and quality of the swine. (4) The public spirit exhibited in all cases by the banking institutions of the country in financing the people's factories, and the co-operation in many instances of the municipal bodies in corporate towns, and of associations of merchants and traders to provide the capital necessary to erect and equip these factories. (5) The wholehearted manner in which the Government assisted the industry by providing the constant advice of experts, by assisting the prosecution of inquiries in foreign countries, and by advancing subsidies to steamship owners to ensure more regular and frequent transition of the produce to the English markets.

The average cost of a co-operative bacon factory killing and treating the products of 500 hogs per week is about $60,000. This includes buildings, machinery, smoke house and complete refrigerator and pickling installation. Many of the Danish plants handle fewer than 10,000 hogs each per year. The main thing is to have the hogs come in fairly regular succession so as not to crowd at one time and be idle at another. There are 64,000 co-operators forming those small bacon factories. They turn out $12,500,000 worth of products per annum.

Britain Excludes American Swine.

A new order has been issued by the British Board of Agriculture regulating the landing of animals from foreign countries, and to take effect on August 1. Canada is not affected, but the shipment of live swine from the United States is now prohibited.

Blow at Canadian Butter.

The butter bill, which is now passing through the British House of Commons, shows a preference to Ireland over the colonies. According to the provisions of the bill, all butters, including colonial butters, which contain over 16 per cent. water, will be penalized. Irish butter will, however, be allowed to contain 20 per cent. water, which gives the Irish dairy industry a decided advantage over that of Canada.

This preference which has been squeezed out of the Government by the Irish party, militates against Canadian butter. Ireland is hostile both to Canada's dairy and cattle trade.

Ruling re Cattle for Yukon.

The Agricultural Department have discontinued the inspection of Canadian cattle consigned from Canadian ports for the Klondike. It had been pointed out that though passing in bond through American territory they were simply in fact being sent from one Canadian port to another. After consultation with the Washington authorities the above ruling was made.

Canadian Produce in London.

A despatch from London under date of July 27 says: The demand for Canadian butter continues to advance, and advancing markets are anticipated for the next three months. The choicest salt butter is quoted at 92 and 94s. per cwt.

The demand for Canadian cheese is slow, attributed to the large amount of fodder cheese exported and sent out too green or in an uncured condition.

London Prices Current.

Prices Current of Irish and Foreign Provisions, issued by Thomas Nesbitt & Co., London, Eng., on July 13, thus describes conditions :

Weather fine and warm after great heat. Business rules dull.

Butter.—Trade still very slow.

Bacon.—Market is improving for all descriptions in fresh condition.

Hams.—Irish, slow ; Canadian and American in better request.

Lard.—Bladders, pails, etc., meet with a very poor demand.

Eggs.—Best wanted at full rates ; other kinds in less request.

Cheese.—Sells but slowly at reduced values.

Half Year's Meat Bill.

John Bull's bill for the first six months of the year for imported cattle, etc., and meat, is as follows :

	1903.	1902.
Cattle, number	235,660	197,861
Sheep, number	176,209	160,099
Beef, cwt	1,978,653	1,937,472
Mutton, cwt	2,201,099	1,940,838
Pork, cwt	336,312	356,178

The monetary value of the foregoing imports is approximately £13,717,000. Of this colonial exports represent £4,177,600, and foreign countries £9,540,400.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

No change has been noted in cured meats or lard since last week. The demand for cured meats continues good and at the reduced quotations for lard the demand has brightened up. We quote :

MONTREAL.

The price of barrel pork is somewhat lower than that of a week ago, and the feeling generally in the market is easy. Pure lard is also lower. There has been a fairly good demand for smoked meats, but no quotable changes are reported. We quote :

Heavy Canadian short cut mess pork	$20 50	$21 00

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Pork seems rather firmer in price, and there is slightly improved demand, particularly for the better grades. Beef is unchanged in price ; there is a very light sale. Lard is easy ; in pure, quite a full stock is held ; the sale has been very dull ; refined lard is also easier, price going off a quarter this week. In fresh meats there is little sale except for lamb, which holds quite firm in price. Domestic beef is rather easier, but finds a rather slow sale ; Western is unchanged. Veal remains unchanged in price, the sale is light. Mutton is very dull. Pork holds at quite full prices, but there is very little doing. We quote :

Mess pork, per bbl	$21 00	$22 00
Clear pork "	19 00	22 00

DAIRY PRODUCE.

TORONTO.

BUTTER.—There have been very ample supplies of butter received this last week and the feeling is still easier than at last writing, although no change in quotations has been noted. The quality marketed is satisfactory and domestic demand is fair, but no improvement in export has occurred as yet. We quote :

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 18	0 19
" solids, fresh	0 17	0 18
Dairy rolls, large	....	....
" prints	0 15	0 16
" in tubs, best	0 14	0 15
Under qualities	0 12	0 13

CHEESE.—Prices have again eased off this last week and quotations are ¼c. lower, and dealers report prices still too high here to show any profit for export on recent cables. The downward tendency which has merked the cheese market is graphically illustrated in the cut on a previous page. We quote :

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 09¾	0 10
" twins, new	0 10	0 10¼

MONTREAL.

BUTTER.—Conditions of the butter market, more especially in regard to creamery, have shown little more life this week, but, as usual, the country markets advanced more rapidly than the quotations received from England would warrant, and, as a result, the little demand which occurred, has already been checked. There has been no demand for dairy butter, practically not a package being sold this season to date within 1c. per lb. of the cost, which makes the market unsatisfactory. The prices on the local jobbing market are as follows :

Finest Eastern Township creamery	0 19	0 19½
" Western "	0 17½	0 18
" " dairy	0 14½	0 15

The majority of the country boards during the past week have ranged from 18¼ to 18⅜c.

CHEESE.—The depressed feeling in England is now having its effect upon the market. It has been expected for some time past, but owing to the shortage on the other side, it has been a little longer in coming. At the wharf Monday, sales of which practically represent the largest boards in Quebec district, cheese sold at 8¾c., Ontario boards ruling from 9 to 9⅜c. The exporters state that it was practically impossible to secure business at even cost last week. The jobbing price is 10 to 10½c.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—The price of best stock shows little change, prices keeping quite high ; but when it comes to common grades, prices are low, and stock moves off but slowly. Butter-makers lose much money by not having quality right.

EGGS.—There is a good steady sale at even prices. Market is rather firmer. Quite a few Prince Edward Island eggs are now offered ; the quality is good.

CHEESE.—Market has gone off rather more freely than was expected. Prices are still quite high. For local business large cheese will not sell. We quote :

Butter, creamery prints, per lb	0 22	0 24
" creamery solids (fresh made), per lb	0 20	0 22
" prints	0 18	0 20
" tubs	0 14	0 16
" tubs, selected, per lb	0 16	0 18
Eggs, new laid, per doz	0 16	0 18

EUROPEAN TRADE FOR CANADA.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER:

Sir,—Will you permit me to use the columns of your valuable paper to call attention to a number of lines in which I believe an excellent opportunity is offered for the extension of our trade with Germany, Belgium and Holland.

At the present time there appears to be a good opening for trade in fresh, dried and evaporated apples in Germany, where the latter pay a duty of $1.25 per 110 pounds and the former enter duty free. It is true that an act has been passed imposing a duty on fresh fruit from Canada, but it has not been brought into force, and will only become operative by Imperial proclamation. Large quantities of evaporated apples from the United States are sold annually in Germany, and as the quality of the Canadian goods is admitted to be better, there is no reason why we should not be able to compete with the Americans.

In Holland only fancy evaporated apples are wanted. The duty is five per cent. ad valorem for both fresh and dried fruits.

Belgium will take considerable quantities of both dried and fresh fruits, particularly Spy, Baldwin and Greening apples in boxes. Fresh apples are free of duty, but 10 per cent. ad valorem is collected on dried and evaporated goods. Canadian cheddar cheese, if mild, will sell even in competition with the best Holland. It would bring about 20 cents per pound retail, leaving an ample margin for profit after paying freight and commission, and the duty, which is slightly over one cent per pound. It is particularly to be noted that only a mild cheese is wanted. Belgium takes annually 23,000,000 to 32,000,000 pounds of Dutch cheese, 6,500,000 pounds of Swiss Gruyere, and 2,100,000 pounds of fine cheese from France. Practically none is made in Belgium. Tinned meats, game, poultry, and tinned tomatoes are also in demand.

If Canadians are to secure a share of this trade they will have to get out and "hustle" for business. The merchants as well as the consumers of Belgium and Germany are very conservative in their tastes and methods;—a statement that we often hear but do not fully appreciate. Americans and Canadians will buy and test a new article simply because it is new, but with the European consumers the opposite is the case. The merchants over there have their trade established and are content. Why should they change? We must show them that it would be to their advantage to do so. In this connection I desire to emphasize particularly the advisability of Canadian shippers sending over liberal samples of their food products for distribution. They will find it profitable to do so, and to quote prices freely. At first goods would have to be shipped on commission, but when a footing is gained, business can be done on a cash basis. It is, of course, necessary above all things that goods shipped shall be carefully packed and true to sample, as this is the only way to gain and hold the confidence of the merchants.

It may be mentioned that the Canadian agent in Belgium, Mr. D. Treau de Coeli, 75 Marche St. Jacques, Antwerp, will be glad to answer inquiries and to give all the assistance in his power to enable Canadian shippers to make satisfactory connections in that country. If liberally supplied with samples, he will see that these are properly stored and distributed to the best advantage, as occasion offers. Among the firms who may be consulted and who will handle consignments on a reasonable commission, might be mentioned Alfred B. Steffens, Hamburg, 8, Luisenhof, Germany, and J. Tas, Ezn, and The North Atlantic Trading Co., both of Amsterdam, Holland.

OPENINGS FOR CANADIAN EXPORTS.

THE opportunities for development in the Canadian export trade are only beginning to be realized. The marvellous development this trade has seen during the last decade has created a momentum which must be maintained and increased by unceasing vigilance.

Our export trade so far has been confined largely to the Empire and to the United States, but there is no reason why the circle of our commercial operations should not enlarge until our trade, like that of the Mother Country, becomes world-wide.

A field to be entered is pointed out by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa in a recent bulletin, which appears in this number of THE GROCER.

Germany, Belgium and Holland afford, it appears, an excellent market for fresh and dried fruits, while Belgium absorbs large quantities of imported cheese, as well as tinned meats, game, poultry and tinned tomatoes.

To secure this market, says the bulletin, Canadians will have "to get out and hustle," and it is unfortunately necessary to add, "goods shipped must be carefully packed and true to sample."

It is to be hoped that Canadian exporters will follow up the information supplied by the Department and make an effort to secure a foothold on the markets of Germany and the Netherlands.

It is true that Great Britain affords, as a general rule, the best market for our exported products, but business men cannot be blind to the advantage of having a choice of markets.

A forcible instance to the point is the present condition of the cheese market. Since January cheese has fallen from 13 to 9¾c., while the end does not yet appear. Great Britain is practically our sole market for cheese, and was not able to absorb our output at the quotation ruling in the early months of the year. Belgium imports, according to the information supplied in the bulletin, over 64,000,000 lb. of cheese annually. Had we the Belgian market as an alternative, it is safe to say that there would have been no such serious decline as has been witnessed this year.

Let us never lose hold of the British market, but at the same time let us lose no opportunity of increasing the number and diversity of our customers.

THE MONTREAL MAYORALTY.

THE GROCER is glad to learn that Ald. Laporte, of the wholesale grocery firm of Laporte, Martin & Cie, Montreal, has announced his intention of being a candidate for the mayoralty of Montreal at the elections in February next.

For some years Ald. Laporte has been the leader of the City Council, and as chairman of the Finance Committee has displayed a business man's grasp of affairs and proved himself a thoroughly capable and reliable man.

The movement for municipal reform which, of late, has been agitating business men in our large centres of population, and which, but recently, formed the subject of discussion at a dinner following the annual meeting of the Toronto branch of the Manufacturers' Association, finds a firm advocate in Ald. Laporte.

Secure in the confidence of the business classes and popular with the English-speaking portion of the city, Ald. Laporte should make a strong candidate for the chief magistracy of the metropolis.

USE GOOD BUTTER PAPER.

ONE instance of unwise economy was brought to notice last week by seeing five men in a commission house removing battered tissue paper wrappings from a consignment of butter prints. The paper was of an inferior quality, had gone to pieces and given a most dilapidated appearance to the prints.

A really good paper would have remained intact and could have been removed if necessary without difficulty. But instead, the appearance of the prints was so marred that the consignment fell all of 2c. per lb. below what it would have brought had it been neatly marketed, to say nothing of the extra labor involved in changing the wrappings. The difference in the price between good and poor paper is so small that it is the most unwise economy not to use the best.

THE SUGAR MARKET.

THE break in Canadian refined sugar Wednesday afternoon in sympathy with the decline in raws at New York, was a rather surprising feature in this week's market. The recent rise of 10c. in the hundred had not seriously affected the demand, and in Montreal the demand seems to have strengthened with the higher quotation. The return to the earlier prices on the part of Canadian refiners was all the more surprising in that American refiners had not, up to that time, responded to the decline in raws by any corresponding reduction. In this case Canada has proved more sensitive to the New York market than the Americans themselves.

The original break was attributed to the pressure on the part of sellers in the absence of buyers, 40,000 bags of raws selling at a reduction of 1-32c. From the latest advices it is probable that quotations will be maintained, at least for the present, particularly so as up to the break the raw market was quite firm.

CAUSES OF FAILURES IN THE PORK-PACKING TRADE.

THE number of failures which have recently occurred in the pork-packing business has been sufficiently serious to invite a careful consideration of the conditions which prevail in this important industry.

The reason usually given for the failure has been, "the high price of hogs," "competition," or other such explanation failing no less signally to explain.

In conversation with a representative of THE GROCER the other day, the manager of one of Canada's largest and most successful packing houses ascribed the large number of recent failures to the inexperience and limited capital of the firms concerned.

The business of pork packing for export is largely a speculative one. The bacon which is marketed to-day in London or Liverpool was bought and slaughtered six weeks ago. What is bought and killed to-day will be sold on the same market six weeks hence. Profit or loss depends upon the skill with which that future market is gauged.

The determining factors in the market are many and intricate. On the side across the Atlantic the weather plays an important part. A week of storm and rain will keep people from the shops, and stocks will accumulate. With accumulation of supplies there develops a nervous feeling in the market, which, on the slightest provocation, may be precipitated into a panic before which the profits of a season are swallowed up.

Then the output of the British producer must be reckoned with. A strong market and favorable season may result in greatly increased supplies, tending again towards accumulation and weakness.

There is no warrant, moreover, that low prices for hogs in Canada will be coincident with low values for bacon in England. The price here is largely determined by the supply, which depends on such uncertain conditions as the season, the amount of coarse grain at the disposal of the farmers, and the relative values of that grain for feeding and marketing purposes.

Uncommon business acumen and careful study of the course of the market from day to day and from month to month over a considerable period alone can enable one to gauge successfully this fluctuating market.

Despite these patent facts, the success which has followed a number of our Canadian houses in building up an export bacon trade during the last decade has been a standing invitation to the inexperienced to try their fortune. Companies have been promoted by men who have invested little capital themselves, or egged on by English firms who were seeking an agency for Canadian produce. The capital at the command of these companies has been inadequate from the first, and with an inexperienced management they entered on operations which rendered them liable to heavy loss. A half dozen comparatively small companies seeking supplies from the field already covered by the old companies induced an irritable market at home and made still more difficult the task of meeting the conditions of the British market.

Failure under such conditions is not to be wondered at, and should in no way reflect upon the soundness of the Canadian export bacon trade as a whole or the greatness of its future.

TRAVELLERS ON PLEASURE BENT.

TO-MORROW begins the vacation of the Ontario grocery travellers. Sample cases and order books will be thrown aside and the boys will be turned loose to follow their own sweet wills, while the retailer, missing the glad hand and cheery greeting of the man of the road, will begin, in a small measure, to realize the important place the travelling salesman occupies in present-day business life.

In these two weeks the traveller will have a chance to get off the well-beaten path of his appointed route and see something of the rest of this great Dominion. Quebec and the Maritime Provinces offer delightful fields for the Summer tourist, and the traveller who takes a trip down among our fellow Canadians by the sea, will have an opportunity, not only of "getting out of the rut," and after all that is the chief purpose of a vacation, but of coming into touch with, and observing the methods of, the Easterners.

This Canada is a country of magnificent distances. But this very fact tends to the isolation of the separate provinces. Europeans have observed in us a provincialism which we are loath to acknowledge, but which we cannot absolutely deny. The Ontarian looks at everything from the stand-point of Ontario, the Quebecer from that of Quebec, and the man from the Maritime Provinces, from his own particular stand-point. The same peculiarity is also apparent in the British Columbian. As we will all admit, the Canadian stand-point should be that of all.

The only way in which this can be brought about is by the dissemination of greater knowledge and the cultivation of greater intimacy among the people of the several provinces, and especially among the business men.

No more influential agents for this purpose can be found than the commercial travellers of this country. They are quick to appreciate a situation and size up a town or country, and, having received an impression, are in a position to communicate it to a very wide circle.

It is to be hoped that no small number of the Ontario travelling men may find an opportunity of visiting some of the neighboring provinces during the coming two weeks. As previously intimated, THE GROCER looks forward to the time when the travellers' vacation will be an interprovincial institution and the occasion of interprovincial visitings. May the Ontario travellers take the initiative in this movement. The experience will be found most pleasant, while the results should work for the advantage both of the trade and the nation.

FOREST CITY GOSSIP.

Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER,
365 Richmond St., London, Ont.
July 29, 1903.

LIKE many other branches of the wholesale trade in Canada, the grocery trade of London has entered on the slackness of Midsummer; the activity and bustle of the earlier months has subsided, and both employers and employed are arranging for the annual holiday required to recuperate and revivify for the remaining months of what has so far proved a very good year. Accounts from every section of Western Ontario are of the most hopeful and encouraging nature, and business men of every class are reaching out for enlarged business with an unusual feeling of faith and security in their operations.

The present is found by wholesale grocers to be a fairly good week, as, owing to all travellers being off the road for the first two weeks in August, retail men increase orders somewhat, sufficient, at least, to span the holidays. The first part of the heavy sugar season deliveries is almost at an end; when Fall fruit, such as plums, pears and peaches are in the market, another big sugar demand arrives.

The past ten days have been a surprising period for picnic and excursion parties from this city to points outside. The grocers engaged in the retail trade took their outing on Wednesday week, of which particulars are elsewhere given in this week's GROCER. Port Stanley is the most convenient, and apparently the popular, resort for many of the societies and schools; it is situated on the Lake Erie shore about 25 miles south.

The thirty-first annual outing of the employes of the D. S. Perrin Co. was held to Port Stanley last Saturday. Out of the 400 employes 350 were in attendance. A liberal supply of refreshments was served on the train going to the Port, and on arrival on the grounds another supply was at hand. The company issued a very unique programme for the occasion. The committee having the affair in charge, and to whom much of the success of the picnic is due was composed of T. H. McFarland, master of ceremonies; Charles Fitzwalters, chairman, and J. T. May, secretary.

The thirty-third annual outing of the McCormick Manufacturing Co. also took place to Port Stanley last Saturday. The firm, as in former years, presented all the employes with tickets for the trip as well as furnishing a most excellent prize list. About 450, including families and friends, enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content. The games were very close and exciting. The excellent committee, to whom much credit is due, were D. C. McNaughton, James Craig, E. Littlejohn, John Taff, Thos. Duff, George Carley, Charles Benson, T. Dempsey, E. McLachlan, secretary.

ALD. LAPORTE, of Laporte, Martin & Cie, Wholesale Grocers, Montreal, who has announced his intention of running for Mayor at the next Montreal election.

Nearly 5,000 of the employes of the Grand Trunk Railway left this city last Saturday morning for Detroit on their annual excursion. Five special trains were required to draw the big crowd.

Two special trains will bring the London Old Boys from Chicago to the mammoth reunion in this city from August 1 to 4. First train will arrive on Saturday night at 8.30, and the other at 9.30 Sunday morning.

By the reports given in at the final meeting of committees of the Travellers' Club, just held, the success of the record-breaking picnic on August 1 is assured. Amongst the many features of the day's events will be the Cooks' Parade. The committee having this on hand on travellers' picnic day, fully expect this will eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted. England, Germany, France, Italy, Russia, India, Canada, United States, and in fact all of the various countries of the world, will here be presented in this great procession.

KENTVILLE BOARD OF TRADE.

At the last quarterly meeting of the Kentville Board of Trade the following delegates were elected (including alternates) to represent the board at the annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade to be held at Charlottetown next month: President Calkin, Judge Chipman, T. P. Calkin, M. G. deWolfe, G. E. Calkin, H. G. Harris, Dr. W. B. Moore, W. E. Porter, H. J. Simpson, Dr. H. B. Webster, E. J. Ward, Wm. Yould and G. C. McDougall.

SALMON SCARCE AT SKEENA RIVER.

Reports from British Columbia, under date of July 27, state that the salmon run at Skeena River has been a failure. Humpbacks are now coming to the river and the canners will suspend operations in a few days. They will pay off their staff during the coming week.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, July 30, 1903.

BUSINESS since our last issue has not been of great attraction. Orders which have come to hand, whilst denoting fair activity, have not been of great volume. Canned goods continue to go well, and stocks are well drawn on. There are several corrections to note regarding prices since our last issue. Peas have eased somewhat and plums have moved slightly upwards. Coffee has been uninteresting. Spices, whilst continuing firm, have not been in active demand. Rice has been moving steadily; whilst tapioca remains slow at firm prices. Syrups and molasses have been in little demand. Tea has been moving slowly at firm prices. There has been a good demand for Japan teas at 16c., which has been somewhat difficult to meet; there is likely, however, to be a good supply of this class of tea later on. Foreign dried fruits have moved well and prices continue firm; prospects of Eastern primal markets are interesting, as denoting favorable results; quality is expected to be good, but dates for marketing will probably be a little behind usual openings. The excellent demand in sugar noted in our last has not been maintained. There has been a steady decrease; prices, however, as noted below, took an unexpected drop of 10c. per cwt. all round on Canadian refined Wednesday afternoon.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade continues well maintained in these goods, and stocks are being well drawn upon. This is especially so in regard to corn and tomatoes. Prices for peas have somewhat modified, 2s now standing at 87½c. to $1. Plums are firmer, quotations now standing at about 15c. advance. We quote:

SUGAR.

The tone of the market, after remaining steady during the early part of the week, with little new business being done, developed a weakness on Wednesday, and at 2.30 p.m. values dropped 10c. per 100 lb. on all grades of Canadian refined. This followed and was in sympathy with a break of 1-32c. per lb. on sales of 40,000 bags of raws in New York. This was due to pressure on the part of some sellers in the absence of buyers, and on this low basis further sales are expected No change in American refined is recorded. For week ending July 22 meltings at United States four ports were 39,000 tons, an increase of 2,000 tons on previous week, with receipts for week at about same figure, viz.:—39,846 tons, leaving stock of 325,285 tons. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,337,785 tons, against 2,386,966 tons last year. The decrease is 49,181 tons. Beet sugars have fluctuated between 7s. 11½d. and 8s., and at the close are firm at latter figure, which is equal to parity of 3.94 for 96 test centrifugals. The differential in favor of cane sugars is thus ¼ per cent. per lb. Prices in refined remain unchanged for U. S. markets with a good demand reported and prospects favorable for large consumption. We have to record a change in local quotations, Acadia granulated being reduced 5c. per 100 lb. on morning of Thursday, July 23. It will be seen that this sugar has now a differential of 10c. per 100 lb. in its favor, as against quotation for Montreal granulated. We quote:

TEAS.

The home market has been somewhat slow since our last issue; little disposition being shown to increase buying beyond immediate need. We notice the reports denote keen competition at sales in primal markets, with result that much tea, which, under usual conditions, would have passed to British centres, was bought for Russia and outside markets at prices in advance of those ruling in London. This introduces an additional feature of strength. Offerings of Indian teas on the London markets have not been large at most recent sales, and competition has been tending toward briskness. Teas of any quality maintained prices well, whilst commoner teas passed quietly at easy prices. Ceylons attracted good attention, and were well in demand; prices, consequently, ruled firm without quotable change. Some new season's China teas were well received, the quality being good, and prices were well up, very little common being available. Java teas were weakening in price, and quality was only of indifferent character. The demand for Japan tea on the home market has been good, and it has quite overstepped the supply, especially those grades in the neighborhood of 16c. A good supply, however, is expected to hand at an early date. We quote:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

There has been a steady demand on home markets for dried fruits generally, and previous quotations are well maintained. The primal reports speak well regarding Valencia raisins. It is, however, not expected that the markets will really open for these goods before August 15, as no quantity is expected before that date. Currants promise well for quality, the vines being considered very healthy. Crops, however, are showing smaller in prospect, the bunches being smaller, but are expected to develop proportionately finer quality. We quote:

GREEN FRUITS.

The fruit market has experienced a very satisfactory week. There have been ample supplies and the demand has been brisk. Small bunches of bananas have eased off 25c. Raspberries have been very plentiful and sold down to 6½c on Tuesday. Tomatoes, by the crate, dropped to 80c. and $1, and Canadian baskets are quoted at $1 to $1.25. California apricots are off the market, but peaches have stiffened up 25c. This is because the later and better samples are now appearing. Blueberries are easier at $1.20 to $1.25 per basket; Lawton berries are bringing 8 to 9c. Canadian peaches of an inferior quality, clingstone variety, are selling at 30 to 50c. per basket. Canadian plums have appeared in small baskets at 40 to 50c. and large ones at 40 to 75c. according to quality. There promises to be a large crop. We quote:

at 16 to 18c. Some little trading has been done in Ceylon and Indian greens at about our last quotations. A lot of 100 packages of Ceylon greens, with good drawing qualities, was turned over at 17c. China advices from Shanghai are: Pea leaf, green, quoted at 22 to 26c.; pin head, 21 to 26c. Ping Suey Young Hysons, 13½c., are in good demand. In blacks there is very little doing; prices, if anything, are a shade firmer. London is quoted as pretty well cleaned out of desirable old season's blacks. No change in Ceylon and Indias. On spot small lots are turned over on small margins. An order for 800 chests for import is noted. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Some very fair-sized orders have been placed with local jobbers for future delivery in corn, peas and tomatoes, though at open prices; it is difficult to get definite quotations, and there seems to be a tendency for buyers to hold back. Tomato crop is reported as promising well, though the frost must be taken into account. Offerings are held back. Several carloads of new peas have been received into store by jobbers. Quotations are: Sweet Wrinkled, 87½c.; Early June, 90c.; Midgets, 95c. and French Petit Pois, $1.40. Corn is getting to be attractive. Price has advanced 5c. per dozen, 85c. being figure generally named for old stock. We quote:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Currants are advancing. Filiatras are ruling at 5c., Amalias, 5½c., and 6c. for cartoons, and demand good. California dried fruit is scarce, with exception of apricots and peaches. California prunes have opened up about ½c. higher than last season. Small sizes will be in small supply, though outlook for shipping is better this year than last. Packers are paying more attention to high grades. Crop outlook for raisins is favorable at present. We quote:

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Country produce

Eggs.—There has not been very much change in the situation during the past week, but as deliveries are commencing to come forward more freely the trade are expecting lower prices, but there is no notable change this week. We quote:

Selected stock	0 16 0 17
Straight "	0 15 0 16
No. 2 "	0 14

Owing to the hot weather the loss in bad eggs has been very heavy and the quality more or less impaired, which makes the trade very unsatisfactory. However, with the cooler weather deliveries should improve.

POTATOES.—Potatoes have been offered much more freely this week, with the result that a decline from 25 to 30c. per barrel in new stock has taken place. Very little old stock is left. We quote:

New potatoes, in jobbing lots, per bbl	1 50 1 75
Old " per bbl	0 90

BEANS.—A slightly higher figure is quoted this week, though since the advance the market has eased off some what. There is not much doing. Quotations are:

Primes, in carlots	1 65 1 70
Primes, in jobbing lots	1 75 1 80

HONEY.—There has been very little done in honey this week, and no quotable change is to be reported. Prices are:

Extracted	0 07 0 08
Comb, clover	0 12 0 13
Buckwheat	0 06½ 0 07

HOPS.—Trade is dull, and prices have declined. We now quote:

Choice No. 1	0 19 0 20
Fair to good	0 16 0 18
Yearlings	0 09 0 12

MAPLE PRODUCTS.—The market is quiet. Sugar is somewhat lower, and prices are easy at the following quotations :

New syrup, in wood, per lb	0 05½	0 06
New syrup, in large tins	0 70	0 75
New syrup, in small tins	0 55	0 65
New sugar, per lb	0 08	0 09

ASHES.

An advance has taken place in first and second pots since last report, though pearls are unchanged in price. Trade continues quiet, and the market is firm all round, and we quote :

First pots	5 40	5 50
Seconds	5 00	5 10
Pearls, per 100 lb		6 25

HIDES.

A fair trade has been done this week in hides and though prices have been rather irregular, owing to competition among buyers, there has been no quotable change. Prices are as follows :

No. 1 beef hides	0 08	0 09
No. 2 "	0 07	0 08

Tubs, 50 lb		0 09⅝
Tins	0 10⅜	0 10⅝

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR.—The market continues very firm in flours, in sympathy with the steady upward tendency of Manitoba wheat. Should this continue, an advance in the price of flour will likely be made. There is a good demand for spring wheat sorts. We quote :

Winter wheat patents	4 10	4 30
Winter patents	3 75	3 90
Straight rollers	3 35	3 40
90 per cent. patents	3 45	3 60

Strong bakers'	3 60	3 80
90 per cent. bags	1 70	1 75
Straight rollers, bags	1 50	1 65

GRAIN.—The demand for grains has been steady though not large, and the market rules quiet as last quoted. Prices are :

No. 1 hard Manitoba		0 88¼
No. 1 Northern		0 87
Rye	0 58	0 58½
Peas	0 72	0 73
Corn	0 60	0 61

ROLLED OATS.—There is no change in prices. The market is quiet and steady. We quote :

Rolled oats, in bags	1 80	1 85
" " in bbls	3 75	3 80

CORNMEAL.—Prices are still firm, but we hear of no quotable change. Prices are :

Gold dust, bags	1 80	1 90
" bbls	3 90	4 00
Ordinary, bags	1 40	1 45

BALED HAY.—A good trade has been done locally and prices rule steady, as follows :

NOTES.

Montreal importers have pretty well covered their Grenoble walnut requirements, also their currant orders, and are now waiting for their speculative prices from Demerara.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., July 28, 1903.

BUSINESS continues good, with collections quite satisfactory. Whatever is the reception given to The Canners' Association at other points, dealers here are not favorably impressed. Quite large quantities of goods were bought early, chiefly from local packers, and later, outside companies have sold quite freely. Some of the trade will not, at least this year, look to the association, and nearly all buyers are unsettled. There are brands of canned goods in certain lines which are not in the association, and which the trade feel they must have. It is very difficult to tell what the outcome will be. Markets show little change.

OIL.—In burning oil sales for future have been very large, the low price encouraging buyers. Consumptive demand is also increasing. In paint oil, prices, while unchanged, are easy. There is fair business. Lubricating oils hold quite firm. Receipts are light. We quote :

American Water White	0 20	0 20½

SALT.—It is expected a part cargo of Liverpool salt will leave the other side this week by direct steamer. Buyers should remember prices are always lowest while salt is landing. Canadian fine continues to come to hand slowly. It has been impossible to get cheese salt in the city for weeks. We quote :

Liverpool coarse, per lb	0 55	0 60
English factory-filled, per lb	0 95	1 00

GREEN FRUIT.—Dealers are busy. Bananas have been very plentiful this Summer, and cheap, but a great many have been poor. New green apples are to hand. In oranges prices are firm. The stock is rather poor. Lemons sell at full figures and show a steady demand. Melons are more plentiful and sell well. Pines are still offered at unchanged prices. Some very good pears are seen, and peaches show improved quality. Cherries have been quite plentiful. They come from Nova Scotia. Strawberries are about done. Full prices are maintained. We quote :

DRIED FRUIT.—These lines have more attention. New California prunes are being bought at prices higher than last year, and the trade is not enthusiastic. Peel orders and date orders have been given at prices about as last year. Some fancy stuffed figs have been received. Seeded Malaga muscatels for Fall have been quite freely bought. Spot business is light. Quite a few seeded California raisins have been carried over. Dealers were disappointed in regard to profit. Evaporated apples are firmer. New American onions have been received. In peanuts prices are firmer, particularly shelled. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.—The situation is unsettled. Dealers are not at all agreed that the association is a blessing. Quite a large quantity of goods have been bought outside, largely from local packers. A number of the trade will not go into the association, at least this year. There is a fair demand for spot goods. Peas are scarce. Salmon is rather dull. Prices are firm. In domestic canned fish, sardines have been scarce, but outlook for pack is rather better. Kippered herring are a light supply. Haddies are quite a full stock. We quote :

FISH.—Business is rather quiet. The salmon season is about over. This is the time for Fall shad but it is thought the catch will be light. These are fine fish. In smoked herring, while prices are high, demand is light. Some few new pickled have been received with quite full prices asked. Pollock and codfish are a light supply. Some Newfoundland fish have been sold here. We quote :

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL.—There is a fairly active sale for flour. Prices are quite firm. In oatmeal, sale is light. Package goods have a steady sale. Cornmeal seems quite firm. There is a good demand. Beans are very dull with values unchanged. Split peas are rather higher though millers show quite a range in price. Barley is firm. We quote :

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, July 27, 1903.

THERE has been considerable activity in the grocery business during the last week, the volume of orders coming in and previous orders filled being quite up to the average of former years. On the whole, there is nothing to complain of, and the situation looks promising for a good deal of trade later in the season. Crop reports sent in to the Secretary of Agriculture supplementary to those sent in a month ago, are much more encouraging, and few crops will be a great deal below the average, while many will show the hundred per cent., and the apple crop will be beyond the average. The apple crop alone is expected to put into direct circulation from a half to three-quarters of a million dollars, and if prices are up to last year in the European market, the amount may reach a million. The quantity now estimated for export alone is four hundred thousand barrels. This will so improve the monetary situation that an exceedingly hopeful feeling prevails for the future. Though Nova Scotia has some important industries, the prosperity of the country depends largely on the farmer and his crops. These now being assured as nearly up to the average, the business man can judge of the future of his business.

Butter is now coming on the market very freely, notwithstanding that quite a large quantity is being put up and shipped regularly to the West Indies. The price is now somewhat easier. Eggs are scarce and are quoted at 14 to 15c. Cheese is coming in in fair quantities, and is wholesaled locally at 10 to 11c. In Prince Edward Island the output of the factories is sold at quite a reduction from this figure. There is more being made there this season than usual. All kinds of garden stuff are coming in now very freely and good prices are being realized. New potatoes are selling at the usual high price.

Strawberries are done so far as the Nova Scotia crop is concerned, but a few are coming from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Our strawberry season is a long one here. First we have the Ontario berry, when prices there are low enough to allow of export ; then the native and New Brunswick running concurrently ; and lastly the Prince Edward, which may last for another week or ten days. And still, from all sources, there was not such an abundance as to allow of the low price required to enable householders to do their own preserving. This has curtailed the usual heavy sale of sugar for preserving purposes, but it will increase the sales later on of all kinds of imported jams and preserves.

The fishermen along our coasts are doing well and just now the local market is well supplied with fresh mackerel and other fish. The bank fishermen are also doing well, and as the southern markets have been good of late, the prices realized for their Spring catch are considerably higher than last year. They are now out on their Summer trip and are reported as doing well. Late reports from Newfoundland note that the fishermen there are doing well, though there are not nearly so many now engaged in the industry as formerly. This is accounted for by the fact that there is a great increase in the mining and lumbering industries of the Ancient Colony.

The condition of the local wholesale trade is exceedingly good at this season, and similar reports are coming in from all over the province. There is a large sale of imported fruits of various kinds with which the market is kept well supplied by the fruit steamers, and by regular importations by refrigerator cars from California. Cherries and plums imported from the Pacific coast turn out as firm and nice as the native growth which comes on the market twenty-four hours after it is picked.

Another small cargo of Porto Rico molasses arrived last week, consisting of 170 puncheons, 23 tierces, and 61 barrels.

R.C.H.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, July 27, 1903.

WINNIPEG has just passed through a week of intensely hot weather, the provincial election, and the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition, and is, consequently, somewhat prostrated.

The elections on Monday of course reduced the attendance at the Fair that day, and a heavy shower of rain on Monday night made the ground too wet for comfort Tuesday morning, but the balance of the week was very fine and hot, until Friday afternoon, when it again clouded up, and about seven o'clock there was a terrific thunderstorm, which spoiled the evening attendance at the Grand Stand.

The official returns are not yet available, but, judging from other indications, the crowd was not as big as in former years.

There were several reasons for this ; the main one was the election in Fair week, and another was the lack of railway accommodation.

The American roads refused to run excursions and would only give one-fare rates on regular trains. This meant that hundreds from across the line who would have come for a day, did not come at all.

Jobbers, both grocery and dry goods, report a good week. The number of visitors was large and considerable business was done. Grocery houses report that business was larger than last year.

Retail houses have done a good trade, but owing to the smaller crowds, less than last year.

As usual during Exhibition week little attention has been paid to markets and very few changes made. Currants being higher in the primary markets have advanced ¼c. here, but there are few sales, and those only of small amount. Rice has advanced and B. rice is now quoted at 4⅜ against 4¼c. last week, and Patna rice has made the same advance.

SUGAR.—There has been a further advance of 10c. in sugar, and extra standard granulated is now quoted at $4.90 and bright yellow at $4.30.

These constitute the entire list of changes in the grocers' list.

GREEN FRUITS. —The trade of the week has been enormous, and Saturday morning found most of the jobbers with stocks pretty well cleaned up. There are no very notable changes in the price list, though some lines of Summer fruits are lower. This promises to be a poor season for small fruits, and the supplies arriving are rather limited and prices remain very high. We quote: California lemons, $6.50; oranges, $5 to $5.50; pears, $4 per box; plums, $2; bananas, $2.75 to $3; watermelons, $6 per dozen; tomatoes, $2.

VEGETABLES.—The dry weather, both in Manitoba and the Western States, has curtailed the supply of vegetables considerably, and prices are still high. New potatoes are 2½c., green beans, 7c.; cabbage, 60c. per dozen; carrots, 15c. per dozen bunches; celery, 40c. per dozen; beets, 15c. per dozen.

CURED MEATS.—The trade has been very active, and prices are steady. We quote: Smoked hams, 14½c.; breakfast bellies, 15c.; backs, 14c.; spiced rolls, short, 12c.; dried salt long clear bacon, 11c.; smoked, 12c.; shoulders, 9½c.; boneless backs, 12c.

LARD.—Pure lard, 20-lb. pails, $2.20; 50-lb. pails, $5.35; in cases, 3, 5 and 10 pails, $7.30, $7.15 and $7.

BUTTER.—The make of creamery promises to be light this season; trade is not active and factories are receiving from 16 to 16½c. Winnipeg for their early July make.

DAIRY BUTTER.—The supplies coming have been severely taxed by the Exhibition rush, and offerings are not large. The present price is 11 to 13c., according to grade, and complaint continues to be made that much of the butter is off flavor when it reaches Winnipeg.

CHEESE.—The make is light and prices are firm; 9½ to 10c. Winnipeg being paid for car lots of cheese.

EGGS.—The supplies for the week have not been equal to the demand, and prices are very firm, and merchants offer 15c. Winnipeg for case eggs, subject to candling.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 24, 1903.

THE receipt of the circular sent out to the trade by The Canadian Canners' Consolidated Co., Ltd., has not been followed by any very active opposition from the wholesale grocers here. On the other hand, the feeling is general that the trade cannot afford to take such steps as required by the new combine to secure the best trade discounts offered by them.

The circular sets out that the object is to protect both seller and buyer from the unsatisfactory conditions which have obtained in the past. Particular stress is laid on the selling of futures. The new concern, or rather combination of old concerns, wishes to eliminate the dealing in futures altogether. The trade in British Columbia will have very great difficulty in securing much Yukon trade in canned goods if the prices must await the results of the pack in every case. The very great importance of the trade with the north is becoming more evident to the wholesale dealers here every year. The conditions are becoming better known and it is not a trade which can be compared with that of any other section of the Dominion. It is simply imperative that Winter stocks shall be all forwarded before the Summer means of transportation shall have been stopped for the long Winter.

There can be thus no question that the trade in British Columbia must have some idea of prices in order to quote to Yukon and get orders, as the shipping of goods is necessarily held off as long as possible to fill with new stock.

There is another light in which this circular of The Canners' Consolidated strikes the wholesale trade here. There have been several leading lines of canned goods, especially in canned vegetables, which the trade have been unable to stock in anything like quantities needed for the market here. A glance at the manifests of steamers arriving at this port from California during the last year will show to what extent canned goods, especially in vegetables, have been imported. The reason, as far as the canned vegetables are concerned, is that the Eastern packers could not quote. The grocers here feel that it is unfair to ask them to bind themselves to purchase from the combine only, as to them it means simply that they must buy, but to the canners it does not necessarily mean that they are to supply. In fact, as just shown, they cannot always supply the goods.

It is further considered by the wholesale trade here that the attitude of the new combination is not justified by the statements they make. The circular deals largely with the difficulties the trade, both packers and wholesalers, have had in the past, and makes a strong appeal to hold together for mutual benefit on the ground stated. In effect, however, the whole thing is that the dealers are bound to buy and the packers are bound to nothing whatever.

While it is rather a delicate phase of the question to handle, it is but right to mention that the trade here is perfectly aware that many of the wholesale grocers of Eastern Canada, who are competitors in this market, are directly and indirectly interested in one or other of the canneries now in The Canners' Consolidated. This is a feature which really has a considerable bearing on the situation. From all appearances it is not at all likely that the trade here will, as a body or individually, accept the terms of the circular.

Sugar, which has been in an unsettled condition for some weeks past, having at one time gone down over ¾ of a cent, has now advanced to the limit, being quoted at 5c wholesale. The reasons given are that the market outside has been advancing, but it is hardly sufficient to warrant the prices quoted here. In reality the reason is that the British Columbia Sugar Refinery controls the situation, and other matters of trouble having been adjusted, the price has been put up a little. Of course the season being that of the greatest demand, affords some additional excuse.

At a meeting held this week it was decided to form a joint committee from various public bodies, including the Board of Trade, the Tourist Association, the Trades and Labor Council, and the City Council, to form plans to establish a market for farmers' produce. The only market of the kind is at New Westminster, and the feeling is general that with improving facilities for reaching the city, Vancouver should easily succeed in providing a medium of direct exchange between producers and consumers. This is especially more likely now that the numbers in the ranching and farming industry, and in fruit and vegetable raising, are largely increased in the past few years, since the attempt was first made. The city of New Westminster has had the advantage of the Fraser River as a great highway giving direct and easy communication from and to all the farming districts, Vancouver has not even had good wagon-roads, but conditions are changing rapidly.

Movement in markets, so far as trade goes, has been satisfactory. Business is good and also steady. Prices have shown but little alteration. In dairy produce, the supplies in butter have been but fair, the absence of dairy in any quantity having kept Manitoba and N.W.T. creamery stiff at 21 to 22c. There is some dairy in the market quoted at from 18 to 20c. Cheese, mainly from Manitoba, is in liberal supply and prices have gone down a good deal. Figures are now from 12½ to 13c. Ontario cheese cannot compete at the price. Eggs are in fairly good supply, though local fresh are scarce and Manitoba has not been sending the quantities expected. For that reason prices are very steady, and consumption of case eggs is much greater than it would otherwise be at this season. Shipments to Dawson for putting into winter storage are still heavy. Prices may be set at 21c. for case eggs.

Fruit supplies are very abundant. The raspberry has succeeded the strawberry, but few cases of the latter being received now, and the price being at least $1.75 wholesale. Raspberries are a never-failing, liberal crop here and prices are reasonably cheap. Cherries from Oregon have been replacing the California goods, but the local crop is about at its best now, and that keeps out the Oregon fruit to a large extent. Cherries are never cheap here for the local crop could all be disposed of in the Northwest Territories at very paying figures. Californian plums of all kinds are coming forward in large supply, the Burbanks taking the lead in popular demand.

Crawford peaches have made their appearance on the market. Of course they are California goods. The price is about $1 per case to open with, and the crop is reported as very great this season. Bartlett pears have also arrived for the first. They are quoted at $2 per box, similar size to the apple box. The Clingstone peaches have been liberal, but the advent of Crawfords always drives the former out of the market. Apricots are in good supply and fine condition. Watermelons from California are arriving by the carload. They are prime quality and prices are already down as low as $35 per hundred to the trade. The Southern States cannot longer ship watermelons here, as California has now reached for that trade, and is making a success of the favorite proprietary fruit of the sunny south.

G.S.B.P.

OTTAWA TRADE GOSSIP.

BUSINESS is very good considering the season. Retailers are well pleased with the Summer's trade so far. Wholesale trade has been brisk; competition has been keen, which has been the means of stimulating business among Ottawa's wholesale grocers.

The sugar market is reported very firm to-day, with prices the same as last week, $4.27 for granulated in bags and $4.32 in barrels. Acadia granulated is being offered at $4.22 in barrels, which is 5c. lower than usual. The reason seems to be on account of granulated in bags getting the preference when at the same figures.

In canned goods, orders for new season's stock have been placed by a good many retailers, although prices for tomatoes and corn are not quoted. So far it looks as if peas were good buying last week for those who were guaranteed delivery, as this week's orders are being taken subject to confirmation. Stocks in Association hands are said to be nearly sold.

Canned gallon apples and pumpkin are being offered in the city at low figures. A certain factory in the Brockville section is quoting a quantity of apples at $1.35 and pumpkins at 65c.

Japan teas are very scarce; the lowest that can be bought is at 21c. Ceylon greens are taking well and retailers report them very satisfactory. Molasses is firm at 40 to 42c.

Cheese sold on the Ottawa Board Friday last at 9⅞ for colored, and 9¼ for white. 2,056 cheese were boarded. The whole quantity was sold at above price. There was a good turn-out of the board, some 40 members were present and six buyers.

At the Fruit Exchange prices for raspberries have kept firm. An even quantity hardly enough to supply the demand arrived each day and sold from 8½ to 10c. It looks as if raspberries are nearly over.

Canadian peaches are making their first appearance and selling at 25 to 40c. for 12 qts., ½ baskets, 18 to 20c.; plums in 12 qts. bring 50c.; tomatoes, $1 to $1.30 a basket; black currants, $1 to $1.20 a basket; blue berries, $1.15 to $1.25 a basket. A car of California fruit was sold to-day at per box, peaches, $1.10 to $1.25; plums, $1.40 to $1.60; pears, $3 to $3.30. Two cars of watermelons sold this week at from 18 to 22c.

A Window Display Competition.

THE CANADIAN GROCER, for the encouragement of tasty window displays, has decided to open a competition for its subscribers. Prizes will be awarded for photos or drawings of window displays and accompanying descriptions of the same. The prizes will consist of:

First Prize - - -	$10
Second Prize - -	$7
Third Prize - - -	$5

and $2 for every picture and description which is considered worthy of publication.

The competition, which closes on Sept. 1, will admit of photographs, pen and ink or wash drawings, with good ideas counting more than the picture itself, although, of course, all pictures in order to receive a prize, must be of sufficient distinctness and good workmanship to admit of their publication.

There is no progressive merchant but has at least one window a month that is worthy of entering this competition, and the prizes are so arranged that, even if a window does not win the $10, $7 or $5 prize, it may be awarded a $2 prize, provided only that it is of sufficient merit to publish in the columns of this paper. This award will cover the cost of the photograph and there is no reason why any merchant should not obtain it. The number of photographs or drawings submitted by each store is not limited, nor is the number of $2 prizes; a merchant may win a dozen if his pictures merit them.

Should any intending competitor not know how to take a window picture, this paper will be glad to furnish him with instructions. In general terms, it may be stated that the early morning, when the light is clear, when few people are abroad and when there is the least reflection, is the best time to photograph the display. A good photograph can also be taken at night by the aid of an electric or flash light.

Mark all manuscripts and photographs intended for this department with the words "Window Dressing Competition."

New potatoes are worth $1.10 to $1.25 a bag. Oats 38 to 40c. a bushel. Hay, $8 to $10 a ton.

Butter is very plentiful in pails at 17 to 18c. Creamery bulk is worth 18 to 19c.; creamery prints 20c.

Eggs are pretty scarce, at from 14 to 15c.

W. G. Nixey, 12 Soho square, London, Eng., manufacturer of Nixey's refined black lead, has been honored by the appointment of sole purveyor of black lead to His Majesty the King and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. H. T. Baker is the Canadian representative of this firm.

COLLAPSE OF CURRANT MONOPOLY.

As foreshadowed in a recent number of "The Grocer," the threatened currant monopoly has come to naught, and the promoters of the ambitious scheme are seeking other pastures.

At last writing, the negotiations with the monopoly syndicate were in a state of suspense, owing to the numerous changes made in the agreement by the Greek Parliament, but final dissolution seems to have resulted from the direct intervention of the Powers. Great Britain, Germany, and other Governments, according to a mail advice from Patras, notified Greece that the conditions of the monopoly were a violation of existing treaties of commerce and that steps would be taken to protect their interests.

This note of the Powers was communicated to the Greek Parliament by Mr. Skouzes, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and made a great impression. The formal withdrawal from the syndicate of G. A. Brotherton, M.P., and R. S. Backhouse, two of the principal capitalists behind the project, completed the discomfiture of the adherents of the monopoly in the Greek Chambers.

Thus closes an episode which has engaged the attention of the trade for some months, which gave rise to no end of editorial comment, and which is now relegated to the limbo of what might have been.

Meanwhile, a new law, also referred to in a late number of "The Grocer," has been finally passed in the Chamber, empowering the Greek Currant Bank to purchase all the eventual surplus of the ensuing crop at the fixed rate of dr. 130 per 1,000 Venetian pounds, and disposing of same for distilling purposes. To this effect the necessary additional funds have been placed at its disposal. The object of this scheme is to prevent any possible crisis, and an over depreciation of prices in the event of a large crop by limiting the lowest price for the common provincial fruit at 130 dr. per 1,000 Venetian pounds, say actually equal to about 12s 9d to 13s c.i.f. London, but leaving free field for higher prices, which may be obtained from the trade.

AGENCY FOR CANADIAN ARTICLES.

A business man in Great Britain writes as follows: "We are desirous of obtaining an agency for the sale of Canadian proprietary articles in England amongst grocers, etc. Anything in the food and fruit lines preferred." If any of the readers of "The Canadian Grocer" are seeking such an agent the name of the applicant can be obtained from the editor of this paper.

CANADIAN CANNED GOODS IN YUKON.

The worth of Canadian canned goods and the recognition which is being won by our Canadian canners, even in the Klondyke market, once almost monopolized by the Americans, is evidenced by the following letter from Major Henry J. Woodside, Dawson, Y. T., to a Western Ontario canner, and which THE GROCEE has been permitted to use :

Dear Sirs—It is a pleasure to see the way that your goods are taking in the Klondyke market in opposition to the best produced in the United States. I hear them spoken well of by people from the United States and have found them of excellent quality myself. They have won their way on merit. For years I have (as former editor of The Yukon Sun and otherwise) worked steadily for the promotion of Canadian trade here, and it therefore gratifies me to see our own people getting the trade. Canadians are showing themselves in country, products, manufactures, etc., to be the equal of all. These gold fields (Klondyke) were discovered by a Canadian—Robert Henderson—and most of the Northern gold creeks have been explored first by Canadians or British, in spite of claims by United States people to the contrary. I hope you will find the trade here satisfactory and remunerative.

The above letter was quite gratuitous and as such is all the more appreciated.

OPEN OFFICE IN TORONTO.

Dean & McLeod, the Canadian agents for The Toledo Computing Scale Co., have had so many inquiries from Toronto that they have found it necessary to open an office in that city, where a full range of their patterns will be on view. John Sowerby is the Toronto manager, and the address is 156 Bay street.

BELIEVE IN ADVERTISING.

The "Salada" Tea Co. have recently commenced advertising in the following papers : Bridgeport, Conn., Post; Dover, N.H., Democrat; Easton., Pa., Free Press; Easton, Pa., Argus; Fitchburg, Mass., Sentinel; Findlay, O., Republican; Lawrence, Mass., Telegram; Norfolk, Va., Dispatch; Plainfield, N.J., Courier News; Rochester, N.H., Record; Wilmington, Del., Every Evening, and the Richmond, Va., News Leader. The "Salada" advertisement is now appearing in some hundreds of papers in the United States. This tea is becoming as well known there as it is throughout Canada.

C. E. Colson & Son, Canadian agents for Crosse & Blackwell, stated that their trade in this firm's goods this year was the largest they have had, and especially large orders had been received from Toronto and the West.

INDIA AND CEYLON OOLONGS.

It is announced that London has proposed to Calcutta that a larger bonus than the green tea bonus be offered for the successful imitation of Formosa Oolongs. The subject has already been discussed in Ceylon, but has been temporarily laid aside. Possibly, if the green tea bonus ceases altogether next year, and when the Thirty Committee finds itself in funds once more, the subject of specially encouraging a third branch of our staple industry will be possible.—Ceylon Times.

SIR THOMAS AND THE BABIES.

The following letter was received by Sir Thomas Lipton from a man in Staten Island : Honorable Sir,—For goodness sake don't come again to America. When Shamrock I. passed Sandy Hook my wife presented me with a son. Shamrock II. had only dropped anchor off Tompkinsville when I was blessed with a daughter. As Shamrock III. passed the lightship another boy was added to my family. Should Shamrock IV. come over I am afraid it might be twins. I sincerely hope you may lift the cup. I am, yours truly, B——.

Sir Thomas has gallantly consented to be godfather to the last comer and he is to be called Thomas Lipton B——.

The gallant yatchsman is in rather a difficult position, and one that will tax his versatility. He has consented to act as judge between two rival stage beauties, Miss Falconer of the Criterion, at present acting in the Runaways, and Miss Rose Earl, the pet of the Punch and Judy company, at present playing at the Victoria roof garden. Notwithstanding his anxiety to have the Shamrock III. in the best of trim, and the tuning up work is being thoroughly done, Sir Thomas has a firm grasp of his immense business in Great Britain, India, Ceylon, Australia, and almost every city on this continent. His warehouses at 39 Pearl street, New York, are rushed with orders for the products of his plantations and factories, yet the head of all this vast enterprise is daily receiving his guests on board of his yacht Erin with a sunny smile and a manner denoting absolute freedom from care.

TRAVELLERS' PICNIC AT ALTON.

To-day and to-morrow witness the commercial travellers' picnic at Alton, Ont. The drummers' snack is an annual event, which evokes much enthusiasm among the knights of the grip, and is of more than local interest, as it brings together representatives from most of the wholesale houses of Toronto and Hamilton.

The proceedings include a concert under canvas, a travellers' banquet (to which members of the press are invited), and a varied list of athletic sports. The band of the 18th Highlanders has been engaged for the occasion.

IN NEW PREMISES.

The British-Canadian Crockery Co., Limited, whose office for several years has been situated at 28 Wellington street west, have recently removed to more convenient premises at 25 Melinda street, Toronto. The business of this company is in a most satisfactory state, and the Toronto manager, Mr. Livingston, finds it exceedingly difficult to keep pace with the steadily-increasing demand.

FRUIT FOR RETAILERS

A gentleman owning a fruit farm in the Niagara district would like to secure direct connection with some retail grocers. Inquiries will be sent forward if addressed to the Editor, "Canadian Grocer," Toronto office.

THE PRICE OF SUGAR.

Some doubt seems to exist as to the real object of the representatives of Russia, Austria-Hungary, France, and Belgium in deciding to limit the export of sugar to Great Britain. On one side it is stated that the manufacturers desire to increase the prices to the consumer; while again it is contended that drastic action is essential to restore the trade to a sound progressive basis.

Mr. Gibson Bowles, M.P., is leading the opposition to the new movement. This, he declares, is not termed a "trust or "ring," but is named in a novel way a "cartel." The "cartel" he defines as an agreement between sugar producers and manufacturers to limit their output to a certain amount, which they divide among themselves in settled proportions. The reason for that restriction is, he explains, the determination to raise prices.

It is interesting to recall, says a London paper, that within the past week increased prices have been foreshadowed in the following necessaries of life :—Bread, sugar, meat and boots.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Henri Jonas, of Henri Jonas & Co., Montreal, has just returned from a trip to the European markets.

Mr. Wright, of The American Cereal Co., was in St. John, N.B., during the past week. Mr. Wright intends going with The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co.

Mr. Albert Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie, Montreal, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Riviere du Loup. His healthy appearance indicates an enjoyable holiday.

Mr. C. M. Bernard, of Chicago, spent several days in Toronto last week calling upon the wholesale trade. Mr. Bernard has many friends in the Queen City and they were glad to see him on his recent visit.

Mr. A. P. Tippet, of A. P. Tippet & Co., Montreal, has returned after spending a very pleasant vacation with his family at Little Metis. Mr. Tippet looks as brown as a berry and the outing has undoubtedly been mainly spent in the open air.

Mr. H. C. Beckett, of The Western Brokerage Co., has gone on a business trip to England, sailing on the liner Ionian. It is reported on the street that Mr. Beckett is to reside permanently across the water, but "The Grocer" has been informed that he will return in six weeks' time.

Major Zeph. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie, is leaving on Saturday for a well-deserved holiday. His objective point is Riviere du Loup, and undoubtedly he will visit other interesting Summer resorts in the east. Major Hebert anticipates being away about four weeks.

Mr. W. J. Flynn, of The Garden City Canning Co., St. Catharines, Ont., is in Montreal this week. In an interview with "The Grocer" Mr. Flynn stated that packers did not anticipate getting more than 80 per cent. of peas packed in comparison with last year's output. Corn will be light unless we are favored with warmer weather. At present matters do not look encouraging for a full pack. Tomatoes are looking well, and unless affected by frost—a contingency always to be looked for in these goods—the crop should be large and a good pack result. In fruits, a large crop is looked for in plums, and a fair crop in peaches and apples. Pears are turning out a short crop. Mr. Flynn looks for a strong market, but being an independent packer, is modest enough not to claim an exclusive knowledge of the situation.

LONDON TEA CIRCULAR.

Wm. Jas. & Hy. Thompson's tea circular, issued from London, Eng., July 16th, records that although shipments as advised by cable from India and Ceylon continue of moderate dimensions, and are to date less than those of last year, the slackness of trade in the country usual at this time, and the near approach of the August holidays, have kept demand on a smaller scale than might have been anticipated, to which must be added the inferior quality of the teas now arriving from Ceylon. With the opening of the busy season after the recess we may look for a general resumption of trade and increased activity.

The return made to the Board of Trade shows that although 12 gardens in India were abandoned or closed during last year only one new one was opened, and that the total area under tea has increased by less than 1,500 acres, the actual number being 339,640 acres, as against 338,186 at the end of 1901. This is of importance as showing that at present any large increase in output is almost impossible as it could only be the result of climatic influence and not of any appreciable extension of the producing area.

LONDON RETAIL GROCERS' ANNUAL PICNIC.

THE retail grocery merchants of the Forest City are sociable and fraternal, and at least once a year they love to meet together away from behind the counters and the tea chests and give full vent to their big-hearted instincts amid the beauties of nature, enjoying each other's company and realizing in truth that they are a' John Tamson's bairns.

Arrangements on an extensive scale were made for an outing this year to their favorite picnic ground at Niagara Falls by a strong and vigorous committee appointed for the purpose. "The best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft aglee," but the grocers' picnic did not in any sense either get "aglee" or disarranged, but terminated with the unanimous verdict, "the best yet," for which the able and energetic gentlemen composing the committee deserve the warmest thanks for their painstaking care in laying out and looking after the numerous details.

Nothing daunted by the heavy rain, thunder and lightning of the night preceding, preparations were made and hampers such as only grocers can pack were got ready for the early start by the Michigan Central road at 7 a.m. on the morning of July 22 for the famous Niagara Falls. Early risers were grocers, and their families, as they flocked from every quarter of the city to catch their train, while numerous opinions of the probs at the railway station evoked from a hearty-looking lady, "Wha cares for a drap o' rain? If we sell pepper an' saut, we're naither o' them oorsells, an we'll no melt!" And so 460 jolly, fun-loving grocers, families, friends and sweethearts got on board at London to enjoy a well-earned holiday. The number of pounds of sugar for a dollar, Tillson's Oats, Life Chips, raspberries and new potatoes were for the day lost sight of, and "all went merry as a marriage bell."

An invitation having been extended to the grocers of the neighboring city of St. Thomas to participate in the London annual picnic, 165 were added to the crowd at this point; 75 more got aboard at Aylmer, and smaller contingents at both Springfield and Waterford. The run down was made in splendid time, the entire distance being covered in two hours and fifty-five minutes, including five stops.

On arrival at the Falls, the inward monitor recalled the light and very hurried breakfast partaken of by many almost at daybreak, and a general trek took place to the pavilions and tables in the Queen Victoria Park, than which there is no more beautiful spot on earth for picnicking, hot and cold water being supplied in abundance free. At this point passengers who found it more convenient to come by G.T.R. joined the merry assembly.

J. C. Trebilcock, Chairman of Picnic Committee.

Early dinner being over, sightseeing was in order. The committee having arranged for special rate tickets, some availed themselves of the opportunity to visit Buffalo, but the large majority used the Niagara Falls Park and River Railway, taking in Whirlpool Rapids, the Whirlpool, Brock's monument and down to Queenston, and on the return going up as far as Chippewa.

An exciting boat ride on the Maid of the Mist was enjoyed by a few. The great Gorge Route electric railway runs down the river to Lewiston on the American side close to the water's edge, and the camera or pen fails to convey to the mind any idea of the rushing, tossing waves of the river at the whirlpool rapids or the scenery on the opposite bank of the river. It is a picture once seen is never forgotten, and the London grocers who took a run over the Gorge route brought home impressions that will long remain verdant amidst their daily labor.

The island carriage drive, the observation tower, from which the city of Buffalo can be seen on a clear day, and the museum on the American side, all had visitors from the London retail grocers.

Only one or two light showers during the afternoon fell, but these in no way prevented the thorough enjoyment of the day's outing by the entire party.

good, faithful work into arrangements for the grand picnic, were the appointed committee: J. C. Trebilcock, chairman; J. A. Rowat, treasurer; E. Sutton, secretary; F. Harding, F. Harley, N. McLeod, F. Robinson, A. McCormick, Geo. Loveless.

One incident which caused great alarm to one individual and laughter to many occurred at Queenston. A stranger who joined the excursionists getting on at one of the stations in company with some younger men had been induced to hire a boat to enjoy a row on the river at that point. The stranger, as he afterwards related, had been a weaver all his days from the toon o' Paisley, and had never been in a wee boat in his lifetime prior to this.

As the wind whistled, and the water rose to a cat's paw while his party were enjoying themselves immensely, the weaver was sricken with the most intense and agonizing symptoms of fear, and yelled out "Oh Jock! Jock! hand on till the silvidge it's getting awfu' lumpy, an we're a' gaun to be droon't. So agonizing were the man's cries that crowds heard him on either shore, and at his urgent request he was dropped ashore, where he breathed more freely on terra firma.

No sports for prizes were arranged, this being the rule at London retail grocers, picnics, a simple sight-seeing and resting time being preferred by the majority.

The well-known jolly chairman of the committee, J. C. Trebilcock, was here, there, and everywhere, assisted by his helpful associates, making mirth and cheer until the hour for returning arrived.

E. Sutton, although now connected with a wholesale drug business on Richmond street, has performed in a most able and praiseworthy manner the duties of secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association of London for 13 years.

At the expense of the association a free lunch car was attached to the train, and during the trip, both going and returning, many a hearty snack was enjoyed by old and young.

F. H. Robinson, president of the Retail Grocers' Association, and T. A. Rowat, treasurer, are amongst London's most progressive and well-known grocers, and by their exertions this year's picnic has been helped to a successful finish.

At 8 p.m., as advertised, the return journey was commenced, but owing to unlooked for obstruction by freight trains, the party did not arrive in London till the wee sma 'oor ayant the twal on Thursday morning, but everybody was satisfied with the long day's enjoyment—and hoping that the shadows of the committee men might never grow less. TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS AT NIAGARA FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS via the steamers Lakeside and Garden City, connecting at Port Dalhousie with the electric cars, was the route laid out for the seventeenth annual excursion of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, Wednesday, the 22nd of July, and a great success it proved. Six hundred and eight tickets were taken for the 8 o'clock boat, and those going over on the 11 o'clock and afternoon boats brought the number up to over 800, breaking last year's record by a large majority.

The morning boat was well filled, but not too filled for comfort. The sun was bright, with a fine rolling sea which delighted the good sailors, but sent the "land lubbers" 'way down below. This, however, was not permitted to interfere materially with the pleasure of the trip. The passengers kept moving around, and one might have thought it a Scotch affair to see the amount of hand shaking.

An orchestra of five pieces was kept busy by an energetic committee, and there was no lack of good music all the way over.

The guessing contests enlivened matters and gave an excellent opportunity to test the quality of one's judgment. There were four of these contests run off on the boat, and the results were announced as below before landing.

A long train of electric cars met the boat at Port Dalhousie and the excursionists were taken direct to the steel arch bridge or the park.

It was after 12 by this time and the picnic dinners were immediately spread by those who did not go to the hotels or restaurants. The sun was still shining brilliantly and the grounds were in perfect condition for picnicking.

After luncheon the crowd followed their own devices. A few took the trolley to Buffalo, some crossed to Niagara Falls, N.Y., but the main body found the attractions of the falls and park on the Canadian side sufficient.

Just before 2 o'clock a sharp thunder storm came on, but it was soon over and the crowd gathered again in the park to witness the Comfort Soap race. This was open to married ladies only. The length of the course was 100 yards, and the competitors had to pick up a piece of Comfort Soap at each 10 yards and carry it to the finish. There were seven entries and the contest was a spirited one. The only criticism, that of a man, was, "It did not last long enough." The results are given below.

The return on the Garden City at 7 and the Lakeside at 8.30 was a delightful sail and all were home in good time, having had, despite the rain, a very pleasant outing.

The guessing competitions resulted as follows :

Starch Guessing.—Actual weight 3 lb., 6½ oz.—1. Mrs. Hayes, 280 Wellesley street, guess 3 lb., 7 oz.; 2. Jimmie Mortimer, of Christie, Brown & Co., guess 3 lb., 6 oz. There were 13 ties in this contest and the prizes were decided by drawing from a hat. Mr. Haslet did the drawing.

MacLaren's Imperial Cheese Competition.—Actual weight 10 lb., 10 oz.—1. Donald McLean, of McLean & Van Loon, guess actual weight ; 2 and 3. Mrs. W. H. Marmion, wife of Past-President Marmion, Queen street west ; Arthur Sykes, College street, tied; guesses 10 lb., 8 oz.

Excelsior Coffee Competition.—Actual number of beans 3,993.—Ladies. 1. Mrs. A. E. Jones, Denison avenue, guess 3,599 ; 2. Mrs. J. W. Corneil, 381 Ontario street. Gentlemen. 1. W. Mitchell, 171 Sorauren avenue, guess 3,600 ; 2. M. Bredin, of Tait, Bredin & Co.

President David Bell.

Malta Vita Food Co.'s Competition.—Actual number of excursion ticket holders on boat 608.—1. President David Bell, Yonge street, guess 599 ; 2. T. Clarke, Tecumseh street, guess 595.

Comfort Soap Race at park.—1. Mrs. J. Guy, Toronto ; 2. Mrs. R. Williams, Niagara Falls ; 3. Mrs. J. Connor, Hamilton ; 4. Mrs. Pattinson, Niagara Falls ; 5. Mrs. H. Crawford, London ; 6. Mrs. Vanalstine, Niagara Falls ; 7. Mrs. L. Kemp, Toronto.

The handsome silver cup offered by The Bovril Co., Limited, to the member of the association selling the greatest number of tickets, was awarded to D. Clark, Bellevue avenue.

The officers of the association who are to be congratulated on the success which characterized their annual outing are : President David Bell ; Vice-President T. W. Johnston ; Treasurer J. T. Schoales ; Secretary E. B. Nettlefield.

The Excursion Committee, to whose energy and foresight much of the pleasure of the trip was due, were : R. Van Loon, chairman ; H. Kelly, R. B. Snow, F. Thorn, W. T. Cootes, R. W. Davies, M. McArthur, T. Clark, B. Panter, F. W. Johnston.

NOTES.

During the afternoon, the committee which visited the Falls a few weeks ago to spy out the land and were the guests of Mr. Robertson the transportation agent, indicated to that gentleman the depth of their appreciation of his efforts by presenting him with a handsome gold locket.

The employes of J. J. McLaughlin, manufacturing chemist, were out in full force. Each employe wore a white badge bearing the picture of a siphon with the word "Hygeia."

Practically all the retail trade were at the picnic in numbers too numerous to particularize, and in addition to these the wholesale fraternity were well represented, either by members of the firm or by one or more of their travellers. Among those noted were : Messrs. J. J. Fee, J. A. McLean, Chas. Kimpton, Mat. Clemes, Neil Carmichael, of Smith & Carmichael ; Frank Everist and Sam. Giffen, of McWilliam & Everist, M. Bredin, of The Bredin Bread Co. ; A. E. Jones, of F. F. Dalley Co., Hamillon ; Flem. Hayes, of Perkins, Ince & Co. ; Hustworth, of A. F. MacLaren Co. ; Richardson, of T. A. Lytle & Co. ; J. Can You Spare the Time?

THE young men in the milling industry might read with profit the following article which appears in the current number of "The Dixie Miller."

In a recent number of one of the popular magazines a rather long article appeared concerning the young men in the national affairs of to-day. Without an exception almost, these young men are holding prominent positions through merit, and not through party "pulls," as is commonly supposed.

What is true in national affairs is being fully demonstrated in the many trades and professions.

While one hears much of the party "pulls" in politics, yet there is but little doubt that in the great majority of cases the real pull is merit, for in every walk of life the man of merit either has a pull or makes one.

This real pull, merit, or whatever you call it, is not obtained by asking, but is the result of long, diligent, persistent labor and study. In reality, it is the thorough knowledge of the work they wish to follow.

While this is only an old fact restated, yet it is well to call the attention of the young men in the milling profession to it so that they may realize that this applies to them with the same force as to others.

Diligent study has done more to advance men in various professions than any other agent, yet, judging from observation, very few young millers spend much time in studying the many difficult problems which need a solution. While this is true, yet not all the blame can be put upon the young miller, as often the employers would count any time spent in study as lost, while an equal amount of time spent in handling grain bags would increase the miller's value in his estimation. Under such unfavorable circumstances progress would necessarily be slow, as all improvement would have to be made in hours off duty; and after eleven or twelve consecutive hours' labor in a mill, one feels more like appropriating any leisure time to rest.

However burdensome it may seem at first, nothing will return larger profits than one hour each day given to honest, hard study to advance yourself in your work. There are at present no up to date text books or treatises upon milling, yet one can receive better and more practical lessons from the journals devoted to milling. By simply reading a journal through one is sure to grasp some points which will prove beneficial, but more good will result if many hours careful study is given.

It would be almost useless to outline a plan to proceed upon as each individual would know better his requirements. But at least one hour each day should be given to hard study. Concentrate your mind upon your work and make each hour of study make you a better miller. In a relatively short time you will be surprised at the advance you have made, and, if followed up, before you are aware you will have the necessary "pull" to place you in a commanding position, while someone who has not kept pace with you must still keep his present place or take the one you have so willingly left.

Adding this extra hour's duty to each day will no doubt be a task, and your employer will gain by it without making an extra compensation, but it will only be a question of time until he, or someone else, will be glad of the opportunity although the cause may be unknown to them, to pay well for these extra hours.

A Sentinel of the Long Ago.

Helen Rathbun Parry in The Miller's Review writes:

We of this machine age are prone to forget the homely details of our forefathers' lives, while we dwell upon their glorious victories on the field of warfare; but there were heroes of the plough as well as of the sword, and their hardships were none the less severe because endured at home. It seemed the end of the struggle when the pioneer found a promising bit of land and built the rude cabin called home, in the midst of his scant acres. He quickly ploughed and planted and indeed the battle was half won; but corn, however ripe and abundant, must be ground ere bread is made, and the experience of a New Jersey lad, who not only fought but tilled, was a lesson common to most of those brave "Pathfinders" of old.

In 1776, although too young for the ranks, Silas Carter served General Washington as teamster, and later on did his part in the country's defence. When the great question was settled, he, with many others, found a home in Canada, and his portion was on the shore of Lake Erie, opposite the site of the present city of Buffalo. The little farm was fertile, but grinding wheat on the top of a hardwood stump with a flat stone is a slow process of making flour; the Government hand mills, furnished to settlers, were little better, and hardest of all was the toilsome trudge to the nearest mill, miles away, where a generous portion of the grist was kept as toll by the greedy miller.

Something had to be done, and something was done after the wasting strain of the "Hungry Summer." There was stone in plenty, and willing hands soon gathered in the loads of boulders until there was a sufficient supply on hand, not only for the erection of the much needed windmill, but to furnish the lime for the building of it, and in the Fall of 1832, the huge canvas-covered "swifts" of Silas Carter's mill were spinning in the brisk breezes from the nearby lake. The walls, built so solidly in those serious days, are standing now, although the old mill has long since lost its wings, and Windmill Point is always an attraction for those who are lovers of the interesting and the picturesque.

Canada's Exhibits For St. Louis.

Canadian exhibits for the St. Louis Fair are reaching Ottawa every day, but it is not likely any will be forwarded for some months. At present there is a carload of valuable mineral specimens stored in the Imperial buildings, made up chiefly of gold and copper ores from British Columbia. A large quantity of grain samples is in store at the experimental farm, ready to be forwarded. Arrangements have been made for receiving in Ottawa all goods intended for exhibit. It has been ascertained that the Dominion will be able to exhibit oats weighing 40 pounds to the bushel, and all samples up to the standard of 34 pounds. Wheat weighing 64 pounds to the bushel has been secured from several portions of the Dominion. As far as possible, individual counties will be represented by exhibits. In cases where the crops were behind the average this year samples from last season's yield will be taken.

Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The last commercial review from Gordon Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, says: Supplies of all grades of flour are ample, but values are gradually moving up in sympathy with the firmer American advices. The importations of Canadian flours have almost entirely ceased, which seems a pity after establishing a considerable trade.

Ottawa Milling Co.

The Ottawa Milling Co., Ottawa, have recently equipped their mill with the most modern machinery. They have added an "Eclipse" kiln, the only one of its kind in the Dominion and all of their appliances are of a thoroughly up to date description. Their export trade has very largely increased and the mill has now a capacity of 100 bbls. a day.

Canada's Wheat Lands.

THE Manitoba Free Press speaks in the following triumphant tone of the settlement of our great Western wheat lands :

" In making their appeal to men in other lands to come across to Canada, our pioneers can point with pride to the fertile soil and the prolific crops of their new country. Their settled patches over all the West—along the Red and the Assiniboine and the two Saskatchewans—had proved beyond a doubt or cavil that the whole of it was fitted to become the home of a thriving farming community. Moreover, the pioneers of the West have made simple and plain and accessible the path to prosperity for those following them.

So now, to-day, the comer into Canada has no long and expensive experiments to make for himself. He builds up his business on the experience of his forerunners, and practically begins his work at a stage which it took the pioneers years to attain. If the newcomer be one from the similar prairies south of the boundary, so much the better, for he has nothing to learn, and by the proceeds of the sale of high-priced land in the States, he can start on the free, or cheap, and more productive lands of Canada on a larger and more profitable scale.

One of the most remarkable illustrations of the truth of the old saying, "A prophet hath no honor in his own country," has been brought prominently to notice by the recent and wonderful agricultural development and land-value increases in the prairie portion of Canada. For years the Western Canada press labored almost in vain to impress upon the people of Eastern Canada the magnificent resources of the great heritage of the Dominion in the West. Government immigration agencies in the United Kingdom could not remove the prejudices of the British immigrant against Canada and in favor of the United States. Even the business methods of the Canadian Pacific railway and land companies had comparatively little effect in inducing land seekers to come and fill up the vacant provinces.

It has taken the Canadian country almost 30 years to emerge triumphantly from the clouds of calumny by which it has been concealed. It took the truth a long time to catch up with misrepresentations by which hunters, traders and trespassers tried to protect their fur preserves from the invasion of farmers. It also took many years for the United States to fill her own prairies to anything like overflowing. But all things come to him who waits—and hustles while he waits—and Canada has worked, as well as waited, since the days that Ruperts Land was annexed to the Dominion. So now, in the fulness of time, the clouds have departed, and the shadows are past from over the prairies. To-day the fact that the Dominion offers to the farmer, not only free and cheap, but also tried and tested lands, the superior of which cannot be found on earth, is a fact known and being taken advantage of throughout both the old and new worlds."

Prefer Canadian Flour.

Canadian flour is making for itself a reputation in the Empire of Japan. Mr. Nosse, Japanese consul-general, received yesterday an Osaka newspaper, in which it was stated that :

"The demand for Canadian bread at the Osaka exhibition is already greater than the supply. Of the last consignment of 1,700 bags of flour, 1,000 have already been used, but the trouble is that with the number of ovens which are at the disposal of Canada the bread cannot be turned out fast enough."

The consul-general has also received certain official notification from Baron Kamura, the Japanese Foreign Minister, that during the continuance of the labor difficulties in British Columbia, the Japanese Government has agreed to prevent immigration to Canada. The Foreign Minister also declares that preference will be shown Canadian over American flour. The idea that the Dominion is one of the United States is slowly becoming dispelled, but it is being spread and encouraged by the American visitors.

Plight of French Millers.

Flour milling has recently become so non-profitable in France that the millers of that country are about to test a co-operative scheme for selling their products. There is nothing novel in an association selling flour under fixed rules. It has often been talked of in this country, but never passed the theory stage ; the French millers are going to put the scheme into practice. In time we shall know how a remedy suggested here is going to correct the drawbacks of the milling industry in France.

Of decided interest it would be to know precisely what caused the aggravated depression in French milling. It has never been hampered by foreign competition, the Government has cheerfully and promptly granted all legislation demanded, good wheat is easily to be had, the people of the country are great bread consumers, yet for more than a decade the flour milling industry of France has languished. According to American ideas, the milling capacity of the country is not too large for the population, yet somehow the trade must have been overdone.

No reasons for the slump are given by the French millers ; so long as they demanded legislative assistance they received it ; now they are going to try to help themselves out of the slough into which they have somehow sunk. French flour milling has been fenced in, walled in, by statutes and regulations that gave the millers an absolute, indisputable monopoly of their home flour trade, and yet they are farther from prosperity than the millers of any other European nation. There is a superabundance of food for reflection here, not only for American, but for European millers, particularly those of Great Britain who lay every drawback in their trade at the doors of the millers of America.—The Miller's Review.

The Crop Prospects.

The Canadian crop prospects continue to be of the most favorable nature and everything promises well both as regards quantity and quality.

Notes.

A good flour may be cheap, but that does not prove a cheap flour to be good.

At the moment the wheat offerings in Manitoba and Ontario are remarkably small.

In Montreal there is a brisk demand for Canadian flour for September shipment to South Africa.

German military authorities are experimenting with a 15 per cent. admixture of potato flour in the rye flour used for army bread.

A report from Kingston, Ont., says that machinery for the largest cereal food manufactory in Canada is being placed in position there by a Detroit expert.

The formation of a combine of all the important flour mills in Portugal is said to have been undertaken with the knowledge and countenance of the Government.

During the month of June there were exported from the United States 5,023,265 bushels of wheat, valued at $4,025,388, and 1,510,991 barrels of flour, valued at $5,666,102.

The Wm. McCann Milling Co., of Toronto, are increasing their output very largely this Summer. They find a steadily growing demand for their flaked wheat and rolled oats.

Exports of wheat from the Argentine Republic from January 1 to April 3, 1903, aggregated 22,930,000 bushels, against 8,156,000 bushels for the corresponding period a year ago.

The first new wheat of the season arriving in Hamilton on Monday of this week was purchased by Lake & Bailey, who bought 400 bushels. It was white wheat of good sample, weighing 62 lb. to the bushel.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

The Grocer and Cigars.

TWO instances came under the notice of "The Canadian Grocer" this week which tend to show the daily increasing interest the retail grocers are taking in the cigar and tobacco trade. A representative of this paper, in visiting the warerooms of The Dominion Show Case Co., was shown an order for a cigar case from an Oakville merchant who had seen their advertisement in "The Canadian Grocer," and later in the same day he saw a letter from a Cooksville merchant to a manufacturer ordering a sample lot of a brand of cigars which he also had seen advertised in this paper. Both manufacturers intimated that such orders were of frequent occurrence. We have, from time to time, asked our grocer friends to try the experiment of keeping a better line of cigars, and it is worth while noting the experience of one of Toronto's leading retailers in this connection. Messrs. Moore & Son, Spadina avenue, have a cigar department fully in keeping with the general equipment of their well-known establishment, and state that they devote their attention almost exclusively in this line to the selling of high-grade cigars. Fully 90 per cent of their sales are of the better class, the enquiry for the cheaper lines being of a very limited nature. They have devoted quite a little attention to this branch for some time past and results have been of the most satisfactory character.

Character in Smoking.

ACCORDING to a man's manner of smoking you shall know him, is the opinion of a keen observer of habits and characteristics.

Let him gnaw at the end of his cigar and roll it between his lips, and you may depend he is cynical, likely to look always on the wrong side of human nature, and not to trust anyone completely.

The man who smokes with his cigar tilted upwards has the traits that make for success, is brisk, aggressive, and likely to triumph over interference with his wishes. The smoker who guards his cigar jealously and will smoke it almost up to the point of charring his mustache or burning his nose, is a tactician, scheming, self-seeking, and with an intense desire for power.

The cigar tilted toward the chin denotes the day dreamer, the person who may have ideas and ambitions, but seldom the practicality to carry them out.

The cigar held steadily and horizontally indicates a callous, calculating nature, strong traits, but poor principles—the sort of a man who could be brutal with indifference should occasion arise.

Men who let their cigar go out and then try to relight it, also those who, after smoking for a while, let the cigar go out and then throw it away, are likely to be irrational and without the capacity to put their powers to use.

Men of quick, vivacious temper hardly touch the tip of their cigar with their teeth and after taking two or three whiffs will remove it and hold it in their hand in absent-minded fashion. They are men who change their opinions and ambitions often and require the spur of novelty or necessity to make them exert their best powers.

The man who, after lighting his cigar, holds it not only between his teeth and lips, but with two, three or four fingers of his left hand, is fastidious and possessed of much personal pride. Such a person will often remove his cigar and examine the lighted end to see if it is burning evenly and steadily. Such actions indicate carefulness, sagacity, and a character worthy of confidence and esteem.

The smoker who sends forth smoke from both corners of the mouth in two different puffs is crochety and hard to get along with, though he may have good mental faculties.

The spendthrift, sometimes the adventurer, is declared by the act of biting off the end of a cigar. Lack of judgment, dislike to pay debts, and not over-niceness of habits are declared by this practice.

The pipe smoker who grips his pipe so firmly between his teeth that marks are left on the mouthpiece is mettlesome, of quick, nervous temper, and likes to be tenacious of his opinions one way or another.

Many smokers, no matter how many cigar cases they have, carry their cigars in their upper left-hand waistcoat pocket. This fault indicates a love of self-indulgence and disinclination to make the slightest exertion other than is absolutely necessary.

These observations, it should be remembered, are those of a woman who has been observing men who smoke.—United States Tobacco Journal.

Porto Rico Union.

Cigarmakers' Union of San Juan, Porto Rico held a mass meeting at the Federacion Libre quarters for the purpose of delivering the charter to the union and administering the oath of allegiance to The International Cigarmakers' Union of America. This is the first cigarmakers' union in Porto Rico which has joined the American Federation of Labor. The cigar manufacturers who give support to this union will enjoy the privilege of using union labels on their goods. Then the Porto Rico cigars will not be boycotted as now by the miners, steel workers and other unions of Porto Rico. The cigarmakers' union label is marked "District of Porto Rico."

Smoking Among the Ancients.

The frequency with which old pipes made of clay, wood and metal have been found in England, Ireland, Germany, Switzerland, and France, has led archaeologists to the belief that the ancients may have smoked, says The Scientific American. The belief receives some color from passages in ancient authors. Herodotus remarks that the inhabitants of the Aroxes Islands, supposed to be the modern Volga, "were wont to throw piles of fruit on a fire and then to inhale the vapor, with the result that they became as drunk as ever the Greeks became after drinking the wine, and the more fruit they threw on the fire the more drunk they became." Pomponius Mela talks in a similar strain of certain Thracian tribes. Pliny asserts that the vapor of plants was used to cure diseases and says that in some instances it was even inhaled through a tube.

Cigar Clippers and Hygiene.

At Scranton, Pa., the superintendent of the board of health has been urging war on machines for clipping the end off a cigar. He declares it to be his opinion that many diseases are transmitted by means of the cigar cutters. He declares that he has noted that many smokers after purchasing a cigar place it in their mouths and moisten it before placing it in the cutter to remove the tip. This, he says, is likely to result in disease germs being conveyed to the cutter, and then transmitted to the mouth of the next smoker who uses it for removing the tip of his cigar.

Tobacco in South Africa.

The efforts of The British South African Co. to raise fine tobacco in that part of the world seems to be reaping success. They have just announced a second crop of the best leaf in the Makoni district, Mashonaland, Southern Rhodesia.

Tobacco Trust in Japan.

The American Tobacco Trust has bought up all the tobacco interests of any importance in Japan. They are all situated in the southern portion of the country. They are all being worked to their fullest capacity, but where the consumer finds a difference is in the fact that the prices are regulated from the United States. The trust gives an order that such a price is to be paid and the Japs simply have to pay it.

A Light That Failed.

That the aromatic weed hath charms as potent as music "that soothes the savage breast," is acknowledged by competent critics, and even poets have not disdained from making it a subject. Witness the latest :—

The maid, as by the papers doth appear,
Whom fifty thousand dollars made so dear,
To test Lothario's passion, simply said :
"Forego the weed before we go to wed.
For smoke take flame ; I'll be that flame's bright fanner ;
To have your Anna, give up your Havana."
But he, when thus she brought him to the scratch,
Lit his cigar and threw away his match.
—The Humbler Poets.

The W. H. Steele Co., Ltd., Toronto, report a good enquiry for all of their Big 4 lines. In high-grade goods there is a specially active demand for their "Security" cigar.

Mr. Isaac Harris, father of Samuel Harris, of the cigar firm of Harris & Harkness, Montreal, died recently in that city, at the age of 71 years. Deceased was well known in Hebrew circles and was a citizen very much respected.

Deputations representing the tobacco interests in several cities have visited Ottawa during the past few days to protest against the proposed new anti-cigarette clause in the Criminal Code. The usual promise of consideration was received.

Mr. J. S. Williams of The American Tobacco Co., is at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal. Mr. Williams returns from a tour of inspection of the company's branches and agencies in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Henderson was formerly with S.H. and A. S. Ewing, coffees and spicesi Montreal.

SALESMEN WHO CREATE BUSINESS.

SALESMEN who are able to go out into the world and create business are the highest types of the men of that profession, says The Retailers' Journal. With such salesmen the central and ever dominating idea is to make business, not merely take orders from old customers. How to accomplish their purpose is the thing which they are at work on constantly. While other salesmen may be telling stories or having a good time waiting for a chance to see a customer, the man with the creative thought uppermost in his mind is trying to study out a plan whereby he can carry out his purpose.

As a rule, it will be noticed that the best salesmen of this class make but little fuss when talking business with their customers, but it will also be noticed that what they have to say goes right home, and instead of arguing with the customer he instructs him—tells him things of interest about the goods under consideration. He will point out qualities that another salesman never knew existed, and he will tell about these things in such a way as to command the attention of the customer. And what is more, he will tell the truth, and tell it in such a simple, straightforward way that the customer will be certain that it is the truth.

The salesman who is able to create business does not resort to the cheap tricks which the man on the road often resorts to in order to sell goods, for he knows it is not profitable. He wants to sell his customer again and he must retain his confidence. He must feel certain that the customer believes implicitly all he says, for this is necessary to his general plan of work.

This idea of knowing just a little more about his goods than the mere order-taker knows is the key to the true salesman's success. He must first know what he is talking about when he attempts to sell the retail merchant a bill of goods. If he has cultivated along with his knowledge some graces of speech and manner he will be better able to present his case. The man of refinement who will talk of things whose nature he thoroughly understands can always get a hearing and sell goods, enlarging all the time the field they are made to occupy. Such salesmen are truly creators of business.

CO-OPERATIVE PACKING OF APPLES.

THE English merchant does not like to handle small lots and experimental packages, says Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, chief of the Fruit Division, Ottawa. He wants thousands of barrels, all uniform in quality, variety, packing and package. This uniformity, however, cannot be secured where packing is done in small quantities in orchards. The time has arrived in the history of the apple trade in Canada when large packing houses must be the order of the day. Whether these large packing houses are controlled by co-operative associations or by capitalists who have a knowledge of the apple business is a matter of comparative indifference. It does, however, seem quite possible for intelligent growers to unite in co-operative associations and secure all the advantages that accrue to the capitalist, as well as those that come by packing in large quantities. These storehouses are not necessarily expensive buildings. They should be frostproof and large enough to accommodate the full crop of the patrons. It is not at all difficult to get plans that have worked well in other parts of the country. The aim should be to secure as large a quantity of good stock as possible, to grade it uniformly, mark it honestly according to the requirements of the Fruit Marks Act, and sell through any medium that may offer the greatest advantages. There is not the slightest doubt that if such an association were formed in any of the fruit districts and such a packing house established, it would attract buyers from every market, and the apples could be sold for spot cash. It is sincerely to be hoped that the good business men among the apple growers will take this into their serious consideration. It is not merely a question whether their own apples will be sold at the proper figure or not. They should be, even for their own sakes, deeply interested in the sale of their neighbors' apples. A careful analysis of the conditions of the trade will show that prices in fruit especially are often sadly depressed for the want of selling ability on the part of the small grower. It therefore behooves the more intelligent and larger grower to interest himself in the fruit of his less fortunate neighbor.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Suggestion of a Need Oftentimes Creates it.

THE following latter has been received from a Montreal reader of THE GROCER, who shows his interest in this department in a substantial way. A note of sincerity and enthusiasm rings through the circulars he has sent me, which is the most effective thing about them. I reproduce extracts from one of his circulars this week outlining the "Doll Competition" referred to in his letter. Here is his letter—I am sure it will be appreciated by all my readers, as it is by myself:

Montreal, July 1, 1903.

W. ARTHUR LYDIATT ESQ.,
Toronto, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—I've often wished to send you a few of my circulars, but I don't know if I was afraid of your criticism of them or for want of time that I have not done so before. I think the latter is the reason.

I've been in business now almost three years, and started with a capital of $150 of my own; the balance I borrowed, and in that time have cleared myself of it all and have a nice little sum to the good, which I consider pretty good. I think my experience is worth something, for it's not the experience of a man doing a bad business that we want, but of some that are doing well.

The second year I was here I took a contract with the leading paper of this city, The Star, and consider my money thrown away (I call it my $100 mistake), and my experience is that newspaper advertising is no good to a store as mine is situated, in the suburbs, though it might be well with one in the centre of the city. I mean by that that you can draw trade from the four corners to the centre, but not from the centre or other corners to another corner. I did not get any results from my advertising.

But I find the only way for a retail store to tell the people what it has to sell and at what prices, is to do so direct—by circulars. I have done so once a month with the best of results.

Now this may not meet the approval of a credit store, as some customers may have a big balance on their books, and they are the ones that take advantage of any cut price he might be offering, but I'm only giving my own experience.

I am doing a cash business. I have been in business almost three years here and would give all the credit I have for $50.

We have the G.T.R. pay-day once a month (which is far too long), and, as most of our customers are employed there, we make it a point to always have our circulars distributed a few days before; and I might say here, that the main thing is to have them distributed properly by some reliable persons.

Extra stock I have in any time I make a special run on them. I always try and make it a point to begin with something that everybody wants, as sugar, butter, potatoes, etc.

I would call your attention to the circular of the "Doll Competition." It was the best advertising I have had so far. My object in getting this up was to make a window display, and I might say that I made it just about this time last year—in the holidays. I got 70 dolls in and gave the prize dolls to the most comical. That brought me all kinds and did not bar the poor girl from sending hers, as the best dressed doll would have done. I had a window that everyone that passed stopped and looked—and had a good laugh. Children that would not go messages for their mothers would ask them if they did not want something, so they could come to the store and have a look at the dolls.

My "concert" one was also a good one, but there was too much work attached to it.

I am also sending you a needle case that I have for my next one. I'm advertising that I will give one free with each pound of our best tea, coffee or pepper. I will send you a circular if you would care for one.

In closing this long letter I would say that I think there is only one way to run a grocery store (or any other kind) and that is CASH—as I think people would be better off if they paid cash.

Yours very truly,
W. J. CONDRON

RAGAMUFFIN DOLL COMPETITION

To reward our girl customers, we will give the three beautiful dolls that we are showing in our window, to the three most comical and worst dressed dolls that will be brought to us before the 30th of this month.

The conditions are that the dolls must be left with us from the 30th of August to the 15th of September. On that date we will have three ladies of the Pointe as judges; there will be no name on any of the dolls so that there will be no partiality shown; we are doing this so that every girl in Pointe St. Charles, rich or poor, can have the same chance to win.

The biggest doll costs $10.00, the next $8.00 and the other $6.00, so that they are worth trying to win.

Mr. Condron's very interesting letter opens the way for considerable comment on the points he has brought out, but I will confine myself to calling your attention to his remarks on newspaper advertising.

As I took occasion to remark a few weeks ago, it has been the rather expensive experience of numbers of grocers in the larger cities that advertising in the newspapers of large circulation and high rates does not pay. Through the impressive arguments of some advertising solicitor, or their own reasoning, they become enthusiastic over the opportunities for business-getting that lie in spreading out and throwing business-drawing magnets in the way of close prices broadcast, in the hope of drawing trade from the four corners of the city.

As Mr. Condron remarks: "It is possible to draw trade from the four corners to the centre," but it must be a genuine and continuous set of bargains, or some unusual merchandising power that will make sufficient people go out of their way to buy their groceries at your store, to make the newspaper advertising pay. As a rule it is necessary to make cut prices the drawing card—then it takes a lot of trade to make up for the cost of this expensive advertising, and pay for the extra clerk hire and the delivery and other expenses connected with doing a large bargain trade.

For the "locality" grocer in the larger cities—such, for instance, as my correspondent—the circular (or better still, the store paper) is precisely the proper thing.

But in the smaller towns and cities—as well as in the many villages and trading centres—the trade-pulling power of a good space well used in the local newspaper cannot be overestimated.

Some of Mr. Condron's circulars are very interesting in some respects, and I will reproduce some of them and make further comment next week

CONFECTIONERY

A Department for Retailers.

Department in the Grocery.

THERE are very few retail grocers in towns and villages who do not have a confectionery department. THE CANADIAN GROCER has seen some very nice ones. A showcase of confectionery, even if only a small one, has in itself a very bright, attractive appearance, and its very presence gives the grocery store an improved appearance.

However, some of the grocers do not pay as much attention to the confectionery department as they might. Some content themselves with a few jars of the more common candies, and a few tins of fancy biscuits; they only devote a couple of shelves to the department. If they go so far, why not go a little farther and do the thing properly? A person cannot hope to make a success of anything if he only goes into it quarter or half way. "Things done by halves are never done well."

In some stores in towns or villages THE CANADIAN GROCER has noticed that the grocers often allow their confectionery commodities to be scattered all over the store. Perhaps they will have a small showcase on the end of the counter nearest the door. There will be a row of tins of fancy biscuits at the back of the store along with innumerable kinds of breakfast foods. About the middle of the store will be a couple of shelves containing jars of candies of different kinds among other shelves containing pickles, canned goods and spice tins.

How much better would it be to have all together—have a department that is a department? Leaving out of consideration the appropriateness and good appearance of having everything in the confectionery line together, the handiness of the thing should induce the grocer to so arrange the department.

City grocers do not handle confectionery so generally as the rural ones, on account, likely, of there being so many confectionery stores to compete with. However, very many city grocers do go in for it and make it pay. Those that have the department do, as a rule, pay more attention to the arrangement of it than the majority of rural grocers.

THE CANADIAN GROCER was very much attracted with the arrangement of a grocery store, in the city of Toronto, visited recently. Along the side of the store were the grocery counter and shelves. On the opposite side, at the back, was the provision department, and next the door on the same side was the confectionery department. Everything in the place looked fresh and bright, and the appearance of the confectionery display helped very materially to bring about that effect. There is a short counter, the half of which is taken up by the showcase. Behind the counter are shelves, the lower ones being occupied with show-tins of fancy biscuits and the upper ones with jars of small confectionery. Piled on the top of the shelves are boxes of soda biscuits.

The proprietor of the store says that one would be surprised at the amount of confectionery he sells to his grocery customers.

Ice Cream in the Eighteenth Century.

THE idea that ice cream is the invention of these later days is dispelled by the directions which are found for its making in the New Universal Complete Confectioner, published in London, Eng., over two hundred years ago. The primitive methods employed may incite a smile as one tries to imagine them applied to supply the present day demand for this refreshing delicacy. The directions of our Universal Complete Confectioner are:

"Take two pewter basins, one larger than the other; the inward one must have a close cover, into which you put your cream, and mix it with what you think proper to give it a flavor and color, as raspberries, etc.; then sweeten it to your taste, cover it close and set it in the larger basin; fill it with ice and a large handful of salt, under and over and round about; let it stand in the ice three-quarters of an hour, uncover and stir it and the cream well together; then cover it again, let it stand half an hour longer and turn it into your plate. Your basins should be three-cornered. That four colors may be in one plate; one color should be yellow, another green, another red and a fourth white; but that depends on fancy and what you color them with, as any sort of fruit, saffron or cochineal, and for the green there are several sorts of juice; all must be flavored with a different sort of fruit; the white wants nothing but orange-flowe water and sugar; these basins are made at the pewterers for the above use. Some make their cream in tin pans and mix three pennies' worth of saltpetre and two pennies' worth of rock alum; both beat fine with ice, as also three pennies' worth of bay salt; lay it around the pan as above, cover it with a coarse cloth and let it stand two hours."

Sugar as Medicine.

Confectioners should be in a position to inform the general public of the delusion under which they labor when they try to argue that confectionery is injurious to the health, says The Canadian Confectioner and Baker. Many people still think so, though they grow less year by year, and the majority of people agree that sweets in moderation are beneficial. An instance is stated of a person who was so severely affected with dyspepsia that frequently he was forced to abstain from taking food for many hours. On these occasions pains in the head become very severe, followed by extreme nausea. On one occasion the patient experimented with some lumps of brown sugar, which he dipped into water and ate very slowly. In his own words his head was "beating like a trip-hammer" when he commenced taking the sugar. He almost immediately felt the beneficial effects of the sugar, which caused the pain in the head to stop and materially aided the stomach.

Frosting.

A frosting, that is adapted for coffee cakes and honey goods, that is soft and pliable can be made in the following manner: Four ounces gelatine, two quarts water, one quart white of egg, one-half ounce alum, one-half ounce cream tartar, one quarter ounce extract vanilla, twenty-three pounds pulverized sugar. Heat one quart of the water and dissolve the gelatine in it, and pour into a cake mixer; turn on the power and add the white of eggs and then the extract of vanilla. Dissolve the alum in the remaining quart of water and sift the cream tartar into the sugar. Add the water and the sugar; the mixer should run slowly, not over thirty revolutions per minute. Let it run unti it is beaten to the right consistency to rspread on the cake.

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

IT is undoubtedly true that "in the good old days" English law created a shambles, as one of the great men of the time, living before his age, remarked. Women were hanged for stealing bread to supply the needs of famishing children left fatherless by the naval press-gang, while others paraded semi naked, and bare-footed, through the streets, were publicly whipped for offences which, to our modern eyes, would seem trivial indeed. Faulty as we find the criminal code of that time, nay, barbarous as it seems to us, there were nevertheless some provisions now abolished which, if re-enacted, would undoubtedly fill a long-felt want.

Conspicuous among these was the punishment for the offence of being a common scold, exposure in the stocks. With the removal of this salutary law, and the forgetfulness of the scriptural injunction to keep one's tongue under control, comes much heart-burning and pain in the world.

Perhaps no class in the community is more subject to unfounded reports of evil-doing, to malicious whisperings of political crimes, than is that of the, in this case at least, "unfortunate" politician. Far be it from us to say that the public man is indeed an Israelite without guile, but the converse, to wit, that he is an Israelite full to the brim with guile, would be equally far from the mark. The truth, as in many things, lies between the extremes.

The commonest kind of comment about politicians at Ottawa, that is, about those who give outward and visible signs of prosperity and a full exchequer, is that they are amassing fortunes contrary to the spirit and the letter of that noble statute, the Independence of Parliament Act. Does it ever occur to the originators of these sinister rumors that a public man may become well off without the slightest infringement of propriety even, let alone law. We have in Ottawa public men, prominent in both parties, who have become rich by the perfectly legitimate method of buying a share in some newly-discovered mine which requires money for its development, (though we hear nothing of those who have dropped round sums in others which have proven to be valueless), by taking up and pushing the invention of some genius who himself becomes rich by the timely help afforded him, and but for which he would remain in poverty, and the world at large be deprived of some valuable device, or even by the acquisition of an interest in some great proprietary remedy which, in many cases, acting as a faith cure rather than an actual specific, affects the wonderful cures ranging from tuberculosis to growing-in nails.

"Alas for the rarity of Christian charity under the sun," wrote the melodious Hood. Alas for that rarity to-day, even as in his time, and alas and doubly alas for its rarity when applied to the much-wronged class of the politicians.

Further, does it ever occur to those people who are never tired of throwing slurs at men in public life, that the patience of the recipient may finally give out, and that they may be driven to a process of reasoning, faulty in the moral code, but human none the less, that it is as well to have the game as the name?

Let us take for example, the case of the Cabinet Ministers, the men more particularly trusted with the administration of the affairs of this country, and what do we find? They are more particularly singled out for attack, because more in the public eye, and also because their detractors make more by discrediting party leaders than party followers. We do not, of course, refer to the present Government more than to its predecessor, the usage is unfortunately ever the same. Does it strike the back-biting critic that Cabinet Ministers are, on the whole, men of exceptional ability, and that being such, they are far more likely than those of puny intelligence to recognize a good thing when they see it? Does it strike them further that Ottawa, above all other places, is the Mecca to which people with schemes, both sound and unsound, are constantly coming? And finally, does it occur to them that given a vast choice of commercial projects these shrewd men are very apt to sift the wheat from the chaff and so fill well their granaries?

And why, in the name of common sense should they not take advantage of these opportunities so long as they attend to their business and give the country good service? It is a notorious fact that one and all, they are underpaid as compared with others of far less ability in the commercial walks of life, who draw, with not a tithe of the responsibility, far more than the remuneration of Cabinet Ministers and who draw it "for life and good behavior" in comparison with the precarious holding of a Minister of the Crown. More than that, is it not true that the "outs," men of great ability in many cases, are constantly examining microscopically the doings of the "ins," provided with parliamentary machinery which renders the M.P. subject to such minute examination as not one man in a hundred gets in his private affairs.

Very recently a member of Parliament stood in awful peril. His partner in the lumber business had, quite unknown to him, actually sold lumber to an agent of the Government, (though that fact it was afterwards proved was unknown to the partner), lumber to the extent of—an awful crime—three dollars and a half's-worth. The Committee on Privileges and Elections was promptly summoned, but on its sitting, a gentleman of the opposite political persuasion of the accused arose and handsomely exonerated him. More lately still this committee was called upon to investigate the sale of a lot for post office purposes, by a member of the House. In this case too, close investigation has shown that the accused was quite innocent of the charge laid against him. When close observation can discover such trival cases as these only, can we not say with pride, verily Canadian public life is not so bad as painted by those whose constant suspicions mark them out as men themselves not beyond suspicion.

Let me close this little essay with a humerous happening of the by-gone times A certain politician of minor note, but still not to be despised, hailing from a back township, was visiting Ottawa, and was most hospitably entertained by a Cabinet Minister. After a dinner well served in a house of stately build and handsome furniture, he was taken by his host behind a spanking pair to see the sights of the capital. Although somewhat interested in these he seemed troubled in thought, and finally unable longer to contain himself he blurted out, "Say Mr. Z., how is it that you can afford such a fine house, such costly furniture, can put up such good grub to your friends, and afterwards can show them round behind such horseflesh as this? Some folks say you are a boodler." The Minister, secure in a clear conscience, and amused at the candor of his guest, replied, "Do they? Well isn't that a little unkind? I made nearly fifty thousand dollars in a business venture, and it is from that source that I have been able to provide these extra comforts and luxuries which you have noticed."

And so Mr. Fielding's measure for the relief of the binder twine makers has come before the House and been debated pro and con, and mostly pro. The Liberals largely refrained from anything but peans of praise because, was it not the work of that favorite of theirs, the Finance Minister? And the Conservatives, if not so enthusiastic, at least felt themselves restrained from very active attack because the measure was along the general line of their own policy for the development of Canadian industries. Viewed dispassionately we fancy the relief given will meet with about as general satisfaction outside the House as it did in it. We noted in these columns some weeks ago the gist of the relief to be granted, and we do not now propose to repeat it at length, but to refresh the minds of our readers we will merely say that whereas the United States manufacturer gets a rebate of the full amount of the export duty on manilla fibre exported from the Philippines, it is proposed to redress this inequality by giving to the Canadian manufacturer a bounty equal to the export duty aforesaid.

Some there were who favored an import duty as opposed to this bounty, but the "farmers' friend," a numerous gentleman, so to speak, in a House which has so many country representatives, stoutly opposed this idea. He pointed out that the raw material for most of our great industries was allowed in duty free, that binder twine was part of the raw material required by the farmer in his industry, that already much of his raw material, such as farm implements, is taxed, and that it would be unfair to add to his burden by putting on a tax all of which he would have to pay. True, in the case of the bounty, a part of the money would have to come from his pocket, but he would share the burden with all the other people of Canada, and as the country as a whole was supposed to benefit by the enactment which would restore our factories to activity which had been lessened by the unfair enactment of a foreign country, it was surely but right that no special burden should be imposed on a special class. What campaign literature this will make for some of the astute ones! How Mr. Member will have his noble utterances reprinted in their thousands and distributed among his farmer constituents, and how when the time comes to give an account of his stewardship will he read from Hansard the words of wisdom which saved the farmer exchequer!

The Redistribution Bill is upon us, and the library is peopled with active members who are looking up what their opponents had to say on similar occasions in 1892, in 1882, yes and away back in 1872. What memories a perusal of the yellow leaves of Hansard bring back to one! We read the words of the great John A., that darling of half the homes of Canada, we see him again in fancy with his loyal followers cheering him on, defying the Grits whom he has "hived," and calling them "you purists over there." We see Blake, stern and relentless, rising to reply, his ponderous sentences and irresistible logic calling forth the cries of his supporters and the dissident groans of his opponents. We hear again in fancy the poet of Niagara, J. Burr Plumb, hugging to his bosom the annihilation of his own little borough of Niagara, which for years had stood alone in Canadian public life as the representative of those pocket boroughs which long withstood the onslaughts of the Reformers of Great Britain, boroughs, the existence of which could find an advocate in so great a man, and so democratic, as Gladstone himself. We picture Alexander Mackenzie with his grim Scotch face denouncing the measure as one disgraceful to public life, and we hear that great war-horse of Cumberland defending the measure in words and phrases which sting his opponents as the lash of a whip, and which rouse his own friends to wild enthusiasm. We picture Joe Rymal, for years undisputed wit of the House of Commons, burly Joe, the pride of the country hearts, Joe, whom Sir John, in spite of their political hostility, loved, standing up in his place and with his homely humor applying the anecdote of the profane farmer who found swearing impossible, as he could find no language adequate to the occasion, when his pumpkins rolled out of his cart down the hill—but why picture more? The thing is in itself after all a sad exercise, for are not they one and all now absent from those halls which their eloquence thrilled? From those corridors which their humanity filled with the kindliness of life—all, all gone, to the bourne from which no man returns, or to life far from the legislative halls which they adorned. Of all the fights the redistribution ones are the hottest, for the new boundaries mean extinction to many whose seats would otherwise be secure, and where a man's very political existence is at stake he fights not with kid gloves.

Let us hope that no friendships will be severed, that hot words passed in battle will soon be forgotten in the good fellowship that generally obtains even among policical foemen in Ontario.

DEATH OF MR. ED. T. MALONE.

A Montreal despatch says: A most highly esteemed and widely respected citizen passed away suddenly on Saturday morning last, in the person of Mr. Edward T. Malone, for many years in the employ of Fraser, Viger & Co.

Deceased had not been feeling quite well for some weeks, and a week ago he left the city for a trip to Tadousac. He returned home on Friday, and retired as usual in the evening. Next morning his landlady, Mrs. Sweeney, knocked at his room to inquire as to his condition, and on receiving no response, opened the door and was terror-stricken to find him dead. Medical aid was immediately summoned, but was of no avail, as deceased had been dead for about an hour.

By the death of Mr. Malone, his employers lose a zealous and conscientious employe, and the community an upright and honorable citizen.

Mr. Malone was interred in Sherbrooke on Tuesday.

CEYLON GREEN TEA INDUSTRY.

THIS SEASON'S RAISINS.

Referring to 1903 raisins Fresno mail advices state: "It is said that one or two independent packers have bought raisins in the sweat at 3¾c., which is ¼c. above last year. This is done as an advertisement proposition. It is thought that if the association is successful in getting the requisite number of acres the market may open slightly higher than last year. The growing demand for seeded grapes places raisin growers in a good position to compete against foreign imports."

English Dairymen and the Butter Bill.

AT the monthly meeting of the committee of the Metropolitan Dairymen's Society, says The London, Eng., Grocery, attention was directed to the serious consequences, affecting the butter industry of the United Kingdom, which would result by an amendment to the Sale of Adulterated Butter Bill now before the House of Commons. Sir E. Strachey has given notice to move the insertion of the following clauses :—" It shall be unlawful to color butter, and any person committing an offence under this section shall be liable to a fine of not exceeding £5 for the first offence, and for the second offence, to a fine not exceeding £20, and for any subsequent offence, £100." The following resolution was unanimously passed :—" The Committee of the Metropolitan Dairymen's Society, having had the proposed amendment under consideration, strongly objects to its adoption, as it would render large quantities of home-made pure butter unsaleable. They also desire to call attention to the fact that margarine is not affected by the bill, and would therefore become a more serious competitor to the butter industry." A copy of the resolution was ordered to be sent to the chairman of the Standing Committee on Trade.

Firm Outlook for New Canned Salmon.

Private telegrams from the coast, reporting a continued light run of salmon in both Puget Sound and Columbia River, confirmed earlier advices and added somewhat to the firmness already noted in spot of the several descriptions, says The New York Journal of Commerce. In some quarters there is a disposition shown to regard the gloomy reports that have come from the coast regarding the scarcity of fish as presaging a short pack. The Columbia River situation is looked upon as being most gloomy. The pack at all points on the river is considerably short of that of last year at this time. On July 21 last year the heaviest run of the season began. This year, according to the advices, no heavy run has set in. Some interests here agree that, should a heavy run appear now, the packers would be unable to take care of it, as the capacity of the plants is limited. The Columbia River season has about 20 days to run yet.

In spot, fancy Chinooks of the new pack are being taken up about as fast as they arrive. Red Alaska talls are firmer, with $1.05 to $1.10 quoted as to holder and quality. Several good-sized lots have been sold to go west at $1.08½ ex store here. Sockeye talls are firm and supplies are light. The cheaper grades of salmon are also more firmly held.

London Produce Markets.

Thomas Nesbitt & Co. in their prices current of Irish and foreign provisions, London, July 20, say : Weather is cool after heavy rains and business is improving.

BUTTER.—Market is improving and most descriptions are rather dearer.

BACON.—Trade steadier. Irish 1s. and 3s. higher on some selections. Continental advanced 2s. and 4s. on most descriptions. Canadian about 2s. dearer.

HAMS.—Irish quiet. Canadian, etc., in good demand.

LARD.—Slow at quotations.

EGGS.—Market firm at advances of 3d. to 6d.

CHEESE.—Trade quiet at reduced values.

Danish Butter and Eggs.

From figures which have just been published it appears, says The Scottish Trader, that the export of Danish butter to the U.K. last year reached 1,890,000 cwt., of which about 2 per cent. was in tins. The highest price was reached in November, when it stood at almost 1s. 1½d. per Danish lb., while the lowest was in August, when it fell to a fraction below a shilling. The Danish pound is heavier than the British, only 101½ lb. going to the hundredweight. To secure the purity of all the milk products great efforts are continually being made to point out to all farmers the necessity of giving the utmost attention and care to the production of the milk before it is delivered to the various dairies. Moreover, attention is constantly paid to the diminution of expense ; as, for instance, it has been found that by using peat instead of coal there is a great saving. The export of Danish eggs also reached the enormous total in the year of 430,000,000, most of which came to this country. In Denmark itself the consumption of margarine has not increased, owing to the rise in price following on reduced American exports caused by the failure of the maize crop in 1901. To compensate for this large quantities of Russian butter were imported into Denmark, and sold at very low prices.

Poultry in Summer.

The following practical poultry advice is given by Mr. F. C. Hare, Chief of the Poultry Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

SALE OF FOWLS.—It is most profitable to dispose of old hens before the moulting period. There is then a ready market for fowls on account of the scarcity of chickens. At the present time 6 cents a pound live weight is offered for hens by a large produce company in Toronto ; eight cents a pound plucked weight is paid in Montreal. In several months live chickens can be bought by the produce merchants for the above rates, or for a small increase in them. If the hens are held until Fall they will not realize as great a profit as they will this month, owing to the reduction of the market price for fowls and the loss of flesh in moulting. Hens should be sold when they are two years old. All male birds should be sold in the Summer and cockerels used for breeding the following season.

SALE OF CHICKENS.—From eleven cents to twelve cents per pound live weight is offered in Toronto and Montreal for chickens weighing over one and a half pounds each. The prices correspond approximately to fourteen cents and fifteen cents per pound plucked weight, and twenty cents and twenty-two cents per pound drawn weight. It is evident that an increased profit will be realized by selling the earlier and heavier cockerels of the flock at once. This profit corresponds to the increased revenue derived by market gardeners and fruit growers who place staple articles on the market before the regular supply is available.

Crate fattening for chickens is also recommended by the department as a profitable undertaking.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

There are continued light sales in barreled pork and beef. Prices show little change in local market. Pork is rather firmer. In pure lard the market is dull. Our trade were quite well stocked at the higher prices. Sales have been very light. In refined lard the lower price is causing improved demand. Fresh meat shows but a fair business. Beef is unchanged in price, with quite a wide range between local and Western stock. Lamb has a large sale and is rather higher this week. Veal, mutton and pork show small sales. We quote :

Messrs. Dunn Bros., whose packing house at Musquash was burned a short time ago, will rebuild at Fairville. Their smoked meats have more than a local reputation.

DAIRY PRODUCE

TORONTO.

BUTTER. — No change in butter is quotable since a week ago but the condition remains unrelieved, and accumulations continue to increase. Up to date 61,000 boxes have been exported as compared with 133,000 for the same period last year, and the production has been in excess of a year ago. Round lots of tub are being brought into the country at 12 to 12½c. and altogether the outlook is not bright. One dealer remarked : "We must buy at prices at which we can export." We quote :

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 18 0 19
" solids, fresh	0 17 0 18
Dairy rolls, large
" prints	0 15 0 16
" in tubs, best	0 14 0 15
Under qualities	0 12 0 13

CHEESE.—The market is easier since last week but with no change quotable. Shipments to date from Canada this season are now over 1,000,000 boxes, an increase of over 100,000 boxes over last year. We quote :

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 09½ 0 10
" twins, new	0 10 0 10½

MONTREAL.

EGGS.—This week shows larger receipts in Montreal, and, although there is no quotable change in the market, still there is a much easier feeling, which makes all the dealers anxious to keep their receipts cleaned up. This, we understand, they have succeeded in doing for the past few weeks, but there is some surplus now over current requirements. We hear that the buying price west of Toronto is at 11 to 11½c., whereas in Eastern Ontario, the price is ruling about 13c. The jobbing trade is done on a basis of 15 to 15½c. for straight stock ; 17 to 17½c. for selects.

BUTTER.—The market for both dairy and creamery continues to drag, there being no life whatever to the situation. Finest creamery is being bought at 18¼ to 18½c., but we understand that it is going into storage, there being no export orders for same. It is also necessary to put dairy butter into storage as it arrives, the English market having refused to respond to offers which have been made, and dealers have so far not felt willing to take a loss on their purchases. The ruling buying price is about 14c. in Montreal. The grocers and jobbing trade require to pay about 15 to 16c. for selections. We quote :

Finest creamery, tuos or boxes	0 19 0 19½
Prints	0 19½ 0 20
Dairy, tubs	0 14½ 0 15

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—Receipts have not been so large during the week. The fact that farmers are now haying affects shipments. Prices are still low, but for strictly first-class goods, quite full figures are obtained, and there is ready sale.

EGGS.—The price is well maintained at quite full figures for the season. Local supply does not seem large, and Prince Edward Island shippers hold prices firm.

CHEESE.—The market is rather easy. Quite full though lower prices still rule. The local market will only take twin cheese. For these there is a good demand. We quote :

Butter, creamery prints, per lb	0 22 0 24
" creamery solids (fresh made), per lb	0 20 0 22

THE TRAVELLERS AND THEIR HOLIDAYS

HOW THE TRAVELLERS ARE SPENDING THE HOLIDAYS.

THE grocery travellers of Western Ontario entered upon their vacation last Saturday heralded by ideal weather. Nor was Old Probs. alone propitious. Saturday was the date on which the fraternity who centre in London held their great picnic by the blue waters of Lake Erie at Port Stanley, while the eastern brethren at the same time were enjoying their annual "snack" at Alton. Many took in these events. Others spent the day in preparation for the migration on Monday.

It would be hard to say what is the most popular resort with the travellers. Of course, the various points in Muskoka drew a large proportion. The Kawartha

August 1st.—Off for the Holidays.

Lakes had their devotees, the Thousand Islands, the Soo, Couchiching, were favorite points, and a couple of jolly parties headed for Saratoga, New York and Atlantic City.

"I used to think that nothing could ever tire me," remarked a husky Toronto traveller, "but that time is over. I shall take a lot of comfort out of these holidays." This seemed to be the general feeling, and doubtless the two weeks off the road will amply repay itself in the added vim with which the boys will strike in after August 15.

THE GROCER has endeavored to learn where the travellers are spending their holidays, and presents the following list:

From the firm of T. B. Escott & Co.:—

E. W. Eardley has gone to England.

Chas. Crozier is spending the time with some friends at Bayfield.

Jno. Bowers will take a run up to the Soo.

W. H. Escott will spend his vacation at Port Stanley.

J. E. Carswell will take a trip up the lakes.

Earl Insley will visit the home of his parents in the Maritime Provinces.

Representatives of T. Long & Bro. Limited:

Mr. Higgins is spending his vacation around the Muskoka Lakes.

Mr. Burns will pass the time in the vicinity of Parry Sound.

Representatives of W. H. Gillard & Co.:

Geo. H. Carley intends taking a fishing excursion to Young's Point, Kawartha Lakes, near Peterborough.

W. J. Turner is taking a trip down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, Quebec and the Saguenay River.

Menns Hagey is taking his wife and little daughter to Lake Rosseau, Muskoka, where they will spend the vacation fishing and boating.

John Hagey will take a rather extended trip to the Pacific Coast, taking in Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Vancouver and other places of interest.

M. P. Malone thinks he can find no better place to recuperate than at Hamilton Beach, where he has lately become a property holder.

Representatives of Davidson & Hay:—

R. H. Hemstreet will spend the holidays at St. Thomas, Port Stanley and the northern lakes.

A. D. Leslie is enjoying the breezes at Roche's Point, Lake Simcoe.

W. Anderson counts on taking in the Canadian Henley Regatta at St. Kitts.

W. C. Adams will experiment with fishing tackle on Lake Couchiching.

C. Newman will take a brief trip down the St. Lawrence.

C. Shields will visit Saratoga.

Sam Qua will try the airs of Muskoka.

A. L. McKechnie will make a trout fishing expedition to Eugenia Falls.

W. B. Smith will be found on his fruit farm, Smithonia, Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Representatives of H. P. Eckardt & Co.:

W. J. Bradley and F. J. Blackburn will visit New York and Atlantic City.

F. Anderson will spend the vacation in Montreal.

J. W. Charles will go to Winnipeg.

S. MacKenzie will take a run down to Philadelphia.

J. E. Adams will go on a fishing trip to Stoney Lake.

C. E. Kyle will recuperate at the Welland, St. Kitts.

J. W. Shouldice will enjoy the scenery at Balsam Lake.

A. J. Chalue will go to Manitoulin and incidentally see his friend, Mr. Gamey.

R. Muat will take a run down to Kingston and the Thousand Islands.

August 15th.—Back from the Holiday.

R. E. Smith will spend the holidays in Hamilton.

Representatives of The Eby Blain Co., Limited:

J. W. Borsbery will take a trip to Muskoka and the Soo.

F. J. Watson will visit Winnipeg.

R. W. Ritchie will rest at Orangeville.

W. T. Wickham will be found at Brantford.

H. A. Ernest will spend his holidays at New Hamburg.

J. A. Milne will take a trip to Manitoulin.

T. A. Wilson will catch fish in the Rideau Lakes.

Representatives of Warren Bros.:

E. G. Williams will be found at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

W. B. Dack will take a trip to Grand Rapids.

Wm. Glover will spend the two weeks at Saratoga.

Col. Stowman will spend the holidays in Hamilton.

D. J. Warren will join those at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Representatives of John Sloan & Co. :

J. B. Mayled will be found at Southampton ; J. Hayden will spend his time at Preston and St. Kitts.

H. Brett will go on a fishing trip to Caboconk and Lindsay.

Fred Ramsey will holiday in Muskoka.

W. Maxwell has just returned from Orchard Beach and Lake Champlain.

Chas. Parsons will live on the Island.

F. C. Manning will visit Stouffville and Jackson's Point.

F. M. Tait will stay at Oshawa Beach.

Frank M. Sloan will spend the holidays in Muskoka.

Representatives of T. Kinnear & Co. :—

R. Keyes will find his recreation at Southampton.

E. G. Bingham will be at Barrie.

L. Chapman will be found at Sault Ste Marie.

J. B. McRae will spend his holidays on a fishing trip.

T. H. Kinnear will spend the vacation in Muskoka.

T. Kinnear has just returned from the Coast.

Representatives of F. W. Humphrey :—

T. Dowswell will take a trip through the Muskoka Lakes.

T. L. Willis will accompany Mr. Dowswell.

Wm. Kindree will holiday at Jackson's Point.

Wm. Mitchell will try the fishing in Scugog Lake.

J. Shaver will recuperate at Orangeville.

TRAVELLERS' NOTES.

Ma and Mac are off on a honeymoon trip up the Georgian Bay.

THE BRANTFORD TRAVELLER'S YARN.

(By a Young Traveller.)

THE Hamilton traveller finished his yarn with a sigh and sank back into the balsam boughs. Only an occasional glow from his pipe revealed the contented smile which played over his features ; while from his lips there floated an occasional ring of incense.

A solemn silence hung over the party. The London man looked as if he had lost his sample case, and the big fellow from Toronto bore a pained expression on his boyish countenance. The old duck from Brantford, half hidden in the shadow, alone appeared unruffled. The man from under the mountain had scored. There was no doubt of it. He was ready to admit it himself.

The party were spending the fortnight under canvas and the Muskoka zenith, and this was their first night in camp.

An afternoon spent hooking the speckled beauties followed by a hot fish supper ran well into the night, and now with the camp-fire burning clear and the pipes smoking free, the campers lounged carelessly on piles of evergreens, while the stars twinkled brightly overhead and the waves lapped gently against the rocks on the shore.

Upon this sacred stillness the Hamilton traveller had rudely broken and recited his tale. His comrades were justly aggrieved, especially, as the London man urged, he had set such a hot pace. But the Hamilton man cared not, and puffed away like a god, careless of mankind. The Windsor man was wondering where he had heard that yarn before ; and the cub traveller from Guelph was marvelling at the mendacity of mankind, when there was a crackling of branches on the tent side, as the Brantford man sat up and reached over for a coal to re-light his brier.

A SERVICEABLE GRIP.
Much used in the Good Old Summer Time.

" Yes," he said, as he sank back again into the shadow, " that was a pretty fierce storm, but it was nothing to one I experienced last August at Pine Lake. You will remember, boys, I was not with you last year. My wife's rich aunt was visiting us, and we thought we would make things solid with the old girl by treating her right up to the handle.

" Well, we hired a cottage at Pine Lake and packed off the wife, the kids and the old girl for the Summer. I was to run down during the August vacation.

" I was late getting in on my last trip, and on calling round to the house, I found a letter from my wife. She had arranged to give a small reception in honor of the aunt, and I was to bring the ice-cream without fail.

" Well, boys, I was up a tree. The train left in 20 minutes, and here I was half a mile from the station and another half-mile from a confectioner's. But if travelling does one thing for a man it trains him to think quick. I had figured it out in half a minute. There was a lightning freezer in the warehouse, why not take it along and make the ice-cream when I got to the cottage ?

" No sooner said than done. I caught on to the rear platform of the last coach as the express pulled out and swung the freezer in behind me.

" There were a half-dozen of the boys on the train, and they guyed me a lot about the freezer, but I wasn't going to disappoint the old girl ; not on your life.

" My train was delayed by a steer that insisted on derailing a freight ahead of us, and it was just dark when I got to the cottage, and sneaked in by the back way, for I saw that the company was there ahead of me, and I had had enough guying about the freezer that day already.

" Mary was in the kitchen when I got there, all in a flurry because I had not turned up. I explained the situation in three words. We have been married now 15 years and I never saw Mary rattled before, but I guess we were both up in the air that night. Well, I scalded out the freezer and Mary set to work mixing up the eggs, milk, sugar and things that go to make a bang-up frozen confection, and it was not long before we had the stuff all ready and the lid of the freezer battened down, when Mary suddenly remembered that there was not a pound of ice on the shore.

" I can usually see the funny side of a situation, and I laughed,—just one short-lived cut-off-in-the-pride-of-youth sort of laugh. Mary gave me a look, and I went out on the shore to smoke.

" There had been a storm brewing that day, not only in the domestic circle, but in the blue empyrean. Hot ! Well say, boys, you know that cocker spaniel of mine—but that's another story. It was one of those intensely still nights when all nature seems overawed by the impending devilry of the elements. The stillness was oppressive ; the heat grew more and more intense. The shore side of the heavens was one great blot of Stygi[illegible] blackness. Not a cricket chirp[illegible] storm made me do some tall thinking. The rain must have lasted about two minutes, when the noise and roar redoubled. You would have thought an army corps equipped with maxim guns were outside storming a citadel. Then the hail struck us. Hail !- Well, I guess ! The first gust took off our chimney as neat as wax. There was not a piece of brick left the size of a walnut. The hail stones didn't do a thing to them. But that is not what I set out to tell you. When the storm was over, and it didn't last five minutes altogether, there were three bushels of hail-stones in the corner of the kitchen. Came in through where the chimney had been ; and, what has always puzzled me since, is how some of them got through the hole.

" Say, I didn't lose much time. Mary had been depending on that ice-cream, and I'm not the man to disappoint a woman. I picked out eight or ten of the smallest of those hail stones, broke them up with a hatchet, and when Mary had summoned up enough courage to come out to the kitchen again, I had that cream frozen to a standstill.

" Say, boys, when I told the aunt next morning how I worked the ice-cream racket, do you think she would believe me ? Not much ! But when I took her out to the kitchen and showed her what " of those stones, she gave right rized for doubting my word fe to spend this Sum- plantation in Cali- here to-night. was a great hands cordially with the old duck, and the Windsor man nodded approvingly to the cub from Guelph.

A TRAVELLER'S TRUE STORY.

A traveller who has just returned from a few days' fishing expedition near Parry Sound, tells a story which, while to some may seem incredible, he declares to be positively true. After some time spent in casting his line, he hooked a black bass, which he threw in a pool of water which lay in an indentation in the top of a rock. After again casting his line into the water and catching no more fish, the idea struck him that he would use the tail of the black bass for bait. He took the fish from the pool, struck its head on a rock and then cut off its tail, which he placed on his hook, throwing the body of the fish again into the pool of water. Again he was unsuccessful in catching more fish and, pulling his line from the water, he threw his rod over his shoulder and stood gazing at the scenery. All at once he felt a jerk upon his line, and in looking around, found that the bass which he thought he had killed had swallowed its tail with the hook on which it was used as bait.

DRUMMERS' "SNACK" AT ALTON.

For the seventh year the drummers' snack at Alton has turned out a great success. Saturday last all of Alton's business places closed up ; the farmers from the country side flocked in, and the occasion was made a general holiday, the drummers owning the town.

In the morning there were water sports, and in the afternoon field sports, including a baseball contest between Alton and Acton, which resulted in a victory for Acton by a score of 9 to 3.

The Highlanders' band, of Toronto, furnished the music for the outdoor events, and also for the concert which was given in a spacious tent, erected especially for the occasion. The talent, apart from the Highlanders' band and Miss Mabel Thursam, was furnished exclusively by the "drummers," and demonstrated that among those present was matter for several first-class vaudeville companies. Sol. Walters, John Turton, Benjamin Hill, Lew Chapman, Jack MacKie and W. Thompson especially distinguished themselves. At the business meeting officers for 1904 were elected as follows : Honorary presidents, William Algie, James Hooper and Dr. Algie ; president, E. E. W. Moore ; secretaries, William Colville, Toronto, and C. Smith, Hamilton ; home secretary, Robert Algie, Alton ; treasurer, S. E. Ryan ; executive committee, R. Keyes, Bert Menzie, F. C. Hunt, John MacKie, E. F. Clarke, Guy Long, F. Menzie, W. H. Thompson, Robert Algie, C. Smith, S. E. Ryan, and William Colville ; honorary members, Sol. Walters and Benjamin Hill.

The travellers present included representatives from Toronto, Hamilton, London, Guelph and Owen Sound, among whom were R. Keyes, James Hooper, C. Smith, F. C. Hunt, B. T. Ward, G. H. Long, T. E. Ryan, C. T. Beatty, J. M. Smith, J. E. Smith, J. C. Sloan, J. Yates, G. Takamoto, A. Hibbert, J. Duffy, T. Myers, J. Maxwell, W. N. Irving, L. P. Mason, D. G. Grant, W. E. Armstrong, E. G. IS IT TRUE?

I hear that some vinegar, tea and spice travellers are endeavoring to " make hay while the sun shines" during the grocer travellers' holidays. If such be the case, I hope that these gentlemen will receive but scant courtesy from our friends the retail grocers, and that they will also be remembered by all of us who are taking a well-earned holiday.

THE WALL PAPER TRADE

The New Fall Goods.

THIS year the variety, both of pattern and color, and the taste displayed in the wall papers, surpasses the efforts of any preceding year. A run over the new offerings has fully demonstrated the fact that in Canada we are manufacturing as tasty and up-to-date wall-coverings as any country in the world. We do not, it is true, produce the Japanese, or the very expensive styles of the United States, but outside of a very few lines, our patterns for next year should be a matter of pride to every Canadian.

The most notable features of the new designs are the beautiful clear colorings and the deceiving imitations of almost any woven fabric. The most delicate as well as the deepest shade appears with a distinctness and decision which inspire confidence in their lasting qualities, and the care exercised in the blending of colors bespeaks a like care in the quality of paper and filling of orders.

To a representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER the new samples were a revelation. Hundreds of designs that were previously firmly believed to be obtainable only by importation were shown him as products of our own mills, and it was with a thrill of pride that he recognized the progress that is being made.

The moire papers that sold so well last season are shown in great variety, both plain, flowered and striped, smooth and embossed. One large intricate design in a yellow and white would convince anyone at a distance of a few feet that it was a silk cloth, and many others were very difficult to think of as paper. Gold as well as silver moire effects are used, and a combination of small stripes and flowers on a moire background with a dotted gold line running through it was particularly attractive. Self-tones in moires and other styles existed in large numbers, and are really the choicest, neatest papers. In many a fine embossed pattern in moire finish ran through the regular design.

Some of the fabric effects are entirely new. The Bagdad tapestry is a perfect imitation of the cloth, and with the colors used, is still more deceiving ; the tapestries this year are finer and neater than ever, with some very pretty small floral designs in addition to the regular styles. The Persian tapestry is a most beautiful paper, being a tapestry with Oriental patterns and colors. The Renaissance designs and stencil effects are also worthy of mention, the former a mass of curves and scrolls, and the latter a mass of square-cut conventional design standing clear-cut on a plain background. The trellis-work with climbing rose that has had such a run in the United States is made here in every color, and for a third wall or panel gives a very decided tone to a room.

The blues and browns are particularly remarkable for their variety of shades that are new and neat, but every color is seen in all its shades. Very many small conventional patterns strive with the larger for favor. Narrow stripes and wide appear, running down to the merest threads. A stripe of two inches plain, with an adjacent stripe of the same width with a small separated pattern, is an ideal bedroom paper.

In the United States there has been a steady demand this season for the moire effects, particularly for use in bedrooms and on ceilings, and also for what is called crown hangings. This term is used to denote the paper where the pattern of the wall is finished in the border, making it appear that the paper was made for the room. Such designs as a clematis or rose vine climbing up over a trellis and bursting into bloom at the top are so beautiful that every one admires them. Some are applying to moire bedroom papers, flowers, and as a frieze for a plain paper the pattern alone of the frieze paper is cut out and pasted over the wall paper, providing a less symmetrical and stiff dividing line.

In nurseries and other children's rooms the English picture papers are in demand. Some of these are illustrated with the Mother Goose stories and rhymes, forest scenes, streams and bridges, games and animals.

Japanese designs in dark shades are being sold for dens, and for the same room there are many Eastern designs similar to those used in carpets or shawls. Most of the latter come from France. Germany, too, is providing her share ; one paper for a bathroom shows a yacht and an old sailor, and others are gay with brightly-colored birds and flowers.

A new paper on the Yankee market is called Sanitas ; it is made of cotton cloth and finished in oil colors in prints, plain colors and tiles, and in dull, glazed and varnished effects.

New Lines of Wall Paper for 1904.

THE new line of samples for 1904, which has been prepared by Staun tons Limited, Toronto, will doubtless be looked upon by the trade as the choicest collection ever shown by this house. Their travellers are starting out on the road with every confidence in being able to more than meet any competition with the new samples.

Every possible need of the retailer seems to have been provided for, from the highest grade right through to the very cheapest lines, and the firm seem to have been particularly fortunate in their selection of designs. It is a real pleasure, in turning over this line, to see how the best has been taken out of each and every design. Those accustomed to looking over the many lines that are out on the market each season know how often the value of a good design has been lost in the coloring ; but here we see the color scheme in every design developed to such perfection, that one feels the mastery of this art possessed by those responsible for this important branch of the work.

All the popular styles are well represented, and in addition to this some attractive novelties are provided, but care has been taken when selecting these to avoid having extremes that would remove them from the class of every-day sellers. Moire silk patterns for walls and ceilings in very handsome effects are to be seen. Among the tapestries is a very handsome Bagdad stripe, also a Persian paper produced in the rich bright effects so characteristic of the East. A number of attractive stripes in silks and plain two-tone effects should prove very interesting to the decorator. An extensive line of silk papers is shown in a great variety of designs and colourings. The rich effect of these beautiful papers makes them more extensively in demand than ever. Some new pulp grounds are shown with a rich stained effect, and these are specially decorative in producing fibre effects. The firm also shows a good range of small stencil effects, on both silk and plain grounds. These are particularly well adapted for libraries, vestibules, etc., also for panelling and other special work.

Messrs. Stauntons Limited, Toronto, extend a cordial invitation to any of the wall paper trade visiting the "Queen City" during the Exhibition, or at any other time, to visit their factory, 944 Yonge street. The firm are always glad to meet any wall paper dealers and to show the process of wall paper manufacture. Dealers who wish to place their orders for Spring requirements while in Toronto will be carefully attended to.

WALL PAPER MANUFACTURERS

Wall paper dealers who intend to have the "Best that is to be had" should see the "Staunton" samples before ordering for Fall or Spring.

Our designs are so attractive and our colorings so effective that the dealer handing "Staunton" Wall Papers will extend his trade and his profits.

THE BEET-SUGAR INDUSTRY.

THERE are four beet-sugar factories in Ontario, and they are being watched with great interest in the experiment they have undertaken. If it can be demonstrated that the raising of sugar beets and the production of sugar therefrom can be made permanently successful over a considerable district in Ontario the door will be opened for a very extensive industry. Our consumption of sugar, which is yearly increasing and which will continue to increase with our rapidly-growing population, will absorb the product of 30 ordinary factories.

The money which would thus be kept within the country would aggregate an immense sum. At the same time the by-products would form the basis for other extensive industries and the pulp makes an excellent fodder for cattle either for milk or beef.

The shortness of the season, giving the employment an intermittent character, is a disadvantage which would be discounted by the growth of auxiliary industries above referred to.

The companies in the field are reticent when approached for information as to prospects, but from letters at hand it may be gathered that though somewhat backward on account of the cold weather during the month of June the present crop outlook is very satisfactory. One factory reports in the neighborhood of 4,000 acres of beets under cultivation, and another that the acreage is large, exceeding that of last year, and distributed among 1,200 farmers. One company is putting in a $75,000 pulp dryer, so that this by-product may be shipped to all parts of the province in bales as a fodder.

The tone of the communications received from the beet-sugar people was confident, and from the experience of the Michigan beet-sugar centres there seems good reason to anticipate success for the industry.

The withdrawal of the European sugar bounties in accordance with the Brussels convention, which is to take effect September 1, should have a stimulating effect on the Canadian industry, and the surtax on goods from Germany, the source of much of our imported sugar, incidentally, of course, affords a measure of protection.

THE ACCUMULATION OF BUTTER.

WHAT is becoming of our butter? As noted in our market columns, exports of Canadian butter to date aggregate 61,000 boxes, as compared with 133,000 boxes for the corresponding period last year. There is no reason to believe that the make has been less this year; in fact dealers are unanimous in declaring that there has been much more butter made this year than last.

For the last month the export trade has been exceedingly dull, and from the above figures there must be at least 72,000 boxes in cold storage awaiting a turn in the market, and every day accumulations are increasing.

A number of commission merchants who were interviewed on the subject declined to hazard any prophecy as to the course of the market, but one was emphatic in declaring that butter must be bought here at lower rates if it was hoped to unload on the English market. In the meantime, the problem remains as to the whereabouts of these large accumulations.

MOLASSES SITUATION.

THAT the situation of molasses is shaping to an interesting position will be apparent to our readers by glancing at the comparative statement of exports to July 16, 1902 and 1903, given below. From this report, which is authentic, as it is compiled from lists of aggregate shipments as shown by the market reports from all the commission houses in Barbados, it is clearly evident that the trade will have to look for higher prices. The fact, and an important one to bear in mind, is that the season of 1902 was commenced with larger stocks in importers' hands than was the case in 1903, and as the stocks in the United States, Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces are only normal, these points cannot be looked to very confidently to supply demands from here:

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF MOLASSES EXPORTED TO JULY 16, 1902 AND 1903.

		Puns.	Hdds.	Bbls.	Equal to total Puns.
1902	United Kingdom	393	1	1	392
	United States	1,381	85	81	1,443
	Newfoundland	13,217	1,940	2,626	14,843
	Montreal	11,215	1,018	631	11,881
	Quebec	3,914	755	391	4,388
	British Provinces	7,804	696	1,515	8,531
	Total	37,924	4,495	5,245	41,470
1903	United Kingdom	193	....	....	193
	United States	577	99	15	629
	Newfoundland	11,517	1,776	2,126	12,936
	Montreal	600	77	73	656
	Quebec	1,501	473	341	1,822
	British Provinces	7,445	767	769	8,020
	Total	21,833	3,192	3,324	24,256

In 1902 there were 3,900 puncheons shipped from Barbados after July 16, and the most reliable information places the quantity remaining for shipment this year, after same date, as 3,500 puncheons, nearly all of which will go to the Maritime Provinces. It is only necessary to compare the quantities sent to the St. Lawrence in 1902 and 1903 to see that there will be the greatest scarcity of molasses this year that Canada has ever experienced, especially as the season of 1902 was commenced with larger stocks in importers' hands than in 1903. Imports to the United States, Newfoundland and Maritime Provinces are only normal, and these points will probably not have very much to resell.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION IN GERMANY—ITS LESSON.

GERMANY is, par excellence, the land of paternal government, of state-owned and operated railways, of universal and compulsory military service, of compulsory industrial insurance, of protective tariffs and export bounties. Its government, in form an autocracy, is in substance a bureaucracy, and with the omnivorousness characteristic of the bureaucracy it has arrogated to itself many functions which we, with our laisser faire doctrines, have left to individual initiative.

We, with our inherited traditions of individual liberty and jealousy of governmental interference, have been perhaps too ready to agree to the proposition that the best government governs least and to regard with a supercilious compassion our over-governed cousins in Germany.

In the matter of education, the contrast between our system and that of the Germans is clearly marked. Our system provides for primary, secondary and university education, and that, so far, we are not inferior to the Germans is proved by the fact that our graduates who attend the German research, or, rather, investigation schools are in every respect on a par with their German confreres.

The Germans also have their primary schools, gymnasiums and universities corresponding to our public schools, high schools and universities, but they have built up alongside these a system of industrial and technical education which has wrought wonders in the industrial life of Germany and become the envy and model of the rest of the world.

Ernest L. Harris, U. S. commercial agent at Eibenstock, Saxony, in a recent report to the U. S. Bureau of Commerce and Labor, gives some interesting information as to the status and growth of industrial schools in Germany, with particular reference to his own district, Saxony.

With a population of slightly over 4,000,000, Saxony has 287 industrial schools, or one for every 14,641 inhabitants. These schools are divided, reversing the order of the report, into (I) industrial primary or continuation schools; (II) industrial schools for women, girls and children; (III) industrial schools for drawing and painting; (IV) special industrial schools, and (V) advanced industrial schools.

The first class, of which there are 44 in Saxony, are designed to give boys and girls who have completed the public school course a chance to prepare themselves in a general way for some trade or particular branch of industry without the express intention of following the same.

The second and third classes afford general industrial education to women and children, and instruction in painting and industrial design for the artistic textile industries of the kingdom. There are 53 schools in these classes.

The fourth class, special industrial schools, numbers 150 and is most important, training young men to become expert workmen in some 28 different trades, such as architects, barbers, tinmen, brewers, woodcarvers, tailors, lacemakers, watchmakers, etc. The curriculum of the tin and metal includes arithmetic, drawing, physics, bookkeeping, geometry, sketching, mechanics, correspondence, German, modeling, chemistry, besides requiring the student to devote 28 hours each week to practical work in the tin and metal workshops of the school and city.

The advanced industrial schools, of which there are 12 in Saxony, are typified by one at Chemnitz, which is divided into five minor schools, known as (I) industrial academy, (II) architecture, (III) machine construction, (IV) dyeing, and (V) industrial drawing departments. The same standard is required for entrance on these schools as entrance to the universities, with the addition of two years' practical experience in the branch it is proposed to pursue, and the usual length of the course is four years.

These are the schools which have given the Germans the mastery in scientific industry. The term industrial school or technical school gives a wrong impression. They are practically technical universities in which workshop practice is given a large place, and in which specialization has been carried into every branch. The School of Practical Science in Toronto, the School of Mines in Kingston and the Faculty of Applied Science at McGill in certain lines are performing similar work, but the Germans have provided for every industry in their schools of science, and the Government has found money thus spent to be a most profitable investment. The lower industrial schools, which correspond to the manual training schools now being experimented with in Canada, produce a gratifying skill and dexterity on the part of the workmen, but it is in the trained scientific minds of the graduates of her advanced industrial schools that the secret of Germany's industrial advancement lies.

If the German student has a motto it is "thorough." The secret of their industrial success was found in the bottom of a laboratory crucible. Three years in the primary school, nine in the gymnasium, two years in the workshop and four in the advanced industrial school are required to turn out the German industrial scientist. There are no short cuts.

Manual training schools, drawing classes, popular science lectures, have their place. They produce bright, intelligent workmen. But do not expect too much. The industrial scientist is made, not born. And it takes time to make him. The lesson that Germany teaches is that future industrial success depends upon the application of trained scientific minds to the industrial problems of the day, and the assistance of trained hands in subordination to the directing mind.

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

THE annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade will be held in Charlottetown, P.E.I., on August 19. As its name implies, the Board is composed of the representatives from local boards of trade in the three provinces, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island. Those which annually attend its meetings are representatives of the best business interests of the three provinces.

The Board is not, of course, a legislative one, but it is none the less an important and influential institution, and its opinions are respected by the politicians, not only in the Maritime Provinces, but at Ottawa as well.

The members of the Board of Trade, who year after year meet and deliberate upon matters appertaining to the welfare of the commercial interests of the Maritime Provinces, deserve the highest encouragement from the business men in that part of the Dominion. While the Board of Trade receives a great deal of encouragement, it should receive still more ; and it is to be hoped that the business men in the Maritime Provinces will take even more interest in its proceedings than they even have hitherto.

There are towns in the Maritime Provinces which are still without local boards of trade, and it is to be hoped that while the existing boards will become even more successful than they have in the past, those towns which are without boards will, during the ensuing year, organize and affiliate with the central organization—one of the most important organizations of business men in the Dominion.

THE VACATION TIME.

THE permanence of the travellers' holiday should now be assured. The trade seem to have taken kindly to the idea. Stocks have been sorted up for the two weeks and mail orders are quite adequate for the little business which may have been overlooked. Office employes have also been turned loose to enjoy the fresh air and sunshine and many houses have made an effort to get all the holidays off by the middle of the month.

The agreement on a common period, which at one time seemed imperilled, has been a most satisfactory feature, and should be extended next year. It is desirable that the manufacturing grocers and allied firms should be enlisted with the general wholesalers, another year, in this holiday movement. Nor should the movement be confined to the grocery trade of Western Ontario. We would commend to the consideration of the different firms interested the proposition of a general Dominion travellers' vacation for 1904. There would doubtless be difficulties crop up. But difficulties are made to be surmounted and no more grateful task could be undertaken than that of harmonizing the various interests concerned.

In the meantime, whether by lake or stream, in the woodland camp or the popular resort, the traveller is extended by THE GROCER the very heartiest wishes for a most enjoyable vacation.

BACK FROM WELL-EARNED VACATION.

Mr. H. L. Clarke, Haliburton, who has been doing a nice business there for a number of years past has just returned from a month's vacation spent with friends in the Western States. He had rather an unpleasant experience with the C.P.R. steamers. A ticket agent in Chicago sold him a through ticket to Toronto, including berths and meals on the steamer, and made no provision whatever for the berths. The result was that Mr. Clarke and his little family were unable to get any accommodation from Sault Ste Marie to Owen Sound. This is a matter that the higher officials of that company should see to and very promptly. Other business men have suffered discomfort in the same way. The policy of this railway company has always been to do everything possible for those using their line, and no doubt they will follow this matter up, and deal very severely with the careless official in Chicago.

We do not pretend to be gifted with second sight or possessed of Infallible Judgment.

But we do claim to have facilities to base reasonably sound conclusions upon, that are denied many others.

In the matter of "SALADA" Natural Ceylon Greens for example. With our large, varied and constantly expanding connection, we have been able to test these against Japans in the most thorough manner. . . The result being a continual flow of repeat orders, that puts contra argument out of court.

"SALADA" Natural Green is sold in sealed lead packets only, same form as the famous Black Teas of this brand.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, August 6, 1903.

TRADE this week is distinctly marked by the holiday spirit, little life is manifest, and orders coming to hand are of limited character, all tending to show that the move for uniformity of travellers' holidays has been well received by the trade generally, who have made all provision possible by previous stocking to make the movement a success. We have no changes to record since our last issue. In canned goods the demand has been somewhat flat, prices, however, continue extremely firm, and stocks are materially diminishing. Coffee has been moving indifferently, with prices firm. Spices are still uninteresting with marked firmness in price. Rice and tapioca are meeting with a little attention and prices generally are uncertain. Syrups and molasses on the home market are slow, but with a firm tendency in price. The home tea trade is not moving briskly and the general feeling is that it is unnecessarily slow, buyers showing little inclination to move in face of some attractive samples which are showing. The reports of London and primal markets all points to strong positions, and no weakening in prices is apparent. In sugar, the situation is unchanged since our last issue; sales have been moving slowly on the local market, with New York market showing decidedly more firmness.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been a little easing off in demand for canned goods since our last issue, previous quotations maintaining firm. We still have to remark the lowness of stocks of all attractive lines and a probable stiffening in prices. We quote:

COFFEES.

There has been but limited demand shown for coffee since our last issue. A little improvement in the interest has, however, been noted, and previous quotations remain firm. The New York market denotes more activity in the lower grades consequent upon reports from primal markets of crops being less during August than estimates. The milder grades were slow and business unattractive. We quote:

SUGAR.

The weakness noted in our last was short-lived, and the market has quickly recovered its former tone, and has even developed strength. Receipts for week have been light, and without pressure to sell, the markets assumed a more hopeful phase, and we have now to record an advance of 1-16 for the week with large sales on basis of 2c. c. & f. for 95 test, equal to 2 1-32 for 96 test c. & f., which is in turn equal to 3 23-32 duty paid. Early in the week quite considerable business was reported at 1-32 advance, embracing 50,000 to 75,000 bags centrifugals. Since then sales have moved readily at a full 1-32 advance, and at the close the market is reported very strong, with holders asking further advance and refiners buyers at quotations. Receipts for week ending July 29 were 22,717 tons, with meltings 41,000 tons, an increase of 2,000 tons in meltings for week. Total stocks in United States four ports are 307,032 tons, the figures being reduced over 18,000 tons for week. European markets are reported firmer with August beets quoted at 8s. 0¾d., and September 8s. 2¼d. The former figure is equal to 3.95 for 96 test centrifugals duty paid New York, so that the differential in favor of cane sugar is still maintained. There are no changes to record in New York refined sugar, list prices remaining unchanged, but latest advices report that all the shadings have been stopped and refiners are heavily oversold. The very large demand for refined, coupled with the strength of raws, may lead to advances in the official list at any moment. The local market is rather featureless, quotations remaining as last advised with a fair demand, and no special indications for immediate future, though it is probable that the market would quickly respond to an upward movement in New York. SPICES.

The home market in spices continues particularly slow; the extremely strong position of the primal markets, however, continues to maintain prices firm up to present basis. Pepper is being sold at fully-up prices. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

Trade still continues fairly active in rice, with previous quotations ruling. Outside markets denote trade as slow with prices uncertain. Attractive grades fetch fully-up prices. Tapioca is uninteresting. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There has been little moving in these lines for some time past, and the present week has been a particularly slow one. The New York markets are reporting actual sales as slow, with a distinctly firm tendency. The prospects point to a good Fall trade, with stocks low. We quote:

TEAS.

The home market in tea has not been marked by great activity since our last issue. Prices continue to rule firm at previous strong basis. The London market reports an improved tone on Indian teas, the offerings being of a particularly attractive character, the Assam and Darjeelings showing some fine selections. Some extra bright tippy broken Orange Pekoes met with strong competition at 2s. 2¾d. and 2s. 10½d. Ordinary grades were in fair demand and ruled firm at fully-up prices. Ceylons were in improved demand, and the outlook is considered most promising; the quality shows still further improvements. In China tea the first direct shipment of new season's tea has arrived, making good show for quality, and went off readily, the finest grades reaching up to 2s. per lb. Java tea received a fair share of attention, and prices in all grades were fully maintained. We quote:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

A slight falling off in demand has been noticeable since our last issue. Trade on the streets for futures, however, shows a degree of activity. Primal markets denote general satisfaction in the outlook for coming crops, and are expected to be good, both in quantity and quality. We quote:

GREEN FRUITS.

The fruit market continues to be the scene of operations aggregating large amounts each day. The holiday on Monday and rain Tuesday left the market somewhat congested that afternoon, but, as a rule, there is no difficulty experienced in disposing of offerings. Oranges have eased off about 25c. since last week, and Canadian tomatoes have fallen from $1 and $1.25 to 75 and 85c per basket. California pears are offered at $3 to $3.25, and watermelons can now be bought for from 20 to 30c. We quote:

VEGETABLES.

The vegetable market shows a brisk business. Supplies are large and the quality of the stuff marketed is excellent. Weather conditions are excellent and the gardeners are satisfied. Green peas bring 20 to 25c. per peck; new potatoes have eased off 5c. on the bushel; parsnips are now worth 30c. per bunch; green corn is down to 12½ to 18c. The first egg plants have appeared at 75c. to $1.25; pumpkins at 75c. to $1.25, and butter squash at $1.25 to $1.75 per dozen. We quote:

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

A firmer tone is apparent in rice, the recent advance of 10c. per 100 lb. in "B" and "C" rice stimulating the demand. Millers state higher prices within the range of possibilities. From reports of Mt. Royal Milling & Mfg. Co. we learn that in Europe rice has been advancing at the rate of about 1½d. per cwt. per week for several weeks past and the market is still tending upwards. The crop in Japan will be about 1-3 of last season's. The unsettled condition of affairs between Japan and Russia has caused the former to conserve its supply of rice and the Japanese Government is apparently preparing for possible contingencies, and looking after its food supplies. TEAS.

The chief interest in teas seems to be centered in Japans and Ceylon greens. In the former a few days ago it was expected that lower figures would eventuate in second and third crops, but did not materialize, on the contrary cables have been received to-day showing an advance of 4 per cent. on teas from 17 to 20c. for immediate shipment. China greens have eased off considerably during the past week and while there has been good speculating going on in the primary markets, it is very uncertain how Ping Sueys will be for the balance of the season. In China blacks there is not much change to note, lowest spot quotations for small lots being in the neighborhood of 7c for common and there is absolutely no inquiry for teas of this grade with exception of a few Pan Yongs and Paklings at from 10 to 13c. During the past few days there have been some inquiries for Formosa Oolongs, ranging from 26c. to 35c., but the market, as is usual at this time of the year, is comparatively bare of such goods. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Currants, unchanged from last week's figures. Raisins also are quiet, and demand moderate. Sultanas have dropped off this week, the crop prospects being excellent and stocks of last season large. The low prices ruling will likely increase the demands. In nuts, no change is noted. Prunes are ½c. higher than last year this time. Apricots 2c. higher. Peaches ½c. higher. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.

California green fruit has been selling freely, and good prices have ruled. At the sale on Monday, August 3, seven carloads were sold, pears bringing from $2.15 to $2.35 ; peaches $1.25 to $1.35 ; plums $1.85 to $2.25. Plums are light crop and other fruits normal with exception of pears, peaches and grapes. Canadian fruit is showing forward freely. Peaches, pears and plums being mostly in evidence. Crawford peaches are still unquoted, clingstones only being on sale and selling from 27½ to 40c. basket, plums 50 to 70c., pears about 40c. A few raspberries still left, going at 7½ to 9c, blackberries 7½ to 9c. and red currants scarce at 5 to 6c. Western tomatoes bring 75 to 90c. basket, with strong demand at those figures. Apples are selling at 15 to 25c. basket. We quote :

FISH.

Trade in general shows strong demand for all kinds of fish. Prices are firm. There is a scarcity this week of all kinds of fresh fish, especially haddock, owing to the appearance of the belligerent dog fish on the fishing grounds. The destruction by fire this week of one of the largest fish houses at Canso, N.S., will tend to stiffen prices. Very little, if any, brook trout on the market, season almost over now in these fish. HONEY.

Business this past week has shown nothing of an interesting feature. Trade is quiet. New stock is just coming in, but price asked, viz., 8 to 9c., is considered too high for business. Commission houses think 6¾ to 7c. about fair figuring owing to supplies of West Indian honey on the market. We quote :

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR.

No change in condition of market this week and no especial feature to note. Orders from country are small, buyers being fairly well supplied. An upward tendency of the market is the feeling of some of the leading dealers. We quote :

Some large orders for roasted coffees have been sent out this week by Chase & Sanborn, for points in British Columbia and the Yukon. Several tons of "Seal" brand being included in the shipment.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., August 4, 1903.

JULY has been a rather quiet month. Even in some of the more seasonable lines this has been noticed. Canned meats, which usually move freely at this season, have, in particular, been disappointing, and without, as far as could be seen, any good reason. The buying of Fall goods has tended to infuse some life, but even here, buyers take hold slowly. Markets show little change. Cream of tartar, while rather easier, is still unsettled, and the outlook seems to favor higher prices. Dealers are very unsettled in regard to canned goods. The situation is perhaps as unsatisfactory as it has ever been.

OIL.—In burning oil, prices are easier, having declined ½c. this week. This will somewhat affect the buying of future stock, which has been very large, because of the low prices and the advance which the market showed later last year. In linseed oil, there has been a marked decline of some five cents. A fair business is being done. Turpentine is unchanged. Receipts of cod oil are very light. Market is firm. We quote :

SALT.—In Liverpool coarse salt the market is well supplied. Prices are unchanged. There is a cargo now afloat. In fine salt, while there is a fair supply, there is still no Canadian cheese salt. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.—This is a matter of continued interest. There is much dissatisfaction. The trade hardly know where they are. Many, even of the larger buyers, are picking up goods outside of the association. Spot goods are unchanged. Lobsters are higher than last season, that is for export grades. Salmon are getting quite well cleaned up. Meats have had a very light sale this season. Fruits are in fair supply. The outlook is for firm prices for blueberries. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.—Dealers are very busy. New apples are having quite an active demand. Oranges are quite high. There is not a large sale at this season. Lemons tend to higher prices and the sale is good. Bananas continue very cheap, though for best stock quite full prices are asked. Melons have but a fair sale and some very fine stock is

DRIED FRUIT.—There is little spot business and dealers take hold of Fall stock slowly. In raisins and prunes profits during the year have been disappointing. Quite a few goods still held. New California prunes offering high also affects the sale. The low price at which new dates are offered has led to quite a demand. Currants opened at full figures. The market is rather unsettled. There is little sale here except for cleaned. Nuts are being bought. New filberts are being offered low. It would seem as if all lines would be quite plenty. Peanuts are higher. We quote :

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL. — Flour shows a steady sale. Prices of Ontario grades have shown very little change for some time. Manitobas advanced 15c. this week. Oatmeal and oats seem firm, but sales are light. Cornmeal is unchanged and quite full figures rule. Beans are lower and the sale dull. Barley and split peas are rather firmer. We quote :

Manitoba flour	$4 90	5 10
Best Ontario	4 20	4 30
Medium "	3 90	4 00
Oatmeal	4 10	4 25
Cornmeal	2 80	2 85
Mixed ngs, in small lots	18 00	20 00
Oats	0 40	0 44
Hand picked beans	2 00	2 10
Prime "	1 80	1 90

NOTES.

C. A. Chouillou, of Montreal, was in the city this week.

Domestic sardines are being more freely received, and new goods are being quoted.

There are times when brokers find too little business, but J. A. Tilton, the local representative for Windsor salt, has for some months found it impossible to supply the demand.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, August 3, 1903.

THE wholesale grocery business continues, as it has been for the last three or four weeks, only fairly active, but the volume of business done is above that of the usual mid-summer period in which business is rather light. Business is expected to be only nominal in extent for another week or two as the haying season is on and the farmers are too busy to do much general trading.

Collections for July, in most instances, have been much better than was expected, but they are not yet up to the usual standard. The situation in this respect is improving every month, and business men now expect a heavy Autumn trade, with good general conditions prevailing. There have been a few small failures and compromises this season, but the losses are light compared with what was anticipated when stocks broke so sharply a month or two ago.

* * *

Canned stocks, which had run low and were hard to replace, will now soon be replenished, the first consignment of canned peas having arrived last week. Prices for the season as a whole are yet somewhat uncertain, but it is hoped that some lines may not be so firm as last season.

Sugar and molasses are as firm as ever, and the former has been subject to an advance of ten cents per hundredweight. This is reported to have caused considerable buying, as it is rumored that a further advance may be made. The refineries are now heavily booked with orders.

The provision market becomes weaker week by week, and prices are much easier. Butter and cheese are coming in heavily, and the export demand being only nominal, prices have declined and are expected to drop off still further. All kinds of meat are in good supply, and prices have declined. Lamb, which has been unusually high, is now retailing at twelve cents. Eggs, which have been higher than usual at this season, have declined sharply and country merchants who have been buying largely will, no doubt, meet with loss.

Breadstuffs are unchanged, though flour is reported firmer in millers' hands. Flour quotations are : Ogilvie's Hungarian, $1.70 to $1.80 ; eighty per cent. patents, $1.05 to $1.15 ; ninety per cent. $3.65 to $3.75. Beans have declined five cents and are now $2 to $2.05. Cornmeal is $2.80 to $2.85. Oatmeal and rolled oats are firm at $4.05 to $4.10, but the demand is not heavy at present.

Hay is steady at $12 to $15 and is being bought up in small lots to meet present demands. There is only a limited quantity of old hay still held, and the present state of the hay crop, which is turning out much better than expected, hardly warrants holding for higher prices. The oat market is steady at 44 to 45c., but there is not a great quantity moving. Feeds are easier, the quotations being : Middlings, $23.50 to $24 ; bran, $22 to $23.

* * *

Late reports from the fishermen on the Banks show that the catch will not be so large as expected. Late reports from St. Pierre and from Newfoundland and Labrador also tend in the same direction. The shore fishermen have been doing well lately and large catches of fine mackerel have been made.

R.C.H.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, August 3, 1903.

THE week has been a peculiar one so far as weather is concerned and the first three days were as unseasonably cool as the previous week had been too hot. These extremes are affecting the crop and it is now pretty generally conceded that 50,000,000 will be about all that can be expected in Manitoba. The present indications are that any shortage of amount will be made up in price. The market for September has ranged during the week at 78 to 80½c. at which price the market closed Saturday. The crop will be much heavier in the Northwest Territories than in Manitoba, as the rains have been more frequent and more abundant in the extreme west.

Trade in the city continues to be good in all lines of groceries and produce with firm prices and few changes.

CANNED GOODS.—The situation continues full of interest. The combine refuses to quote prices on either tomatoes or corn until they know what the crop is going to be. Eastern wholesale houses are quoting new pack of tomatoes at $2.25 per case here. It is understood they are basing their price on what they know of the crop and the prices of past seasons.

New peas are quoted at $2 to $2.15, according to the quality of peas. Strawberries and raspberries (new pack) are each quoted at $3 per case.

EVAPORATED FRUITS.—The only quotations so far are for apricots and dealers state that these are now so high that the selling price for new pack will be 12 to 12½c.

DRIED FRUITS.—The trade in old stock is small but steady, and purchases of new raisins are being made for the first shipments at open prices so that as yet it is not possible to quote prices on new stock.

SUGARS.—The prices declined 10c. per cwt. on July 29, for which no reason was assigned; the trade is heavy in granulated, which is now quoted at $4.80.

COFFEE.—Green Rios are easier, being 7¼ to 7⅜ for 5s. and 7¼ to 7½ for 6s.

CANNED SALMON.—Canners have practically withdrawn all quotations from this market owing to shortage of pack.

CEREALS.—Cornmeal continues at the advance quoted recently and is firm at $1.80 per sack. Rolled oats have been at the same figure for months, being $1.75 for the 80-lb. sack. Granulated and standard meal at $2.40 for 98 lb. White beans are easier and are quoted at $2 to $2.10.

FLOUR.—The trade in flour is steady, but not active at the present time. There is a fair export demand and a medium domestic trade, but nothing striking. Prices remain firm at $2.15 for No. 1 patent flour.

GREEN FRUITS. — Early Crawford peaches are in. This is about the only new addition to the fruit list for the week. Blueberries are arriving in large quantities from Rat Portage, and are of fine size, very clean and free from bruises. Raspberries continue very dear, the small half pint box retailing at 20c., while wild fruit is 50c. retail for the three-pint pail. Prices for the week are: Peaches, $1.75 per crate for Crawfords and Idahos; plums $1.50 to $1.75; watermelons $5.50 per dozen; tomatoes 4 basket crates $2; bananas $2.75 to $3; oranges $4.50; lemons $5.50 to $6.

DRESSED MEATS.

BEEF.—Corresponding with the weaker feeling in beef cattle there is a weaker tendency in dressed meat and 7 to 7½c. is now the highest price quoted.

CURED MEATS.—The market is steady but rather lower, hams 14¼, shoulders 10⅜, breakfast bacon, bellies 14, backs 13⅜, spiced rolls (long) 11¾, (short) 11¼, drysalt, long, clear bacon 10½, backs 12.

LARD.—Lard in tierces, 10⅜; 50-lb. tubs, $5.30; 20-lb. pails, $2.20; cases 10, $6.65; 5-lb., $6.75; 3-lb., $7.35.

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

CREAMERY BUTTER. — The price of creamery butter has firmed up and 17 Winnipeg is said to have been declined by one creamery. The demand is fairly good and the offerings of the month are not large; 16½c. Winnipeg is the highest price actually quoted.

DAIRY BUTTER. — A good supply is now coming in and prices remain unchanged at 11 to 13, according to quality. The average quality, on the whole, is good.

CHEESE. — Cheese is firmer in small offerings and 9⅜ to 10 Winnipeg is quoted.

EGGS.—Receipts are small and exhibition demands have about exhausted supplies. Dealers offer 15 to 16c. Winnipeg, for case eggs subject to candling.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., July 31, 1903.

THE most interesting point before the wholesale grocers of the coast today is the stage of water in the lower Yukon river. By this time there are thousands of tons of supplies for next Winter's stocks of foodstuffs in Dawson, on the way up the river. Nearly all the vessels which left Vancouver, Seattle and other ports with large cargoes a couple of months ago, have returned from St. Michaels, where the goods were discharged. The river steamers take them from there up the river to Dawson. This transportation via St. Michaels and the Yukon is of such uncertain nature that a great quantity of the goods intended to supply the markets of the Klondike during the long Winter, may never reach their destination this season. The wholesale trade of Vancouver and Victoria is interested in this, because if the goods which have been sent in by the long water route, do not reach their destination, there will be a rush for orders from here via the White Pass railway and the upper Yukon, down to Dawson.

All reports from the lower Yukon indicate that a lower stage of water has never been known since navigation was begun on the river. And to make it worse, the water was still falling at last accounts. Even on the upper river, which usually has a fair stage of water all through the open season, there has been some difficulty experienced by the low water on some of the bars with which the river is frequently punctuated.

It is a very risky method of shipping goods into Dawson, to send them via St. Michaels, and up the Yukon, but the big commercial companies of Dawson and the north, such as The Northern Commercial Co., The North American Trading and Transportation Co., and The Alaska Commercial Co., have had their own ocean steamers chartered, and have also put on river boats on the lower Yukon. Until this Summer they have been fairly successful in getting goods in in time. This year there has been another difficulty in the way. The steamers going from Vancouver and the Sound to St. Michaels have been very late in reaching that port. This was partly owing to ice in the Berhing Sea, and partly to accidents to several of the vessels. As a result, there is still a large quantity of cargo consigned to the various big companies, still in the C.P.R. wharf sheds here. The total must reach several thousand tons. Two steamers are due here to-day to begin loading these goods for the north.

Should it so happen that the Dawson merchants must re-order from here because of the failure of up-river freight to reach its destination, it will be necessary for goods to come forward here better than they have been in the past few months. Many lines of goods on large order for the northern trade have not been half supplied. In condensed cream alone, especially the hotel sizes, the houses here placed large orders in February last for Summer delivery. But a small proportion has been received, and some houses are behind their orders several thousands of cases. This is not altogether because the orders have been increased very greatly, but merely that the stocks have not come forward to fill the orders with. Some wholesalers say that their travellers in the north have written that they have large orders yet to place.

There are indications that there is a slight lull in the Dawson shipments, especially of produce, at the present moment. This is the usual course, following the sending in of large supplies earlier in the open season. Advices from Dawson state that markets are easier in prices of perishables. This too is the regular experience. The small, independent adventurers, "scow men," as they are called in Dawson, because they take the method of bringing their goods down the river on scows to Dawson, all get on the market early. Their advent is immediately followed by a cut in prices, the big commercial houses of Dawson adopting that method to make these outside traders feel "sick."

An example of the way prices are cut, in the lines which are taken in by small dealers, is given in eggs, which, according to last advices from Dawson, are now being sold there at 25c. per dozen, which is a net loss of at least 8 to 10c. per dozen.

In local market matters a cut of ⅛c. per lb. in sugar was announced by The British Columbia Sugar Refinery yesterday morning. This puts the price back to 4⅞c. for granulated. No particular reason is assigned for the reduction, which follows by ten days a raise of ¼c. per lb., and the demand is at the highest now owing to the fruit season.

In canned goods there is nothing new beyond the receipt of quotations on canned peas, from the east. The local wholesalers have unanimously ignored the combine's circular, and several cars of canned peas, new crop, are now in transit on order ifrom independent factories. In canned tomatoes the market is experiencing some trouble at the present moment. The whole supply for months has come in from California. Recently the stocks there have become reduced so that orders from here have not been filled and most of the San Francisco houses have withdrawn their quotations. The new pack tomatoes from California have not yet been put on the market. In fact the season of fresh tomatoes makes the price too high for the packers to begin yet.

Local wholesalers are using American lard largely just now in preference to the Canadian manufacture. The price is now so much lower that it is possible to use the lard from the other side, and the double cover, one of which is sealed, makes it a very much more preferable package for Summer shipment.

Dried fruits are moving north in Dawson orders, but local trade is quiet, the large quantities of fresh fruit preventing the use of much dried fruits at present. Flour has advanced slightly, the standard quotation, judged by the price of Hudson Bay flour, is $4.80 per bbl., in carlots.

Dairy produce is perhaps moving in quieter lines than for some time past. There is a stiffer tendency in prices, in sympathy with a quotation of 1c. per lb. on both dairy and creamery butter in the Northwest. Stocks are fairly well kept up. There is little or no low grade butter in the market at present, and second quality is pretty good. Price here may be quoted at 21 and 22c. for creamery, 18 and 19c. for dairy, with seconds quoted at 16c. Eggs remain quoted at 21c., and supplies are not very liberal. Stocks come almost exclusively from Ontario now. A few small shipments are from the Northwest, but none from Manitoba.

A car of Manitoba cheese, making about the third this season, was received this week. It contained 40,000 lb., and the stock was prime. It was pretty well turned over in a few days. There are no large stocks on hand. Price is quoted at 12½ to 13½c.

Receipts of California fruits have been very heavy this week. A large quantity is being received in carlots now, in preference to the slower method of shipping by steamer. It is to be noted also in favor of rail shipments, that there is no handling. The goods are packed into the special fruit transportation cars and not opened until they are on the warehouse siding of the consignee. The shipping by boat necessitates an extra handling at point of shipment, and all perishables sent here are transhipped at Victoria from the San Francisco steamer, which proceeds from Victoria to Seattle before reaching Vancouver. So many handlings seem to have a bad effect on the fruit.

Not all the carlots received are in good shape when they get here. The fruit inspector, who keeps a rigid examination during the season of fresh fruit, this week condemned a straight car of pears, and also a mixed car of peaches, pears and apples. Fruit, such as apples which will stand re-shipment, is sent back to the United States side of the line. Perishable fruit, such as pears, is always sent to the crematory to be burnt. The regulations excluding infected fruit are very rigid here, and no fruit with codlin moth or San Jose scale is allowed in the country.

Supplies of peaches, pears and apples from California are very liberal now. Plums from California are nearly out, and prices are high. They are now too ripe to stand shipment. Oregon and Washington plums and prunes are not yet in. And it is too early for local plums. Local preserving cherries are nearly out. They have been a liberal crop this year, but the Alberta market takes so much of it that the local demand is seldom satisfied. Raspberries and blackberries are at their most plentiful supply just now. Watermelons are being received from California in great quantities. Three or four cars arrived this week for local merchants. Prices on all lines of fruit remain low at present, with the exception of California plums, and that for the reason noted.

ONTARIO LIVE STOCK CO., LIMITED.

The Ontario Live Stock Co., Ltd., Toronto, have been incorporated with a share capital of $300,000, to carry on a general live stock, farming, ranching, packing and storage business, and to manufacture, buy and sell farm products and by-products. The provisional directors are: Robert Hay, Elsworth Maybee, C. G. Harston, Toronto; Jonathan Slater, Anthony Foster, Markham township; and Henry Harding, Scarborough township.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

"Gold Medal" pickling spice, put up and guaranteed by The Eby Blain Co., Limited, is one of the best and fastest selling lines on the market.

A. F. Randolph & Sons, Fredericton, are offering new Porto Rico molasses. A direct shipment just received. The schooner discharged at St. John.

W. Frank Hathcway & Co., St. John, N.B., have received a large shipment of Upton's jams, including some half-barrels for bakers' trade.

Quail on toast and pure cod fish 1 lb. blocks are again in stock with The Eby Blain Co., Limited.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, Ont., are offering all lines of groceries at special prices for the next ten days.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, have received into store a carload of new "Simcoe" peas, all grades — English Garden, Early June and Fine French.

Peerless sliced beef in 6c. tins may be had from Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

The Eby Blain Co., Limited, have just passed into stock their first shipment of new season's early May pickings Japan teas—put up in 40 lb. boxes. Parties wanting something really choice should get samples and quotations.

Dandicolle and Gaudin's French peas in glass, also mushrooms, are in store with Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

The F. J. Castle Co., Ottawa, are doing a good business in prunes just now, especially with outside points. They have a quantity of the larger sizes in excellent condition, which accounts for their sale.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers, Guelph, Ont., are offering a snap in New Orleans molasses, barrels and ½-barrels, and Mat figs.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have just received McMechen's Old Virginia salad dressing, also their Nail City tomato catsup in glass and jars.

Stretton's sauce, for which S. H. Ewing and Sons are agents, is seemingly a good drawing card, judging by the number of orders received since its introduction to the trade. Ewing & Sons solicit inquiries for prices and terms.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, are offering special values this week in Japan siftings.

Laporte, Martin & Cie. report booking a number of large orders for canned peas, tomatoes and corn. They are protecting their customers in all quotations. Inquiries for quotations are solicited.

J. A. Mathewson & Co. have received into store a first carload of new "Quaker" brand peas, Sweet Wrinkled, Early June, Midgets, etc., which they are offering at desirable figures.

Buyers' attention is directed to E. D. Marceau's ad. in this week's issue, as very interesting offerings will be noted. A change in price of coffees will also be found in their market quotations.

One thousand doz. brooms are offered at old prices by L. Chaput, Fils & Cie.

Among the recent large orders placed by Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, are 500 boxes Chinese starch (Empois Chinois), the demand for which has grown largely, 700 sacks peanuts, 500 cases "Reindeer" brand condensed milk, and a carload of "Cow Brand" soda—the latter the largest order ever placed by one Canadian jobber.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, have received into store this week a carload of Williams Bros. & Co.'s (Detroit) pickles, including bulk pickles in 40-gallon barrels, which they are offering at attractive prices.

VALENCIA RAISIN OUTLOOK.

Discussing Valencia raisins, with special reference to the price situation, The Exporter, of Denia, under date of July 16, says: "We must confess we do not in the least agree with some of our merchants, who seem to be fond of anticipating the season and have, as far as we hear, already made offers at relatively low terms, for which they are certainly much to be blamed. Those firms abroad who accept offers from people who should be known to them as having figured in the unfortunate affairs which took place between buyers and sellers during the season of 1900, are to be blamed also. Should then the foreign firms we allude to suffer any trouble they will certainly have no excuse this time. Our bona fide merchants should be on the alert and not hurry in making offers at so early a period, for the coming season is not indeed one that can be lightly judged, and so it will be wise to wait until prices are established." In this connection a prominent importer said to-day: "The warning contained in the above applies to other articles produced abroad. Figs and the several descriptions of nuts might be included. Buyers here are all too ready to see bargains in low-priced articles irrespective of who is offering the same. In figs last year the matter was brought to the attention of importers here with some force, and the large importations of poor quality of bags injured not alone the buyer of the same, but importers of the better grades as well. Low prices at this season of the year on crops not yet gathered usually mean either short deliveries on contracts or the substitution of inferior qualities."

LONDON COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' PICNIC.

FOR several months past the commercial travellers of London, Ont., representing every branch of trade carried on here, have been quietly and continuously preparing for their annual picnic. These picnics of the commercial men, whether from the heartiness with which matters of detail have been carried out, or from the courtesy and geniality of the knights of the grip themselves, have always been very successful. Encouraged by their record of the past, and also by the home-coming of London Old Boys this year, extraordinary efforts were put forth to eclipse all their former excursions. That the travellers succeeded in their latest endeavor, was amply proven by the enthusiasm of the immense throng as the procession which opened the big day's proceedings formed and moved through some of the principal streets, headed by the band of the Seventh Regiment. Port Stanley, a watering place situated on the shore of Lake Erie, some 25 miles from the Forest City, was the rendezvous for the picnickers. The train conveying the first detachment of the travellers' picnic left the L.E. & D.R.R. station at 11 a.m., and during the day at intervals of 30 minutes crowded trains departed from London for the scene of enjoyment..

The success of the picnic is estimated by the number of those present, and, following this accepted rule, the travellers' picnic at Port Stanley, on Saturday, was the greatest that ever went out of London. Everything favored the occasion. The weather, a most important consideration, was superb, and the temperature perfect. Then the travellers were favored in the excellence of their train service for which they were able to arrange. There is, to a considerable extent, a community of interest between the railroads and the commercial travellers, and this fact helped very materially. One hundred and nineteen coaches were called into use to transport the passengers from London and St. Thomas alone, while in addition, a special train was run from points along the Lake Erie Railway. A very large number of those gathered at the Port Stanley grounds drove in from the country from many miles around, others wheeled, and each helped to form the immense whole; wherever the eye turned, landward, were many human beings, almost as thick as bees, and between the hours of two and six o'clock at least twelve thousand were in attendance.

The sports began with a grand baseball game on Erie Flats, between the London and Toronto travelling men for a magnificent silver trophy, presented by M. C. Ellis, of Toronto. The athletic competitions took place on the heights and resulted as follows:

100 yards, travellers only—1, E. Dore; 2, H. A. Turner.

75 yards, four-legged race, badge holders only—1, H. W. Lind, J. E. May and H. E. Turner; 2, Talent, Obernesser and Struthers.

100 yards, hotelmen only—1, J. S. Sweeney; 2, W. Obernesser.

One mile automobile race—1, H. Southam and R. Munro; 2, T. Nopper and Geo. Detlor.

100 yards, travellers over 200 lb.—1, H. A. Lawson; 2, T. Mortimore.

RECEPTION ROOM IN THE LONDON TRAVELLERS' CLUB.

100 yards, jungle race—1, elephant; 2, giraffe.

10 yards and return, visiting merchants' business race—1, T. C. Hanna, Wingham; 2, J. N. Scott, Mt. Forest; 3, C. D. McReady, Port Stanley.

25 yards and return, local merchants' fishing contest—1, W. Evans; 2, J. Sweeney, Ridgetown; 3, Geo. Chantler.

The King's plate, trave lers only—1, E. Austin; 2; E. Powlika; 3, R. Greene.

Catching the monkey, badge holders only—1, W. Evans; 2, E. Powlika.

Driving the blind pigs, warehouse employes only—1, Sage and Turner; 2, J. Hunter and A. Croden; 3, A. Clark and T. Hevey.

In the team skipping and sun bonnet race for little girls, the children became so entangled by the conditions and the bonnets that they were each paid off with a box of candy, it being impossible to choose the winners.

50 yards, boys under 15—1, Peter Moore; 2, Chas. Allport; 3, Fred. Wright.

100 yards, Richards' pure soap race, ladies over 16 years—1, L. Thorne; 2, Ethel Winslade; 3, Minnie Smith; 4, Miss B.cking; 5, Miss Pembroke.

100 yards, Sweet Caporal race, badge holders only—1, C. Dore; 2, L. Sage; 3, H. Turner.

75 yards, judges' race, square heel and toe—1, F. Love; 2, J. B. Campbell; 3, R. D. McDonald.

After supper on the Heights, the 7th Regiment band gave a promenade concert that was enjoyed by assembled thousands, in front of the Fraser House.

The big event of the evening was the cooks' parade, in which about three hundred travellers participated. The parade began on the beach, and went through the village to the Heights. Unfortunately, it was dusk when the long parade, representing fifteen nationalities, reached the grounds, but nevertheless, it afforded a vast deal of amusement.

The General and Supervisory Committee were: C. S. Hyman, M.P., chairman of committees; S. F. Glass, secretary of committees; H. E. Buttrey, J. K. Spry, Alf. Gunther, J. M. Ferguson, E. I. Sifton, Donald Ferguson, A. T. Edwards, R. D. Kilgour, J. S. Townsend, E. R. C. Struthers, C. W. McGuire.

NOTES OF THE TRAVELLERS PICNIC.

The American Cereal Co., of Peterboro', were deserving of all the advertising they got. Four solid-looking men in "Quaker Oats" uniform were in the parade, and they elicited frequent applause and much comment.

The travellers' committee advertised for some original ideas for the events to be put on the day's programme; seven answers were received, all the original ideas were good, and all were included on the printed programmes.

The uniform adopted by the travellers for the day's outing was both sensible and economical, viz.: white duck trousers and white linen hats.

Altho there is one thing travellers have in common, and that is big-heartedness and good humor, there is a terrible difference in build and physiognomy. At the Port picnic there were fat drummers and thin ones, corpulent and lean ones, tall, short and shorter men; but the latter were mostly tall across. Some were dark, others fair, some ruddy, a few carroty; lots were good looking, some middling, others worse, some worser; a few dudes, and a few mashers, with a number of real handsome men in the big bunch.

In round numbers 1,800 commercial travellers are enrolled at London as members of The Commercial Travellers' Association of Western Ontario. Some 500 of this number reside in the city.

Three-twelfths of a dozen of the best looking policemen not belonging to the regular force kept fairly good order and the crowd back. The chief with the false whiskers made a real good "bobbie," although only a gripman like his subs. Remarks were made that those police were smoking cigars on duty!

All's well that ends well, especially when it has been a record-breaking success.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

Unity in the Window Display.

IN dressing a window there is always a temptation to put in too much. A window display is designed to produce an effect. If properly trimmed it will produce the effect for which it was arranged, but if two or more diverse effects are sought at the same time the result will be distraction and neither will be realized. It does not follow, however, that only one article should be exhibited in a window at a time. Far from it. But having decided on a particular line to be brought before the attention of the public everything in the window should conduce to furthering that end.

For example, in making a display of breakfast foods it would be quite appropriate—indeed, it would add immensely to the effectiveness of the display—to fit up the window with a tempting breakfast laid out with all accessories. The particular breakfast food to be pushed should of course be given the place of honor, and should not be overshadowed by the other articles. These should be made to contribute to the effectiveness of the main article. The whole display will thus have a unity which would be spoiled by the introduction of any article foreign to the breakfast table.

The same principle can be applied to a dinner window, a house cleaning window, a preserving window, or numberless other windows which will occur to the wide-awake grocer.

A window display is in a sense a work of art and like every other work of art must obey the laws of unity and harmony or else it will fail, no matter how excellent may be the individual constitution of the ensemble.

Fruit and Bottled Goods Department.

An Attractive Department.

THE illustration this week portrays a fresh fruit and bottled goods department of a Chicago house. The department shows a remarkable utilization of all available space, without leaving any impression of undue crowding. Below will be noted the double row of bins, in which the fresh fruit is attractively displayed and conveniently located for frequent turnover. The lower block of bottled goods are within easy reach and are suitable for those goods most frequently called for, while the higher row is readily reached by the travelling ladder observed to the left.

The arched compartments of the shelving relieve the formal stiffness often observable in grocery stores, and affords a convenient basis for sorting.

The whole impression left by the department is that of tidiness and order, an impression the value of which on the casual customer cannot be over-estimated.

A Window Display Competition.

THE CANADIAN GROCER, for the encouragement of tasty window displays, has decided to open a competition for its subscribers. Prizes will be awarded for photos or drawings of window displays and accompanying descriptions of the same. The prizes will consist of:

First Prize - - -	$10
Second Prize - -	$7
Third Prize - - -	$5

and $2 for every picture and description which is considered worthy of publication.

The competition, which closes on Sept. 1, will admit of photographs, pen and ink or wash drawings, with good ideas counting more than the picture itself, although, of course, all pictures in order to receive a prize, must be of sufficient distinctness and good workmanship to admit of their publication.

There is no progressive merchant but has at least one window a month that is worthy of entering this competition, and the prizes are so arranged that, even if a window does not win the $10, $7 or $5 prize, it may be awarded a $2 prize, provided only that it is of sufficient merit to publish in the columns of this paper. This award will cover the cost of the photograph and there is no reason why any merchant should not obtain it. The number of photographs or drawings submitted by each store is not limited, nor is the number of $2 prizes; a merchant may win a dozen if his pictures merit them.

Should any intending competitor not know how to take a window picture, this paper will be glad to furnish him with instructions. In general terms, it may be stated that the early morning, when the light is clear, when few people are abroad and when there is the least reflection, is the best time to photograph the display. A good photograph can also be taken at night by the aid of an electric or flash light.

Mark all manuscripts and photographs intended for this department with the words "Window Dressing Competition."

PERSONAL.

Col. Davidson, of Davidson & Hay, wholesale grocers, Toronto, left Saturday for Minnicogáneschene.

Mr. David Bell, president of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, passed through Montreal, on his way to the Old Country. Mr. Bell deserves a holiday and it is to be hoped the trip will be enjoyed.

A visitor to the grocery trade of Montreal this week was Mr. T. Duff Williamson, the representative of the Brantford Starch Co., Limited, Brantford, Ont. Mr. Williamson states that business is remarkably good, their new factory being taxed to its fullest capacity. The outlook was never so bright as at present. Mr. Williamson has just returned from his Eastern trip, and from all accounts never had a more satisfactory tour.

Mr. Ernest Hustwitt, of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, Toronto, was a visitor in Montreal over Sunday. "Ernie" ran down from Ottawa, where his company are making an exhibit at Central Canada's Fair, and from all accounts are going to excel themselves this year. Mr. Gregg, the Montreal and Eastern representative of Surprise Soap, was piloting him around—and it goes without saying that all the beautiful churches of Montreal were taken in.

VISIT FROM A WINNIPEGGER.

Mr. Geo. Adam, of Geo. Adam & Co., brokers and commission agents, Winnipeg, is spending a few weeks in the east, visiting Toronto, Montreal and other places. It is seventeen years since Mr. Adam came east and he said that he noticed a very great improvement not only in the cities, but in the country as well. One thing that particularly struck him was the large number of trees that had been planted along the country roads. "This certainly very much improved the appearance of the country," said he.

Speaking of the crop conditions, he confirmed what has recently been said in regard thereto. He said that in Southern Manitoba, owing to the damage done by the drouth, some fields have been plowed up again. In some places in the north they have, on the other hand, had too much rain. The crops on the whole should be very good in the Northwest, he declared.

Among the exports from Canada to the United States last week was 27,250 pounds of "Salada" Ceylon tea.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

MANY are hoping that the bottom has been reached in the decline of values in the stock market. But it is even more difficult to determine where the bottom is than to fathom the deepest part of the ocean. However, values have reached a basis that strengthens the position of those who believe that bed rock has been touched. It is held by some that the recent failures in New York have tended to clear the atmosphere. Identified with one of the insolvent firms was one of the most expert market manipulators and the biggest single operator in the Street. Presumably, therefore, a great deal of the recent selling has been for the account of this operator and of the house with which he was associated—for with them a line of 100,000 shares would be as nothing. Whether or not all the "lame ducks" are removed remains to be seen.

THE New York Times, in a recent article on the situation on Wall street, says that it is a matter of no great moment that a few plungers and stock gamblers who, in the course of the transactions by which great combinations were organized, came into the possession of large quantities of common stock in payment for properties already abundantly paid for by bonds or preferred stock, should be compelled to throw the common stuff upon the market for what it will fetch. But when this process goes on day after day, with no evidence that the bottom will ever be reached, and when stocks which are not mere "water," but represent solid value and demonstrated earning power, also go down with a run, and when the market is so shaken that the owner of securities who should be in need of money could not sell them save at a dreadful loss, there is manifestly some danger that disaster and failures may result. Financial disasters and failures, even when they occur through Wall street gambling, are not good things for the country. It is this aspect of the matter which makes the present proceedings in Wall street disquieting.

FIVE railroads in the United States have, so far as known, this year, borrowed money to the extent of $86,500,000 in the aggregate. These railroads are: Lake Shore, Pennsylvania, Rock Island, Burlington, and Union Pacific. At the beginning of the new year the president of the New York Central railway expressed the opinion that one reason why the railroads of the country, during the year then to come, should be able to continue to earn fixed charges and dividends and to lay by a penny or two for a rainy day, was that the capitalization of the roads had been brought down to rock bottom by the reorganizations which followed the period of depression through which the country had then only just passed. Commenting upon the action of the railways in borrowing the money, The New York Times says: "To-day, after bond issues have followed bond issues, stock increases have come upon stock increases, capitalizations have for the moment, apparently reached, if not passed, the maximum, which, in the opinion of many people, is conformable with a fairly healthy condition of the financial markets, and the railroads which a few years ago, on a rock-bottom basis, saw no difficulties ahead, find it necessary to resort to the issue of notes in enormous quantities to finance either purchases of new lines, perhaps at still exaggerated valuations, or to make improvements which, in some cases, are probably imperative. In the private affairs of men it is not generally considered conduct worthy of approval if a man, already heavily in debt, assumes still greater liabilities for the sake of purchasing articles which he has been able to get along without, and there is no reason why different judgment should be rendered on corporations."

OLD age is not always accompanied by decreptitude, particularly in commercial and financial institutions. One proof of this is The Royal Exchange Assurance, a fire insurance company. It is in its 183rd year, but is still expanding its business and earning good profits. The increase in business last year was £61,293. Its last dividend, which was recently paid, was 14 per cent., while the total funds of the company increased from £4,853,173 to £4,924,182.

A PROMINENT stock and grain firm in New York a few days ago issued a bulletin in regard to the stock market. It so well coincides with our own views that we reprint an extract from it. "While we see nothing in the general situation at the moment to warrant turning over to the bull side with the expectation of any general improvement or the development of an outburst of any real bull speculation, we realize that prices have had a big decline, and liquidation has been very extensive, (particularly among the big interests and pools, who have been the worst sufferers by the break,) and that the technical speculative position of the market is so much better as a consequence of this extensive liquidation and the creation of a fresh large short interest, that a good rally may now occur at any time. In other words, the technical speculative position is such at the moment that the chances are we will now have more of a two-sided market and that it will prove a good trading one to those who are satisfied with scalping operations for moderate profits."

THE National banking system of the United States has been in existence 40 years. During that time 6,862 banks have been organized. Since the establishment of the system only 392 national banks have been placed in the hands of a receiver. This is 5.7 per cent. of the total number organized. Of the 392 banks that have been placed in the hands of receivers, a large number paid their depositors in full. The assets of the remainder average nearly 75 per cent. of their indebtedness. The chief need of the system at present is an extension of the banks' privilege of note-issue and some liberalization of the present provisions for the security of such issue. In other words, something more approximate to the Canadian banking system is needed.

FORTUNES THAT HAVE GONE.

LARGE interest after large interest has been compelled to let go part of its holdings (in the stock market) to protect the rest. There are signs that more than one large interest has had to let go everything. The small seller is cutting very little figure in the market. What is going on seems to be an elimination of the middle-class operator, leaving as the only sure survivors the dozen leading interests whose wealth, computed at $50,000,000 and upwards, seems comparatively secure. Money making has been comparatively easy for the past five years. The present process is one tending to extinguish a large proportion of those who have become millionaires out of almost nothing since the great business revival of 1897. It seems almost incredible that one man, unheard of five years ago, should be able to make $15,000,000 out of a single trade and should lose it all in general speculation within eighteen months. Yet such is believed to be the case. The times have gone hard with a Chicago millionaire crowd of recent creation who came East to teach New York how to do business. A large Pittsburg contingent, after struggling with the iron industry for many years, were made millionaires over night. They converted their money into paper, and the latter has been shrinking ever since.—New York News Bureau.

INSURANCE AGAINST STRIKES.

A COMPANY has been formed in Louisville, Ky., to underwrite strike insurance risks. No employer who is unfair to his employes will be knowingly accepted as a subscriber and policy-holder, nor will any such, if by any chance they do get in, be allowed to remain in after any unfair treatment of their employes shall become known to the attorney. The liability of subscribers as underwriters is carefully limited to a moderate amount. By the plan under which the business is conducted the expenses are strictly limited to a very moderate percentage of the premiums, so that by far the largest part of the fund derived from premiums will be available to pay losses. This class of insurance being entirely new, the result cannot be predicted with certainty, but it is considered highly probable that the funds derived from premiums will not only be sufficient to pay all expenses and losses, making it unnecessary to call upon subscribers for any part of their underwriting obligations, but that a considerable part of the premium fund will be left at the expiration of the policies, to be returned to the subscribers as profits.

The subscribers underwrite severally and jointly, so that no one of them can be held for the delinquency of any of the others. Only persons, firms or corporations in high credit standing for character and pecuniary responsibility will be accepted as subscribing underwriters.

TAX ON LIFE INSURANCE.

THE Georgia Legislature is reported to have a bill before it proposing to assess a tax on each policy-holder having life insurance that has a cash surrender value. This bill contemplates obliging all companies placing policies within the State to make a report to the comptroller-general of all such policies it has out, together with their cash value. In advocating this measure Representative Bell, who is the head of the movement, is reported as saying:

"Life insurance policies having a cash surrender value constitute a valuable asset, yet they are not returned for taxation. They cannot be reached in bankruptcy proceedings, though their holders can realize on them after the proceedings in bankruptcy have been dismissed. I consider that they are just as much property as are cash, stocks or bonds, and therefore they should be returned for taxation."

THE London Statist is of opinion that as the United States grows in wealth, the present movement for buying up the National securities of every kind will gain strength. Thirty years ago or so a very large part of the Government debt of the United States was held in Europe. Now the amount of the debt so held is hardly worth talking of. Ten years ago the amount of industrial securities of all kinds held in Europe was enormous. Now it has been immensely reduced. In ten years more the remnant that will still be held by Europe will, in all probability, be quite trifling.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

The Orient as a Flour Market.

THE American millers have exploited the Far East for their flour to a much greater extent than have Canadian millers, and the value they put upon this trade is indicated by the many resolutions their conventions have endorsed, looking forward to reciprocity with Canada. Reciprocity talk is usually dressed in flowery language, and reading on the surface one would think that purely economic consideration for the good of both nations entered into the question. It will usually be found, however, that individual interests, selfish and mercenary, are behind the sentiments so cordially proclaimed. The American millers' concern about Canadian reciprocity indicates imperilled interests, and the preference given to Canadian flour in the recent Japanese competition, together with increasing orders from the Orient for Canadian flour have doubtless given additional ardor to the numerous resolutions that have come to our notice.

The Japanese are easily the most influential of the people of the East, and what Japan does in a commercial way is a hint to other Eastern nations. If Japan wants Canadian flour doubless China, the islands of the Eastern Archipelago, and other Oriental countries will also want Canadian flour. But if Canadian flour is not offered? Herein lies the substance of this article—the necessity for Canadian millers to make good and prompt use of existing conditions. It is when the sun shines that it behooves us to make hay. Let our Canadian millers follow up the present advantages and let American millers continue to pass resolutions. The East contains hundreds of millions of people. The East is no longer a land of dreams. Its people are knocking at our doors wanting our flour. We have the flour; they have the price. The exchange is sought; is possible. And the profits—trade with the East has ever been lucrative.

Canadian Flour in Japan.

This season's wheat crop in Japan is about 30 per cent. short of the usual crop. There is also a shortage in Corea, from where the Japanese are accustomed to draw a portion of their supply.

Trade is hampered with Manchuria because of the political turmoil there, so that there is an exceptionally fine opening for Canadian flour and wheat in Japan. The attention of the Japs was drawn to our products by the exhibits Canada made at Osaka, and all that is required of our people is a little enterprise to take advantage of the chance.

What Becomes of Canadian Wheat?

WHERE does all our wheat go to? Or perhaps the question should rather be: What is the matter with our statistics? It is just now very important that the people in Great Britain should know exactly what amount of wheat Canada already exports as a basis for estimating what this country is capable of exporting under an increased acreage.

Much of our wheat enters Great Britain under the general term "American" and British statistics do not tell the correct story, but there is no reason why our own statistics should not be correct. Yet it is almost impossible to believe that they are correct. In the blue books there are given what are claimed to be the complete figures of the exports of Canadian produce. Take for example, the year ending June 30, 1902, with the figures covering the crop of 1901. The blue books state that in that year there were exported from Canada to all countries 26,117,530 bushels of wheat and 1,086,648 barrels of flour, or a total of, say, 30,600,000 bushels of wheat. Now, the total Canadian crop of that year was estimated at about 90,000,000 bushels, and we know for certain that over 44,000,000 was inspected in Winnipeg. What became of the balance between the 30,000,000 bushels exported and the 90,000,000 bushels grown? Suppose we allow for some exaggeration in the estimate of the yield, yet there is no exaggeration in the amount inspected at Winnipeg, practically all of which went east in the shape either of grain or flour. How did 14,000,000 bushels of this wheat disappear? A good deal of Manitoba's wheat is consumed in Eastern Canada, but as Eastern Canada produces more than enough for its own consumption, the Manitoba wheat used there would release eastern wheat for export. It is probable that six bushels per head would be a high enough average for consumption in Canada, perhaps too high, but make it seven bushels per head, and we could account on the score of consumption for only about 38,500,000 bushels. The requirements for seed would not be more than about 10,000,000 bushels. Taking the two together we might account for about 50,000,000 bushels, but this would seem to be the outside limit. On a 90,000,000 bushel crop we should easily be able to export 40,000,000 bushels, yet the official figures credit us only with 30,000,000 bushels. Was the other 10,000,000 bushels fed to stock, or was it never grown at all? Or, taking only the figures for Winnipeg inspection, is it possible to believe that 14,000,000 bushels which passed through Winnipeg was consumed in Eastern Canada without releasing a single bushel of eastern wheat for export? We have not yet the complete figures for the year ending June 30, 1903, but for eleven months of that year the exports are given as 20,346,520 bushels of wheat and 1,099,915 barrels of flour, or about 33,800,000 bushels altogether. Yet the crop of 1902 was greater than that of 1901 by about 8,000,000 bushels. The Canadian Statistical Year Book gives the Canadian crop as 96,606,345 bushels and the United States Crop Reporter gives it as 98,654,000 bushels. Making all reasonable deductions for over estimates in this case, also, there will be a discrepancy which is hard to explain. Do we feed immense quantities of wheat to stock? Do we eat as a people an abnormal amount of flour—the consumption in the United Kingdom is only a little over four bushels per head and we have already allowed seven for Canada? Does Eastern Canada not produce nearly as much wheat as it claims to produce? Or are our official statistics of export totally incorrect? This is a subject worthy of attention.—Winnipeg Telegram.

Breadstuffs in Trinidad.

The last commercial review of Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, has this to say of breadstuffs :— The S. S. Maraval has just arrived from New York and the S.S. Piemonte is due, both bringing large assortments induced by the recent reduction in freight rates to 20 cents per dry barrel. These liberal receipts have fully stocked our market with most items and as trade generally is quiet and the closing of the Venezuelan ports restricts our trade in that direction, only a retail business can be reported. All grades of flour are in oversupply and quotations remain much the same as last advised.

Canadian Flour Approved.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Commission on the food supply of the Empire in time of war, witnesses representing master bakers and confectioners were agreed in declaring that Canadian flour was greatly improved in quality, and was finding a large market in Great Britain.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

"The best pump that was ever made won't get water out of a dry well; but there's water down deeper, and the dry weather is the best time to dig for it."

IN a recent issue of Printers' Ink, a New York publication devoted to advertising, the English correspondent prophesies a gradual extinction of the retail trade, in an article which brings out some points worthy of special note.

We can't get around the fact that the days of the non-advertising retailer are numbered, but the question as to whether retail stores will ever become extinct or not is hardly one which will concern this generation at any rate.

Here is what the Englishman says in part :

"A class of business men, at present active, vigorous, and if not always flourishing, certainly not unprosperous, is destined within the next 20 years, and most certainly within the next 50, to absolute and complete extinction.

"This, to the unreflective reader, seems startling. The reflective reader will at once know what class is referred to.

"It is the non-advertising class of storekeepers and manufacturers.

"The larger and older storekeepers of this class now alive will probably die at their counters. Their prosperity will somewhat decline. Their sons will either go out into other fields of activity or reform the methods of the business they will inherit. The smaller and the younger storekeepers will have to face these alternatives for themselves. The wisest of both kinds already realize what is coming. For it is inevitable.

"Progress is the cause of the coming change. I don't mean progress in advertising, or at all events not this progress alone. Increased facility of communication and conveyance, the soldifying of population, new and better business methods, all work in the same way. Increased intelligence on the part of the people compels and guides these other increases. We demand value in full for our money ; we demand guarantees. Advertising has been the educating power. Observe what has already happened.

"In the days when readers of Printers' Ink were boys practically every article of domestic consumption was bought in bulk from the grocery. Coffee, tea, flour, sugar, soap, candles and the like had no names on them. Our mothers went to the grocer for them, and partly guided by what the grocer told them, partly helped by their own judgment, bought by the pound what they wanted. To-day sugar is almost the only article among those named which is almost always bought in that manner, and the American newspapers here lately have begun to contain advertisements of a proprietary sugar. You can still buy these things loose if you want to, but the people have begun to see that a proprietary tea, a proprietary soap and the rest, have certain advantages which goods bought from bulk do not possess.

"If I go to a grocery and buy oatmeal for my breakfast table, it will be a different kind of oatmeal at each grocery ; and what I buy at a single grocery to-day may be different from what I shall get a fortnight hence. But if I buy Quaker Oats it will be the same at every place and every time. I needn't go myself, my wife doesn't need to go, in order to make sure that the stuff is right, as we must go if we buy loose oatmeal. We send Mary the cookmaid and she brings us Quaker Oats and we needn't be uneasy. The same with all the rest of the supplies. Every day there are more of the advertised proprietary goods being sold and less of the bulk goods.

"Now, on the old plan, the retail storekeeper was a highly needful member of the community. He gave credit and he had knowledge—technical knowledge very necessary to the selection in the wholesale market of suitable bulk goods. But the retailer has no special value as regards packed goods. Credit, happily, is less and less taken or wanted by consumers in and near towns.

"In a great measure, retail storekeepers have brought upon themselves the doom which has been shown to be inevitable. Substitution every day deprives storekeepers more and more of their patrons' confidence. Every day price-cutting makes them weaker. They cannot fight against the tendency of things. In English and American cities where the resident population is mainly suburban, suburban trade is rapidly declining. The tendency of families is to buy from large department stores in the city — stores which advertise themselves in newspapers and by catalogues and price books. Probably suburban populations will for many years continue to be supplied in this manner, and the advertising storekeeper will be able to go on existing, though he will only exist as a distributor of proprietary and branded goods. If substitution is not stamped out it will kill all retail business on the present plan. But in large cities manufacturers will combine to run department stores, advertised as such. Express companies and the C. O. D. parcel post will supply the rural and village populations and the dwellers in small towns alone.

"Advertising is the greatest motive power of business to-day. But to-morrow it will be the only power. The manufacturer who does not advertise is, as a class, just as certainly doomed to extinction as the small retailer. The lesson of these things is obvious."

This article will be taken with a grain of salt by some readers ; with several grains by others. But it sounds a note of warning to which it might be well to pay some heed.

A possible great majority of us will question the probability of conditions ever reaching the stage predicted by the writer of the article in question. It is hardly likely that any retailers who may read it will have to battle with such conditions as are there outlined or suggested.

But there are present conditions which must be considered, and the man who wants to figure in business in the coming years will find plenty of food for thought in certain paragraphs of the article which is under discussion.

It is, no doubt, only a question of time when a great deal of the package trade now handled by the retailer will be conducted direct with the packer. But will the usefulness and convenience of the retail store then have altogether disappeared ?

Who will say that when I want a package of oats, or a package of sugar, or any of the little odds and ends needed about the house, that I will sit down and write an order to some proprietary house and wait a few days for the goods to be delivered ?

Well, hardly—not yet, at any rate.

Until conditions change considerably—and they will hardly make such a radical change as is predicted—we'll go on buying our household necessities much the same as we do now ; and if the retailers, in the main, stick to their spurs and by continuous advertising and keen attention to business as it is done the retail trade will hold its own for as long a time as we are interested.

But we must study conditions, adapt ourselves to them, and meet the competition of the larger houses if we are to prevent the centralization of trade which will tend to bring about the ultimate doom of the retailer predicted by this level-headed Englishman.

Penalties for Tobacco Smoking.

THE Mohammedan legend on the subject of tobacco is too long for repetition under its Eastern garb. Suffice it that a viper was restored to health by the warmth of the prophet's body. Immediately on convalescence, the ungrateful reptile announced the intention of biting his preserver. The prophet expostulated. An argument ensued, which ended in the viper's carrying out its original project. The prophet sucked the venom from his wounded wrist and spat it forth. "From these drops sprang that wondrous weed, which has the bitterness of the serpent's tooth quelled by the sweet saliva of the prophet." But whatever the origin of tobacco, no plant has exercised so much political influence. The Pope Urban VIII. excommunicated all those who took snuff in churches. The Empress Elizabeth was less severe. She declared that the snuff boxes of those who made use of them in church should be confiscated to the use of the beadle. At Berne the use of tobacco was classified with adultery.

In Transylvania the penalty was far greater; in 1639 entire confiscation of property was the sentence of those who should plant tobacco, while consumers were condemned to fines varying from three to two hundred florins. Amurath IV. hung persons found guilty of smoking with their pipes through their noses and a tobacco pouch hanging from their necks. The Grand Duke of Muscovy forbade smoking and snuff-taking under the penalty of having the nose cut off; while Mohammed IV., son of the Sultan Ibrahim, 1665, punished the practice with decapitation. It is related of Amurath that a smoking saphi once struck the monarch himself for smoking with him incognito on board a caique. Amurath informed the saphi that the royal decree referred equally to himself. "No," replied the saphi, "I fight for and would die for him. It does not apply to me." A few days subsequently Amurath sent for him, and making himself known, gave his fellow offender a good appointment. But such penal regulations appear always to have been evaded.

These modern Amuraths, railway directors, in England arrogate to themselves the right of inflicting a fine of 10 shillings (about $2.50), and expulsion from their line on any person guilty of the sublime act, other than in compartments specially set apart for smokers. But it is sweet to smoke under difficulties. Were the prohibition removed, smoking on railways would probably cease. One young man feigned madness to secure a carriage to himself. Another on seeing a bishop alight at an intermediate station, immediately made for the compartment, and calling for a guard complained that the carriage was reeking with tobacco smoke. "To be sure those clerical gentlemen do smoke terribly," answered the official. "Then don't accuse me of it hereafter," rejoined the youth with an arch smile. On one occasion a railway guard thrust his head into a carriage filled with devotees in the act of their devotions, and placing his hand on a cushion, observed, "There are two very good rules on this line, gentlemen. Smoking is strictly prohibited, and the company's servants are forbidden to accept gratuities."

Oranges Good for Smokers.

From The Philadelphia Record.

"Did you ever notice," asked a well-known uptown physician the other day, "that men who eat oranges are not much injured by smoking? It is a fact. Orange juice has the faculty of neutralizing nicotine, and that is the reason. I have seen men weakened and even made ill by excessive smoking, and a few oranges were all that was necessary to straighten them out.

"All this pother about the injurious effects of cigarette smoking wearies me," he continued. "I don't mean to say that they are not injurious to boys—any kind of smoking is, for that matter. But those who put up a hue and cry against cigarettes say that it is the paper that is at fault. That is all nonsense. It is the inhalation of the nicotine-laden smoke that causes the trouble. You don't inhale cigar smoke, because it is too strong. But if you did you would find that the injury inflicted by

As the doctor is an athlete, and has not known sickness during the whole 40 years of his life, it looks as if there might be something in his claim.

Tobacco Bought Wives.

In the early history of Virginia and Maryland tobacco was by all odds the most important crop, says The Scientific American, and it was even possible at times to secure a wife in exchange for a moderate amount of tobacco, as in later days in the west a squaw could be obtained in exchange for a small amount of whiskey. In 1732, at Jamestown, tobacco was made a legal tender for all debts, including customs. In about a dozen years after the founding of Jamestown by Captain John Smith, an English nobleman, Sir Edwin Sandys, brought over with a shipload of supplies ninety young English maids, who, immediately upon their arrival, were wooed and married by the colonists, each being paid for at the rate of "one hundred and twenty pounds of good tobacco." As late as 1777 the annual poll-tax of Baltimore City and county was fixed at one hundred and seventy-two pounds of tobacco. Tobacco, it is well known, was a native Indian crop in America before the advent of Columbus.

An Old Smoker.

W. G. Pattison, of Kalamazoo, Mich., smoked on an average eleven ten-cent cigars a day during the last twelve years of his life. He died yesterday of tobacco-heart, at the age of 89. It took My Lady Nicotine a long time to fetch him, but she got in her deadly work at last. However, aged gentlemen who have a hankering after suicide need a lot of patience if they take the tobacco route.

A Curious Coincidence.

A peculiar feature in connection with the balloon ascension at Montreal, Sunday July 26, is reported. As is well known in Montreal and no doubt throughout the country by this time, these balloon ascensions are made three times a week, in the interest of The Empire Tobacco Co., to advertise not only to the inhabitants of this earth but also to those of Mars and the other planets, the virtues of "Currency" plug chewing tobacco. The experience related here is interesting. When Professor Wolcott's parachutist started on his trip the secretary of The Empire Tobacco Co. was enjoying a quiet game of tennis at Longueuil, about two miles from the scene of operations. It is certainly a strange coincidence, that after ascending 6,000 feet into the air, and crossing a river one mile and a half wide, Mr. Belmont, the parachutist, should descend to terra firma within fifty yards of the secretary of the company whose "Currency" plug chewing tobacco he was advertising. We doubt if Santos-Dumont could have done better.

In Praise of Tobacco.

Of all the good things that man has found
Scattered upon this planet round,
Tobacco surely holds its ground—
A weed delicious;
No other green leaf yields so much
Delight; no flower has fragrance such;
Of something vicious.

A pipe after breakfast, when
I read the morning paper; then
At luncheon one small whiff again—
A tube of tissue;
And, after dinner, a cigar,
An easy chair beside the jar
Wherein the good Havanas are,
Too close to miss you.

Life is at best a journey brief,
And Time pursues us like a thief,
But if one cultivates the Leaf
There is no hurry.
A friend, it cheers one on the way,
And helps to lighten out the day,
And keeps the hair from turning gray
With care and worry.

Virginia, Turkish or Perique—
A puff of incense and a streak
Of smoke that almost seems to speak
In sweet aroma!
And may the good Tobacco last
So long as we to life hold fast,
Till Death, the old iconoclast,
Brings his diploma!

—Frank Dempster Sherman, in Life.

Holland Heads Tobacco List.

Statistics show that Holland consumes more smoking tobacco relatively than any other country in the world. Her quota per head approximates nine pounds. The United States comes second with about four pounds. Belgium and Germany are next, then Austria, with about two pounds and a half. Norway and Denmark come before Canada, and France is tenth, with about two pounds per head. Sweden and Russia are almost abreast, and England, Italy and Spain are lowest. Italy and Spain, however, are the greatest consumers of cigarettes.

A Startling Device.

There is an ingenious cigarist in Philadelphia who has recently adopted a novel way of exhibiting his goods. A number of cigar boxes stand on top of his show case, close together, and end to end. When a customer asks for a five cent cigar all the covers of these boxes fly up simultaneously, offering him his choice. As the clerk does not touch any of the boxes, and as all of them open at precisely the same instant, the effect of this jack-in-the-box arrangement on a customer may be imagined. The secret of the trick is in fastening the covers of the boxes together by means of a strip of wood about an eighth of an inch thick and about an inch wide, the fastening being effected by means of small screw-eyes.

The World's Tobacco Bill.

The year's consumption of tobacco in the United States alone includes seven billions of cigars, ten billions of cigarettes, and two hundred and eighty millions of pounds of manufactured tobacco. The one item of smoking and chewing tobacco, exclusive of cigars, cigarettes, and snuff, registers an annual over-all value of more than $500,000,000. In addition, England smokes six billions, Japan three billions, and China one and one-half billions of cigarettes every twelvemonth. This outside cigarette-puffing burns up forty-five millions of pounds of tobacco and puts about $1,000,000 into the bank account of the American grower, giving the giant balance to the trust.—Everybody's Magazine.

HANDY LAW BOOK FOR BUSINESS MEN.

THROUGH the courtesy of Mr. R. R. Cromarty, of The Canada Law Book Co., THE GROCER has received a copy of an important new work on "Frauds on Creditors and Assignments in Benefit of Creditors," by W. R. P. Parker, B.A., LL.B., of Osgoode Hall, barrister-at-law, a well-known writer on "Company Law."

The work is a treatise on the Canadian law of fraudulent transfers, fraudulent preferences, assignments for the benefit of creditors, composition and extension deeds, and contains as well a complete list of forms and a compilation of the statutes in force in the various provinces bearing on these matters. Mr. Parker has made a special study of this branch of law for some years. The effect of the enactments of the different provinces is considered and the decisions in all the provinces, other than Quebec, as well as English cases, are cited, and, where of service in throwing light on unsettled points, American cases are also referred to. A distinct gain to legal literature, the work treats of matters commonly arising in connection with all large mercantile concerns, and is written in such a way as to be of practical use to the mercantile community and should prove a handy work of reference for a merchant or manufacturer to have in his office. The book is handsomely and serviceably bound in half calf, and is sold at $5.50 by The Canada Law Book Co., law publishers and binders, 32-34 Toronto street, Toronto, Canada.

A CRAB FEAST.

Over 10,000 people assembled at Tolchester Beach, Md., on Thursday to enjoy the feast of crabs given by the Society of Elks, says The Fishing Gazette.

The first course served was crab soup. This was followed by hard crabs, deviled crabs, fried soft crabs, crab salad, and, in fact, crabs in every style known to the most expert in the culinary art, were served to the hungry Elks, piping hot or deliciously cold, as the nature of the dish demanded, and any Elk who went home without being able to boast that he knows the flavor of a Chesapeake crab will have something to regret all the days of his life.

An idea of the amount of provisions disposed of will be obtained from the following order list : 50,000 crabs, 400 pounds of crab meat, 30,000 rolls, 100 pounds of butter, 200 pounds of coffee, 200 pounds of sugar, 400 pounds of ham, 150 pounds of spiced beef, 100 pounds of beef tongue, 8 tubs of potato salad, 10 barrels of potatoes, 50 gallons of milk, 10 gallons of mustard, 10 tons of ice, 2,500 bottles of ginger ale, 2,500 bottles of sarsaparilla.

Should many feasts of this kind be given, we doubt if the Chesapeake crabs would ever reach the northern markets.

POMELO, OR GRAPE FRUIT.

THE pomelo, or grape fruit, belongs botanically to the citrus family along with the lemon and orange. The fruit most common in market is about the size of an orange and of a lighter yellow color. It is valued chiefly as a breakfast fruit, and is eaten with or without sugar, in the same manner as oranges. Marmalade is also made from it. The fruit has a bitter acid pulp and juice that to some tastes is very palatable and refreshing. According to analysis reported by the California Station, the juice contains 2 to 2.7 per cent. of citric acid and 6.7 to 9.5 per cent. of sugar. Lemons contain 6 to 10 per cent. of citric acid and 2.5 to 3.6 per cent. of sugar. It is thus seen that the pomelo more nearly approaches oranges in the amount of sugar and acid it contains than lemons.

The pomelo has lately been made the subject of a bulletin by H. H. Hume, of the Florida Station. According to Professor Hume, the oldest name for the fruit and one commonly used by horticulturists is pomelo. Commercially, however, the fruit is more generally known as grape fruit. This name is thought to have originated from the fact that the fruit grows in clusters like grapes. Another name sometimes used for the fruit is shaddock. This term, however, is more properly applied to very large pyriform or necked varieties; they are seldom seen in market. These large varieties often weigh 15 lb. or more, and to American tastes are of inferior quality.

The pomelo has become commercially important only during the last 15 or 20 years. The supply in this country comes chiefly from Florida, though California and Jamaica furnish some. The fruit grows like the orange, but is slightly less hardy than the sweet orange. As a stock for oranges and lemons the California Station states that it is rapidly becoming a favorite in Southern California. The tree grows upward of 30 feet high and is slightly thorny. The mature leaves are medium sized, ovate, and of a dark-green color. The flowers are large, white, sweet scented, and borne in clusters. From 3 to 18 fruits mature in each cluster. These have a rounded form 3 to 4 inches in diameter. The seeds are usually very numerous, except in a few varieties. Marsh Seedless is a good variety, containing few or no seeds. Analysis by the Florida Station show the percentage of pulp of six varieties to vary from 65.16 to 74.72, and of seed from 3 to 3.45.

SALMON IN LAKE ST. JOHN.

It will be news to many of our readers to hear that there are now sea salmon in Lake St. John, as well as the so-called fresh water salmon, or ouananiche, says The Quebec Chronicle. In the spring of the year several of the fish taken by the bait fishermen at Roberval were declared to be small salmon, and recently a smolt of 1½ lb. was caught by an angler in the Grand Discharge. Another angler reports a broken casting line from a fish which he declares from its repeated leaps and bright silvery appearance to have been a grilse. These facts would tend to show that the experiment of introducing young salmon into the Lake St. John waters proved successful.

PEANUTS AS A DIET.

A journal devoted to physical culture strongly advises parents to provide their children daily with a supply of peanuts which they might eat with their school lunch, as they are asserted to be a most wholesome food for growing boys and girls, being given the preference over all other nuts. The belief that nuts are indigestible is attributed to the fact that the usual method of eating them is at the end of the heartiest meal of the day, when the stomach is already overloaded. For all nuts to do any good must be masticated properly, there being little or no chance of their assimilation should they go to the stomach in solid lumps.

THE HONEY SEASON.

R. F. Holtermann, Brantford, Ont., prominently connected with the bee industry, speaking to a representative of The Toronto Globe this week, stated that the light honey flow is now over. The Spring was unfavorable to bees building up. The early clover has not yielded well owing to cool and dry weather. In Quebec and Eastern Ontario, where the drouth prevailed, only a light crop of honey will be secured. In western Ontario, in spite of the early failure, there will be a full crop. Mr. Holtermann will demonstrate and give lectures in bee-keeping at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition.

COFFEE

S. H. & A. S. E. MOCHA AND JAVA COFFEE, put up in 1 and 2-lb. tins (as cut) possesses a peculiarly rich aromatic flavor. It is something RICHER, BETTER than the others, hard to define, but easily distinguished by a trial. NOT CHEAPER, BUT BETTER. If you have, or want to gain, a good class of customers whom it is difficult to satisfy with coffee, give them S. H. & A. S. EWING'S, and watch results. PURITY, QUALITY AND UNIFORMITY GUARANTEED.

SPICES

S. H. & A. S. EWING'S HIGH-GRADE SPICES have stood as a standard of the BEST for over half a century. Why handle inferior goods when you can get S. H. & A. S. EWING'S at the same figures. QUALITY FIRST.

DEAR SIRS:—

I have used your BALL-BEARING COMPUTING SCALE for several years now and I believe it has paid for itself a good many times over during that period. Most of my profits went to my customers in overweights in the past. Now I have a little left for myself.

HOW TO RAISE OYSTERS.

PROFESSOR John A. Ryder, of Johns Hopkins University, and other scientists of renown, have by experiments made it possible for anyone near salt water with ordinary care to produce young oysters, says an exchange. The method is exceedingly simple, and the experiments will no doubt result in correcting the scarcity of mollusks which prevails by reason of overfishing.

Producing oysters by artificial methods consists merely in aiding nature in her work of reproducing the species. An oyster is taken and the shell opened so that the animal lies in the deeper shell. The upper surface of the oyster is then stroked gently away from the hinges with an ordinary glass pipette. If the mollusk is ready to spawn this stroking will cause it to emit a fluid which, if the oyster be a female, will be full of tiny eggs, microscopical in size. A few drops of this liquid is taken up by the pipette and put into a tumbler of sea water, as is also a drop or two of liquid from a male oyster. The eggs and male cells thus come together in the water and are fertilized in the natural way. In a couple of hours the eggs will have hatched, and thousands of young oysters will be floating in the tumbler. For a couple of days the young oysters will swim about, but at the end of that time they will have grown a glassy shell and will be ready to attach themselves to some solid substance. During the swimming stage thousands of them are very likely in their natural state to be devoured by fishes or by adult oysters.

It is after a young oyster attaches itself to a solid object of any kind that it begins to grow a lime shell. The larval shell remains attached to the new shell until it finally wears off. Care must be taken that the oysters have solid objects on which to attach themselves, as many perish for lack of a proper place to settle, or they suffocate in the mud.

The possibilities of producing oysters by artificial means are great, since a single female oyster in a single spawning season will produce 16,000,000 to 40,000,000 eggs. It is estimated that 90 per cent. of the eggs may be impregnated and hatched. A tumbler of sea water will hold 100,000 of the newly hatched oysters.—Fishing Gazette.

The contract has been signed for the erection of a large warehouse for Campbell Bros. & Wilson, wholesale grocers, Calgary, to be ready by the first of November. The building, which will be of solid stone, three storeys and a basement, 37½ by 118, will be on Atlantic avenue.

Modern Merchandising demands modern methods. The ALLISON COUPON BOOK is a strictly modern CONVENIENCE and SAFEGUARD against mistakes and consequent loss of money. It is better than any pass-book, punch or check system ever invented, and its absolute accuracy makes it the CHEAPEST SYSTEM on this big earth—excepting, of course, the cash system. See here:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Let us send you a free sample.

THE MOP THAT THE SUN NEVER SETS ON.

TO THE RETAIL TRADE

We desire to announce that we are filling many delayed orders on our "TARBOX SELF WRINGING MOP," to the jobbers at all points from St. John, N.B., to Vancouver, B.C.

And we especially desire to intimate that every Mop is fully equal to any we have ever put out. When you find our name, which appears plainly stamped on all of our make, it is a guarantee that the Mop is fitted with a full weight Cloth, one that is sufficiently "stockey" to be of practical use. We can supply an inferior Mop Cloth at $1.50 less per gross than our regular standard Cloth; but we do not AND WILL NOT fit our Mops with them. When you get an inferior Mop look for the maker's name.

System or Guess Work?

The grocer shown above is guessing, and the scale he has will keep him guessing, too.

He's an honest fellow, so he sees that his scale goes down on the customer's side every time, and he always gives full weight.

People buy so queerly nowadays; 10c. worth of 60c. tea; 25c. worth of 11c. dry fruit; 50c. worth of sugar at 5½c. per lb.

They know they can get more for their money this way Can't blame them either.

You've noticed this, haven't you? Then you need our Dayton Money-weight Scale as badly as he does.

Send for our 1903 catalogue. It tells how to stop this and how to

ARGUMENT.

We now offer a practical time piece for the Grocery Trade of Canada, and base our statement upon the following:

First—It is absolutely guaranteed to keep accurate time.

Second—It stands rough usage and does not get out of order easily, making it the only watch for dealers outside of the jewelery trade to handle, and also making it a practical one for sportsmen, boys and all men who give a watch hard usage.

Third—Its low price and high quality insure a tremendous sale, which we further augment by furnishing many handsome advertising devices for your store.

Fourth—Last but not least, these watches offer a handsome profit. Price cutters are not supplied.

Sold by several leading Grocery Jobbers of Canada. We will tell you who they are upon request.

Trial Offer—To any General Merchant who will write to us upon his business letter head and inclose 75c. we will send a sample watch (duty not paid) and our catalogue, so that he can test its accuracy and durability.

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

WHILE great interest is undoubtedly felt in such large projects as the new transcontinental line, and in tariff changes which, of course, invariably affect the pockets of large classes in the community, there is, after all, nothing to equal, in intensity, the feeling aroused by a personal charge against some member of the House. At once the parties seem to harden, and two camps appear, the one imputing the worst of motives to the accused, the other absolutely unable to see anything, even suspicious, in his conduct. History, parliamentary history, proves that charges against members for breach of the independence of Parliament are, like other proceedings, sometimes well, frequently very ill, founded. While, as we have said, feeling runs high during the "prosecution," where this is successful, it is wonderful how quickly hostility turns to sympathy. Herbert Spencer has noted this tendency in ordinary criminal cases, and has summed it up by saying that a rascal till caught is called "bad fellow," and thereafter "poor fellow." We presume that Mr. Spencer made this generalization on the facts of the time at which he wrote it, and, unprovided with that prophetic vision which might have shown to him the "bad fellow" after catching, in the hands of an American mob, treated with anything rather than the kindly feeling which "poor fellow" suggests—but this is a digression.

To return to our tale, Thomas McGreevy was run down through a parliamentary investigation. True, it was at the hands of a civil court that he received the sentence which placed him behind prison bars, which met with the approval of all honest citizens whatever their politics, and which broke his heart, and quickly sent him to his grave. And yet, to this day, one can hear in Ottawa words of regret at his fate. His great geniality and good heartedness are remembered, and his sins, atoned, are forgiven him. When this is the case with a great offender, how much more must it be so with one of the minor class, and how much greater still when the accused is honorably acquitted. In an earlier issue we described the case of Mr. Schell, who was "on the carpet" because his partner sold three dollars and a half worth of scantling to a Government agent. This case naturally excited mirth rather than intensity of feeling, and his Conservative opponents were the first to rise in the Privileges and Elections Committee and exonerate him, and dismiss the petty charge.

Quite different has been the trial of George M. Loy, member for Beauharnois, accused of selling a lot, at his home in Valleyfield, with the knowledge that it was intended for the ultimate use of the Government. Mr. Loy's political experiences have been varied, to say the least. Commencing in 1900 by scoring a sensational victory over the clever and popular J. G. H. Bergeron, he was not long allowed to enjoy his triumph, for a protest soon forced the resignation of his seat. At the election which followed, he once more "vanquished and overcame all his enemies," and for some months he enjoyed peace. Then came this charge upon him, like a bolt from the blue, and it has been probed to the very bottom. To show our readers how careful a member of Parliament has to be, we emphasize the fact that the sale of the lot for $10,000 was proved at the enquiry (all the evidence is, of course, taken under oath, as in any court of justice) to have been at a reasonable price, and the Conservative members did not press this aspect of the case. Mr. Loy sold to a vendee, who afterwards sold to the Government for a post-office site, but on proof that he knew the ultimate destination of the property he would be obliged to forfeit his seat. It finally came down to this fine contention, that even if Mr. Loy did not know for what purpose the land was to be used at the time he entered into an agreement to sell it, he did know before he actually signed the deed, the knowledge having come to him between the two events, and that even this slight approach to evil was sufficient to deprive him of his seat. Truly, a member, if he wishes to enjoy his position, must at least try to be like Caesar's wife, beyond suspicion. The committee met several times, and held long sittings and the result of it all was a report by the Liberals exonerating Mr. Loy (we neglected to say that he swore he had no knowledge whatever as to the destination of the ownership of the property up to the time when he signed the deed), and a minority report by the Conservative members of the committee fixing him with guilt. Then, of course, followed a lengthy debate in the House on the presentation of the reports, and this was succeeded by a vote in which Mr. Loy was "acquitted" by sixty-five majority. Mr. Monk, arguing in support of the minority report, disclaimed all personal animus, and we can readily credit this, for Mr. Loy is a man of gentle manners, well liked by all who meet him. Leaving aside altogether the credibility of the evidence, it really does not seem likely that any man would take the great risk involved in even a well-shaded dealing with the Government to dispose of a property worth ten thousand dollars, at a price not in excess of its value. Knowing something of human nature, we can understand a man taking some pretty long risks for big rewards, but to take a chance on losing a seat that he had had to win twice in two years with the added penalty of a fine of one hundred dollars a day for every day he sat in the House after the transaction, merely to sell a property at its real value is not a very likely act for a shrewd man, let alone one not entirely bereft of his reason. Some of the Conservative members refrained from voting when it came to the test, and the whole Independent party (that is, Mr. Jabel Robinson) voted solidly for acquittal. After the vote was announced, Mr. Loy was sent for to resume his seat, which he did amidst thunders of applause from his own side, and many a kindly smile from his political opponents.

In our last issue we purposely refrained from any comment upon the transcontinental railway scheme, which was last week laid, by the Premier, before Parliament. We did so because every daily in the land was making special effort adequately to report the speeches of the rival leaders, and giving strenuous efforts to the production of editorials suitable to the great occasion. Now that matters have again somewhat quieted down, we

In the first place it is an acknowledged fact that the Liberals were fully as much pleased with the vigor displayed by Sir Wilfrid in his speech of two and a half hours duration, as they were with the speech itself. The fact cannot be denied that "the Chief," as he is popularly called by his followers, has their affection in a way recalling the love of the Conservatives for Sir John A. Macdonald when at the height of his success. Very naturally then, the sight of a man who has been pronounced in bad health standing up for so long a period, and delivering a great speech, was an inspiring one to his many friends, and the cheers which again and again broke forth like a tempest were evoked not altogether by eloquence and glowing promises of a great future, but in part, by the feeling long pent up which found relief in this popular demonstration.

The vigor of the Government supporters aroused a counter-blast in the Opposition, and when Mr. Borden arose to criticise the policy of the party in power, his little band showed no lack of either loyalty or enthusiasm. Of Mr. Borden's speech much has been said by the party press. The Liberals have striven to belittle it, the Conservatives to magnify it. The truth seems to be that it was a very praiseworthy effort, all things considered. We say "all things considered." It came immediately after one of the greatest speeches ever delivered by one of the greatest Canadian speakers. If there was ever a time when careful preparation was necessary, surely this was the time. And yet for preparation Mr. Borden had scarcely time at all. True, the Globe had, with fair accuracy, outlined the terms of the agreement with the G.T.R. several weeks ago, but these terms had after all been largely modified, and so the opportunity to meet some of Sir Wilfrid's most telling argument after careful thought was entirely lacking. The opinion has been expressed by many that Mr. Borden would have been quite justified, nay, more wise, to have deferred his criticism until next day, thus giving to himself an opportunity to study out the terms of the contract as laid on the table of the House. It is argued that when so great an undertaking was under discussion, he would have been acting quite within his rights in refusing to join battle immediately. His reason for doing so, however, was plainly stated by Mr. Borden himself. He took the ground that if he said nothing at once, the press of his opponents would take an unfair use of his silence, by saying that he said nothing because the presentation of Sir Wilfrid was unanswerable. From this standpoint, and there is certainly some reason in his contention, he found himself on the horns of the dilemma, and choosing what he evidently considered the less sharp of the two he preferred to make an impromptu speech in answer to a carefully prepared one, and to let the two go out together to the country and stand comparison. It was a bold choice, but Mr. Borden is something of a fighter, and it was after all the course which might have been expected of him. He will, it is true, have plenty of opportunity to make a more careful speech later on when the second reading of the bill comes up, but first impressions often stick with those, and they are many, who take but a moderate interest in politics, and who cannot "be bothered" to read everything that is said even by the leaders on any particular subject, let it be never so important.

Great is the difference of opinion expressed by those who profess to know something of the country through which the new road is to pass, as to its capabilities and resources. Many, it is true, see all through the rouge spectacles of the Liberals, or the blue spectacles of the Conservatives. To the former the new land is one of promise, one which will develop into a source of wealth for millions of Canadians yet to be; for the other it is a barren waste, unfit for human habitation, over which a railroad can never be operated without constant and heavy loss. What a difference it makes after all whose ox is gored! In the days of the C.P.R. building we found the Liberals, the opposition of that time, pessimistic, freely prophesying that the road throughout many of its parts would never make enough to pay for its axle grease, while the Conservatives, the then Government, were full of optimism, prophesying great things and that the wilderness would be made to blossom like the rose. They were right, these Conservatives, and to-day, as good Canadians, let us hope that once more the optimists will prove their correctness.

I have talked recently with a lumberman of the Ottawa valley who has had exploring parties out through the region south and east of James Bay in search of timber and spruce limits, who assures me that the country is valueless, one great muskeg. I have had a conversation recently with a surveyor of repute from Toronto who has travelled a little further west and who told me with enthusiasm of the magnificent resources of that north land in spruce forests and water powers. As to the forests, and his travels extended through Lake Abbittibi and the Moose River, with all its tributaries, he asserted that its area is immense, and its quality superb. How can we reconcile these apparently contradictory statements? It is not hard; the country is immense, there is room for both muskeg and spruce; the surveyor was fortunate enough to strike the latter, the exploring party unfortunate enough to encounter the former.

JULY FRUIT CROP REPORT.

The July fruit crop report of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, just issued, says :

Weather conditions on the whole have been favorable for July, and hence there is no marked change since the June report.

Winter apples will be a full crop in Nova Scotia, medium to full crop in Southern Ontario, Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario Districts. In Eastern Ontario and Quebec the crop is light.

Early apples are a medium to full crop everywhere except in Quebec.

Pears will be a light crop, except in parts of Southern Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Plums are a medium to full crop in all plum-growing sections, with not more than the usual amount of rot.

Peaches promise well in Essex and the Niagara peninsula.

Grapes are a medium crop, except in Essex and Kent, where they are almost a complete failure.

UBERO FOR THE EXHIBITION.

H. G. Brown, who has charge of the Canadian business of The Ubero Coffee Co., Ltd., of Boston, and whose headquarters are Montreal, was at the King Edward hotel, Toronto, over Saturday and Monday, arranging for an exhibit of Ubero coffee at the Dominion Exhibition. Mr. Brown is enthusiastic over the prospects afforded by Canada and reports that Ubero coffee is meeting with a gratifying reception at the hands of the Canadian people. Ubero is one of the Mexican states, a level plateau in the midst of the mountains, and is particularly adapted for the raising of a high grade of coffee. The Ubero Coffee Co. have recently acquired a concession of 300,000 acres, giving them now an estate of 600,000 acres of the most suitable land for this industry. Mr. Brown expects to inaugurate an extensive advertising campaign in connection with the display at the exhibition.

REPLY TO WATCH DOG.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER :—

SIR, — Your correspondent, "Watch Dog," having uttered a warning growl to those travellers who are not bound by a vacation agreement and are exercising their undoubted right to continue working while others rest, appears to have overlooked the fact that the grocery travellers do not represent the whole vinegar, tea and spice interest of Canada, and his attempt to call down the wrath of the retail trade upon those who perhaps wish to observe a more convenient time for holiday making, breathes a spirit of narrow self-interest quite unworthy of those whose cause he champions. "Watch Dog" would, no doubt, growl more vigorously should those vinegar, tea and spice men agree upon a certain holiday season and attempt to "boycott" all the grocery travellers who did not find it convenient to fall into line.

In order that he may become a more useful "Watch Dog," let him avoid becoming a "dog in the manger."

Yours,

Normandy Butter.

A WRITER in The Rural World, England, is not enamoured with Normandy butter, the process under which it goes having been observed by him in a recent trip to France, along with a party of English dairy farmers, and described as follows :

"The Normandy blender who was visited was asked how he obtained his butter, and he replied that he collected it from different districts around his factory, from the farm houses, but mainly from the market towns. This butter comes to the factory in large conical baskets, some two feet six inches wide at the top, and some fifteen inches wide at the bottom. Each basket is lined with more or less white linen, the butter being then enveloped by it. On arrival at the factory it is taken out in lumps, and placed immediately upon a butter-worker of some two yards in diameter, worked by power. As the butter-worker revolves, water trickles upon the roller of the butter from a horizontal cylinder placed some eighteen inches above. This is the first process that somewhat surprised the British dairy farmers, as in the revolving process the butter was pounded very vigorously by two or three individuals in turns, whose hands were the opposite of clean, and who, when they had worked the butter sufficiently, stopped the machine, took the butter up, and carried it away some few yards to a blending machine. This blending machine is much like a 36 gallon cask on end. It is worked by power. A perpendicular spindle runs from the centre of the bottom to the top, and this, with the help of a number of arms, catches the butter and pounds it to a consistency which is very little above, apparently, thick cream by the time the operation is finished (about five to ten minutes). The butter is not lifted from this mixing or blending machine, but is run off like treacle from a grocer's tin, a door or handle at the bottom of the mixer being provided for the purpose of raising and closing. The butter as thus cut off is again returned to the butter-worker ; but, on this occasion, no water is allowed to trickle on it, as the object is to express all possible moisture. It is on the worker pounded once more vigorously by hand, as the worker revolves, and eventually carried off to an adjoining table, where it is measured and packed for market."

Dr. Wiley and Food Preservatives.

The experiments of Dr. Wiley on his "Borax Squad," with a view of determining the effect of chemical food preservatives upon consumers, are of very vital interest. It is impossible at this early date to state definitely what the experiment will finally demonstrate. Two facts at least have been proven. The first of these is that the use of borax preservatives in food diminishes the natural weight of the human body, and that persons who consume such food will not return at once to their former weight when the experiments are stopped. The second fact is that the use of borax tends to reduce the amount of nitrogen in the human body, and that the volume of nitrogen will not again return to that existing before the experiments.

In an address before The National Association of Food Commissioners, Dr. Wiley, in summing up the results of his work, said : "Foods can be preserved for a reasonable length of time in most circumstances without resorting to any chemical preservative or added preservative of any kind. Simple sterilization, which can be applied to most foods, is most effective and the least objectionable of all forms of food preservation. There may be occasions of emergency or exigency in which the use of a chemical preservative is rendered imperative.

"It may be a wise policy not to inaugurate absolute prohibition against all preservatives, but it certainly is true that wherever for any reason a preservative must be used, the package of food containing it should be clearly marked."

Argentina's Meat Supply.

Extraordinary progress has been made in recent years in Argentina in the production and export of beef and mutton. Herbert Gibson, who makes a report on the subject in The North British Agriculturist, states that whereas in 18.5 it was difficult to get 40,000 steers in Argentina that were fit for the British market, the output since then has increased by 40,000 head per annum, and last year it totalled 250,000 head. Mr. Gibson asserts that Argentina's export of beef and mutton will continue to go up by leaps and bounds. Indeed, he considers it not unreasonable to believe that by the end of the present decade Argentina will be able to export to the European market — which practically means the British market—no less than 10,000,000 hundredweight of beef and 5,000,000 hundredweight of mutton, or about double the total quantity of beef and mutton which the British market at present requires to import annually in order to meet the wants of its teeming population.

German Meat Inspection Law.

The new German meat inspection law which went into effect on April 1 of this year has paralyzed the export of American meat to Germany, as may be gathered from the following figures culled from United States Consular reports.

Imported from U. S. during month of May.	1902. lbs.	1903. lbs.
Prepared beef	466,600	99,600
Prepared Pork	800,400	29,200
Hams	272,600	200

From the fact that of 768 pieces of bacon, sides and hams inspected at Stettin since the law went into effect not one piece was rejected and as a sharp advance is anticipated, so soon as the immense stocks which were "laid in" before the law went into effect are exhausted, the consul is of the opinion that the law will undergo a modification in the near future.

Stones for Butter.

THE Copenhagen correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph writes : "According to information which has reached here, the Russian police are on the track of a gang of thieves who are responsible for the despatch of large consignments of 'Siberian butter' to England and other countries, which must have caused no little surprise to those receiving them. Their method has been an ingenious one. A member of the gang obtained employment as carman by a butter exporter, and it became his duty to take down the casks from the stores to the railway and steamship wharves. This man was intercepted en route, the casks of butter rolled out of his van, and others substituted of the same weight, but filled with stones and earth, which were duly forwarded to the consignees.

Victoria Cheese Board.

The Victoria Cheese Board met in Lindsay on Monday. Buyers present: Fitzgerald, Gillespie, Cook, Bailey and Flavelle. Highest price paid was 9⅞c. Mr. Fitzgerald secured 797 boxes, Mr. Flavelle 480, and Mr. Cook 182. Five factories refused to sell and were allowed to sell off board.

Export Eggs.

The following information concerning the requirements of the British egg market is from the report of the Dominion Commissioner of Agriculture:

"The grade of egg which is in good demand in Great Britain is one weighing 15 pounds per great hundred, that is 15 pounds per 10 dozens, which is equal to two ounces per egg or 1½ pounds per dozen. A small quantity imported into Great Britain from France go as high as 17 pounds per great hundred. For every half pound which eggs weigh less than 15 pounds per great hundred, the value is lessened by about one cent per dozen.

"Eggs should be graded as to size. A higher value will be obtained for a given quantity of eggs graded into three sizes—large, medium and small—than if they are sent with the sizes mixed promiscuously. Eggs of a brown shade of color are preferred.

"The preferred size of egg case for export is a wooden case, holding thirty dozen eggs, paper-filled—that it, having pasteboard frames with a separate space for each egg. These cases, holding 30 dozen each, measure about 28 inches long, 12¾ inches wide, and 13 inches high, outside dimensions.

"For the safe carriage of the eggs, it is important that they should not be stored in a warehouse, on the cars, or on board the steamship, in proximity to any cargo from which they would acquire a flavor. The carrying of eggs with a cargo of apples has been known to impart to them a flavor which impaired their value.

"They should be carried on the cars and on the steamship at a temperature of from 38 to 42 degrees F. When cases containing eggs are removed from the cold storage chambers they should not be opened at once in an atmosphere where the temperature is warm. They should be left for two days unopened, so that the eggs may become gradually warmed to the temperature of the room where they have been deposited. Otherwise a condensation of moisture from the atmosphere will appear on the shell, and give them the appearance of sweating This so-called 'sweating' is not an exudation through the shell of the egg, and can be entirely prevented in the manner indicated."

Cold storage eggs are sold in Great Britain as "Canadian fresh eggs," and the prices last year ranged from 7s 6d to 8s 6d per long hundred (120 eggs) during September and October, and from 7s 9d to 8s 6d per long hundred during November and December.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

The price of pork, while firm, is low. There is a wide range in quality, and there is very little of really best stock. Buyers will not pay for it. There is not the demand of a few years ago for the estreme fat pork. Beef is unchanged. Pure lard continues unchanged at the lower prices. Refined lard moves very slowly. In fresh meats, beef and lamb are the sellers. Prices show little change. Domestic beef is low. Lamb is now splendid quality. Some little veal is still offered. There is very little pork or mutton seen. We quote :

BUTTER.—The market still continues featureless. Little creamery and no dairy is being exported. The quality is not particularly good just at present. Much is being offered, but dealers are not disposed to be anxious to buy. Prices are unchanged. We quote :

CHEESE.—A firmer tone has characterized the cheese market this week and quotations are advanced ¼c. The 9⅝c. paid at the Lindsay Cheese Board was regarded as a hopeful sign. We quote :

MONTREAL.

CHEESE.—Though the market is quiet, a fair amount of business was done, confined, however, principally to Quebec and Easterns at lower range of prices. Western boards are considered too high. The recent spurt is undoubtedly due to shorts covering, though some dealers are bullish, and look to 10c being made before end of August. Shipments at this port from May 1st to date are over 1,000,000 boxes. Contrary to expectations, an advance of ½ to ⅝c was noted here this week, due, no doubt, to short dealers covering. It is not anticipated by the trade that this advance can be maintained, as there is a good deal under process throughout the country, both in Ontario and Quebec.

BUTTER.—Market dull, cable sales being small, and very little export business doing. Local prices range :

Eastern Townships, fine	0 18½	0 19½
" fancy prints	0 19	0 19½
Western creamery, finest	0 17½	0 18½
" good	0 16	0 17½
Dairy	0 14	0 15

EGGS.—Prices are steady at about 14c. for fresh straight gathered stock. The local feeling is not very strong. June local exporters are making shipments of fresh stock, well selected and heavy. The market on the other side, however, it is feared, will give poor returns for cost here, owing to the enormous quantity of Russian awaiting release from pickle.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—Prices are rather firmer, but really unchanged. While receipts are not quite as free, demand is not sharp. For really first-class stock full figures obtained.

EGGS.—Prices are rather firmer. There is a good average sale ; receipts are not large. Quality is generally good.

CHEESE.—The market is rather easier. For twin cheese there is a good demand at a price. The local market will not take large cheese. These are being bought at market prices, and shipped to England. Factories are not holding stock. We quote :

WEST INDIAN OPENINGS FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

IN these days, when such a statesman as Hon. Joseph Chamberlain proposes to change radically the fiscal policy of "free-loaf" England, that trade between the various colonies may gravitate towards the natural centre, the markets of the Mother Country, and that the Empire may be bound together in community of interests, as well as by the present sentimental bonds of blood and loyalty, any information that will tend to increase the trade between one colony and another is of paramount interest.

Of late years the trade of Canada, for export, has largely increased, and new markets have to be sought for in which the surplus products can be disposed of to advantage. There is a large market in the British and other West India Islands, which has been supplied largely by the United States, and which the Government of Canada, the Manufacturers' Association, and many private parties have done much to attain. Canada wants sugar and other products of these islands, and they can consume our flour, butter, cheese, fish, and many other products of the soil or our manufactures, thus producing the basis of international trade—a fair exchange of commodities.

There is much, however, to be done before Canadian trade with these southern islands will be successful. Instead of considering these markets as a dumping ground for surplus products, the conditions and requirements of the markets must be studied carefully, and catered to as particularly as to our own local markets. This fact is emphasized by Mr. E. L. Thorne, manager of the Union Bank of Halifax, who returned last week from a vacation trip, which included the West India Islands. In an interview Mr. Thorne says :

"On the steamer which took me south there was 4500 tons of United States freight. Now, that might have just as well have come from Canada. Trinidad people—and it is the same in the other islands—only buy enough to last one day, and they like to get hold of things done up in convenient packages. The United States shippers seem to understand the knack of doing this, while Canadians do not. In a word, we do not understand the situation as we should up here, and apparently Canadians will not spend the time and money in learning. As soon as they understand what is wanted, and how it is wanted, they will have no trouble in finding a market."

Rev. Dr. Grant, a Nova Scotian, now on a visit to his native land, also has the same story to tell of a large market for Canadian products, if properly catered to. Dr. Grant has labored as a missionary in Trinidad for thirty-two years, and his son, Mr. T. Geddes Grant, is in business in Port-of-Spain, the centre of Trinidad trade, and has done much to extend Canada's trade with that flourishing island. Mr. Grant will attend the coming meeting of the Chambers of Commerce at Montreal, when no doubt his views on intercolonial trade will be of much interest to Canadian business men.

Dr. Grant says : "The relations between Canada and Trinidad have developed very materially during the past year. We can supply just what Canada wants in the way of tropical products, and Canada, in turn, can give us food stuffs, lumber, and some dry goods. Several things have contributed towards this. A number of our business men have commenced to make trade with Canada a specialty, prominent Canadians have been down there, and have succeeded in making Trinidad pretty familiar with Canada. Canadian money is being largely invested there, as in The Trinidad Electric Co. and the Union Bank of Halifax, and the visit of the president and secretary of the Manufacturers' Association did much in this line. The visits of such men have established a friendship between the two countries which is fostered and cherished by the people of the whole Southern Colony."

Dr. Grant corroborates the opinion expressed by Mr. Thorne : "The increase in trade between Canada and Trinidad has been especially marked during the last few months. But complaints are rife as to the way goods have been shipped in the past. I understand, however, that there is a disposition on the part of shippers to adapt themselves to the requirements of the market, and yet there is evidently still room for improvement, for, on leaving Trinidad, I saw several packages of butter rejected, and they were certainly unfit for use. Their condition was wholly due to a want of care in putting them up."

Trinidad, at present, imports largely, and it has a future before it which, in a few years, may double its population and consequently its trade. Dr. Grant expresses the opinion that when the Panama Canal is opened it will have a tremendous influence in advancing the status of that island, the resources of which are only partially developed. It may thus be seen how important it is for Canada to grasp at once this opportunity of increasing her trade with Trinidad, as well as with the other West India Islands. With the trade of Trinidad secured, a large portion of the trade with Venezuela would also be secured.

The latest returns of the trade of Trinidad show that, in round numbers, it is $25,000,000. Of this amount $7,916,000 is with Great Britain ; $7,257,000 with the United States ; $1,809,000 with France ; $4,590,000 with Venezuela ; and only the limited sum of $710,000 with Canada.

The products imported by Trinidad, outside of manufactured goods, which Canada could supply, are as follows : Flour, $820,000 ; oats, $106,000 ; butter, and butter substitutes, $260,000 ; candles, $36,000 ; cement, $85,000 ; cheese, $36,000 ; coal and coke, $125,000 ; fish, $332,000, which trade, if secured, would triple the present amount of Canada's trade with that island.

PREMIER ROBLIN ON THE WEST.

PREMIER ROBLIN, of Manitoba, was chatting in the rotunda of the King Edward Hotel with Col. Sam Hughes and a number of other political friends Wednesday morning last when he was seen by a representative of THE GROCER.

Mr. Roblin in private life is a grain dealer, and, like every respectable western politician, has a wheat farm of his own. The western statesman was in Toronto to attend the Conservative picnic and give expert advice on how to win provincial elections. But that is another story.

THE GROCER wanted to know what Mr. Roblin, as a business man, had to say about the West. Needless to say, he was enthusiastic. This Fall, he thought, would be every bit as good as last. The yield per acre would not be up to last year, but the increased acreage and higher grices would produce as much hard cash. The elevator accommodation would be ample this year, and improved service was anticipated in moving the grain. The Premier denied there was any foundation for the suggestion that the West was being boomed too hard.

"You can say that everything is all right ; that embraces it all."

And with these assuring words ringing in his ears the scribe departed, and the Premier, chewing an unlighted cheroot, rejoined the little crowd of politicians who were in his party.

WHITE BLACKBERRIES.

Fruit growers will be interested to learn that an enterprising Hillsdale, Ore., grower has accomplished the feat of producing white blackberries which are perfectly successful as to appearance and flavor, says The Victoria Colonist. He does not intend to grow them as a novelty, but as a crop, and is planting out many slips from his experimental bush. The berry is of fair size, almost transparent, the seeds very small, and the flavor much milder than that of other berries. They have a most attractive appearance.

FOREST CITY GOSSIP.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
365 Richmand St., London, Ont.
Auguct 10, 1903.

WHILE it is to be expected that wholesale grocers are quiet on account of their travellers all being off the road, there are letter orders being received, sufficient to keep those in the warehouses moving. Of course, these orders are almost entirely for requirements needing quick despatch, and could not be held back till representatives of the houses resumed their trips.

Much general satisfaction is expressed by the grocery firms here at the manner in which the travellers' vacation agreement is being carried out. The business places, as well as the citizens generally, over the city are taking down their bunting and laying it away. The great picnic, and the Old Boys home-coming are over for this year, and the grocery travellers will be returning by Saturday's trains to resume on Monday morning their regular trips with renewed vigor, and a fresh lot of humorous stories and true fishing yarns.

In these letters mention has already been made of the great vim and enthusiasm with which the business men and others in this city take hold when an outing is on the tapis; and in this connection we cannot refrain from noting another of the successful picnics, that of The Irish Benevolent Society. Nearly every business man of Irish extraction in London was on hand, helping to make up the immense gathering of fourteen thousand men, women and children. The annual banquet of the society at the Fraser House, Port Stanley, was a function which proved highly successful in every way.

There is considerable activity just now at the Queen's park. These are the grounds where the London Western Fair is annually held. J. A. Nelles, who has been secretary of the fair for many years, reports a greatly increased number of entries over former years, and that the space is rapidly filling up. Some American machinery firms will make important exhibits. Many novel attractions will be added. The fair continues from September 11 to 19. Entries close on September 10.

* * *

The wheat being threshed in the neighborhood of London is turning out remarkably well, threshing is general and farmers are at their busiest season. Wheat and oats are both being brought to the market here, the former ranging from $1.10 to $1.25 per cwt. and the latter 80c to 85c per cwt., the latter price being most frequently paid. Barley is a very fine crop this year and sells at 44c to 48c per bushel.

* * *

There were large deliveries at Saturday's market of both butter and eggs. Rolls ranged in basket lots from 17 to 18c, and crocks 16 to 17c per lb.; creamery pounds 21 to 23c. Eggs were 14 to 15c. Poultry 45 to 60c. per pair.

* * *

Apples are abundant and very good; 75c. to $1 per bushel is the prevailing price. The peach crop is reported very good with the exception of the yellow flesh varieties; prices ranged from 15c. to 60c., according to the size of the baskets. Plums are not yet arriving in great quantity, but sales are made at 40 to 60c. for 12-qt. baskets. Roots and vegetables are plentiful and of good quality and a large business is done in these daily. Some very fine new potatoes are in the market now at 50c. per bushel. It is feared the cool nights will injure tomatoes.

* * *

Mr. A. McCormick, sr., of A. McCormick & Sons., grocers, is still in a very low condition, and but very slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

* * *

The committee of the London Board of Trade having in charge the arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting delegates from the Congress of Chambers of Commerce, are meeting with marked success and a creditable reception is assured to the party of over a hundred expected here. President J. R. Minhinnick, of The Empire Mfg. Co., and Vice-President J. A. Carrick, of The Queen City Oil Co., will leave London on Saturday, August 15 to represent the Board of Trade of this city at the congress in Montreal. London's representatives are level-headed men, with a good grasp of the important questions to come under discussion.

NEW YORK STATE GROCERS.

The annual convention of the New York State Association of Retail Grocers is meeting this week at Niagara Falls, N.Y. The convention is a very representative one, judging from the large number of delegates in attendance.

THE DELIVERY WAGON.

The delivery wagon offers a fine opportunity for advertising, says an American exchange. It goes everywhere and is seen by everyone. It is a constant reminder of the store it represents. A spic and span wagon drawn by a well-groomed horse always makes a good impression. It indicates enterprise and suggests a bright, clean store and fresh goods.

A dilapidated, paintless wagon and broken down horse give the opposite impression. They lead the observer to think that the merchant who owns this seedy outfit must be like his horse, a back number.

It pays to keep a good horse and an attractive wagon.

Windsor Salt.

You buy the best butter, why not the best Salt? Do you forget that it is the little things that count? A woman doesn't tell all she knows. Perhaps she has been trading at some other store just because she can't buy Windsor Salt of you. She doesn't say this to you, but there are a good many chances that she tells her friends.

Windsor Salt is pure, white, dry, crystalline—it is nothing but Salt. There is no dirt, no impurities in it. It is the highest quality there is or can be. Think it over—perhaps the woman who is trading elsewhere will trade with you if you sell Windsor Salt.

THE TURN OF THE SALMON RUN.

THE GROCER learns from its British Columbia correspondent that the salmon fishing has at last taken a decided turn for the better. The run of sockeyes is now most satisfactory, and it is fairly certain that the season will be a pretty good average. For three weeks there was not a single run of fish to encourage the fishermen, and the canners began to look on it as an off season, but this pessimistic view has now vanished. There are in the province 79 salmon canneries, of which 49 are on the Fraser river. Of the latter, some 40 are being operated this season, most of them owned by the British Columbia Packers' Association.

The salmon pack in the northern waters of British Columbia is practically over, as the run of fish there is earlier than on the Fraser. The Skeena and Naas River districts report a very low catch, and the pack will be the smallest in years. Rivers Inlet has had a good catch, and several canneries there have put up nearly a full pack, one or two of them having nearly 20,000 cases already. On Alert Bay the canneries have a small pack, about the same as last year.

If the present run on the Fraser River and Gulf of Georgia is kept up for the month of August there will be a very good pack. The fish have been slow to come into the river, staying out on the salmon banks in the gulf much longer than usual. There, where the waters are on the United States side of the international boundary, purse seiners have been making big catches. The traps which are in the track of the fish as they come in from the gulf to the Fraser have been getting smaller catches than usual, the same as the gill net fishermen in the gulf and river.

THE TOURIST TRADE.

WHAT are you doing to catch the tourist trade? These Summer months Canada is overrun with Americans. Bostonese and New Yorkers fill the hotels and railroad coaches of the Maritime Provinces. Cobourg and other Lake Ontario resorts are the haven of Southerners who have been yearly visitors almost since fo' de wah. The St. Lawrence, Muskoka, The Sault are the shrines of these latter-day pilgrims in search of the health-giving air and sunshine of this heaven-blessed Land of the Maple. There is hardly a town in Canada that has its little stream or lake that has not its share of the American traveller.

These people spend their money freely for anything they want. They are ever on the outlook for souvenirs. They delight in the unique, especially if it has local associations. These people would be the source of a large and lucrative trade if they were properly cultivated, as they have not been heretofore.

The souvenir goods offered to tourists at most resorts is the veriest trash and trumpery; stuff that might do for a child's play-house, but absolutely useless and ridiculous in any home of ordinary good taste. That sort of thing of course appeals to children and a certain class, but the merchant is foolish who caters to this class to the exclusion of the better class.

The matter is worthy of thought. No store in the tourist belt should be without a tourist department. Local conditions should determine its nature. The articles exposed for sale should include some of the very best quality and should if possible be of local manufacture—German truck can be purchased anywhere. In planning such a department a merchant could gain valuable ideas by visiting some of the larger centres and inspecting some of the novelty shops. The goods should be given an advantageous position in the window and possibly advertising matter might be used. A really superior line of tourist goods would be such a novelty that there is a "fortune in it" for the man who undertakes to provide it.

Once again, let not the local association idea be lost sight of. "Made in Canada" is good. For tourist purposes "Made in Minnicoganeschene or Bellchasse" is better.

CEYLON AND INDIAN GREEN TEAS.

A CHICAGO man, in conversation with THE CANADIAN GROCER recently, reported that since the Ceylon tea producers had commenced to imitate Japan greens their sales in the United States had increased very much. This statement is verified by Gow, Wilson & Stanton's tea report of July 31. From January 1 to July 1, 1903, Ceylon exported to America direct 2,829,487 lb. of black tea and 2,717,501 lb. of green tea, a remarkable showing, considering that for the same period a year ago the respective amounts were 2,182,048 lb. of black and 372,595 lb. of green, and in 1900 no green at all was exported. It must be remembered, however, that the greatest part of Ceylon black comes through London, and is thus not accounted for in the above figures. The same report also announces that, now the Tea Associations Act has been passed in India, the North American market will be further exploited with Indian green.

Customers do not lie awake at night thinking about the goods of the merchant who does not advertise.

THE CONGRESS OF CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

ALL Canada joins in welcoming to Montreal the delegates to the fifth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire which begins its sessions on Monday. Previous meetings of this Congress have attracted much attention in Canada because of the importance of the subjects discussed and the reputation and ability of those taking part in its deliberations, but particular interest attaches to this meeting, not only because of the unusual importance of the subjects to be discussed but also because this is the first occasion on which the Congress has assembled outside the British Isles. Previous meetings have all been held in London, but this year, in recognition of the growing importance of colonial interests, the Congress meets in a colonial city. Fitting it is that the first colony so to be honored is the Dominion of Canada, and that the metropolitan city of Montreal should have been selected as the scene of this historical gathering.

Historical, for the meeting of this Congress may well be expected to mark an epoch in the history of the Empire. These are days in which history is rapidly being made. Very soon must be decided whether the Empire is to be drawn together by the ties of commerce, or whether the tendency is to be towards disintegration. The counsel of this parliament of business men must have considerable influence on the shaping of public opinion. Ours is an immense Empire composed of various units whose interests may seem diverse. The Canadian business man may think he has very little in common with the business man in New Zealand. In this Congress will meet representative business men from all the important commercial centres of the Empire. The Australian and New Zealander meet their brothers from Canada and South Africa. Meeting face to face, they can discover and discuss their mutual interests and adjust any little differences. In this meeting they will discover opportunities for developing inter-imperial trade, and more may be accomplished from the intimacy resulting from this Congress than from any system of preferential tariffs. The business horizon of every delegate must surely be widened by being brought in touch with business men from all the British possessions.

The importance of this gathering can scarcely be over-estimated. Its debates, and the conclusions at which it may arrive, will be watched with the greatest interest by the whole Empire. Subjects of mighty import are to be discussed in the four short days which the Congress has at its disposal. Its decisions are not legislative, but who can doubt the great influence which they are bound to have upon the trend of thought throughout the Empire and ultimately, perhaps, on the course of legislation? Who can doubt that the resolutions regarding the fiscal policy of the Empire, adopted by a representative body of business men from all parts of the British possessions, are bound to wield a mighty influence upon the course of the fiscal battle now in progress in the very heart of the Empire?

And indeed the trade question looms very large in the programme of resolutions to be submitted to the Congress. No less than eleven resolutions regarding inter-imperial trade are to be submitted. A resolution from the London Chamber of Commerce is to the effect "That this Congress urges upon His Majesty's Government the appointment by them of a Royal Commission composed of representatives of Great Britain and her colonies and India, to consider the possibilities of increasing and strengthening the trade relations between the different parts of the Empire." This resolution is in harmony with the general policy of "inquiry" of the Balfour-Chamberlain Government, and perhaps may be interpreted as not unfavorable to preferential trade. A counter resolution from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce is clearly opposed to the encouragement of trade by tariffs.

These two opposing resolutions will no doubt be debated at considerable length. While British opinion is divided, there is no uncertain sound in the resolutions submitted by Canadian bodies of which that of the Montreal Board of Trade may be taken as typical. It is to the effect "that this Congress is of the opinion that Great Britain can best serve the interests of the Empire by giving a preference in her markets to the products of the colonies as against the products of foreign countries, it being believed that such preference would (1) benefit Great Britain by largely freeing her from dependence upon foreign countries for her food supplies; (2) stimulate reciprocal trade within the Empire; (3) develop colonial enterprises, and, moreover, serve to make the colonies attractive, not only to the large number of British subjects emigrating annually from the British Isles, but also to the surplus population of other countries.

But while the trade question is very prominent, other subjects of perhaps equal importance are to be discussed. Among these is the question of emigration to the colonies. The crying need of Canada and the other colonies at the present day is a volume of suitable immigration, and to the British Isles we must look for our better class of immigrants. Resolutions submitted to the Congress by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Toronto Board of Trade advocate measures to direct British capital and immigration to the colonies rather than to foreign countries, primarily with the view of making the colonies Britain's chief source of food in time of war.

Resolutions are to be submitted with reference to the co-operation of the colonies in the defence of the empire. Three different resolutions from Canadian bodies declare in favor of colonial co-operation in the maintenance of both army and navy. La Chambre du Commerce of Montreal offers a counter resolution declaring that it is the first and most pressing duty of the colonies to develop their own resources. There is room here for a most interesting discussion.

The Imperial postal system is the subject of five resolutions. The Birmingham Chamber, alluding to the reduction by Canada of the postage on periodicals bound for Britain, urges that this action should be reciprocated. Various resolutions are submitted regarding fast steamship services. Eight resolutions deal with the metric system. The Canadian manufacturers' Association moves "that the Congress strongly recommends the adoption of a decimal currency and of the metric system of weights and measures, together with a universal gauge for defining the thickness of metals."

These are but a few of the topics which will occupy the attention of the Congress, and we can only regret that the time for their discussion is so short. Ordinarily, the Congress meets but once in four years, and it would seem advisable either that more frequent meetings should be held, or that longer time should be allowed for deliberation and discussion.

THE EDUCATION FOR A MERCHANT'S SON.

COMPLAINTS are general that boys and girls from our public schools cannot write legibly. In fact, it would almost appear that writing is becoming a lost art. This fact is borne home upon the merchant who takes his boy or girl from the school and puts him or her in the office with a view of learning the business. The result is very often disappointing. A set of books is one thing that cannot be run off on a typewriter.

The only place nowadays where a young person is reasonably certain of acquiring a good business hand is at one of our business colleges. Business colleges have vindicated their right to existence. They fill an important place and render important service to the sons and daughters of merchants.

The boy who, before entering, should have had a year or two in the store under the parental eye will be in a position to grasp new ideas and become familiar with new business methods which may have been overlooked by the parent. He will gain an insight into the methods in use in the wider mercantile field, banking, wholesale jobbing and commercial law. At the same time he should acquire a systematic exactness, which is of the greatest value in business. A course in a good business college for the son who is to be taken into the firm is a first-class investment for the average merchant.

WAYS OF WESTERN WHEAT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

WINNIPEG, Aug. 12.

THE condition of the crops in the Canadian Northwest is a subject full of interest at the present time to all Canada, and in fact to the whole American continent.

There has perhaps never been a season in the history of the country when the crop was so difficult to estimate. The seed went in under almost ideal conditions; in fact it was stated by many farmers long resident in the country that more perfect seeding conditions never prevailed.

Everything went well for two weeks after the seed was in; then an uneasy feeling began to pervade the country; the rain had not come and some sections were very dry. Hardly had this uneasiness developed when a good general shower relieved the tension and everything was considered all right, and for a couple of weeks all went well. Then again it grew dry and warm, with very little rain in many parts of Manitoba, although the rainfall of the Northwest Territories was fairly abundant. The dry, hot weather continued for three weeks, and the alarm as to the condition of a great part of the crop in some sections of Manitoba became very general. The crop failed during this three weeks of hot, dry weather very materially, and during the Winnipeg Exhibition week farmers from all over the province complained of want of rain, short straw and the danger of ripening without the heads filling as they should do. But following the 25th of July the weather turned cool, there have been a number of heavy showers, and though it is not possible for all the damage caused by the drouth to be overtaken, it is a surprise even to experienced westerners the amount of recovery that has been made in the past 10 days.

Travellers and inspectors for the larger milling concerns are perhaps the best and most reliable authority we have outside of Government returns, and several of these men say that the crop which they visited 10 days ago and thought would not be worth cutting has made so much recovery that it will now go above 12 bushels to the acre.

A feature in the crop situation that makes it especially difficult to estimate is the variety of the crop on the same farm. There are fields of wheat sown on land that has been crop for some years, on Spring ploughing, that will not go over 12 bushels to the acre, and on the same farm there are fields of wheat on well Summer-fallowed land that will go 23 to 25 bushels to the acre.

This has been pre-eminently a year to distinguish between good and bad farming. Almost without variation wheat is good on well-fallowed land and poor on land that has received less care and attention. If the superintendent of the Experimental Farm at Brandon, Mr. S. A. Bedford, were inclined to repeat that aggravating formula, "I told you so," he could do it with emphasis this season. At institute meetings for the last five years he has been earnestly condemning the folly of continuous cropping of land without making any return to the soil in either manure or cultivation and without proper rotation of crops. The seasons have been so good that this warning has fallen on many deaf ears, but this season of 1903 has pressed the lesson home in a manner that will not soon be forgotten.

It must not be supposed that the conditions mentioned prevail all over Manitoba. They do not. The dry districts are mainly along the south-western branches of the C. P. R. down to the boundary. A portion of the celebrated Portage Plains is affected and on towards Brandon. West and north-west the crops are very nearly as heavy as they were last year.

During the past week a number of members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange have made special trips through the country, and a consensus of opinion seems to be that the West will have about 50,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, as against 60,000,000 bushels last year, the increase in the acreage being counterbalanced by the dry sections. The present conditions are all that could be desired for making the berry of fine quality, and harvesting will be fairly generally about the 17th of the month. The quality and quantity of the Western Canadian crop at the moment is, like the celebrated Scottish verdict, "not proven."

once said:

To "Fetch" the people, you must serve them well.

Our faith in this doctrine is manifested in the great success we have met with in the sale of "Salada." We have served the public well; not well to-day, passably so to-morrow, and well enough the next day—but always "good alike,"—That we have "fetched" the people, there is no gain-saying.

Trade is won and held by the sale of meritorious goods. Evidence of this fact is not far to seek.

Our often-expressed conviction that "Salada" Natural Ceylon Greens would displace Japans is coming true rapidly — you can pin your faith to our dogged devotion to these teas. "They are all right."

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Aug. 13, 1903.

THE state of trade, since our last issue, has been in every way satisfactory, orders have been coming in freely and denote a distinctly healthy outlook. General conditions throughout have been steady and without any indication of marked change. Canned goods continue to have a good run and prices are keeping firm. New season peas are now to hand in limited quantity. Reports of apricots, peaches and plums point to crops being below last year s averages and prices are expected to rule firm. New season's salmon is also considered short with distinctly firm prices. Coffee is slow and uninteresting on the home market, with indications of firmness on other markets. Spices are also slow with prices ruling high, the recent enforcing of the pure food acts in the United States having had the effect of stimulating demand for the pure articles. Rice continues in active demand and prices continue firm. Tapioca is holding only small interest. Syrups and molasses are promising to stiffen up in price; the demand remains slow. Tea on the street is attracting but scant attention, although the reports from all foreign markets point to an increasingly strong position and on the common grades there are already indications of an advance. Foreign dried fruits are continuing well to front and prices continue firm, with favorable reports of crops from primal points. Sugar has had somewhat of a check in demand, but an increase in consumption is expected shortly with the advent of new crop of large fruits. We have to note an advance of 5c. per 100 lb. on Wallaceburg granulated, bringing that line up to 4.13, otherwise quotations remain as last week and at the time of going to press there are no indications of immediate changes.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade continues good in all well-known lines of canned goods, the available stocks are very low and prices are well maintained. New season's peas are now to hand. Canners' prices are coming to hand for apricots and peaches. The crops are not expected to reach the extent of last season's and there is every indication of prices being well maintained. Salmon is showing signs of short packs with prices firming up. We quote:

COFFEES.

The home coffee trade continues uninteresting, little movement being manifest beyond usual steady demand, and previous quotations remain. The New York markets denote stronger tone ruling, with prices firming up, consequent upon unfavorable reports of crops from primal points for the marketable grades, both buyers and sellers, however, are reported as very slow to give information. It was therefore found difficult to arrive at a clear view of the situation. We quote:

SUGAR

With refiners overtaking their deliveries and with little new business doing, an easier feeling has developed in the New York sugar market, resulting in decline in official quotations on morning of August 12 of 10c. per 100 lb. all round. This simply confirms officially what has in fact been going on for some time in the form of shadings by all American refiners with only a slight cessation at time of issuing our previous report. The tone of the raw market has been reported to be generally firm and an improvement in prices was expected, but this has not materialized and sales to date have been made at prices last quoted, viz.: 2c. c and f New York, on basis 95 test, equal to 3.72, duty paid, for 96 test. Only a small business has been transacted for the week and while refiners are unwilling to continue on current basis, holders in Cuba continue firm in their ideas and refuse all bids at less than current prices. There has been considerable improvement in European situation since our last, with 88 per cent. advanced 2¼d. per cwt., quotations now being 8s. 3d. for August and 8s. 4½d. for September shipment basis f.o.b. Hamburg. Basis 8s. 3d. for 88 per cent. f.o.b. Hamburg is equivalent to a parity of 4c. duty paid New York for 96 test centrifugals, thus maintaining the differential in favor of cane sugar over ¼c. per lb. Receipts at United States four ports for week ending August 5 were 26,960 tons, with meltings maintained at previous figure, 41,000 tons. It will thus be seen that stocks for week are reduced 15,000 tons and these were 292,992 tons. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,294,492 tons, against 2,349,646 tons at same period last year, the decrease being 55,154 tons. The only change to notice in domestic refined situation is an advance of 5c. per 100 lb. in list for Wallaceburg C. granulated and we make the alteration below. With travellers on their holidays, business for second hand has been rather restricted and little new business has developed for first hands. It is not yet known whether refiners will follow the decline in New York, but for reasons given above it seems unlikely that prices here will be affected. This usually being regarded as between seasons for preserving, with the advent of larger fruit such as peaches, pears and plums, consumption of sugar locally should be greatly stimulated. We quote;

SPICES.

The home trade continues quiet, there being only steady demand in these goods at this season of the year. Prices continue to rule high, attributed in a measure to the recent enforcing of the pure food laws in the United States, the demand being thereby greatly increased for the pure spice. We quote:

TEAS.

The home market in tea has been moving somewhat slowly for some time, the tendency of buyers still being to purchase for immediate requirements only, notwithstanding the steadily firming up on other markets, in face of strong statistical outlook. The latest reports to hand from London markets confirm firm prices, In Indian teas bidding for all grades was particularly strong, a few choice invoices with good flavor bringing high averages, viz.: from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 3½d., while some 6,000 packages of ordinary grades on estate account realized an average of 7¾d. against 6⅝d. for similar grades same season last year. Advices from Calcutta speak of prices ruling firm and a slight advance on common grades, the average prices being 6a. 2p. per lb.

Advices of Ceylon tea sales also point to continued firmness, invoices showing any degree of quality passing off particularly well, the reports from estates of high elevation pointing to quality being disappointing regarding flavor. The average of price, however, stood at 7d. per lb., while the corresponding week last year it stood at 6¼d. per lb. China teas attracted but small attention on the London market. Java teas were in small show and prices ruled steady at full valuations.

There is a distinctly favorable outlook for green teas from India and Ceylon, most of which will find its way direct to the Canadian and American markets. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Trade has been well maintained in these goods since our last issue and previous quotations are ruling firm. The reports to hand from primal markets denote the outlook for walnuts as favorable, with every prospect of good crops, both for quality and quantity. Messrs. Protopazzi, of Smyrna, in their report on sultana raisins say that everything points to better crops than last season, the ruling opening prices this year being about 4s. below that ruling at last season's opening. Advices from Messrs. Schisas of Pyrgus refer to the recent trouble there regarding the current monopoly which very nearly approached a revolt, the war cry being mainly "monopoly or death." The opinion expressed, however, is that the disturbance was more political than directly touching the currant question, and it very quickly quieted down, the minister preferring to resign rather than to resort to extreme measures. GREEN FRUITS.

The fruit market has assumed very large proportions this last week. The supplies have been very heavy and generally the demand has been equal to the occasion. Prices generally are considerably lower than last week. New this season's lemons have appeared on the market at $4.50 to $5. Pineapples are almost out. Canadian tomatoes now have the market to themselves at 40 to 50c. per basket. Apples bring 12½ to 20c. per basket. California fruits have eased off very considerably, while Canadian peaches and plums range from 20 to 40c. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Aug. 13, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THE past week shows trade among the jobbers only moderately good, the holiday season seeming to have placed affairs into a comatose condition. Reports from travellers point to quiet trade till towards end of the month. Country trade is stated to be on the restful side, merchants feeling the loss of the farming element, which is too busy with harvesting to run to town. Tea trade is quiet, a slight advance in Japans being noted, from ½ to 1c. over last week's offerings ; a few round lots of Ceylon greens have been turned over at 16½ to 17c ; China blacks are dull, and local demands few. Ceylon greens, of which a few lines reached this market, were taken readily, and market is actually bare at the moment. In molasses, a firm tone prevails in New Barbados. One house received a cargo of new New Orleans and is offering at 22 to 25c. Syrups show unchanged prices, running from 2½ to 3c. In sugar, the sales stimulated by last week's lower prices, have been fairly large. The New York market is reported firm for both raw and refined coffees, and spices continue quiet, and though pepper seems to be the interesting line, in the latter nothing further than the late advance is to be noted. Rice business is dull, and tapioca is featureless, very little doing in either lines. In canned goods, quotations for corn and tomatoes are still held back, and though inquiries are made on all sides, no one seems willing to prognosticate figures for future, or accept firm offers. Salmon quotations are also hard to get on some lines. In dried fruits, currants are in good demand. Sultanas, despite the lower prices, are dull. The fish trade is dull, fresh fish being scarce and much called for ; the late cool weather has helped this trade somewhat. In dairy products, the only feature noticeable is the slight unexpected advance in cheese, due to shorts running to cover. Butter is dull and receipts small. Egg prices are steady, the English market, stocked as it is with Russian eggs, being unattainable. California green fruits are coming in freely now, 13 carloads being sold by one jobber this week, principally peaches, pears and plums. Canadian peaches are also being looked to now for business, clingstones selling at 35 to 40c, Canadian plums at 40 to 50c., and pears 40 to 50c. Lard is unchanged, and the provision market generally is dull, new potatoes coming in for as much attention as any line. The onion crop is reported bad, and higher prices are looked for.

SUGAR.

The lower prices of last week have stimulated the demand, and some good orders have been turned over. New York market continues firm for both raw and refined sugar, reports from that market to hand quoting raw as firm, with centrifugal 96 test quoted at 3 11-16, Muscovado 89 test at 3 3-16, and molasses sugar 89 test at 2 15-16. Refined sugar in New York is fairly active, and all refiners, with exception of Arbuckle Bros., selling only at the full list basis, less the regular discounts. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The feature in molasses this week is the firm tone prevailing, the shortage in Barbados crop is making holders of same reluctant to sell freely. Old Barbados is strong at 38 to 39c., a lot of 25 puncheons being placed at 38c. New is held at 40c., though it is claimed small lots have been turned over at 38½c. New Orleans ranges from 22 to 25c., according to quality. Syrups are easy at 2½ to 3c. per lb. We quote :

TEAS.

The market is quiet, with Japans firm at an advance of ½ to 1c. since last week's report. The firm price, and inability to obtain freely, is throwing the demand into green Ceylons. Some good sales of green Ceylons are noted, one lot of 100 pkgs. at 17c., another at 16½c., both with good drawing qualities. Latest China mail advices report crop of blacks very short, particularly in Paklums and Paklings, which they are making into Souchongs for other markets where, no doubt, better prices are obtained. Lower prices are not looked for. China greens unchanged. Ceylon blacks, selling easier, and greens still scarce on this market. A few greens are arriving now on orders taken some time ago, and the demand is in excess of the supply. We quote :

COFFEE.

There is nothing of any decided importance to report this week in coffees. The market is steady and quiet. Captain Coffin, of the Brazilian mail steamer British Prince, plying between New York and Brazil, was in the city during the week. He reports that the coffee output of Brazil was enormous this year, and thousands of bags were awaiting shipment. During his last voyage his vessel brought 2,500 bags for Montreal alone. New York coffee futures opened steady, but advanced 5 points on steady European cables. Smaller primary receipts and moderate demand for both accounts. We quote :

SPICES.

Nothing new to report. Pepper continues strong, and New York reports an unusual firmness. Trade, locally, is quiet, with firm tone. We quote :

HIDES.

The volume of business this week has been very fair owing no doubt to the large receipts of hides from country points. An advance of 10c. in lambskins is noted, bringing price up to 45c. and it is claimed even higher prices have been obtained by some dealers. Prices are ruling irregular, however. We quote:

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"
St. John, N.B., August, 1903.

THERE is the regular Summer business doing, and this, at best, is not large. Continued interest is taken in Fall goods. Buyers place orders rather slowly. In spot goods, sugar has considerable attention. The market is very firm and dealers are buying quite freely. Cream of tartar shows quite a range in price, but seems rather lower. Stocks held are not large. In hops, owing to some American being offered, prices are rather lower. Sale of late years' has been very small. Winter port business is being anticipated. Improved warehouse facilities are being provided. The handling of the rapidly increasing immigrant business done here commands attention and very much improved conditions will rule this year.

OIL.—In burning oil, the lower prices quoted last week still rule. The market is easy. It is said dealers will not see Persons addressing advertisers will kindly mention having seen their advertisement in The Canadian Grocer.

TOBLER'S COCOA

Positively no finer made. Every cup is eloquent. Not ranked with ordinary cocoas. Sixty years of science sixty years of wisdom, sixty years of purpose have made a cocoa known as Tobler's. For finest trade. Get it from your wholesaler.

the profits of last year. Orders for future, that is for shipment to December 1, are about all in. City dealers do not buy ahead but as they need supply take it from the tank waggon. In lubricating oil, values remain unchanged. Paint oils continue low. Turpentine is unchanged. Cod oil is being received. The quantity to hand yet is light. Prices are very firm. CANNED GOODS.—The feeling toward the association is a very mixed one. But it does not appear that any look upon it as improving matters. Buyers find they are restricted without an improved profit. It will take the season to tell if the venture is to be a success. In spot goods, new peas are here, so low prices rule. Salmon futures have attention. Everything points to a short pack. The situation is a firm one. In gallon apples, the past season has shown a light sale. Meats have been very disappointing for the same reason. We quote :

GREEN FRUIT.—Dealers are very busy. Bananas are very plentiful and the price continues low. New American apples are arriving in fine condition and sell freely at full figures. Oranges have little sale. Lemons sell freely. Prices are rather higher. In California fruits, direct cars are now being received. Quite full prices rule. The quality is good. Pears are large sellers but the price is too high for best results. Melons are not a successful line. Berries are about out of the market. We quote :

DRIED FRUIT.—Spot business is light. Quite a few of all kinds of raisins are still on hand. Also in prunes some are being carried over. This affects sale of Fall stock, prices of which are rather higher than last season ; this is particularly the case with apricots. Prices of Malaga loose raisins have been quoted. Dates will be quite low. New peels and spices about as last year. Citron is a little higher. Nuts will rule at even prices. In evaporated apples rather higher prices rule. Onions have a limited sale. Rather more Valencia stock offered than usual. We quote :

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, August 10, 1903.

THERE has been considerable general activity in the wholesale grocery markets during the last week and there is every indication that the market is livening up, and that a good late Summer and Autumn trade will be the result. Payments due in August have, so far, been met well up to the average, and a better and more healthy tone prevails in all parts of the country. The Annapolis Valley, where trade conditions were not good a month or two ago on account of the prevailing scarcity of money, has improved greatly. This is accounted for by the lact that the berries and small fruits have been marketed and brought good prices. Milk for the butter factories is at a premium, and the farmers who sold milk to the cheese factories have received returns.

The combination of the Ontario canning companies, to which so much objection was taken a month or two ago, when first announced, has been found to work well in one respect at least—that of doing away with the sale of canned goods at a fixed price before they were actually packed or a full estimate of the crop and pack obtained. The opening price is now assured to be the lowest that the supply will warrant, and future changes, which will depend on general consumption or a larger demand by the opening up of some new market, will be no lower, though there may be an advance. The jobber and wholesaler are thus, in a measure, protected from subsequent declines in prices after they have ordered their stock, which have very often entailed on them very material losses. Should they now meet an advance by having ordered short, they will be in a position to recoup themselves.

The produce market has only been fairly active during the week. Butter holds about the same at recent declines, and some of the country producers seem to be putting their stock away for higher prices. Enough, however, is coming in to liberally supply the local market. Eggs are not as plentiful as they have been and the price is firm at 14 to 15c. wholesale, which is abnormally high for this season of the year. In the city, considerable country butter is being hawked from door to door when a little better price is secured than can be obtained from the wholesalers. As a rule, however, people feel safe in purchasing from their regular dealer, where some redress can be obtained if the article is not up to the standard. Old potatoes are now almost out of the market and new ones are selling at 75 to 90c. per bushel. It will be another week or two before they are coming in freely, when the price will settle down. Fowls and chickens are scarce but will be coming in well towards the end of this month. Meats of all kinds are plentiful in the local market and prices remain unchanged.

Fish, especially codfish, will command a higher price this season. The latest reports from Newfoundland and St. Pierre say that the catch is unusually small, and that the weather has been such that it is almost impossible to get a No. 1 cure. Reports from Nova Scotia fishermen now on the banks are not as encouraging as they have been. A report from Newfoundland received last week by a prominent fish dealer says that the French fishery will be 200,000 quintals short.

* * *

The loss by fire of Whitman & Son's big fish establishment at Canso, last week, will be a set-back for the fishing industry in that section until the business is again in operation. The loss sustained was $50,000 with $35,000 insurance. Building operations have already commenced, and this enterprising firm will soon be able to attend to their usual amount of business.

R.C.H.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, August 10, 1903.

NEWS, by the way, is a scarce commodity in business circles. Beyond the old, old story that business is good and all lines selling well there is little or nothing to talk about.

CANNED GOODS.—The prices for tomatoes, corn and peaches will not be fixed until about August 20. Word has been received that full orders for gooseberries cannot be accepted, in fact the outlook is for a very limited supply of that fruit. It is not one of the staple goods of the canned fruit trade, but is fairly popular and probably sells about equal to peaches. Practically no supplies of gooseberries were received here last season.

EVAPORATED FRUITS.—There is nothing new in California fruits beyond the high price of apricots, which has already been quoted.

DRIED FRUITS.—The general expectation here is for higher prices in currants for the coming season. In the meantime the price of held stock is about the same as it has been all Summer.

GREEN FRUIT.—Owing to shortage of crop the prices of California plums and peaches have advanced. What supplies of fruit of these varieties may be expected from Washington, Oregon and British Columbia is not known, but the feeling is that the supplies may be below requirements and prices high. Here again is Ontario's opportunity if the fruit growers of that province would only send forward good fruit rightly packed. Apricots are over for the season. California plums, $1.75; peaches, $1.75; pears, $3.50; Idaho plums, $1.50; peaches, $1.50; California apples, $2.00 per box; Washington apples, $2.50; oranges, $4.50 to $5.00; lemons, $6.00 per crate; bananas, $2.75 to $3.00.

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

BUTTER.—Creamery butter is rather firmer and the demand is slightly better. The price at present is 17c. factories, or a shade over that for delivery at Winnipeg. The quality of the creamery butter is fair and the quantity will probably be about the same as last year.

DAIRY BUTTER.—Judging from the supplies coming in, country dealers are holding back butter with a view of heavy consumption during harvest. Winnipeg dealers are offering as high as 13c. Winnipeg for round lots of fine fresh dairy; at the same time it must be confessed that only a limited percentage of the butter received comes under that head. Lower grades bring 11 to 12c. Winnipeg.

CHEESE.—The demand has been very good all season and factories are inclined to hold for higher prices. This has put it out of the power of dealers here to do business in Manitoba cheese in the West and British Columbia is drawing her supply from Ontario, as she can lay the Ontario article down for a fraction under Manitoba. It is not likely that Manitoba factories will make more than can be consumed within her own borders. The present price is 9⅞ to 10c. Winnipeg, for large cheese in carlots.

EGGS.—The market has fallen off slightly but is still very firm and dealers offer 15c. Winnipeg for freshly gathered case eggs, subject to candling.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., August 7, 1903.

THERE has been a slight dulness in local retail circles for the past week or so, most of which is to be accounted for by the fact that this is the season of camping, holiday-making and other outings, none of which are conducive to activity in business. There is absolutely nothing in industrial circles to cause any stagnation of trade, unless it might be that people are all too busy to buy.

The building activity in this city has assumed such a permanent aspect that one never thinks of the contingency that it may cease or become slacker. In addition to a large number of business blocks being erected in main business portions of the city, the number of houses under construction is larger than ever. There has been no start made on two of the largest contracts for public buildings. They are the new Vancouver High School and the new General Hospital, each of which will cost in the vicinity of $80,000. The city has under construction two new buildings, a gaol and a fire hall, each costing over $30,000. The labor market is bare of available men for building, and in other lines labor is also scarce. Every mill is working overtime and not one but is hopelessly behind with orders. Local builders cannot get material fast enough, and the demand for lumber in the Canadian Northwest is the heaviest on record. The car supply has been somewhat better than at the same time last year, and yet the mills cannot keep up with orders.

In jobbing circles there is a continuance of very satisfactory trade, orders from up-country being a fair average, and the northern shipments continuing better than might be expected for a few weeks at this season. In a short time there will be much heavier shipments of Winter supplies to go in by the Yukon River to Dawson. The low water in the lower Yukon has made it a serious problem for the big shippers who have for several seasons attempted to take their large Winter stocks of staple food supplies by the all-water route, via St. Michaels and up the Yukon.

Many river boats which have been loaded at St. Michaels for some time are hung up on the Yukon flats between Rampart and Circle City. There are nearly 25,000 tons of freight under contract to be delivered at Dawson and other Yukon points lower down the river, and most of it is for the three big commercial companies operating in that district. It is scarcely likely that half of it will reach the destination. Last year there was a large quantity which met the same fate. This week there were two cargoes of goods for the N.A.T. & T. Co. and the N.C. Co. loaded at this port on the steamers Meteor and Ohio, which are making their second trip to St. Michaels for the season. It takes a fortnight to make the voyage from here, and unless there is an unlooked for change in the state of water, the lower Yukon is likely to be lower than ever when the goods arrive at St. Michaels.

The upper Yukon, from White Horse to Dawson, continues to have plenty of water for navigation, so that it is not to be feared but that plenty of supplies will be placed in the big Dawson warehouses before the open season closes.

Locally the condition of the fruit market forms the most interesting item this week. The merchants have had several difficulties to contend with. The fruit inspection has been very strict, in the interests of the fruit-growing industry of the province, but the condemnation of fruit by the carload has made shippers in California become very averse to shipping. Pears and even peaches have met with bad luck, and apples are frequently condemned. The former fruit will not stand transportation back and is therefore destroyed. Apples will stand shipment and these are permitted to be sent back, but it is a net loss whichever way it goes.

Peaches have been coming in so ripe and therefore in such bad condition that shippers have lost heavily. Early Crawfords are so ripe that the California dealers will not send many forward now, some refusing to send any. Straight cars have been more frequently received than in former seasons, but it has not been altogether a satisfactory trade. One new departure in shipments is that carloads have been made up in San Francisco and sent by rail. Dealers say that they can buy fruit cheaper in San Francisco than at the very centres of production. From now on it is anticipated that receipts of fruit will be larger by boat than for the past two or three weeks, replacing rail shipments.

In produce there has been but slight alteration in the situation from last writing. The supplies of butter have been very fair, and the market has but very little off grade stock to get rid of. Eggs are possibly the scarcest article in the produce line. All supplies are from Ontario. Cheese is from Manitoba and no change is noted in price or supplies.

AN ADDITION TO THE TRAVELLING STAFF.

Among the business enterprises which have during the last few years shown rapid growth is that of The A. F. Mac Laren Imperial Cheese Co., Ltd., of Toronto and Detroit. The company, besides manufacturing the Imperial potted cheese, are also representatives of a number of domestic and foreign firms.

Mr. Henry Wright, the present head, was the founder of the firm. They began merely as manufacturers' agents. At that time the staff consisted of Mr. Wright and one boy. There are now five in the office while on the road the company is represented by two travellers, a second having just been taken on.

The new addition to their staff is Mr. J. M. Wright, who has been representing The American Cereal Co. from Toronto to Ottawa. His territory for the A. F. MacLaren Co. will cover the same ground and he will also look after the firm's interests in a portion of Toronto. The territory from Toronto to the Detroit River will still be covered by Mr. E. Hustwitt, who will also look after a portion of the trade in Toronto.

Besides adding to their travelling staff they have been compelled to make arrangements for enlarging their premises at 51 Colborne street.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. Boehmer, of The A. O. Boehmer Co., Berlin, was in Montreal this week. As usual he was on the go.

Mr. P. C. Larkin, of The Salada Tea Co, arrived home this week from a four months' trip to the Old Country and Europe. Mr. Larkin very much enjoyed his holiday and shows the benefit of it in his appearance.

Mr. Crew, of Messrs. Crew, Widgery & Co., Bristol and London, died suddenly last week, of heart failure. Mr. Crew was head of the well-known biscuit firm.

Mr. C. H. Colson, of C. E. Colson & Sons, Montreal, is away on his vacation. Tadousac and the Saguenay are the objective points for his outing this year.

Mr. Hiram Johnson, the well-known raw fur dealer of St. Paul street, Montreal, is at present in Russia making his annual tour to the markets at Nijni Novgorod. Mr. Johnson will also, before his return, visit the fur centres in London, Leipzig and Paris.

Mr. R. A. McGillis, of The Fowler's Canadian Co., Hamilton, in an interview with "The Grocer" reports that business has been exceedingly good during the month of August, and July was remarkably so considering the season. He reports prospects excellent for Autumn trade and he is decidedly optimistic as regards the Fall trade.

Mr. Arthur Jones, of Jones, Marshall, Rutherford & Co., Ltd.; has located in Manchester, Eng., where another branch of this commission and produce house has been opened. With a principal in Toronto, where Mr. Rutherford looks after the business, Mr. Marshall in the port of Montreal and Mr. Jones on the English market this firm's opportunities for business in creamery and other dairy produce on both sides of the Atlantic are worthy of interest.

Mr. Geo. W. Baynes, representative of The Preston Metallic Roofing Co., is in the city on his return from the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Baynes reports a very successful trip and as it was merely a preliminary tour he feels highly encouraged, in fact the trade more than exceeded his most sanguine expectations. Some very satisfactory orders were placed and he feels satisfied that the quality of his firm's goods must ensure to him a good share of the trade. George is bright and popular and looked to for straight business.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

The attention of the trade is called to Messrs. Hudon, Hebert & Co.'s recent large importation of Talbot Freres (Bordeaux) alimentary pastes and olives, prices of which are said to be attractive.

Intending buyers of new New Orleans molasses will do well to write Messrs. Laporte, Martin & Cie., who have received into store this week three carloads, one low grade, one medium and one very fine fancy, which they are offering at attractive prices.

A. F. Randolph & Sons, Fredericton, are now offering Maconochie's and White's pickles.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., also offer special values in raw Porto Rico, Barbadoes and Trinidad sugars in bags.

A consignment of very choice May pickings Japan teas are in store with Hudon, Hebert & Cie., prices ranging from 30 to 35c. and cup quality claimed to be excellent.

"Princess" brand compound lard is meeting with good sales, say Laporte, Martin & Cie.

"Ubero" coffee sales by Lockerby Bros. this week have run into ton quantities, and this line is meeting with good reception.

Hunter White, St. John, has received prices from the well-known Malaga packer, Jose Segalerva, on loose muscatels and seeded raisins.

A. L. Goodwin, St. John, N.B., is now receiving a weekly car of California green fruit.

CROPS IN NEW ONTARIO.

A sample of the crops grown in New Ontario on a farm belonging to Mr. Oliver Lamb near Powassan, in the township of Hamilton, was sent in to the Crown Lands Department this week. It consisted of wisps of hay 5 ft. 10 in. in height, which was not taken as the longest in the large field, but was cut as an average of the crop. Whole acres of hay of this height were cut on Mr. Lamb's place this year. The oats grown on the farm stand 6 feet high and will run 45 pounds to the bushel. The potatoes dug there were enormous in size. This farm of Mr. Lamb's immediately adjoins the military land grants which were deeded so recently and has been worked for five years.

APPLE TREES BLIGHTED.

The Duluth Advance says: A blight has struck the apple trees of the western peninsula, turning the leaves of this year's growth yellow, and in some cases killing the wood. Local fruit men attribute it to the same cause as pear blight. In some instances the tree is likely to die altogether, but it is not thought that the destruction of the whole tree will be general. Hardly an orchard in the three western counties has escaped the blight. Samples have been sent to the Ontario Agricultural College for examination.

DEMAND FOR RASPBERRY PULP.

The Department of Agriculture has received a letter from Harrison Watson, curator of the Imperial Institute, London, Eng., stating that the raspberry crop has been a failure in England, and owing to this jam manufacturers are offering from $165 to $175 per ton for raspberry pulp delivered in London.

WENTWORH TOMATO GROWERS.

The Wentworth tomato growers, says The Hamilton Herald, claim that nature has come to their aid in the fight with the canners, and that they have come out on top. They claim that they have all been able to get the price they demanded—25 cents a bushel, and that there will be very little for sale above the amount contracted for, as the plants have grown largely to tops. There was a meeting Saturday afternoon last, and several offers were made for the surplus.

COD LIVER OIL.

COD LIVER OIL is usually not considered as an article for grocers to handle, and it may be news to the majority of the trade in Western Canada to learn that in the Province of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces cod liver oil is largely distributed by the grocery and the general store trade. The consumption in the provinces is very large, and the news that the production this year will be very short is of interest to the eastern trade.

The cod liver oil industry has been in a remarkable position this year owing to the signal failure of the Norwegian fisheries. Oil has doubled and trebled in price. In the United States it is selling up around $110 and $125 per barrel of 25 gallons, while on the local market it is proportionately dear. Owing to this reason a number of factories in Newfoundland which had been forced to close down on account of the previous low prices have again started operating, though most of them do not employ the Norwegian process. It remains to be seen how long these factories will continue in business, and whether another year of low prices will close them up again. Some fine quality of oil is being received at present from Newfoundland, and the burning of two factories (those of Harvey & Co., St. John's, Newfoundland), when oil is so scarce, may have the effect of still further firming up the market. Instructions have been received by wire from St. John's to agents here not to sell any oil until further notice.

The reason for the extremely light yield of oil in Norway is attributed to the influx of seals from Russian waters, which caused the cod to leave the bank ; stormy weather also interfered seriously with fishing, and the leanness of the fish livers, due to the first-mentioned cause, when the catch did begin to assume respectable proportions. Usually about 400 livers make a hectolitre or a fraction over 22 imperial gallons of oil, whereas this year 1,000 and over were required, and it is easily seen where the fish went to. We give below a statement of the production of Norwegian oil during the past three seasons, and it can readily be seen that the shortage this year is enormous and must tend to increase prices materially. We also append a statement of the principal fishery, Lofoten, during the last 11 years, and it will be interesting to learn of the tremendous number of fish caught each year to supply the apparently small quantity of oil.

The following figures explain themselves, being the production, in hectolitres :

TRAIN HELD UP BY PLUG OF TOBACCO.

With a plug of tobacco in one hand and a sack of crackers in the other Fred Coleman frightened a Big Four train crew so that it refused to cross a bridge near Milford Center, O. He was an escaped convict from the asylum at Woodville, Penn., and had been at large two weeks. Before commitment to the asylum he was a bridge builder. The train crew saw him on the bridge holding the tobacco and crackers, but in the misty moonlight thought the articles were weapons, and backed the train to Milford Center, where they notified the marshal, Mr. Perkins. When Perkins first called to him to come down Coleman refused, but finally joined the marshal and submitted quietly to arrest. He was returned to the asylum.

HOW BANGS LOST HIS CIGAR.

At a recent fraternity dinner John Kendrick Bangs told this story as one of his political experiences, says The New York Times.

"At the time I was running for Mayor of Yonkers I saw a laborer digging in a trench, and thought I would try to capture his vote. I went up to him, saying :

" 'Hello, Pat.'

"He looked at me without recognizing me, and said : 'Good mornin', sor.'

"I said it was a fine day, and asked him if he had made up his mind how he would vote at the elections.

" 'Oi don' know, sor, but wan thing is sure. Oi'll not vote fur that dahm fule, Bangs.'

" 'Why not ?'

" 'Well,' said he, 'he's a swell, and a roostercrat, and a dood.'

"I explained to him as best I could that Mr. Bangs was none of these things, and, even if he was, it was because he couldn't help it. I invited him to come and have a drink with me ; he accepted, and after having taken two or three drinks he became very friendly. While he was in a seemingly affable mood, I confessed that I was Bangs.

"I had in my pocket a cigar, and as it was the last of a box that Robert Louis Stevenson had sent me from Samoa, I prized it highly. But much as I prized it, I thought it well spent if I could clinch Pat's vote with it.

"I asked Pat if he would smoke, and he said he would. He took the cigar, bit off the end, put it in his mouth, and lit it ; then suddenly he grasped the cigar and threw it violently to the ground.

"In astonishment I asked him, 'Isn't it a good cigar ?'

"Yes, sor,' he said, 'the seegar is good enough, but in me excoitement in meetin' you Oi forgot Oi niver shmoke."

A SELF-FEEDING PIPE.

With some people a little tobacco goes a great way, especially with the boy just learning to smoke ; but with others a constant refilling of the bowl is necessary in order to satisfy the craving or habit which has been formed.

It is safe to say that the aforesaid boy would have no use for the pipe recently invented by a German, Max F. Hahn. It has an enormous storage capacity, with an automatic feeding arrangement, which presents a fresh smoke as long as there is any unconsumed tobacco in the reservoir. The bowl itself may be made of any desired length, holding all the way from a few short smokes to a quarter or even half a pound, as the smoker may desire. To fill the reservoir it is only necessary to open the cover and push the weed into the opening, pressing the spring cap in the bottom of the chamber as the feeding goes on. The spring serves to feed the tobacco upwards again to the top of the pipe, where it is ignited through the perforated cover.

In drawing the smoke through the walls of the combustion chamber a forced draft is maintained, and as the tobacco is consumed the ashes are forced upward by the spring and can be dislodged by jarring the pipe. When laid down the pipe soon goes out of its own accord, but is always ready for re-lighting as long as any tobacco remains.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TORONTO CITY TRAVELLERS' MOONLIGHT.

A GOLDEN moon, a cloudless night, and a sparkling lake, with twelve hundred merry excursionists on board the Corona, the Highlanders' band, and the Glionna Marcicano orchestra to furnish music, and the city travellers to superintend it all and play the part of hosts is the prescription for a good time that worked like a charm Thursday evening, August 6, it being the night of the annual moonlight excursion of The Toronto City Travellers' Association.

H. C. SCULLY, Chairman.

The traveller who does not know how to have a good time and make things pleasant for the rest of the crowd is a rare bird. They don't go in for elaborate machinery, but they get results. For instance, the committee who are to blame for the success of this year's outing are: H. C. Scully, of The Canada Biscuit Co., chairman; W. F. Daniel, of Lyman, Knox, Clarkson & Co., secretary; and J. F. Smyth, of The United Factories. None of your world's fair committees for your city drummers! Three trusty knights-of-the-grip could run a moonlight excursion, or an International High Joint Commission! So the excursion was a success financially and otherwise.

The Highlanders' band was stationed on the dock and gave a promenade concert while the crowd were gathering and awaiting the arrival of the steamer. Once on board they were ensconced in the forward cabin where the concert was continued for the benefit of the elderly and sedate, while the young and frivolous found the attractions of Glionna-Marcicano and the dance in the stern much more to their liking.

The night was almost an ideal one for a moonlight sail with perhaps an exception in the case of the wind, which was chilly betimes. This was little thought of, however, and it was a very happy and satisfied crowd that landed at the foot of Yonge street at 11.40 and made a race over the track to catch the last cars for home.

A party of half a dozen travellers and wholesale men formed in impromptu chorus and soon gathered an appreciative crowd to applaud their song and dance stunts on the forward deck.

The Toronto City Travellers' Association is a healthy organization of 150 members and is to be congratulated on the success of their moonlight. The association meets the fourth Friday evening of every month in St. George's Hall, where all city travellers are welcome.

The officers of the association are: President, D. J. Ferguson, of The McLaughlin Milling Co.; 1st vice-president, H. C. Scully, of The Canada Biscuit Co.; 2nd vice-president, J. F. Smyth, of The United Factories; chaplain, W. J. Park, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co.; treasurer, James Mortimer, of The Christie Brown Co.; secretary, W. F. Daniel, of The Lyman, Knox & Clarkson Co.; marshal, T. Holman, of The Christie Brown Co.; guard, W. A. Mitchell, of F. W. Humphrey; pianist, Jos. Taylor, of The Eby Blain Co.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

The Value of Display Cards.

THERE has always been much discussion concerning the selling value of cards in the windows or interiors, and there is little chance of an agreement being arrived at between those who speak highly and those who speak disparagingly of their use. If an unprejudiced observer were to visit the localities of these two classes of merchants, he would find that the difference of opinion is caused more by the difference in the demands of the residents of the two localities than by any shortsightedness on the part of the merchants.

It is a state of affairs which every store has to consider and respect thoroughly, that the people in one town have to be treated in a different manner from the people of perhaps a neighboring town. One town may depend upon the surrounding farmers, another upon its workingmen or factory hands, another upon a richer class, and still another upon the nationality chiefly represented. In dealing with each of these classes different systems must be adopted, and thus it is that some merchants find the use of price and other cards not so satisfactory as their greatest admirers claim. General rules in regard to cards must therefore be adhered to, only to the extent that they do not interfere with the particular requirements of the people who do business in the store.

And yet it is safe to say that there is no store that will not very often find many sales result from the use of cards, even in the case of people who in conversation speak against them. When a card is neat in size, shape and printing, and judgment is used in the wording and placing, very little fault can be found in it. Some merchants assert that the displayed price of an article very often deters people from considering its purchase, who would have otherwise enquired the price and either through lack of time to think, or through disinclination to show the smallness of their purse, will pay the money and take the article. On the face of it, this argument lacks evidences of honest dealing, and few self-respecting men will use it. A moment's thought will show that a customer thus caught will be lost, and ever after fear to ask prices in that store if the price he paid was too high. The objection that cards spoil the appearance of a window depends entirely upon the style of the card, and not upon the principle of their use.

As in anything else, there is, of course, a possibility of ruining the effect of a window by the use of cards. The proper kind are fairly small in size, neat in shape and printing. A large, ragged-edged card with conspicuously amateurish printing is an eye-sore. There is a certain store on one of the principal streets of a large city, that upon its commencement, did an enormous business, on account of the name and flashy methods of business adopted. This store continually kept its windows full of a careless array of goods and immense cards both inside and out, cut and printed in the rushy style that was conspicuous in the whole business. These cards were painted with a huge paint brush and a clumsy hand, and contained such items of information as "While they last 13c.," "Half-price today," "Less than cost," "Slaughter price 29c," and so on. For some weeks, being in a large city and on a busy street, a good business was done, but the idea of a continuous sale, the trashy, careless appearance of everything, soon convinced customers that they were paying a little less than high prices for decidedly inferior goods. One month was sufficient experience for that store.

In that way show cards cannot be spoken too much against. The untidiness, the lack of taste and attention and the very conspicuousness of the cards helped ruin the business. Such large cards undoubtedly attracted the eye, but the general appearance of them repelled it again, before it could rest on the goods.

Judgment, too, must be used in the wording as well as in the appearance. Customers, as a rule, have too much common sense to believe that goods will be sold at "Half-price" or "Less than cost," and once a suspicion seizes the mind all future actions will be viewed with suspicious eyes. Slang phrases, as a rule, are repulsive to the passer, or if not, are no advertisement, as they do not catch the right people. Comparisons with a neighbor's or competitor's prices or styles always injure trade. The writer has in mind two bicycle repair shops that stand side by side in a certain city. Both shops show almost identically similar signs and notices; both shops are almost exactly alike in size and plans, and yet one does many times as much business as the other. The question may be asked if it is not partially caused by the sign in the window of the less important store—a large hand pointing toward the competitor and containing the words: "25 miles to the next repair shop. Get your repairs done here, and pump up." The other shop keeps along in its regular business, provides good pumps outside for wheelmen, does good repairing and never notices its neighbor.

There is one very important point to keep ever in mind, in the use of price cards, and that is, avoid using them on a display of high priced goods. By this is not meant only goods that bring an

A Window Display Competition.

THE CANADIAN GROCER, for the encouragement of tasty window displays, has decided to open a competition for its subscribers. Prizes will be awarded for photos or drawings of window displays and accompanying descriptions of the same. The prizes will consist of:

First Prize - - -	$10
Second Prize - -	$7
Third Prize - - -	$5

and $2 for every picture and description which is considered worthy of publication.

The competition, which closes on Sept. 1, will admit of photographs, pen and ink or wash drawings, with good ideas counting more than the picture itself, although, of course, all pictures in order to receive a prize, must be of sufficient distinctness and good workmanship to admit of their publication.

There is no progressive merchant but has at least one window a month that is worthy of entering this competition, and the prizes are so arranged that, even if a window does not win the $10, $7 or $5 prize, it may be awarded a $2 prize, provided only that it is of sufficient merit to publish in the columns of this paper. This award will cover the cost of the photograph and there is no reason why any merchant should not obtain it. The number of photographs or drawings submitted by each store is not limited, nor is the number of $2 prizes; a merchant may win a dozen if his pictures merit them.

Should any intending competitor not know how to take a window picture, this paper will be glad to furnish him with instructions. In general terms, it may be stated that the early morning, when the light is clear, when few people are abroad and when there is the least reflection, is the best time to photograph the display. A good photograph can also be taken at night by the aid of an electric or flash light.

Mark all manuscripts and photographs intended for this department with the words "Window Dressing Competition."

exorbitant profit and are thus too high-priced, but consideration must also be paid to the relation of appearance and price. That is, an article may be easily worth $10, figuring upon the cost, or even upon the quality and endurance, but if it does not look to be worth it, or if its value has to be explained to be seen, price tickets should certainly not be used.

The great fault displayed, when the value of cards is believed in, is the over-use of them. Too many defeat their purpose. A few of the principal articles or bargains only should be picked out and ticketed, except, of course, in the case of a window filled with articles of a similar nature, where the relative price is an important thing. The merchant that makes a habit of using cards will even find it a good plan occasionally to arrange a window without cards. People get accustomed to seeing them and may pass them by; but by sometimes omitting them in the display, the window will constantly appear to have something new in its design.

Show cards have at least the one decided advantage that very often a passer will see an article but if no price is shown, he fears it will be too high, and most men dislike inquiring the price, if its extravagance may preclude its purchase. It is very often the combination, or rather the relation, of price and appearance, that sells the thing shown. A man or woman may see something that attracts them, or that they may find great use for; when the price is shown, he can decide whether it is worth it to him, but when the price is not shown, unless it is absolutely needed, he will, in nine cases out of ten, pass it by, for fear its price is prohibitive. If a merchant is the only one in his town, he may with comparative safety neglect to ticket an article of daily necessity, but one of luxury is benefitted by the price-card, if the price is reasonable. In a town with opposition even, articles that every man must have are sold more freely when prices are shown.

Not only in windows is the use of cards found to be of value, but also in interiors. Here price tickets do not obtain so much importance as general cards, such as "A fresh shipment," the particular name or brand of any goods, or the qualities possessed. The number should always be limited and more careful attention is required than in the window. In a large store neat direction cards are of great service—telling the floor on which certain goods are found, and the lines sold at each counter. Price tickets are often well-used where display counters fill part of the floor space. Shelving, however, should never be disfigured with cards, nor should the counters over which the stock is sold.

CASH PAYMENTS.

By An Old Traveller.

IT is so easy for a merchant to convince himself that the time datings are to his advantage, that one is surprised that the advantages of cash payment are not more fully dwelt upon by the traveller and the supply house. Primarily the wonder is that anything has to be said in favor of it, but, since it is such a general thing to accept the long datings without really reasoning out the results, much might be done by the traveller or by trade journals in drawing the attention of buyers to the fact that both money and credit are gained by accepting the cash discounts.

My experience on the road has taught me that with three out of five buyers, there is a demand for the full time, and very little interest in the cash discounts. And yet it has also been a part of my experience that by reasoning and a careful explanation at least one of those three will see the fallacy of banking their money and taking the time limit. With most travellers the habit is to avoid the mention of payment, leaving all that to headquarters, and relieving themselves of all responsibility by noting that the terms are printed on the copy of the order. This is not sufficient, however, as a "2 per cent. 10 days, net 30 days," conveys no idea to the mind of the three but the "net 30 days."

A simple statement of the fact that by paying cash that merchant is receiving 24 per cent. on his money will put the case in a new light to him. The saving of $2 on $100 seems a mere trifle when compared with the 30 or 60 days which he may have in which to pay; but the realization that he is getting 3 per cent. on his bank account and perhaps 5 per cent. on his mortgages, while he can make 10 to 25 per cent. on his cash payments will be almost sure to change his methods of business.

In the line which I carried there was not so much profit in paying cash, but there was enough to impress every merchant with its size, when it was properly brought before him. Three-quarters per cent. per month, although only 9 per cent. per annum, was an inducement which they could not pass by, and in the case of a 20 per cent. profit, I do not think any merchant would consider for a moment long datings if he realized the money he could make.

The objection might be raised that when there is a lack of funds, the discount cannot be accepted, however great it be. To this it is only necessary to say that any firm which sells to a man who is positively unable to pay cash, is taking a risk which stamps it as a loosely run business. With such interest a merchant should make desparate efforts to borrow elsewhere if he has not the money. He can borrow on reasonable security at 5 or 6 per cent., and in this way make from 4 to 16 or 18 per cent. on the money he has borrowed. In general it is not wise to "borrow from Peter to pay Paul," and some have such an antipathy to it that they would rather not only be in debt, but lose money.

The benefit derived does not proceed only from the actual money made, but also from the reputation which a buyer gets among the supply houses. The man who pays cash is never put off in a rush of orders; he sees the very best samples of the very best houses; he is quoted prices at times that are minus the 3 to 6 per cent. which many firms allow for "risk"; he is visited regularly and treated in the very best way by the supply houses, each of which is anxious about his account. It was often the case that a time buyer was passed by me when I was in a rush, or else he was shown only part of the stock, and the price was necessarily higher than to the cash buyer. In the heavy season we naturally left his order to the last, and thus he was either unable to obtain exactly what he ordered, or any part of his purchase.

I have in mind a merchant who kept a thriving general store in a small village in Eastern Ontario, who was eagerly besieged by the largest and best houses with their best samples and prices. Mr. T—— was the talk of the travellers, and many were the toasts drunk to his health "and more of him." One hot Summer afternoon I was driving to his store from the neighboring town of P——, when I met him on his way to town. Drawing up, I told him I was just going to see him and was in a hurry. Without more ado we drove under a tree, I opened up my samples, and in less than half an hour had sold him a bill of about $250 dollars worth of goods. When the business was over and I had done up my trunks, he coolly put his hand into his pocket, pulled out 25 ten-dollar bills and handed them over to me. And the goods were not to be delivered for over two months. This was not at all an unusual thing with him, if he had the money, and if he had not he often made out a cheque on the spot. You may be sure we used our very best manners in dealing with him. If that man through adverse circumstances should fail to-morrow, I know a score of firms that would fill his orders for any amount and wait until he was able to pay.

But such men seldom fail, for in conjunction with such principles go honesty and care in every other branch of business. It is the man who has not the common sense to realize that 20 per cent. saved is 20 per cent. gained who is weak in other ways and in the end figures in Bradstreet's list of failures in the column headed "Incompetency." It may be only an illusion of his that a month's time is better than $2 on $100, and it may require only a few words from the traveller to dispel the illusion.

A HELPFUL CARD.

The Pullman car shops at Wilmington, Delaware, have in use a workingman's record system which is adaptable elsewhere.

A card is used for each employe; this contains his name, number, department in which employed, daily, weekly and monthly record, reasons for being absent or discharged; in fact, a complete report of a man's business history from beginning to end.

This is of value to the foreman or office manager who can determine at a glance whether a man is prompt for a considerable period, if entitled to promotion or to an increase in salary.

TRADE IN COUNTRIES OTHER THAN OUR OWN.

Raisins in California.

ADVICES from Fresno, Cal., state: "The California Raisin Growers' Association has fifty-two per cent. of the signatures of raisin growers to the one-year contract. There remain as yet six or seven packers to be dealt with. We do not expect prices will be named before the latter part of September, and the price will be determined a good deal by the strength of the outside packers. For instance, if a price of 6c. and 6½c. is named on 2 and 3-crown standard loose muscatels, the quotations that are being made by the outside packers at ¼c. and ⅛c. off association prices would hold good.

"A guarantee connected with the prices of the association would prompt them to reduce the price 1c. per pound and rebate the buyers, and would give the buyer from the association a much cheaper price than the one the outsider would have paid. This little plan of procedure, although not being advertised by the association, has been talked of very favorably, and it would not surprise if they used this method of striking at the outsiders. It is really hard to tell what per cent the association will secure, but a conservative estimate has placed it at 75 per cent. of the crop. Under these conditions and with their control of the seeders here they would be able to make a very pretty fight for business for the inside packer, and none would suffer except the outsider, for with 25 per cent. outside it would not take long to clean up that from the market.

"Business in old stocks is exceedingly dull and trade seems listless. Any goods that could be bought at 7c. f.o.b. fancy seeded, would be an excellent buy at the present time. We feel quite certain that the present price of 7¾c. for fancy and 7½c. for choice will not get any lower before the delivery of the new crop, and it looks very much as if then the price would remain about these figures. Weather is very cool and not favorable to the growing of raisin grapes, but a fair-sized crop will be had even under most unfavorable conditions."

Valencia Raisin Prospects.

Writing from Malaga to C. J. Missir, his New York representative, A. De Fontagud, says of the Valencia raisin prospects: "We have a very large crop, but owing to the short rain during the winter months the greater part of the crop will be of small bean; consequently the larger fruit will be scarce. The prices in the beginning will not be very high, but later it is expected they will go up, more particularly the Imperials and Royals." The same letter says of almonds: "Both of Jordans and Valencias we have what we call a large crop. The price for the Jordans will be high in the beginning, owing to the small stocks of old in the markets abroad, but as soon as the first orders are filled prices will decline greatly. No doubt Valencias will begin low in price, and unless the Italian crop turns out a short one, the prices will not rise, but if the Italian crop is a good one, prices here will go lower still."

California Almonds.

San Francisco mail advices under date of August 4 say: "An almond buyer said this morning: 'The California almond crop is estimated at 300 cars, or about the same as last year. The crop of 1901 amounted to 123 carloads. The foreign almond crop is expected to be the largest in 20 years and with the large California crop the prices paid by the Guggenheims for the Davisville almonds were too high. He also said that in 1901 there was a large foreign crop, with the result that in spite of the short California crop the prices of California almonds dropped to 8c. for Hatch and 6c. for soft shell.' "

Coast Prunes.

In connection with future prunes The San Francisco Trade Journal says: "The market for new crop 1903 prunes has quieted down, with few sales reported for either domestic or foreign. The foreign appears to have taken more freely so far than the domestic buyer. The market acts as if buyers thought that by waiting concession can be had, but the firmness of growers precludes any such possibility of any reduction in Santa Claras and the better grades of outside prunes. We have instituted diligent inquiries regarding prices for Santa Claras, and find that a 3c. four-size basis in bags is strongly maintained. The foreign markets take a 9 point prune, whereas the domestic market wants a 6 point, and the former can be sold at ⅛c. less than the latter. A carload of spot San Joaquin prunes was sold at 2¼c. on the four-size basis."

SPEAKS OF THE COMING CONGRESS.

MR. K. B. MURRAY, the secretary of the London Chamber of Commerce and of the Congress of Chambers, arrived in Montreal on the 8th inst. Mr. Murray has come slightly in advance of the opening of the congress in order to make some preparations for it. He is enthusiastic over the approaching meeting, and spoke of the great interest which is being taken in it by business men in England. This interest is evidenced by the fact that 75 chambers out of the 100 in the United Kingdom are sending representatives. The total number of delegates will be almost 500.

Besides the chambers sending delegates from the British Isles, the British Iron Trade Association, the corn trade, the corn millers and other associations of such character will have representatives on the floor of the congress. These outside bodies have been induced to send representatives at the suggestion of the Montreal Board of Trade. Mr. Murray says that the idea is an excellent one, as the interests represented will thus be all the more varied. There will also be a good delegation from the Imperial Parliament, Lord Brassey, the president of the congress, representing the Lords, and the House of Commons being represented by six or seven prominent members.

"What will be the attitude of the British delegates on the tariff question?" Mr. Murray was asked.

"There will be two camps, one favorable to inquiry and the other strongly adhering to free trade."

Mr. Murray went on to say that he thought British opinion on the whole to be in favor of an inquiry, but there is in England no strong protectionist sentiment such as exists in Canada. The average Englishman still believes in free trade, but wants a tariff weapon which may be useful in gaining for England fairer treatment in foreign markets.

As to Mr. Chamberlain's proposals, Mr. Murray says the real fight has not yet commenced. "The working classes and the trades unions are the people who will have most to say in the matter, and so far they have not expressed any opinion as to the stand they will take in the coming fight. The working classes have not yet realized to what extent their wage-earning capacity will be increased when the English market is reserved to them."

The deliberations of the congress may be expected to have an influence on the course of the tariff battle. "I think there can be little doubt," says Mr. Murray, "as to the influence which the finding of the congress will have upon public opinion throughout the British Empire. In any event the discussions which will take place before the congress on a large number of important questions cannot but be of the highest interest to the Empire at large

Back to the Farm.

ONE sign of the times that is praiseworthy is the new dignity with which we invest farming. There was a time when to say that one was "from the country," or that "my people are farmers" was to court a sneer, or to confess poverty. It may be due in part to the fever of modern business activities that farming is seen by a growing class with a sort of halo about it and that country life is a snyonym for luxury, for a delicious escape from the frettings and exhaustion of city life, but whatever the reasons are it is true that the esteem in which the pursuit of agriculture is held has grown enormously.

Many forces have been at work to produce this result. Not only has the farmer himself come to regard his occupation as invested with a new dignity, but the enlarging spirit of a well developed social order has permeated his environment.

The diffusion of knowledge and education through the medium of schools, newspapers, magazines and books; the spread of culture through travel and study, and improved social conditions, the expanding influence of trade and commerce, have all had their part in the making of the farmer of to-day. Furthermore, governments have created Departments of Agriculture and established colleges for the instruction of the sons and daughters of farmers in the knowledge they require if mother earth is to be tilled to its utmost profit.

That there are ne'er-do-weels among farmers is true, but the sifting processes o the age make this number less and less. Statistics show the unequal struggle the poorer farmers are waging, and foreshadow their doom.

The elimination of the weak, unintelligent, shiftless class is resulting in the strengthening of the class that remain, and farming of a higher order, scientific in its methods, and regulated as to production, is becoming the prevalent condition.

That all this advance in agriculture is destined to have a very direct and controlling influence on the markets concerned must be admitted. It is commonly said that Chicago makes the wheat and beef markets of the world. Chicago's pre-eminence as a maker of markets is not to be forever, not alone because Canada is developing agricultural and stock areas vaster than those across the border but because farmers themselves are acquiring an independence that frees them from the dictations of the giants of the stock pit and of the meat packing industry.

The migrations from Europe and the United States to the wheat fields of Canada will result in economic disturbances that the world will watch with absorbed interest.

Farming is no longer the poor man's refuge. It calls for the brawn that the poor man can supply, but it calls for much more—the strength of mind and purpose that converts labor into force, force into energy, and energy into wealth.

The Wheat Crop of the West.

Although the acreage under wheat in Manitoba is largely in excess of last year, the latest and most reliable reports agree in stating that the output will be smaller owing to the decrease in the average production. The crop report issued by the Government of Manitoba, in June last, places the acreage under wheat at 2,442,873, as against 2,039,940 last year. The prospective crop is likely to be 46,414,587 bushels, as against 53,038,440 bushels which represented the crop of last season. This deficiency shows that the increase in acreage does not offset the shortage in the average yield. The Northwest Territories make a somewhat better showing. The Government report issued a few days ago shows an increased acreage, 727,998 acres being under wheat, as against 625,118 last year. The anticipated yield is 15,042,000 bushels, as against 13,956,850 bushels last season. Although we should have liked to have seen a more favorable all-round report, it is by no means unsatisfactory, and the western farmer has every reason to feel satisfied with the average results of the past few years. It is, at least, a consolation to know that if the quantity is smaller the quality gives every promise of being better, and Manitoba wheat will continue to be recognized as the highest standard in the world.

Macaroni Wheat.

Popular interest in the possibilities of "macaroni wheat" culture in the United States is stimulated by the glowing predictions of William C. Edgar, editor of The Northwestern Miller.

It is estimated that there are now 400,000 square miles of land in the United States on which nothing is grown. Mr. Edgar believes that "macaroni wheat," which flourishes in arid regions with only nine or ten inches of annual rainfall, can be raised with profit upon every acre of this area. If we figure the arid territory at 200,000 square miles, or 128,000,000 acres, and put the average yield at no more than twenty bushels to the acre, we have an almost incomprehensible addition to the world's wheat crop—some 2,500,000,000 bushels. Bringing it down to only 40,000 square miles of new land added to wheat culture by the introduction of macaroni wheat—to say nothing of what might be raised in Canada—the wheat crop in this country would be increased from 700,000,000 bushels to more than 1,200,000,000 bushels.

The wheat from which macaroni is made is hard and glutinous, with a small percentage of flour in it. It is the principal cereal product in Spain, Italy, Russia, and Mediterranean countries. Experiments recently made by our Department of Agriculture, however, disclosed some interesting facts regarding the bread-making possibilities of this favorite wheat of Russia. Bread experts all over the country were asked to pick the better of two loaves of bread sent them by the department—one made from the flour of our Spring wheat, the other from the flour of macaroni wheat. Strange to say, a large majority voted in favor of the bread made from macaroni wheat.

A Question From Jamaica.

The Jamaica Gleaner has the following to say of the relations of that island with Canada :—No reader of The Gleaner requires to be told that we heartily desire to see the Dominion and this Colony drawn closely together. Canada is a part of the British Empire; Jamaica is also proud of owning allegiance to the British throne, and so we think it but right and proper that they both should strive as far as possible to set an example of commercial as well as political solidarity. But the question is: What can Jamaica take from Canada in large quantities? Certainly not manufactures, for Canadian manufactures are still in their infancy, and at the present time Canada herself is obliged to purchase an enormous amount of steel and iron goods from the United States. Can we take flour? We should personally be inclined to think so, but we should like some experienced person to tell us why Canadian flour is not popular here, or why it is not imported in large quantities into this Colony.

Pacific Rates on Flour.

The cut rate on flour consigned from the Pacific Coast to the Orient will be maintained throughout August, according to a decision reached at a meeting of the Asiatic Freight Bureau held recently in Seattle. This meeting was attended by representatives of all the steamship companies operating services between Pacific and Oriental ports with the exception of The China Commercial Company, running between Hongkong, Mexican ports and San Francisco, which company precipitated the rate war some months ago. Mr. B. W. Greer, general freight agent of the Canadian Pacific, was in attendance at the meeting. He announces that the bureau had decided to continue the $3 per ton rate on flour shipments to the Orient in force till the end of August. The latter part of this month another meeting of the bureau will take place to review the situation and decide upon future action.

A Question of Motion.

OF the many changes that have been chronicled of late, says a writer in The Dixie Miller, there is none I think of more importance than the mode of dressing out the flour from rolled stock. Some of us older millers can very well remember when the old bolting reel was the be-all and end-all of the operation. Silk reels followed and then centrifugals. The latter machines have held office, so to speak, for a long period, but I am of the opinion that their day is almost ended. On strictly practical lines I should like to show why this is or should be inevitable.

It is all a question of motion. Motion we must have in order to overcome the inertia of dead, lifeless matter. Motion is the very essence of all separation, and separation is the keystone of flour making. Motion and friction, coupled with aspiration—air motion in fact—are the means employed to get the wheat away from everything else or everything else from the wheat. Motion and friction enable us to break down the wheat itself, motion and mesh enable us to separate the break stock from the middlings already made, motion and aspiration—and motion again—help us to purify those middlings, centrifugal motion on the part of the smooth rolls enables us to reduce those middlings to the fineness of flour granules and centrifugal motion again causes a final separation of such from their other and larger constituents.

What I should like to just glance at, however, is whether in all our operations we have got the exact kind of motion at every stage, or whether it is possible to improve upon them. In the wheat-cleaning department we are as near perfect as possible with one exception, and that is that I think we could very well dispense with the scourer and employ an extra brush instead. Scourers are absolutely not needed. If the wheat is dirty of itself, I would dampen it and brush it again afterwards. Scouring wheat always loosens some portion of the outer fruit coat. This outer coating is just so much sawdust. In fact, it is of the same composition. If we disturb this very thin coating it is abraded or frayed, and being so very short grained the first touch of the break roll causes it to fall into the flour as powder and it has a capacity for lowering the flour color out of all proportion to the amount so deposited.

The break system to my mind is all right and cannot be improved upon if we use no less than twenty inches of length surface on a run of five for every barrel of flour we make in an hour. Formerly we used reels for scalpers, but that has been proved to be very wrong as the rough, tumbling action so set up mixed the broken stock up innumerable times and degraded the color considerably; so now we use sieves. Purifiers have also got the right motion, whether of the sieve or gravity pattern. The principle involved here is one of gravity and the adjusting of the wind valves does the business.

Smooth rolls are also all right, but the one fault is that too much is nearly always attempted on each individual pair. No mill should have less than thirty inches smooth roll surface per barrel per hour. Middlings should not be treated too harshly, should not be reduced to the fineness of flour particles at one operation. Flour that is hurriedly made is rarely granular enough, and, as we shall certainly have to dress much finer, this last point of mine will have to be closely considered. This brings me to my mutton, so to speak, and I will say at once that centrifugals have not got the right kind of motion for the proper dressing of the highest quality of flour product.

Millers do not generally write about their troubles, but when they do not get good results, it is "remodel the mill" to another system. I would like to hear from the miller who has not had a costly experience. He has either been too slow and not up-to-date, or too fast, and has bought machines before they were thoroughly tested. We have now in use for bolting and separating five methods, or diffcrent kinds of machines: The hexagon reel, round reel, centrifugal reel, vibrating sieve and gyrating sieve, any of which will do good work if properly made, properly clothed and properly managed.

I think it is just as important to have returns and cut-offs to regulate the mill when it is running as it is to have adjustments on the rolls to set them when running; and because so many make such ridiculous blunders, as I have stated, it is no evidence that returns and cut-offs are not important.

There are three essentials in making milling successful and keeping up a good grade of flour: First, good grain ; second, a good mill; third, a good miller.

All-Rail Grain Shipments.

ADVICES from Winnipeg estimate the amount of grain shipped East by the all-rail route during last Winter to exceed 5,000,000 bushels.

Owing to the fact that some grain inspected for Winnipeg, that is, for milling in Manitoba, may afterward be billed through to St. John, and this will not appear in either the Fort William or Winnipeg books, it is impossible to get exact figures. But this amount will not be large.

Official weekly statements of shipments out of Fort William elevators from December 13 to April 18, the all-rail season, show a total of Bushels.

Wheat	3,087,772
Oats	59,267
Barley	21,489
	3,168,528

To this must be added the amount of grain inspected in Manitoba for all-rail shipments, which did not go into the Fort William elevators or appear in their books This is:

	Bushels.
Wheat	1,644,000
Oats	391,500
Barley	111,600
Flax	258 000
Spelts	36,000
	2,441,100

Crops in The Territories.

The cereal crops in the Northwest Territories are estimated to be in good condition, and to be the largest in the history of the country. The Department of Agriculture has issued bulletin No. 8, conditions being brought down to date, July 15. The report covers the sixteen districts into which the agricultural belt is divided by the department. The total wheat crop is estimated at 15,042,000 bushels. Last year's was 13,956,850. The oat crop is estimated at 11,803,000 bushels, the best yet, the next largest, that of 1901, having been 11,113,056. The barley crop is estimated at 1,116,300 bushels. Last year it was 870,417. The flax crop is the best yet, the estimate being 334,000 bushels, against 258,185 bushels last year.

Wheat Crop in India.

A final general memorandum on the wheat crop of India of the season 1902-3, issued on June 2, 1903, by the Government of India and transmitted by Consul William Thomas Fee, of Bombay, estimates the total output at something over 7,800,000 tons (291,120,000 bushels), against 6,063,000 tons (226,352,000 bushels) in 1901-2. The estimates for 1902-3, however, include 587,000 tons (21,915,000 bnshels) grown in the United Provinces in combination with barley and grain.

The memorandum states that the yield for the United Provinces was the highest ever returned and that the season was a favorable one for all the provinces.

A German Boycott.

Recent shipments of wheat arriving at Hamburg have been sold as American, although mixed with Canadian. The German Customs authorities now require that all shipments of cereals and peas from North Atlantic ports, including the lake ports, must have certificates proving that they do not originate in Canada.

Grinding corn for feed is a rapidly increasing business in England, and in the west of England and in Wales there are a number of mills devoted entirely to provender milling—some making more money than when they were roller mills making flour. Rolls, too, and disc mills are taking the place of stones for this kind of work, as stone dressers are getting scarce and apprentices are unknown in this class of mills.

ANALYSIS OF CANNED VEGETABLES.

The Inland Revenue Department at Ottawa have just issued a bulletin giving the results of the analysis of 100 samples of canned vegetables. The samples included peas, corn, tomatoes, beans, carrots, beets, cabbage, asparagus, mushrooms, pumpkins and squash.

No chemical preservatives were found in any of the samples examined, and with two exceptions all samples were found to be in good condition. These were corn.

Additional tests were also made for copper in peas. Copper is said to be normally present to a very slight degree, less than 10 parts to the million. Such traces were found in two samples, but there was no evidence that it had been intentionally used to intensify color.

A sample of French peas gave 60 parts of copper to the million. The question as to the wholesomeness of peas thus treated is still unsettled, but the weight of opinion is against it.

GIVING UP BUSINESS.

It is announced that one of Ottawa's oldest wholesale firms, P. Baskerville & Sons, are about to give up business. The firm's establishment on George street, opposite Musgrove street, has been sold and possession will be given the new tenants on March 1. The Ottawa Drug Company will take possession of the wholesale establishment, while A. Freedman will get possession of the cold storage building at the rear.

EXPORTS OF LOBSTERS.

No less than 224,900 live lobsters from Cape Breton and Nova Scotia have this year been shipped to Portland, Maine. This is 15,000 in excess of last year. This branch of the lobster fishery, which is comparatively new, is becoming a very important one commercially.

LIME JUICE ISLAND.

Nearly all the lime juice used in the world comes from the tiny island of Montserrat, in the British West Indies. The lime grows wild in many West Indian islands, but only in Montserrat is it used commercially. That island is one vast garden of lime trees, and nowhere in the world is there a finer sight than its 30 miles of orchards, laden with the fruit of the lime or fragrant with its blossoms.

The fruit is gathered by negro women, who carry it down the hills to the shipping port in big baskets on their heads. Like all West Indians, they are remarkable for their ability to carry heavy weights in this manner. Once the company which controls the lime juice industry sought to lighten the burden of its laborers by introducing wheelbarrows.

The negroes filled the wheelbarrows readily enough and then carried them on their heads as they had been used to carry the baskets. Many a negro woman will carry a hundredweight of limes on her head for a distance of a mile or more.—Indianapolis News.

Report of Tobacco Commission.

IN May, 1902, a Royal Commission was appointed by the Dominion Government to enquire into and to report on an alleged exclusive contract system adopted by The American Tobacco Co., of Canada, Ltd., and The Empire Tobacco Co., Ltd. The object of this system was alleged to be to prevent dealers from selling the goods of other manufacturers, thus creating a monopoly.

The commission has investigated the matter and a full report of their findings has been issued by the Government.

The commission was directed to enquire as to the existence of the alleged contracts, and, in case of their existence, as to the effects they had on the tobacco trade of Canada, with reference to the growers of Canadian tobacco and to the manufacture of tobacco from Canadian leaf, or from a combination of Canadian and foreign leaf.

They report that the manufacture of Canadian leaf tobacco has increased rapidly in recent years. Within the past six years factories for the manufacture of tobacco made from Canadian leaf have been started in Ontario and Quebec, capital has been invested in this industry, the culture of leaf tobacco has been developed, and as a consequence of this enterprise, tobacco made from Canadian leaf has been to some extent substituted for the tobacco made from foreign leaf. The tobacco industry in Canada, both from the point of view of the grower of the leaf and the manufacturer of the Canadian leaf, is an industry of increasing importance.

The culture of tobacco leaf in Canada is confined to two districts. In the counties of Essex and Kent a tobacco known as White Burley leaf is grown, and this is used almost exclusively in the manufacture of plug chewing tobacco. The other tobacco-growing district is in the neighborhood of Joliette, Quebec, and there is grown a variety of leaf which is used almost exclusively in the manufacture of smoking tobacco.

In the month of September, 1895, The American Tobacco Co., of Canada, was incorporated, and in November of the same year the agreement which is complained of in regard to the sale of cigarettes was introduced by the company. The terms of this agreement are that the company shall send a consignment of cigarettes to the person with whom the agreement is formed on conditions, the chief of which are :

(a) The selling price is fixed by the manufacturer.

(b) A commission of 2 per cent. is allowed the consignee on the amount realized from the sale of the cigarettes consigned ; these cigarettes under the agreement remaining the property of The American Tobacco Co., of Canada, until sold by the consignees.

(c) If the consignee handles the cigarettes of The American Tobacco Co. exclusively, and complies with the terms and conditions of the agreement, an additional 6 per cent. is allowed in the way of commission to the consignee on the amount realized from the sale of the cigarettes.

This contract has been entered into by the most of the wholesale grocers and jobbers in cigarettes in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and the Maritime Provinces. The cigarettes manufactured by The American Tobacco Co. have acquired such a reputation that the wholesale merchants and jobbers found it necessary to carry them in order to supply the retail demand.

It is now established that wholesale merchants and jobbers are unable to purchase goods from The American Tobacco Co. of Canada except under the terms of this contract.

In 1901 The Empire Tobacco Co., manufacturers of tobacco out of Canadian leaf, introduced a form of contract somewhat similar in its effect to the contract employed by The American Tobacco Co. in the cigarette trade. The main features of this contract are :

(a) The selling price is fixed by the manufacturer.

(b) A rebate of 5 cents per pound is allowed to the purchaser if he handles no manufactured tobacco made from Canadian leaf, or made from a combination of Canadian or foreign leaf, other than that manufactured by The Empire Tobacco Co.

This contract differs from the cigarette contract in this, that the tobacco when sold becomes the property of the purchaser and is not forwarded on consignment as in the case of cigarettes. It has been entered into by nearly all the leading wholesale grocers and jobbers in the Province of Ontario, and by many of the merchants engaged in the same business in the Province of Quebec, but the contract is not in force in any other provinces of the Dominion. With few exceptions, the wholesale grocers who are parties in this contract are satisfied with its provisions.

As to the growers of Canadian leaf tobacco, it would appear that they have as yet suffered no inconvenience from the contract system. Their crops of tobacco leaf have secured to them renumerative prices, and so far as they are concerned, tobacco growing is a paying industry. The apprehension does exist, however, among those engaged in the culture of tobacco, that if the present system should result in only one buyer of their product remaining in the field, the price would be regulated by that buyer, there being at present no export market for tobacco.

There is no evidence to show that as a result of this contract the price of tobacco is enhanced to the consumer, nor that the quality of the article is in any way deteriorated. On the contrary, it appeared that as a result of the conditions at present existing in the tobacco trade generally, and possibly owing to the competition existing between The Empire Tobacco Co. and the other manufacturers of Canadian and combination leaf in Canada, the consumer gets fair value for his money.

Nor can it be said that the terms of these agreements are illegal. Doubtless their object is to obtain for the cigarettes and tobacco manufactured by the two companies such an exclusive and extensive sale as to render it unprofitable for others to engage in the same line of manufacturing, but the means employed under these contracts do not transgress any statutory enactment, nor are they contrary to the well-settled rules of the common law in reference to trade competition.

It is apparent that this contract system secures to the two companies certain advantages in their having the exclusive enjoyment of facilities which should be common to all. It restricts the opportunities of other manufacturers of cigarettes and Canadian leaf tobacco in Canada to reach the retail dealers and through them the consumers.

A Foxy Ad.

The five red foxes which for a couple of days have been on exhibition in the window of The Dominion Express Co., Granville street, Montreal, have been looked at by thousands of people. The foxes are three months old, and were obtained by The Empire Tobacco Co. from an Ontario forester who caught them when a week old. They will be on exhibition for a few days at Sarre's store, Barrington street, Montreal. The Empire Tobacco Co. is using the foxes to advertise their Red Fox chewing tobacco, and they are one of the many novel means of advertising that have been adopted by this company to popularize their product.

Manufacture of Havanas in Canada.

FOUR years ago—Aug. 18, 1899, to be exact—there was established in Montreal the first clear Havana cigar factory in Canada. The pioneers in this manufacture were the three Granda brothers, whose portrait appears below.

They are Spaniards from Cuba, and they manufacture pure Havana cigars only. As none but Spaniards are employed in the manufacture, the cigar is exactly the same as if made in Havana.

These brothers have a practical and expert knowledge of their business. Perhaps the most important matter is the selection of the leaf, and for this purpose one of the partners visits Cuba where he selects the best leaf procurable in the Vuelta Abajo district and ships it direct to Montreal.

First the tobacco is "cased" in fresh water; then handed over to the strippers. "Stripping" consists in taking out the centre stem of each leaf. This being done, the leaves are piled one on top of another like the leaves of a book. These raw leaves are placed in barrels with holes in the sides to prevent moulding and this "booking" process continues for two, three, and even four weeks, according to the length of time the quality of the tobacco may require. The next process is the blending and here all depends upon the expert knowledge of the manufacturer. Their long experience ensures that F. and J. Granda make no mistake at this critical stage of the manufacture.

The Spanish workman takes the tobacco leaf by leaf and knows as if by instinct, before he commences to roll it, the size and shape of the cigar that will result. The cigars made by the expert Spanish workmen employed by this firm smoke easy and free, giving the rich taste and fragrant aroma which are associated with the best Havana cigars.

When the Granda brothers commenced business four years ago on St. James street, Montreal, the firm name was F. Granda & Bros. Later the firm became known as Granda, Hermanes y Ca., but about a year ago the three brothers Granda separated from the above firm and are in business now as a separate concern known as F. and J. Granda. Their cigar is known as La Flor de Pancho.

Reaching B. C. Trade.

The McAlpin Consumers Tobacco Co. have recently entered upon a new era of activity in British Columbia, having engaged a representative for all British Columbia Mr. Fred Bayliss, who has been with The American Tobacco Co. for the last ten years. He has had a large experience and states that the business of his new company has greatly increased in British Columbia during the last few months. An office and warehouse have been opened on Water street, Vancouver, in the centre of other great wholesale houses. The British Navy and Pinchin brands are reported to be meeting with great success.

The "Queen's Navy" cut plug smoking is meeting with a specially large demand, and the "Queen's Navy" chewing is daily adding to its already well-known popularity. Their new brand, "The Great 5c Cut Plug," is also meeting with very marked success, and of late the company have had difficulty in filling orders for this popular tobacco.

ABOUT BANANAS.

GROCERS particularily, and many general merchants throughout the country, must have been struck during the past few years with the increased demand for bananas that has sprung up, and it may be of interest to the trade to give a little information in regard to this most healthful Southern fruit. Many of the older merchants will recall the time when the banana was deemed a luxury and a rarity, and also the trouble they experienced in getting their customers to cultivate a taste for the fruit. But to-day it is one of the principal articles in the stores, particularly in the cities and larger towns. In fact, we are well within bounds when we say that there is hardly a village or hamlet in Ontario that cannot supply a call for bananas.

The banana, which is indigenous to tropical climates, is, principally, however, imported into Canada from Jamaica, Porto Rico, Cuba and San Domingo, the ports of entry being Boston, New York, and Philadelphia. The tree grows to a height of 10 to 18 feet, and it has a trunk from eighteen inches to two feet in diameter, which is so soft that it can be cut with a pen-knife. It has no limbs, the leaves, which grow to a length of six feet, and are a foot wide, growing direct from the trunk. Each tree bears but one bunch of bananas at a time, and produces a crop every three months. The life of a tree is about three years, and when it ceases to bear profitably, it is cut down. A new tree sprouts up in its place within nine months, and in another three months bears fruit. The fruit grows in the tree, with the bunch upright, but as it increases in size bends over and hangs down, giving the fruit the appearance of growing upward instead of downward, that is exactly in the opposite direction from that in which the bunches of bananas are usually seen hanging in store windows. The trees grow in low land, and the banana is at its best in the wet season.

People who have heard of the delicious flavor of an orange ripened on the tree often express a wish for a banana ripened by natural process. If their desire could be gratified, they would not be pleased with the fruit. If allowed to ripen on the tree, the banana becomes "mushy" and loses its flavor, and it is a fact that even in its native country the banana is cut in its green state, and allowed to ripen. Unlike any other fruit, the banana is fed with sap from the skin to the heart, instead of from the heart to the skin, and when the little dry spots appear, the banana is at its best for eating purposes.

People who choose the long, smooth-skinned, yellow banana, because it looks good, make a mistake. Such a banana is likely not to be ripe enough. The banana to buy is the one that is dotted with little black spots. Buyers are averse to taking these spotted bananas, but they are in reality thoroughly ripe and the proper ones to eat.

The little clusters that form the big bunches are technically known as "hands," and the number of rows of these hands determine the grade of the bananas. There are what are known as 9-hand, 8-hand, 7-hand and 6-hand bananas, but very few six or seven-hand bananas are sold in this country.

The banana season is at present at its height, and it may surprise our readers to learn that in round numbers 3,000,000 bananas are shipped to the port of Montreal every week, and of this immense quantity about 2,500,000 are consumed in that city alone, the balance going to Ottawa, Quebec and Sherbrooke, the distributing points for their respective districts. The consumption in Toronto, Hamilton, London and other large cities and centres in the West must equal, if not surpass, this enormous quantity. The shipments of bananas to Montreal run from 25 to 30 cars a week, and practically all, except what goes to Quebec, Ottawa and Sherbrooke, is consumed locally. Two years ago, according to Mr. H. J. Cassard, manager of the Fruit Despatch Company, which practically controls the banana trade in Eastern Canada, the City of Quebec did not require more than one car of bananas a week. Now the average weekly consumption is three cars. Ottawa uses the same quantity, while Sherbrooke requires two cars every three weeks.

The banana season in Canada runs through the months of May, June, July and August. From the first of October, the demands falls off. It is peculiar that in Duluth, Winnipeg and Calgary, where the temperature in winter is much lower than in the Eastern cities, the consumption is comparatively greater than in the East. The winter consumption of bananas, however, is increasing in Ontario and Quebec centres. This year the Fruit Despatch Company expect to dispose of 550 cars from Montreal, and next year a consumption of 700 carloads is looked for.

The idea held by many people that the banana is hard to digest is said to be erroneous. On the contrary, good, ripe bananas act as a gentle laxative. That it is very nutritious is evidenced by the fact that it is known as the "poor man's food," its cheapness making it attractive. The large manufacturing centres on the American side, where large working populations live, use large quantities of bananas on this account.

The trade, particularly the retailing of bananas, is gradually getting into the hands of our Italian citizens, and even in the wholesale line in the larger cities the sons of "Sunny Italy" are getting to be large distributors. It is almost impossible to dissociate the Italian from the banana cart. Take a walk along any business street of any our larger cities with an Italian population, and you will notice that a fair share of the trade is controlled by the swarthy sons of Italy, and as regards the perambulating street-vending trade, there is no question but that they control that absolutely. Why this is, is a problem too hard to solve. The trade must certainly be profitable, and it may be that the Italian pays closer attention to the care of the banana than does the average grocer.

HUNGARIAN PRUNE CROP.

The United States Consul at Budapest, writes that according to the official horticultural journal of Budapest the prune crop of Hungary will not be more than a low average crop. While in some localities good crops are promised, the excessive cultivation has materially lessened the general prospects. The reports from Bosnia and Servia are no more promising. Bosnia-Herzegovina will have, it is thought, only about one-half the crop of 1902. On the whole, the outlook for the prune crop is anything but encouraging. The Bosnia producers and dealers had each from ten to twenty carloads of prunes left over from 1902. Owing to the unfavorable prospects there is no bargaining yet for the new crop.

CANADA'S APPLE CROP.

A statistical report covering all the apple-growing areas of the United States and Canada was issued at the close of The National Apple Growers' Convention at Niagara Falls last week. The apple crop for 1902 was estimated at 47,625,000 barrels, and the crop for 1903 at 54,614,000 barrels.

The crop in Canada last year was estimated at 16,120,000 barrels, and for 1903 at 13,300,000 barrels.

The estimate for New York is 80 per cent.; fair to choice, Ontario, 80 per cent.; poor to choice, Nova Scotia, 50 per cent.

THE HONEY CROP.

Mr. Morley Pettit, of the Marble Apiaries, Belmont, Ont., called on "The Grocer" this week. Mr. Pettit reports a good crop of first-class quality, but not by any means an extra crop. He anticipates a satisfactory market and looks forward to large demands for honey from the Northwest Territories.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Stopping a clock is a poor way to save time—and stopping an advertisement a poor way to save money.

THE problem that confronts every retail dealer, enterprising enough to advertise at all, is how to get his money's worth of attention amid a crowding mass of dull monotony. Frequently he tries to settle it by purchasing all the space he can get, and then filling it—with wind.

So much has been said about the worth of getting one's name before the public that it has come to be accepted by advertisers of every class as the acme of advertising art.

The dealer who has bought a larger amount of space than he can furnish with ideas is inclined to think that he has done his full duty if he gets the firm name pretty often into "good black type."

He prefers a double-column space, and on special occasions spreads himself horizontally over three or four columns.

That sort of thing has a value, no doubt. It shows that the house is active and stirring. It attracts, on the whole, a good many readers, and some of these are hit occasionally by a stray shot. But is it worth what it costs?

What advertising is everybody knows, but who knows how to define it? It eludes definition.

We have seen it defined as "the creation of wants" or "to publish with a view to sale or recovery," but among the best definitions are the two: "To make the name and business of the advertiser familiar," and possibly the best of all, "to bring buyer and seller together."

These are lucid phrases, but fall short of the mark. For is not the crowning glory of successful advertising the making of a buyer out of one who did not want the goods until he read about them?

If this idea is correct, won't these attempted "definitions" prove entirely inadequate to completely express the real meaning of advertising?

As for retailers' advertising, I think we can be satisfied with the definition or conclusion that "advertising is the artificial creation and stimulation of wants," and as this idea is kept uppermost in our minds we may prove more adept at preparing the kind of copy which will bear out this conclusion.

From one source and another I have gathered together a few "don'ts and do's", which, while not established rules, have their suggestive value. I do not know that one of them is new, but they will all bear resaying. One thing certain: no retailer but can be benefited by putting most of these precepts into practice. So take what you want and forget the rest.

Don't occupy more space in a newspaper than you can fill. A small advertisement, crisp and fresh, is better than a column or two grown stale. Change often.

Don't be satisfied merely to "catch the eye." 'Tis true, Addison pronounced that to be "the great art in writing advertisements," but as great a one is to hold the eye after it is caught, and thereby get the attention. The dominant line, the catchy first words, must not, of course, be undervalued, only thay are not all-sufficient.

Make your advertisements readable. You can't do it with poster type, set in double measure. Avoid too many display lines. Drop all your superlatives and half your capital letters. Barnum's manner is well enough once a year—for a circus.

Cultivate style—not fine writing, not big words, but plain, direct English speech, shorn of both slang and tinsel; plain enough for the refined, as Shakespeare is, and the Book of Job.

Secure a special place in your newspaper, and run your advertisements in it regularly. Get people in the habit of looking there for them. The value of a special position depends very much upon the make-up of the paper, and also upon the kind of goods you are advertising. Top of column next to reading matter is not the best position for every advertisement, or in the best position for every newspaper. Millinery on the financial page and plug tobacco next to the fashion column are incongruous.

Never exaggerate. Tell your little story in a modest, friendly way, and don't promise more than you can perform. Aim to create an impression of candor and fairness. Describe your goods, but don't overpraise them. Pay no attention to your competitors. Above all, don't be forever asking the public to buy, like an "old clo" man. It is enough that you have goods to sell. That you want buyers goes by inference.

Acquaint yourself with type, as as to use it effectively. Consider the value of plain Roman in broken paragraphs, as compared with ordinary display. Plenty of people will declare that such and such a book looks interesting from merely glancing at it, simply because it is full of conversational matter and broken lines. Take the hint and make your advertisement look interesting by introducing a sufficiency of open space. Ample white space top and bottom of an advertisement is a great help sometimes.

Troll your readers along from one short paragraph to another. There are various ways of doing it. One way is to set the several paragraphs of the same advertisement in different "measures" or lengths of line. A sudden change agreeable and effective. The firm name set extremely small is a useful variation.

Advertise one thing at a time. Make a distinct impression. Don't catalogue your wares. The man who read the Dictionary through complained that he couldn't remember much about it. A good many advertisements are similarly confusing.

Be versatile. Don't run in a rut. Don't try to. True, there are dealers who have adopted and popularized some odd forms of advertising, but for most of us variety is better. Mannerisms soon wear out—even in "experts." The moon would be less interesting were it always at the full.

The merchant who gives to his advertising the study and scrutiny that he does to other branches of his business will plan it broadly, systematize it carefully, and make a definite annual appropriation for its needs.

Then neither carelessness nor personal vanity will be allowed to get in the way.

THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.

THE Dominion Exhibition, at Toronto, the dates for which are August 27 to September 12, and which will be officially opened August 29, promises to excel anything heretofore attempted. The new buildings will all be in readiness and the aid extended by the Dominion Government, being especially applied to increasing the prize money and helping to pay the freight on exhibits from a distance, paying the whole freight on exhibits west of Port Arthur and east of Montreal, should have the effect of bringing out a very representative exhibition of the products of Canada. The exhibit of horses promises to be decidedly strong, as the Dominion Government have set aside a part of their appropriation particularly to be used as special prizes for the encouragement of horse breeding. Indeed there never were so many special prizes given at an exhibition in Toronto before. One of the most interesting features will be the process section in the new Manufactures and Liberal Arts Building where twenty-seven different processes of manufacture will be shown in active operation. All these manufactures will include the very latest inventions in the different lines and on that account will be of the greatest interest. A few of the processes that will be on view are: Printing vast numbers of tickets by multiple press, bookbinding, and box making, all by the same firm; spectacle making, diamond cutting, glass blowing, die sinking, boot and shoe making, umbrella making, paint mixing, the manufacture of cotton and canvas bags, cotton spinning, elastic stocking making, chain making, electric-light-bulb blowing, button making, binder twine making, electric welding, needle and pin making, flax spinning, soap making, metal spinning, carpet weaving, cloth making, broom making, and a variety of others, including the process of photogravure. These processes will be in constant operation and are expected to lend greatly to the attraction of the building.

Of unique interest will be the exhibit of the presents received by her late Majesty the Queen, on the occasion of the jubilee, which the King has been graciously pleased to place at the disposal of the directors.

The Exhibition days have been apportioned as follows: Thursday, Aug. 27, and Friday, Aug. 28, preparation days; Saturday, Aug. 29, Official Opening Day; Monday, Aug. 31, School Children's Day; Tuesday, Sept. 1, Press Day; Wednesday, Sept. 2, Manufacturers' Day; Thursday, Sept. 3, Canadian Day; Friday, Sept. 4, Empire and Pioneers' Day; Saturday, Sept. 5, Commercial Travellers' Day; Monday, Sept. 7, Labor Day; Tuesday, Sept. 8, Farmers' Day; Wednesday, Sep. 9, Stockbreeders' and Fruit Growers' Day; Thursday, Sept. 10, American Visitors' Day; Friday, Sept. 11, Society Day; Saturday, Sept. 12, Citizens' and Review Day. It will be noticed that the Exhibition will be in full swing from 9 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 29, to 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, Monday, Sept. 14, being moving day.

MONTREAL BAKERS' AND BREAD DRIVERS' PICNIC.

LIKE their friends the grocers, the master bakers and bread drivers of Montreal took a day off Wednesday, August 5, and celebrated their emancipation from long hours, by excurting to Highgate Springs in the Green Mountain State. Despite the unfavorable weather prevailing, they and their friends turned out in goodly numbers and enjoyed themselves right royally, and, in the words of Byron, "everything went merry as a marriage bell" not one regrettable feature marring the day's pleasure. One of the most active of the Committee of Arrangements was Mr. Fred Stevens and he seemed to be ubiquitous and as busy as the proverbial bee, and despite the rain kept the interest and enthusiasm up to concert pitch. The various games and sports were carried through. The list of winners is as under:

PRICES OF A CENTURY AGO.

Mr. Alderman Euerby, of St. Mary's Butts, has in his possession some invoices, dated nearly a century ago, of groceries and provisions which are of exceptional interest at the present time, says London, Eng., Grocery. One set of invoices is for goods supplied by Mr. John Burgis, a wholesale grocer, at that date occupying the premises now belonging to Messrs. Baylis & Co., Broad street and St. Mary's Butts, to a Mr. Shuttle, who occupied a shop now in the possession of Mr. Alderman Euerby. The prices given are wholesale: Tallow candles, 14s. per doz. (at present retailed at from 5d. to 6d. per doz.); currants, 11s. 6d. per doz. lb. (now retailed at from 2½d. to 5d. per lb.); sugar, 112s. per cwt., or 1s. per lb. (retailed at the present time at 1½d. to 2½d. per lb.); bacon at 126s. per cwt. (sold now at from 6d. to 10d. per lb.); tea 7s. 4d. per lb. (to be obtained now at 1s. to 2s. per lb.). Another invoice was for salt, supplied by Mr. Edward Law, the Seven Bridges, Reading, to Mr. Shuttle, charged at 18s. per bushel, wholesale, a commodity which can now be bought retail at 8d. per bushel. The wages of the ordinary laborer at that time amounted to about 7s. per week, and the period was, of course, that of the Napoleonic wars.

A NEW CALIFORNIA PRODUCT.

A new California product is to be placed on the market, that of lemon juice in its pure state. For some time a well-known California packer has been endeavoring to devise a process by which the juice could be preserved in a pure and unadulterated form, and he has succeeded at last. He will now put out the product on a large scale. No preservatives or adulterations of any kind are used in the process. The juice will be put up in bottles of 4, 8, and 16 ounce sizes and packed two dozen bottles to the case for shipment to the East, where it will be sold to retailers in sections where lemons are difficult to secure.

The average annual production of olive oil in Spain during the past decade was 56,839,000 gallons.

TORONTO. HAMILTON, MAR. 19th, 1903.

DEAR SIRS:—

I have used your BALL-BEARING COMPUTING SCALE for several years now and I believe it has paid for itself a good many times over during that period. Most of my profits went to my customers in overweights in the past. Now I have a little left for myself.

Yours truly, ———

Subjects Being Discussed at Ottawa

Written for The Canadian Grocer by a Member of Parliament

MONDAY is usually an easy-going day in Parliament. A large number of members go home for Sunday, and these keep dribbling back by the various trains up to those arriving quite late at night. As a consequence, it is very unusual for committees to sit in the morning, and no man thinks of making what he considers an important speech on that day because of lack of a sufficient audience. Monday of this week was, however, an exception to the rule. Whether or not the fact that this was the hundredth working day of the session had anything to do with it or not, it is impossible to say, but it would not be unreasonable to suppose that if that fact dawned upon the minds of the members it might reasonably occur to them that it was high time to be up and doing if they wished to eat their Thanksgiving turkey at home with the session concluded. At any rate a good deal of work was done, and two very important measures were finally disposed of by the Commons, to wit: the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill and the Railway Commission Bill. As to the last, we fancy no such lengthy piece of legislation has passed through Parliament since Sir John Thompson codified the criminal law, and legal practitioners will heave a sigh of relief when they take down the statutes to advise with regard to railway law and find the same "all in one spot," instead of having to dodge through numerous volumes as heretofore, with the danger of missing the right one.

In the last stages of the bill Mr. Maclean introduced an amendment to the effect that all passenger rates should be two cents a mile hereafter. In the course of his speech he brought out two or three things which were decidedly useful pieces of information. He declared that American railways passing through Canadian territory actually charged their American travellers only two cents a mile while passing over our land, while the Canadian sitting in the seat beside them was charged three cents per mile. This, to a Canadian, is very jarring news, just as to an American the reverse would be. In this world what men crave is equality of treatment, and in this respect human nature seems to be just about what it was two thousand years ago. When he who hired his men for a penny a day gave the same wage to him who was hired at the eleventh hour, there was danger of a strike among his old employes. His answer to these men was absolutely logical—did I not hire you for a penny a day? You are getting your wage, and as for this other man, this new comer, who it is true has not borne the labor and heat of the day, what of his pay, cannot I do what I will with mine own? Yes, they were answered, these men of old, answered, but not satisfied. If we were buying guineas at 18 shillings each our enjoyment would at once be clouded by the news that some other man was buying them for fifteen — equality is what we want, never mind the reasoning. Then again, Mr. Maclean proved that in certain well-travelled parts of Canada, more than three cents a mile is being charged, for example from Cobourg to Toronto, and from Ottawa to Gracefield. These are excessive rates which must and will be corrected by the Railway Commission at a later date, we have no doubt.

Mr. Chas. B. Heyd, in replying to Mr. Maclean, found some holes in his armor. He pointed out that the much vaunted two-cent rate in Michigan applied only to roads earning three thousand dollars a mile, and that on this basis the Canada Southern Railroad only would be subject to a lowering of the fares. The Premier agreed with Mr. Maclean in several points made by him, but pointed out that there must be elasticity in matters of this kind. It might be possible to impose a two-cent rate in certain parts of the country where traffic was heavy; it would be impossible to do so in most cases, our distances being great, and our population scattered over wide areas. This being the case, it is impossible for Parliament at this late date, even through the agency of its railway committee, to collect the necessary evidence to formulate a comprehensive scheme, and as the Railway Commission Bill under section 257 gives the commissioners power to deal with all such questions, he thought it best to leave the matter in the hands of that commission. He could not agree, therefore, to accept the amendment of the member for East York, though agreeing with him that there were grievances requiring a remedy, and which would be remedied when the commission began its sittings. In spite of the Premier's explanation Mr. Maclean pressed his amendment to a vote. It then became a question of want of confidence in the Government and not a question as to who favored and who did not favor a two-cent rate, though to those unacquainted with parliamentary procedure this might seem to be the case. As a matter of fact a member of Parliament is, selfishly, almost as much interested in a low rate as is any other person. True, he himself rides on a pass so long as he remains a member, but how long he will so remain is the height of uncertainty. Moreover, his pass does not extend to his family, for whom he has quite properly to pay. No, we would all like low rates, whether members or not members, but when the Leader of the Government takes a stand, and his opponents challenge him to a vote upon it there is only one thing under the party system for his followers to do—support him, for if they do not and his contention be defeated, his Government has been defeated, and the confidence of the majority on which his power constitutionally rests is gone. We take time to explain this fully because nothing is of more interest in the field of smaller affairs than this question of low passenger rates; it is one the people will read about, and it is not fair that those who voted to support the Government should be credited with having voted against cheap fares. The explanation is all the more necessary because The Toronto World of the 11th contains in large type, on the front page, the following legend: "By a vote of 45 to 34 Commons declare against cheap railway fares in Canada." The Commons declared nothing of the kind. The facts, as we have endeavored to show them above, are that the Premier declared that the railway commission was the proper body to deal with the question, and that his view being challenged, his followers chose to continue their confidence in him as a leader. A man so well versed as is Mr. Maclean in parliamentary procedure, must surely know this, and it is a pity that the paper which he owns and controls with ability should be guilty of so false a suggestion. It leaves Mr. Maclean open to the charge made against him in this very debate on the floor of Parliament, that he is more anxious for his own popularity and the prosperity of his party than to remedy the grievances upon which he talks with energy and force.

Of course the most intense interest has this week centred in the discussion of the Government's transcontinental railway policy, and, while several excellent speeches have been made, the most dramatic was the utterance of Mr. Blair, made on Tuesday last, covering a period of four hours, and given throughout with unfailing vigor, amid the plaudits of his old enemies, and the bitter silence of his old friends.

To discuss his arguments and those of Mr. Charlton, who replied to him with extreme ability, would be impossible in a dozen letters such as this one, besides which, the political press of Canada will thresh the matter out for six months to come, while from every schoolhouse platform and from the dais of every town hall throughout the length and breadth of Canada will come the criticism, yes, and not infrequently, the downright burning eloquence, of the stumper, if what we hear about an approaching election be true.

In his earlier speech, made on the occasion of the Premier's explanation of "ministerial changes," Mr. Blair showed a quiet dignity that gained for him the respect of the House. Not one hard word had he to say of any of his colleagues, while his references to his old leader were full of kindliness and sympathy. His effort of Tuesday, therefore, came as a complete surprise to all, at least to the uninitiated, for it was in parts extremely bitter; in fact, as one member expressed it, had it come from the fighting leader of an aggressive Opposition it could not have been uttered with more intensity

To give the most marked example of what we are trying to express, Mr. Blair, early in his remarks, after quoting from the speech of Sir Wilfrid, in that part of it which urged early construction, said, "What does the right honorable gentleman mean when he says 'We cannot wait because time does not wait?' I think Mr. Speaker, and I say it with all respect to my right honorable friend, that it would have been as correct, if not so poetic, for him to have said: 'We cannot wait because Senator Cox cannot wait.'" Naturally this utterance was met by a storm of cheers and laughter from the Opposition, but the close observer could see black looks on the faces of the Liberals, and friendships formed through long years of hard political fighting in the same political force, melted in a moment under the slur put upon the leader they loved. This is, indeed, the sad part of such scenes as these—the severing of old ties, the creation of new and life-long hatreds.

Another example of Mr. Blair's straight fighting against his former leader is contained in the biting, though clever, sarcasm with which he treated Sir Wilfrid's reference to the impression made upon him by a visit made in company with Mr. Booth to what is now Depot Harbor, when the Canada Atlantic was in course of construction. Sir Wilfrid described the barren houseless shore to which Mr. Booth pointed as the future terminus of his road.

"But where will you get the traffic with which to feed the line," asked the Premier.

"I must create it," said Mr. Booth, "I must draw it from Chicago and Fort William and Port Arthur; I may even have to buy wheat here to make freight for my road,"

The prospect of the building of elevators, the running of a steamship line, the entry into the grain market, etc., forced Sir Wilfrid to the conclusion that Government ownership was out of the question for years to come.

In dealing with this paragraph, the outline of which we have endeavored to give, Mr. Blair said, "I regret, I am sure, as much as any man can, that unfortunate visit which the right honorable gentleman paid to Depot Harbor, on the occasion which he mentioned in his speech. It left an ineradicable impression upon his mind, fatal to all ideas of Government ownership; fatal to any ideas of progress in that direction. It is enormously regrettable, because that impression cannot be removed. No amount of argument, no amount of reason, no amount of experience could possibly lift from my honorable friend's mind the load of conviction that was brought to him by the visit on the occasion referred to. I know that some former colleagues of mine were not a bit more friendly to Government ownership than he was; whether it was owing to a visit to Depot Harbor I am not at all clear, but I am not yet content to accept that explanation as to their attitude upon the question of Government ownership." Now this is undoubtedly a good example of parliamentary sarcasm,—subtle, ingenious; but, from the politician's standpoint, was it good judgment? Mr. Blair had taken the position that he left the Cabinet because he could not adopt the views of his colleagues on the railway question. He stood before the country as a man who had given up a position of great power and some financial worth for the sake of a conviction. He strengthened this opinion by the extreme moderation of his earlier utterances, and then he weakens it all by a show of temper and bitterness which leads his opponents, men quick to see an opening, to remark, as we have heard them say already, "Is this Blair, the high-minded statesman? Is it not more Blair the angry; Blair the man who unable to impose his will upon his leader and his colleagues has left the Cabinet embittered, and determined to attack not the policy alone, as at first he indicated, but the men who promulgated it to the extent of personal attack? Be this as it may, his speech will rank as a great one, and will undoubtedly furnish the Opposition with great ammunition both for discussion in the House and for speeches on the stump at the next election, be that far or near.

NEW YORK GROCERS' CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the retail grocers of New York State was held at Niagara Falls last week and attracted a very large and influential attendance.

In the absence of the president, Mr. Edward Hanson, of Brooklyn, occupied the chair, and Mr. J. Frank Wilkins officiated as secretary.

The trading stamp nuisance was pretty thoroughly ventilated and the subject was referred to a committee empowered to seek legislative action. Several other grievances were discussed by the convention, the recognition of the semi-jobber by the manufacturer to the serious disadvantage of the straight retailer being severely criticised. Papers of great interest to the trade were read and several instructive addresses delivered by leading members of the convention, and the able and interesting report of Mr. Fred Mason, the secretary of the National Association, was received with much approval.

The convention was held in the Association Hall connected with the magnificent factory of the Natural Food Company, and the kindness and courtesy shown by Mr. E. F. Olmsted, a prominent official of that institution, was very much appreciated by the delegates present.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS IN WINNIPEG.

L. H. Gordon, of the firm of Cameron, Gordon & Co., wholesale commission agents, Winnipeg, is visiting all the large eastern towns with a view to expanding and benefiting his firm. He expects to visit St. Paul, Chicago, New York, Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and many other towns in his tour, in all of which places his firm has large business connections, and he will be glad to receive correspondence from houses who wish to be represented in Winnipeg and Western Canada, and any letters addressed to him in care of CANADIAN GROCER, Toronto, will reach him. Mr. Gordon reports business in Winnipeg as being unusually brisk for this period of the year, and his firm are getting into shape quickly in their new extensive warehouse on McDermot avenue, where they expect to hold an unusually heavy stock of all their lines for the approaching Fall trade.

CALIFORNIA OLIVES.

Speaking of the olives now being raised in California a grocer says :

"They are perfectly clean and shine as though they had been polished. The ripe olives used for oil are dark in color, some of them running into the deep purple black, while others are more like chocolate in color. The grinding machine is a special machine that crushes the olives into pulp. The crushed olives go directly to the hydraulic presses. The oil and the water of the olives flow out of the press together, but the oil quickly rises and is transferred to settling tanks. All that is left to do is to extract every atom of foreign substances from the oil. During the work the oil is guarded carefully against contamination, either from the vessels with which it comes in contact or from the atmosphere. After the filtering and aging comes the bottling.

"The pure oil is often put on cakes in place of butter, and after being properly peppered and salted is most palatable. The trees live to immense age, some still bearing fruit and are known to be more than a century old."

APPLES HIGH.

Apple buyers are very numerous in Prince Edward County, according to The Picton Times. One buyer told The Times that he knew of cases where orchards have been bought on the basis of $1.50 a barrel. Mr. Hunt, commission merchant at Ottawa, said that buyers would pay $1.50 a barrel before two weeks, and that some buyers were paying on the basis of that now when they bought an orchard. Reports and every indication point to a higher price for apples.

The Salada Tea Co. in their advertisement of this week extend a hearty invitation to all grocers visiting the Dominion Exhibition to visit them. They will be pleased to show all callers through their establishment, which is one of the most modern and up-to-date tea establishments in the world. The warehouse of The Salada Tea Co. is situated at 32 Yonge St.

KETCHUP.

Ketchup takes its name from the Japanese word kit jap, a name generally applied in conjunction with the fruit or vegetable substance forming its base, to a variety of sauces. When an article is merely labelled or described as "ketchup" without a fuller definition, it may ordinarily be considered to be made up artificially, and should be carefully tested. The sorts usually sold by the trade are mushroom, camp, cucumber, oyster, pontac, tomato, walnut, etc., but "mushroom ketchup" appears to be the most popular.

About Cheese.

EACH country has its favorite cheese. The Swiss make the Gruyere cheese. It is made of goats' milk, and is full of holes, caused by the gases in fermentation. The typical English cheese is the Cheddar, first made in the English town after which it is named.

Brie is a popular French soft cheese; and Camembert, originating in Normandy, is another. These cheeses are cured in caves, where the temperature never rises above 12 to 14 degrees. They are ready for marketing in May and November. Roquefort, a celebrated French cheese, is made from the mingled milk of goats and sheep that browse on the thyme-clad banks of the Arno. These cheeses are also ripened in caves, but the temperature is kept at 40 degrees.

Akin to the Roquefort cheese is that called Gorgonzola, made in Italy after similar processes. It is milder than Roquefort, and not quite so good, but it is sold much cheaper. Another Italian cheese, the Parmesan, is very hard, and is usually grated.

Limburger cheese, so beloved by the Germans, originated in Belgium. It is extraordinarily rich, being allowed to ripen to putrefaction, hence its horrifying odor to unaccustomed nostrils. Some persons have a saying, "Gorgonzola is a cheese to swear by, Limburger to swear at!" From Holland come the Edam and the pineapple cheese, both made in cleanly manner and very popular.

Cheese too Large for Boxes.

AT a recent meeting of the Kemptville Cheese Board complaint was made that makers in that section were making cheese too large for the boxes. H. Bissell said: A 12-in. box was the largest that it was possible to get and this would not hold a 94-lb. cheese. Lots had been received in Montreal the previous week with the contents protruding two or three inches over the top of the box. This kind of thing had to be stopped. The boxes were supposed to reach Liverpool in good condition, but if the present practice was continued, they would not even stand the trip to Montreal. "An 80-lb. cheese is lots big enough for any box," said Mr. Bissell. He stated that the boxes were piled nine or ten high on the vessels, and if the cheese was above the top, it would be flattened out by the weight of those on top. Cheese had been passed at Montreal in a condition, a repetition of which would lead to a charge of 15c. per box being made for re-cooperage. "To satisfy a little greed," said Mr. Bissell, in concluding, "a practice is being followed that will cost more in the long run than if the boxes had not been overfilled." Mr. Bissell's statements were seconded by the other buyers, who all spoke strongly in regard to the matter and hoped to see it remedied at once. They had no fault to find with the quality and said that, barring this one thing, the Kemptville cheese was as good as any that came into Montreal.

Central Collecting Point for Butter.

The London Times in a recent article alludes to the unsatisfactory state in which Canadian butter arrives on the British market as compared with that from Australia and New Zealand. It is suggested that a great advantage would accrue to Western Canada if Toronto were made a collecting point from which to despatch butter and cheese to the seaboard. Butter on arriving at Toronto should go straight into a freezing store and not into an ice store.

The shipping companies, it continues, should examine the temperature of butter before shipping and should reject any above a fixed standard, say over 35 degrees Fahrenheit.

Paraffin Wax on Cheese.

Considerable discussion has been caused among British grocers by the act of certain American exporters who cover their cheeses with a thin coating of paraffin as a preservative. It is alleged that this custom adds appreciably to the weight of a consignment, and, by increasing the invoice price and cost of carriage, is seriously detrimental to the importer's profits.

Shipments of Green Cheese.

In discussing imports of colonial produce to Britain, The Times says that if Canadian cheese arrived regularly in more mature condition, free from the heated and biting character, which it sometimes has, the wide difference in value between British and Canadian Cheddar would rapidly diminish, and the Canadian would approximate the prices of the English and the demand would be greater. The practice of shipping Canadian cheese in green condition cannot be too strongly condemned as it seriously impairs the reputation of the Canadian product.

How Canned Meat is Manufactured.

THE manufacture of tinned meats, such as canned corned beef or canned boiled beef, is most interesting, says The Cosmopolitan. The work is carried on with the utmost cleanliness, and the process is one that has in view the retaining of all the good properties of the meat within the walls of the can. When the meat has been cured it receives a slight boiling in water. The solid meat is now ready for the can, which has been previously steamed and thoroughly cleaned. The meat is stuffed into the can, a small portion of soup is added, and the can is hermetically sealed. If the product were then to be placed on the market, only a partially cooked meat would be given, and decomposition would set in almost within the same day. The process, however, does not end with this. These sealed tins are placed in steam cookers and exposed to a temperature sufficient, not only to cook the meat thoroughly, but also to kill every germ that could possibly start decomposition of the product. As soon as the steam has continued sufficiently long, the can is taken from the steam cooker, and, by means of a small steel needle, a hole is punched in the top of the can. This permits all the air to escape, and then, while still hot, this hole is again soldered by the use of a small piece of pure tin. The result of this extremely simple process is that the cooked meat is enclosed in a tin almost absolutely free from air. If the process is carried out correctly, and if the can is free from leaks, meat can be kept indefinitely without the least possibility of deterioration or alteration. A can of meat, when thus prepared, should be as wholesome after ten years as on the day following its manufacture.

Meats and Dairy Provisions.

Dun's Review, New York, for last week, has the following to say of meats and dairy products: Of all the farm products these provisions are the weakest in tone, which is natural in view of the liberal receipts, increasing stocks and moderate demand. Exports of live stock have been fully maintained, but the movement of cured meats does not respond to lower quotations as yet, the official returns for July showing a loss even when compared with the restricted outgo in 1902. Buying for the West Indies does not improve as anticipated. While butter and milk are steady there has been a further sharp rise in fresh eggs which command 26c. for best quality.

Western Hog Movements.

There is not much change in the aggregate movement of hogs, says The Cincinnati Price Current. Total western packing, 355,000, compared with 345,000 the preceding week, and 399,000 two weeks ago. For corresponding time last year the total was 290,000, and two years ago 420,000. From March 1 the total is 9,210,000, against 8,560,000 a year ago, an increase of 650,000. The quality is not uniformly good. Prices have been moderately advanced, prominent markets at the close averaging about $5.50 per cwt., compared with $5.10 a week ago, $5.40 two weeks ago, $6.95 a year ago and $5.80 two years ago.

Provisions in Trinidad.

The Commercial Review, compiled by Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, speaking of provisions, says: Both pork and beef continue to weaken and are difficult of sale. For heads, loins, ribs, etc., which are in moderate supply, there is a fair demand. Lard and oleomargarine are moving slowly, the latter being affected by extremely low rates at which holders are offering their large stocks of old crop butter.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

TORONTO.

The provision markets show some rather important changes this week. A shortage of medium hams has caused prices to advance a half cent and a decline in American barrel pork has resulted in a drop of one to two dollars per barrel in mess and short cut. Lard remains firm. We quote:

ST. JOHN, N.B.

In pork products business is very light. Barreled pork is low, and the sale seems mostly for the cheaper grades. While there is less change in the price of beef, there is, if possible, less movement. Pure lard shows a steady, though light sale; prices are again lower. The trade have carried rather full stocks. Refined lard, while having light sale, has not gone off as much as pure. In fresh meats, beef and lamb supply the market. Lamb is the chief seller; prices are quite steady. Some little veal is still offered. Very little pork is seen. Quotations are:

HOT WEATHER LARD

Retail dealers often have trouble with hog lard melting, and causing loss by becoming liquid and soaking into the package, to say nothing of the inconvenience of handling such oily lard.

Fairbank's Boar's Head brand of Refined Lard Compound will keep firm and sweet much better than either hog lard or butter. The fact that Fairbank's Boar's Head brand of Refined Lard Compound is not subject to getting rancid as quickly as other frying and shortening mediums is evidence that it has less matter in it that is subject to atmospheric action, which is a strong argument in favor of its being purer and more wholesome than any other frying or shortening medium. Throughout the summer months Fairbank's Boar's Head brand of Refined Lard Compound will be found satisfactory to both merchants and housekeepers on account of its keeping qualities.

CHEESE.—Continues to firm up, showing an advance of ¼ to ½c. since a week ago. The export outlook is somewhat more encouraging, but the present rise is, to a large degree, speculative. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large, new	0 10½	0 10¾
" twins, new	0 10½	0 10¾

MONTREAL.

CHEESE.—There has been quite an advance during the past week, all the markets ruling fully ½c. higher. The cause of the late sharp advance is, of course, attributed to shorts requiring to cover earlier sales. It is not expected that the strong tone will be maintained as the production this year throughout the country will be very large. Present prospects, however, point to steady market. It is well on in August now and all the early cheese, as well as those which have come forward so far this month, have been disposed of. On country boards prices rule at 10 to 10¼c. On the wharf some 10,000 boxes were sold at 10 to 10⅜c. Quebec cheese on the boards were quoted at 9½ to 9⅝c., which is an advance of ½ to ⅝c. per pound over previous week.

BUTTER.—Market has ruled very quiet during the week. There is practically no business doing. Some of the country boards ruled high at end of the week. Buyers expected an advance, but it did not materialize, and to-day they state that it is impossible to secure 19c. over cable. Dairy butter is coming forward freely, but is going into store, there being no orders to take it at present cost, and dealers are not willing to take their loss yet. A carload of western dairy is reported sold for Montreal account at 13½c. f.o.b. West. We quote:

Eastern Townships, fine	0 18½	0 19½
" " fancy prints	0 19	0 19¼
Western creamery, finest	0 17½	0 18¼
" good	0 16	0 17½
Dairy	0 14	0 15

EGGS.—There has not been very much change in the market during the past week. Deliveries have been a little more free. Quality is reported to be improving and this should help to improve the market. We understand that buying prices in the country range from 12½ to 13c. The local market is steady at 14 to 14½c. for straight stock, selects realizing 1c. per dozen advance. It is purely a case of supply and demand as far as the price is concerned, for the English market will not take what is offering at present prices. It is expected that the Fall stock will be large and of good quality, but prices will have to go back if there is to be any export trade. Fresh Canadian eggs are quoted in Liverpool and Glasgow at 7s. 3d. to 7s. 6d., but at these figures there is no money for Canadian shippers.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

BUTTER.—Prices are rather firmer, as receipts have not been large. There is just a steady sale. For really best stock demand and price are good.

EGGS.—Prices are well maintained. A good steady sale is reported. Supply has not been large. Our market depends largely on Prince Edward Island.

CHEESE.—Offerings are quite free. Prices are rather easier, though still quite high. Only twins sell on the local market. For export our makers are not as careful as they should be in either style of box or quality of cheese and so do not get the best prices. Quotations are:

Butter, creamery prints, per lb	0 22	0 24
" creamery solids (fresh made), per lb	0 20	0 22
" prints	0 18	0 20
" tubs	0 14	0 16

HAMILTON'S GREAT CARNIVAL.

By an Old Boy.

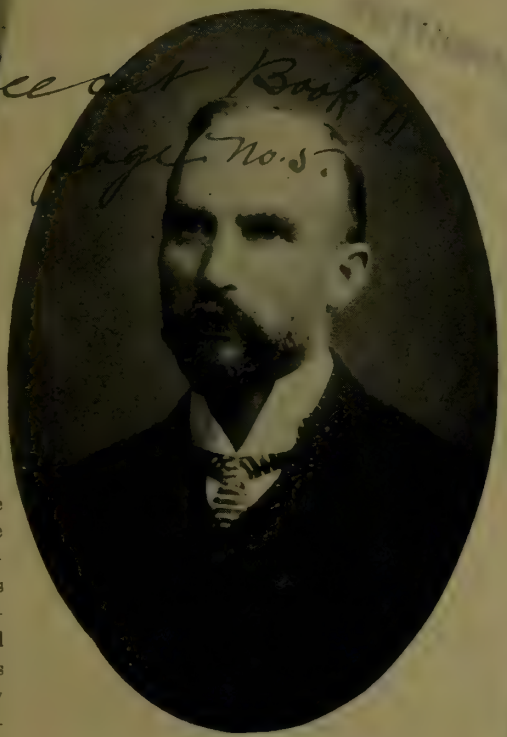
AS an old Hamiltonian, proud of the Ambitious City, and a homecomer genuinely glad to be again with the friends of his youth, I give my impressions of Hamilton's Great Carnival and Old Boys' Reunion of 1903. On nearing the city the sound of music greets one in every direction, and on his arrival, the visitor is greatly impressed with the general decorations of the city, which are really of the most beautiful and elaborate description. Every Canadian knows that the city itself boasts of great natural beauty, and the liberal and general display of carnival and national colors make a brilliancy of scene of which every citizen is proud. At night the magnificent maple avenues gorgeously illuminated with myriads of lights, added to the larger and general electrical display, create an impression upon the visitor never to be forgotten.

Samuel Barker, M.P., Carnival Chairman.

Good nature of the most hilarious description reigns supreme; everyone appears to be glad to see everyone; friends are continually meeting friends whom the have not seen for years, and the affectionate embrace is not in every case confined to those of the gentler sex. Business is practically suspended; everyone is out for a good time, and the city appears to have devoted the entire week to the entertainment and amusement of its guests. One who has been absent from the old town for years cannot fail to be impressed with its very bright and cheerful appearance. It is real pleasure to see such a well-dressed and prosperous community; and for the visitors it also must be said that their appearance would indicate that their habits and general conduct would reflect no discredit on themselves or their former home.

The Citizens' Committee have worked faithfully and incessantly for months and richly deserve the great success they have achieved. Hamilton is proud of its carnival, and the other cities of the Dominion are proud of their sister city of Hamilton.

The visitors unite in describing the carnival as far superior to anything of the kind ever attempted in Canada, and say that outside of New Orleans it has never been surpassed in the United States.



C. A. Murton, Honorary Secretary.

OVER SPECULATION.

THE Boston Commercial Bulletin, discussing the speculation evil, has the following to say:

A remedy which has been suggested for ameliorating the baneful results of immoderate speculation is to prohibit by law all stock transactions on margin. Those who favor a measure of this sort maintain that it would prevent the creation of a fictitiously high level of values and thereby render the country immune from the resultant collapse of prices with all of its pernicious consequences.

This contention, however, is based on the assumption that marginal transactions are the root of all economic disturbances, an assumption which we are by no means willing to admit. Prohibit this species of speculative activity and will the community cease to be visited with panics and other similar phenomena? If not there can be little justification for forbidding it. Of course, the primary cause of industrial depression is to be found in the flotation of enterprises beyond the power of the financial organism properly to take care of, and it is the marginal buyer who renders possible the creation of such enterprises by finally relieving the promoter of the securities of each new project. Nevertheless, the one who, first of all, is responsible for the absorption of large volumes of funds is not the unsuspecting speculator on margin but the promoter himself and his field of action must not be overlooked when any remedy for over speculation is to be applied.

There are other forms of speculation which, usually fraught with evil, should be prohibited by the banks and stock exchanges themselves. The former have it in their power to refuse aid to vicious manipulative operations like corners and the latter are perfectly competent effectually to stop forms of speculative activity which injure the general welfare. But to forbid marginal trading is out of the question, not alone because it is only one of the many factors contributing to economic disturbances, but for many other obvious reasons.

Cyrus A. Birge, Carnival Treasurer.

WHOLESALE GROCERS AND TEA IMPORTERS AND BLENDERS.

TORONTO

FOREST CITY GOSSIP.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"
365 Richmond Street.
London, Ont., August 17, 1903.

SINCE our last letter was written there has been a quieter week in wholesale grocery and provision circles, and were it not that some letter orders were received daily, a general slackness would be reported. On Monday morning early trains conveyed the regular bunch of travellers to their respective hunting grounds, feeling fit, and in the best of trim, with fresh order books and a supply of new pencils; in buoyant spirits, and every man confident of good business between this date and Christmas, each leaving for his own territory to solicit orders. Good luck to them and big orders.

There has been but little alteration in prices of either staple or fancy lines of groceries. It was reported ten days ago that there would, this year as last, be a shortage in the pack of canned tomatoes owing to cooler weather; recent advices have altered this opinion, and reports of larger crops of tomatoes ripening and in splendid condition are now made. Granulated sugars were advanced 5c. per cwt last week, and the price at this date to London retail grocers is $4.32 per cwt in barrels, and in 100-lb. sacks, $4.27.

* * *

Retail grocers have all been quite busy; many visitors are in the city, and although there are also many citizens away enjoying vacations, enough of bustle is kept up to keep delivery wagons flying around the city, and money in circulation. The various big gatherings recently held in London have made business for grocery and provision dealers good: the supplies needed for the support of twenty or thirty thousand extra population materially add to the sales over the counter.

* * *

The store occupied for seventeen years by James Wilson & Co., grocers, on Richmond street, is being refitted and will be tenanted by John Mills, bookseller and stationer. Mr. Wilson has sold out his stock and retired from the grocery business for the present.

* * *

Mr. C. H. Elliott, of Elliott, Marr & Co., wholesale grocers, is at present enjoying a two weeks' holiday in the State of Maine.

* * *

Fifty additional hands will now be employed at Tuckett's cigar factory making the "Marguerite" cigars. The premises over the ground flat of the Mortimer estate, and adjoining the present factory, have been rented for three years, with a five years' option.

* * *

One of the bright, attractive retail stores on Dundas street worthy of mention is that of the William Davies Company's branch store. At any hour of the day this store looks like business; the display of cooked and uncooked meats, butter, eggs, cheese and other provisions is so very attractive and appetizing that a crowd is always to be seen within, and the numerous attentive salesmen are kept busy. A well-lit store, with a clean, well-kept stock, temptingly displayed will always win favor in this city as elsewhere. Mr. Judge, the manager, says since coming up from Toronto they have been quite successful.

* * *

Wheat is 72 to 75c. per bushel. There is but little Fall wheat raised around London these last few years. It is almost all Spring wheat. Dairy produce has lately shown a tendency toward higher figures and roll butter is now 20c. and creamery 21c. Eggs are easier at 14 and 15c. while poultry keeps at a pretty stiff figure—ducks 70 to 90c. a pair and chickens 50 to 75c. New potatoes and vegetables of every possible variety are abundant at reasonable figures. Peaches are being brought from the Grimsby and Niagara districts, and at present come in competition with California fruit. This market is well supplied with fruits, and there is good demand for everything offered.

W.H.L.

A WESTERN VISITOR.

Mr. L. H. Gordon, of Cameron, Gordon & Co., wholesale commission agents, Winnipeg, was a caller on the Toronto office of "The Grocer" this week while on a business trip to the east which will include Montreal and New York. Like a true westerner Mr. Gordon is full of confidence in the West. He has just returned from a trip through most of the wheat country, and except in a few localities, found very satisfactory crops. The settlers who have this year found homes in the West are said to be of a superior class, and the outlook in the grocery trade is most encouraging. Winnipeg is enjoying her full share of progress and showing a remarkable development. Asphalt pavements are being laid everywhere, and the city is preparing for the future by securing suburban parks.

BACK FROM EUROPE.

Mr. Ross W. Hayter, the well-known broker of Front street, Toronto, who has but recently returned from a three-months trip to Europe, has now completed arrangements with the primal markets whereby he will handle a full line of spices and coffees in addition to his line of teas. He has a specialty in Colombia, Bogota and Mocha coffees, which have already begun to move freely. We understand also that he has already moved large quantities of pepper, nutmegs and cloves.

During the last three months there has passed through the Custom House for export to the United States over half a million pounds of "Salada" Ceylon tea.

SALMON RUN DISAPPOINTING.

SINCE our advices of a week ago there has been a marked change for the worse in the salmon outlook. The run of the first week in August, which promised to relieve the situation, failed to come up to expectations and soon fell away. Writing under date of August 15, our British Columbia correspondent says that the salmon pack on the Fraser river has been a disappointment to the business men and the fishermen, as it is very small, and already the signs of cessation of the run of fish are strong. The canners are not so badly disappointed. The surplus stock on the London market is very heavy, and despite the fact that this season of the year is one of demand, the reduction in visible supply is not large. Many of the canneries have merely kept open to buy fish, the owners having several canneries, consolidating active operations at only part of them.

The pack on the Skeena and Naas rivers, at Rivers Inlet, Alert bay and other up-coast points is practically over. The fishermen there, many of them being Indians, have left the fishing to come down to the Fraser in the hope that a more profitable run will be the experience there. Latest reports from the Skeena are that the pack there is less than half a fair average pack. On the Naas the pack is extremely small. At Rivers Inlet, a small average pack is the estimate. The total, so far as ascertainable to date, is given approximately. At Skeena river, 80,000 cases, for 11 canneries; Naas, but 8,000 cases with three canneries operating; Rivers Inlet, 90,000 cases with four canneries operating out of a total of seven on the Inlet. Estimates from the Fraser are not yet available, the canneries being hopeful that they may have a fairly good run on the Puget Sound salmon banks, when they will be able to buy from the traps.

THE GROCER AND THE STRIKER.

WHAT should be the attitude of the grocer toward the striker? The frequency of strikes is making this question an important one in the business world. So soon as a strike is declared the grocer is expected to carry the strikers' accounts till after the storm. If the strike is successful, an overdue account lingers on the books, perhaps for years; if it is a failure, the delinquents scatter to other towns in search of work, and every grocer knows the difficulty of collecting these accounts. In nine cases out of ten it is impossible. The grocer bears the burden, or, if he is doing business on borrowed capital, his creditors are the losers.

A certain class of the public, it is true, are disposed to make it uncomfortable for a grocer who refuses credit to strikers, and he may find himself the object of annoying persecution, or his trade cut into by a rival who takes this opportunity of making himself solid with the union. But to look at the matter from a business standpoint, no man in business can, in fairness to himself or his creditors, imperil his assets by letting out goods on uncertain time and questionable security. Nor can he, in fairness to his own family, pursue a reckless course along this line. In granting credit to strikers, strictly business principles should be followed.

MINERAL WATERS IN THE GROCERY.

IN conversation recently with a manufacturer in a large way of mineral water and bottled drinks it transpired that his relations with the grocery trade were extremely unsatisfactory. Indeed he was closing a large number of accounts simply because he found it impossible to get his bottles returned. In not a few instances customers were behind on accounts running two or three years to the extent of four hundred bottles, which were neither returned nor paid for. The only remedy appeared to be the closing of the account and enforced collection.

The matter is a vexed one. The high price of bottles, and indeed of all glass, in Canada makes it imperative that the bottler secure the return of the package, as the bottle is often of more value than the contents. On the other hand, the grocer finds it difficult to secure the return of the bottles, especially when sold in small lots. He could of course collect the price of the bottle on sale to be refunded on return, but, simple and reasonable as this seems, the average customer does not take kindly to the idea, and rather than offend an old customer the grocer lets the bottles go without a deposit and then the trouble begins.

As the bottler pays freight both ways, and there is a very good profit in selling these goods, it is to be regretted that loose business methods should relegate their sale to hotel men, with whom it seems little trouble is experienced.

The grocer should consider the position of the bottler and keep strict account of every package sent out.

The bottler, on the other hand, might doubtless obviate a large part of the difficulty, at least in all places of any size, by appointing local agents who, for a small commission, should see to the distribution and return of the packages. The trade in mineral waters and soft drinks has reached a proportion which would at least warrant the experiment.

POTENT INFLUENCE OF THE BUSINESS MAN.

ALTHOUGH the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, now in session in Montreal, are not endowed with power sufficient to legislate for the smallest community, their influence is nevertheless sufficiently potent to be felt even beyond the circle of the British Empire, for foreign countries as well as countries within the Empire are watching with interest the proceedings of the convention.

What gives the convention its chief importance is the fact that it is composed of business men representing Great Britain and her colonies, who have met together to discuss specific questions concerning not only the trade and commerce of the British Empire, but indirectly every country as well with which the Empire does business; and that of course means every country in the world. Incidentally, this is a tribute to the influence of the business men of the Empire. The voice of the business man is becoming more and more potent. When the business man speaks on questions appertaining to trade and commerce, the politician stops and listens. The latter may not always obey, but he is compelled to do so at least sometimes.

The Empire is undoubtedly coming to the parting of the ways in regard to matters appertaining to trade and commerce. Just what direction therefore it shall take is momentous. Some people may possibly attach greater importance to tariffs than is really warranted, but whether this be so or not, the fact is none the less patent, that the future trade relationship of the component parts of the Empire with each other are involved in the question of preferential trade.

The question is not one that can be satisfactorily solved by politicians, it is beyond their ken. It may possibly be even beyond the ken of the business men who are now assembled at Montreal. But if business men cannot solve it no one can. It is because the delegates to the Chambers of Commerce Congress have set themselves to the task of considering the subject, and that their verdict is likely to greatly influence the action of the Imperial Government, that the world is watching the proceedings in Montreal with almost as much concern as if they had the final decision in the matter.

Business men study trade questions in the light of their own experience. They do not measure them by the tenets of either free-traders or protectionists. It is well that it is so.

A CHANCE TO SEE CANADA.

IT is gratifying to find that special facilities are being provided by the Dominion Government to enable the delegates to the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce to see something of the country before they return to their homes. Preparations are being made for two trips, one through Western Ontario over the Grand Trunk and Canada Atlantic railways and one through the Maritime Provinces partly by the Intercolonial Railway and partly by boat. A more popular tour, embracing both of these shorter trips, is the "All-Canada," and the indications are that a large number of the delegates will be wise enough to take advantage of it.

In no other way could Canada receive a better advertisement. What we most require in this country is an influx of capital and immigration to develop our resources. It has been our misfortune to be known throughout England, and, indeed, throughout the British Empire, by the poetical, but misleading, title of "Our Lady of the Snows." Among Englishmen in general there is often to be found a most astonishing lack of information as to our climate, our resources and our stage of development. The English delegates to the conference are an unusually well-informed body of men, who are keenly alive to the importance of developing Canadian resources. But it is an undeniable fact that even ordinarily well-informed Canadians know all too little of their country, and as for the delegates, they have much to learn of our possibilities. The all-Canadian tour is admirably adapted to enable them to become acquainted with the country, and it is confidently predicted that the result of their visit will be to make the delegates enthusiastic friends of the premier colony.

Fortunately, the Dominion Exhibition will be in progress during the visit to Toronto, and no better opportunity could be afforded to learn the extent of the resources of Canada. Here the visitor, who has heard of Canada only as an agricultural country, will learn to his surprise the magnitude and variety of Canadian manufacturing interests. In the display of fruits and grains he will have irrefutable evidence that the frosts and snows of Canada are not so dreadful as the pictorial journals of England would have him believe. The trip to the Pacific Coast will be taken at the time when the magnificent western wheat crop is being harvested. As their eyes grow weary of the monotonous prospect of countless miles of golden grain, grown in a country long believed to be a frozen wilderness, the tourists will surely be convinced of the boundless possibilities of the Canadian West. We believe that the English delegates will return to the Motherland as enthusiastic, though non-official, Canadian immigration agents. To be appreciated and admired Canada requires only to be known, and therefore favorable results may be expected as a result of this tour of inspection by leading business men.

THE COMFORT OF THE CUSTOMER.

A FEATURE which some of the larger stores have introduced for the convenience of their customers and which might be introduced with advantage in others was noted the other day. A handsome oaken table decorated with a jar of cut flowers and surrounded by three or four comfortable chairs occupied a sheltered corner in the store, where ladies could sit down and dictate their orders to the young lady clerk, who, order book in hand, sat opposite. For elderly ladies especially, shopping must have been a pleasure in that store.

It is just such little attentions to the comfort of customers that win friends and build up a business.

DRAWBACKS TO OUR WEST INDIAN TRADE.

MR. CHARLES S. PICKFORD, representing The Pickford & Black Steamship Co., Halifax, N.S., is in Toronto. He has just returned from a six months' trip to the West Indies. In addition to the interests of his own firm, which he is looking after, Mr. Pickford's special mission to Toronto just now is in regard to the exhibit of West India products which is to be made at the Dominion Exhibition, which opens August 27. The exhibit of these products will occupy a space of 1,300 square feet. The consignment, which arrived at Halifax last week, is made up of 50 packages. An exhibit of West Indian products is to be made at Ottawa as well.

Speaking to THE CANADIAN GROCER of the trade between Canada and the West Indies, Mr. Pickford said: "Our steamers have full cargoes all the time from the West Indies to Canada. The increase into Canada in the imports of West India sugar has been very great, but I am very much disappointed at the condition of trade the other way. True, the trade to the West Indies from Canada is increasing, but it is certainly not increasing as we thought it would. I think our manufacturers are a good deal to blame in this way. One instance came under my notice when I was in the West Indies. A certain firm in Canada took orders for goods to be delivered at a specified date. Two months after the date specified the goods had not arrived, but what increased the aggravation of the buyers was the fact that they could not get any satisfactory answer from the Canadian manufacturer who had sold them the goods as to whether he intended to fill the orders or not. In other instances a great many orders were away behind in being delivered. Complaints have been made to me from time to time of the neglect of Canadians to reply to letters, and that sometimes when answers do come they are very tardy. There is no doubt in my mind that the people of the West Indies are willing to do business with us, but we cannot expect them to drop a certainty for an uncertainty. What I mean is that we cannot expect the West Indies to transfer their trade from the United States to us when the Canadian exporters are so lax in the matter of delivery."

"How did you find trade matters in the West Indies?"

"I think the West Indies are picking up. This is exceptionally true of Trinidad. Barbados, on the other hand, has been having a pretty hard time of it. Owing to the smallpox epidemic, that island has been quarantined for nearly a year; while, to make matters still worse, their sugar crop is only half what it should be. The crop there, instead of being 60,000 tons, is only about 35,000 tons; then the yield of molasses, instead of being about 42,000 puncheons, is only 25,000. There was some compensation of course, the price being about 10 cents per gallon higher than a year ago. The crop of molasses is short all over the West Indies this year."

"From your own observation, how would you say would be the best way for Canada to increase her exports to the West Indies?"

"The only way to get trade is to go after it. It is no use writing letters. That is not what the United States do. They send their travellers all through the West Indies, with samples of all classes of goods. You cannot strike a port throughout the West Indies at which you do not run against three or four commercial travellers from the United States; and there must be money in the business or those travellers would not be sent over the same territory time and again. If there is money in it for the manufacturers of the United States there certainly should be money in it for the manufacturers of Canada.

"There is one thing I want to tell you about, which struck me as being rather significant. I went into the warehouse of a merchant at Port of Spain, Trinidad, last January, and was surprised to see winnowing machines which had been made at Chatham, Ont. I asked a merchant how he got the machines, and to my surprise he told me that he had obtained them through a London, Eng., firm, and that he was importing them right along from there, buying them from a merchant named H. Howes. Now,' said Mr. Pickford, "if a firm in London can pay the freight from Chatham, Ont., to London, Eng., and from there to the West Indies, why cannot manufacturers in Canada find it profitable to ship winnowing machines direct to the West Indies. The name of the Chatham manufacturer of the machines was Manson Campbell. The merchant who showed me the machines remarked to me, 'Say, you Canadians are slow. If you were not, why should you not sell direct instead of through a London, Eng., house?'"

Continuing, Mr. Pickford said: "The time is now fully ripe for the Canadians to seize the West India market, and if they let the chance slip through their fingers they have only themselves to blame."

PEPPER VS. COCOANUT SHELLS.

AN interesting sequel to the pure food campaign which has been waged for some time in the United States is the persistent upward tendency of pepper. The exact relation of these two facts may not be apparent to the unsophisticated. But if the spice mills of the United States could speak what a tale they could unfold! The adulterants which the Pure Food Commissions in the several states have found snugly ensconced in "pure" baking powder, "pure" coffee, "pure" pepper and other "pure" foods were such as to make the first great deceiver green with envy. Ground olive pits, cocoanut shells, almond shells, long pepper, cayenne, were favorite fillers for pepper, and were openly sold by spice grinders as "P. D. pepper," "pepper adulterant," etc. The recent alertness of the Pure Food Commissions has acted as a discourager to the philanthropic efforts of these gentlemen, one of whom had the effrontery to plead that unadulterated pepper was dangerous to sell to people on account of its strength.

The enforced cessation of adulteration has necessarily increased the demand for pure pepper at the expense of roasted cocoanut shells, and with the increased demand values have risen. Other factors have doubtless contributed to the rise in pepper, but those who know attribute it to the cause alluded to. A bearish market in cocoanut shells may now be anticipated.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, August 20, 1903.

TRADE still continues to give every satisfaction. To see business so well maintaining itself is a great feature for congratulation. Usually, during the time between seasons a measure of dullness is expected, more or less protracted. This year, however, has been an exception to the rule, a good run of trade having been well maintained throughout. Reports of the men on the road are most encouraging and speak generally of good prospects for the opening season. In canned goods we have no feature of interest to note, save to again call attention to the great decrease in spot stocks, the arrivals of new packs being eagerly looked for. In coffee, there has been somewhat of interest since our last issue, fair sales being reported, with prices ruling firm. Spices are showing little interest, with prices ruling firm and pepper holding a strong statistical position. Rice has been in active demand and prices rule firm, with crops favorably reported. Tapioca is inactive. Syrups and molasses have been attracting more attention and the advices to hand from primal points point to a gradually strengthening position. Tea is still ruling firm, with foreign markets all denoting steady demand and firm prices. In foreign dried fruits, demand has been active and prices rule firm at previous quotations. In sugar the situation has considerably strengthened in sympathy with the New York market, resulting in an advance on Saturday last of 5c. per 100 lb. on all white sugars.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade has been well maintained in these goods since our last issue. There have however, been no special indications to note. Stocks are generally well reduced, thus giving a good opening for the entry of new pack. We quote :

COFFEES.

The home trade for coffee, which, at no time appears great, seems to have had more activity since our last issue, some fair sales being reported. SUGAR

We have this week to record a very marked improvement in the sugar situation, with advances to note all round. The raw sugar situation is very strong with sales made to 1-16 advance in all grades, transactions in centrifugals being equal to 3.78, duty paid, New York, and there have been sales of Muscovado at 3¼ and molasses sugar at 3c. Stocks total up into large figures with refiners eager buyers, and holders at primary points disposed to ask further advances. Europe has also made some important advances during the week, the price of 88 test advancing 3d. per cwt. to 8s. 6d. f.o.b. Hamburg, which is equal to parity of 4.06, duty paid, New York, for 96 test centrifugals. It would thus be seen that cane sugars still have considerable differential in their favor. There have been some rumors of sales of Java sugars for shipment, at prices equal to 3 7/8, duty paid, for basis 96 test, but the rumors lack confirmation. It is sufficient, however to indicate the general strength of the situation. Receipts at United States four ports at week ending August 12 were 21,310 tons, with meltings of 45,000 tons, being an increase of 4,000 tons over previous week. Total stocks in four ports at same dates were 269,302 tons, being reduction for week of 23,690 tons. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,171,802 tons, against 2,253,285 tons same period last year, the decrease being 81,483 tons. The weakness mentioned in our last was short lived and just after we had gone to press the American Sugar Refining Co. and the Howell Refinery advanced all grades 10c. per 100 lb., with Arbuckle continuing sales on old basis. New business is reported small, but withdrawals on existing contracts have been heavy. The strength in New York was quickly imparted to Canadian markets and on Saturday morning August 15, all white sugars were advanced 5c. per 100 lb. As we go to press the firm feeling is still maintained and there are indications of a probable further advance owing to a very strong position in raws. We quote:

SPICES.

Trade in spices has been without interest. Prices are still ruling firm. In pepper there has been a movement on the New York market to endeavor to slacken prices, which, however, was unsuccessful, in face of the very strong statistical position. We quote :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There has been good business doing in rice, with prices continuing firm. The indications from primal markets all point to full new crops, supplies of which are expected to arrive shortly. In sympathy with this we note that the New York market weakened its prices. The better grades, however, maintained a steady market. In tapioca, trade has been slow and uninteresting. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

TEAS.

The home tea trade has been fairly active, with prices ruling firm. The London market still points to increased strength, the average prices at latest advices ruling some 1½d. per lb. higher than at the same time last year. New teas to hand are reported as showing fairly good quality in cup, and with advance of season further improvement is looked for. Reports from Calcutta speak of weather being most favorable for tea producing. Assams and Dooars are both coming to hand in useful condition, showing both strength and quality. Teas, for price, are holding strong and are well competed for. In Ceylons, the market continues strong, the more recent arrivals in London falling considerably short of those at similar dates last year and scarcely sufficient to meet current requirements. In China teas, the arrivals are showing decided improvement on previous arrivals, the quality being decidedly in advance of that shown for several years past. Altogether, the outlook is developing strength, the available stocks showing a greatly reduced balance, while the volume coming to hand is barely sufficient to meet consumptive demands. We quote.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The demand for these goods since our last issue has continued good, and there is every reason for expecting a good start for new arrivals. The first new shipments of sultanas is expected to hand within the coming week, with prices well under last season's opening, and quality considered good. Californian prunes are opening strong. It is, however, too early to judge regarding quality. The prospects denote a full crop of large prunes, with indications of a shortage of small. Prices rule as previous quotations. We quote:

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.—Demand is very little changed since last week and the same may be said of supply with the exception that the quality is better. As a result eggs are a half cent higher. We quote:

Fresh laid eggs, per doz	0 14½	0 15½

HONEY.—Buyers and sellers have hardly come to an understanding as yet. The crop in the West is reported very good but is balanced by rather short crop in the east. Dealers over-bought last year and so are careful in beginning this season. Prices are unchanged from last week. We quote:

Extracted clover, per lb	0 06½	0 07½
Sections, per doz	1 00	1 50

WHITE BEANS.—The market is easier this week with little doing. We quote:

VEGETABLES.

Prices have been maintained very steadily all along the line this week. The supplies have been large, the quality good and the demand quite satisfactory. Green peas are practically off the market. Red peppers are offered at 15c. per dozen and leeks at 50c. per dozen. Potatoes are just a shade easier. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS

Montreal, August 20, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THE condition of trade this week is quiet, country orders not showing any too freely. The reason advanced is the activity of the farmers in the harvest fields. The rather fine weather dealt out lately has been taken advantage of by farmers, and they are staying away from the towns and clearing in their harvests. In teas, the chief interest has been in Japans and Ceylon greens, the prices in both being firm. Ceylon blacks have been enquired for more lately, and good values are obtained for high-grown, flavory teas. Low grade Ceylons are looked for, but not freely obtained on spot. The demand for Ceylon greens continues steady. Hard sugars advanced 5c. per 100 lb. on Saturday, but no extra heavy buying is noted, the demand being good, as usual, at this time of the year. Beet is reported higher in Europe. Glucose advanced 10c. per 100 lb. The high price of Barbados molasses will make the demand for corn syrups more active. In canned goods the situation is unchanged, very little doing, as buyers seem to be holding off, while jobbers are not overly anxious to book ahead any corn, tomatoes or gallon apples. Coffee is dull and nothing to note. New York prices continue steady. Pimento is on the rise, owing, it is claimed, to the destruction by the late hurricane in Jamaica, but as there is very little coming to this market at any time, prices will not be affected appreciably. Foreign dried fruits are quiet. New Valencias are expected in a few weeks. Reports of the currant crop are encouraging, good weather conditions being very favorable. Shipments will leave Greece August 28. In Malaga fruits a good crop is expected. Valencia shelled almonds will be lower. In green fruits, Canadian peaches are coming in, and prices are easing off. Lake fish still continue scarce. Haddock is coming in more freely and in a few weeks Manitoba pickerel will be available. Cheese is still firm and the situation is peculiar, as the high price ruling is not a condition of the market, but undoubtedly the result of shorts covering. Country boards are high. Lard is unchanged. The tendency, however, is for an advance. Butter is quiet, good prices, however, are being received for select creamery. Eggs are quiet. The English market is in an unsatisfactory position, so much so that shippers here cannot see any money in exporting. Country products generally are dull.

SUGAR.

An advance of 5c. per 100 lb. on hard sugars went into effect on Monday, but did not disturb the market, which is only fairly active. Beet is reported higher and some jobbers look for another advance shortly in domestic refined. A fair amout of business is doing and though somewhat better than last season, is not up to what was expected by the more optimistic dealers. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The firm feeling in molasses continues. Latest mail advices from Barbados report market cleaned up of stock on basis of 18c. and $1 per puncheon, f.o.b., which is equal to about 38c. per gallon, freight and duty paid in Montreal. Local holders of stocks are none too keen to sell freely, old Barbados being firm at 38 to 39c., while new is being held at 41 to 42c. New Orleans is steady at 22 to 25c. We quote:

TEAS.

The trade is on the quiet side, interest centering in Japans and Ceylon greens. There is no change to note in Japans; it still continues firm. We learn that orders have been refused at 15½ to 16c. for third crop teas, and there are not many orders out which can be filled on this basis, though we are informed some have been filled at 15¾ to 16¼c. Teas from 18 to 23c. have been shipped to this market, but as they are not meeting with very ready sale at present, the chances are they will ease off some. In China greens the market is practically unchanged. Cable advices received a few days ago confirm several large orders sent out some few months ago. Pealeaf are hard to get, and lowest quotations received for shotty teas are about 20c. to 22c. Moyunes are still very high and a few orders have been sent out even at present high prices. In China blacks no great change is reported, and there is very little demand for same in this market. Ceylon blacks have been inquired for more within the past few days, and high-grown, flavory teas have realized full prices. There is quite a demand for low grade Ceylons at prices ranging from 5¾ to 6¼c. The demand for Ceylon greens continues steady for all grades. Young Hysons, Hysons and No. 2 teas consigned to this market have met with ready sale. The same may be said of

SPICES.

Outside of the strong advance in pimento this week, there is a featureless condition to report. New York advices report pepper dull, though the general tone is upward. Singapore pepper was in some demand as the decrease in visible supplies is apparent. The advance in pimento is attributed to the recent hurricane in Jamaica, which caused almost incalculable damage to the plantations, and until the extent of the damage is known, prices will hold up. Cassia is strong, with good demand for all grades, as cases and matt China cassias are practically out of stock in New York. Latest advices point to probable advances in nutmegs. We quote :

CANNED GOODS

Trade is quiet, the absence of quotations on corn and tomatoes being the one discussable feature. The trade seem to be lying back, awaiting future developments and are not offering or looking ahead at set prices, as they are not anxious to repeat the folly of last year. The contradictory statements as to the apple crop make it hard to get reliable figures for canned apples in gallons. The fact of new evaporated apples being quoted at 6½c., a very high opening price, leads some jobbers to anticipate high prices in canned apples. Notwithstanding the reports of improved conditions at the fisheries, British Columbia packers are still withholding offers, both in Fraser River and Rivers Inlet sockeye, and the feeling in the jobbing trade is to refrain from booking ahead or selling, except subject to pack. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The trade in dried fruits during the past week has been quiet. Some little trading has been done in prunes, and currants have received some attention, filiatras at 5c. being low water mark. Sultanas are inactive with no change to report from last week's quotations. Advices from Denia under date of August 3 report continued seasonable weather, and it is now thought that the total yield will not be more than 25,000 tons, as against about 18,000 tons in 1902, 24,000 tons in 1901, and 20,000 tons in 1900, this year's yield being somewhat under the average of the previous three seasons. Mail reports from Malaga indicate a bountiful crop of small to medium sized fruit, with larger selections lacking, owing to the weather conditions prevailing in the early Summer. Currant advices from Patras, under date of August 3, report cutting as commencing on that date in some parts of the earlier districts, and by this time will have become general. The weather is reported as being all that could be desired. Although cutting had been started on the third, no shipments will be allowed to go forward until August 28, the Grecian Government decreeing to that effect as a matter of protection to the country's industry. The fruit must be thoroughly matured and in proper shipping condition. We quote locally as follows :

NUTS

Market is quiet and nothing of interest at this season of the year is ever noticed. In Valencia shelled almonds prices from buyers' standpoint are very reasonable and considerable business has been placed in expectation of heavy consumption and values are considerably lower than those of last year. It is expected that prices will run from 5 to 6c. per lb. lower than last season. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.

Trade is about as last week. Canadian fruit is coming in more freely, peaches being generally most conspicuous. Clingstones only are obtainable, but it is expected that freestones will be obtainable in a week or ten days. Prices are a little lower. California fruit is coming in in somewhat ripe condition owing to late warm weather. We quote :

FISH.

Business continues quiet, the holiday season being mainly responsible for dull local conditions. Haddock is a little more plentiful this week, owing to the departure of the dogfish from the fishing districts. Lake fish still remain scarce, though better supplies are expected about beginning of September, when the Manitoba pickerel will be available. We quote :

HONEY.

Market is dull and very little doing. Prices offered are considered too high, in fact prohibitive. September 1 being about the time the honey is ready for market, dealers do not feel like paying prices asked for now. We quote :

White clover, comb	0 12	0 13
White, strained, in tins	0 08½	0 09

POTATOES.

New potatoes are coming in freely and demand is steady. We quote :

New, in jobbing lots, per bbl	1 25	1 40
New, bushel baskets	0 50	0 60

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

The market is dull, in fact nothing is doing. Owing to the large deliveries of fruit at present there is no demand for these goods. Prices are quoted as follows :

New syrup, in wood, per lb	0 06	0 06½
New syrup, in large tins	0 70	0 75
Old " "	0 55	0 60
Old " in wood	0 05½	0 06

HOPS.

Market is very quiet. Reports from Pacific coast show a quiet situation. California crop is being damaged by lack of rain, and early estimates are cut down some 10,000 bales. New York State crops are reported as steadily improving. Local quotations are as follows :

Old hops	0 09	0 10

FLOUR AND GRAIN.

FLOUR.

Flour has firmed up some though the trade is very quiet. The advance in wheat towards end of last week in Minneapolis and the generally strong market situation in the Northwest work for higher prices in flour. We quote :
